Truth is fact, and fact is truth, and it is worth while recording the fact that, after over a century of archaeological research, nothing has been unearthed that contradicts any Bible statement, while many of the discoveries have confirmed the historical accuracy of Scripture. "Truth is mighty and prevails."—(Tertius in The Globe.)

EDITOR EXAMINER:

It is generally known that the letter carriers are not only not too generously paid, but men whose business demands intelligence and absolute honesty. In view of these facts I think it only fair that recognition be made when a "postie" out of goodness of heart, goes a long way in excess of his paid duty to do a kindness. At ome considerable distance from the post office lives a family, a member of which is dangerously ill in a distant Canadian city. On Thursday of last week this family received word that the sick member was in a very dangerous condition and that hope was almost given up. The letter carrier who works Hunter and Strwart streets, whilst sorting his letters at the post office for Monday's delivery, after 10 p.m. fotmd one for the local family mentioned, recognized the distant postmark and, in the snowstorm of Saturday, took the letter which fortunately conveyed cheering news, out and delivered it at 10.30. Such acts of kindness are rare.

MARMORA NEWS

MARMORA, Jan. 23.—Many of the telephones of the village have been out of order since the fire on Sunday night. The repair men are now in the village fixing the lines.

Mr. Airhart, Reeve of Marmora, left for Belleville on Tuesday morning, where he will attend the County Council.

Mr. J. H. Clare, Sheriff of Hastings, visited his brother, Rev. D. R. Clare, on Monday night.

Lawyer Collins, of Tweed, was in town on Monday night.

The thermometer on Monday touched the lowest point of the year. That, combined with a very strong north-westerly wind, caused the attendance at school to be little more than half the usual attendance.

THAT'S NOT NICE

She—I heard you singin g in your room this morning.

He—Oh, I sing a little to kill time.

The years best book by America's best woman writer

"BLACK OXEN"

by GERTRUDE ATHERTON

XLI (Continued)

Gora regarded her with frank admiration, wholly unassumed. "Oh, you couldn't lose Clavey if you tried. He is mad about you. We can all see that, and I knew it before he did himself. It's only—really—that I'm afraid you'll be bored to death with so much shop if you don't set up one for yourself."

"Oh, I never intend to be bored again as long as I live." Mary Zattiany was a very shrewd woman and she determined on a bold stroke. Her suspicion lingered but had lost its edge. Gora Dwight was deep and subtle but there was no doubt that she was honorable. "I shall tell you something," she said, "but you must give me your word that you will not betray me—not even to Lee."

Miss Dwight's mind, not her body, gave a slight stir of uneasiness. But she answered warmly: "Of course I promise."

"Very well, then. It is this. I shall never return to America. I sail in a fortnight. Lee follows soon after, and we shall be married in Austria."

"But—but—his play!" Miss Dwight was too startled to act. "He must be here for rehearsals. Some one has said that plays are not written, they're rewritten, and it's pretty close to the truth."

"I shall consent to his returning in time for rehearsals. Prolonged honeymoons are indiscreet. It is better to divide them into a series I fancy the series might hold out indefinitely if adroitly spaced. Moreover, being a modern myself, I like new methods. And he will be too busy to miss me. I shall be equally busy in Vienna."

"But will he consent? Lee? He's not used to having his plans made for him. He's about the most dominating male I know."

"I feel sure he will when the time comes. It is woman's peculiar gift, you know, to convince the dominating male that he wants what she wants."

Gora laughed. But she also could turn mental somersaults. "I think it a splendid arrangement. Then we should not lose Lee altogether, for we really are devoted to him. He is an adorable creature for all his absurdities. But I can't endure the thought of losing you."

"You must pay me a long visit in Vienna. Many visits. I can assure you that you will find material there, under my guidance, for a really great novel."

Gora's eyes sparkled. She was all artist at once. "I should like that! How kind of you. And what a setting!"

"Yes. Austria is the most interesting country in Europe, and the most beautiful to look at—and describe."

"It will be heavenly." Gora made up her mind at once that would waste no more ingenuity to stop this marriage. Its modernity appealed to her, and she foresaw new impulses to creation. "The American Scene," conceivably, might grow monotonous with time; and with these daily recruits bent upon describing its minutiae with the relentless efficiency of the camera. And with all her soul she loved beauty. With the possible exception of Bavaria she knew Austria to be the darling of nature.

Once more she chose to believe this woman would manage Clavering to his own good, and to the satisfaction of his friends, who, as she well knew, were alarmed and alert. They were too polite to show it, but much of their enthusiasm for Madame Zattiany had dimmed with the knowledge that she was a scientific phenomenon. Fundamentally the brilliant creative mind is quite as conservative as the worldly, or the inarticulate millions between, for they have common ancestors and common traditions. They feared not only to lose him, moreover, but had begun to ask one another if his career would not be wrecked.

Miss Dwight concluded that such an uncommon and romantic marriage [illegible] a spur to Clavering's genius, which might weaken in a conventional marital drama set in the city of New York.

She rose and for the first time kissed Madame Zattiany. "It will be too perfect!" she said. "Let me visit you in summer when he is rehearsing. He can arrange to have his first-nights in September, and then write his next play in Austria, filling his time while you are absorbed in politics. Heavens, what a theme! Some day I'll use it. Perfectly disguised, of course."

"And I'll give you points," said Mary, laughing. She returned the other's embrace; but when she was alone she sighed and sank back in her chair, without picking up her book. Miss Gora Dwight had given her something to think of! The last thing she wanted was a serial honeymoon. She wanted this man's companionship and his help. But she had slowly been forced to the conclusion that Clavering's was a mind whose enthusiasms could only be inspired by some form of creative art; politics would never appeal to it. In her comparative ignorance of the denaturalized brain, she had believed that a brilliant gifted mind could concentrate itself upon any object with equal fertility and power, but she had seen too much of the Sophisticates of late, and studied Clavering in too many of his moods to cherish the illusion any longer. Playwrighting seemed to her a contemptible pastime compared with the hideous facts of Life as exemplified in Europe, and she had restrained herself from an angry outburst more than once. But she was too philosophical, possibly too fatalistic, not to have dismissed this attitude eventually. Clavering could not be changed, but neither could she. There would be the usual compromises. After all, of what was life made up but of compromise? But the early glow of the wondrous dream had faded. The mistress was evidently the role nature had cast her to play. The vision of home, the complete matehood, had gone the way of all dreams.

XLII

She was not sorry to forego the doubtful luxury of meditation on the sadness of life. When Miss Trevor's card was brought to her she told the servant to show her up and bring tea immediately. She was not interested in Agnes Trevor, a younger sister of Polly Vane, but at all events she would talk about her settlement work and give a comfortably commonplace atmosphere to the room in which tragic clouds were rising. As it had happened, Mary, during these past weeks, had seen little of New York women between the relics of her old set and their lively Society-loving daughters. The women between forty and fifty, whether devoted to fashion, politics, husbands, children, or good works, had so far escaped her, and Agnes Trevor, who lived with Mrs. Vane, was practically the only representative of the intermediate age with whom she had exchanged a dozen words. But the admirable spinster had taken up the cause of the Vienna children with enthusiasm and raised a good deal of money, besides contributing liberally herself. She was forty-two, and, although she was said to have been a beautiful girl, was now merely patrician in appearance, very tall and thin and spinsterish, with a clean but faded complexion, and hair-colored hair beginning to turn gray. She had left Society in her early twenties and devoted herself to moralizing the East Side.

She came in with a light step and an air of subdued bright energy, very smartly but plainly dressed in dark blue tweed, with a large black hat in which a wing had been accurately placed by the best milliner in New York. Her clothes were so well-worn, and her grooming was so meticulous, her accent so clean and crisp, her manner so devoid of patronage, yet subtly remote, her controlled heart so kind that she perennially fascinated the buxom, rather sloppy, preternaturally acute, and wholly unaristocratic young ladies of the East Side.

Mary, who had a dangerous habit of characterizing people in her Day Book, had written when she met Agnes Trevor: "She radiates intelligence, good will, cheeriness, innate superiority and uncompromising virginity."

"Dear Mary!" she exclaimed in her crisp bright tones as she kissed her amiable hostess. "How delightful to find you alone. I was afraid you would be surrounded as usual."

"Oh, my novelty is wearing off," said Mary drily. "But I will tell them to admit no one else today. I find I enjoy one person at a time. One gets rather tired in New York of the unfinished sentence."

"Oh, do." Mary's quick eye took note of a certain repressed excitement in the fine eyes of her guest, who had taken an upright chair. Lounging did not accord with that spare ascetic figure. "And you are quite right. It is seldom one has anything like real conversation. One has to go for that to those of our older women who have given up Society to cultivate the intellects God gave them."

"Are there any?" murmured Mary.

"Oh, my dear, yes. But, of course, you've had no time to meet them in your mad whirl. Now that things have slowed down a bit you must meet them."

"I'm afraid it's too late. I sail in a fortnight."

"Oh!" Miss Trevor's voice shook oddly, and the slow color crept up her cheeks. But at that moment the tea was brought.

"Will you pour it out?" asked Mary. "I'm feeling rather lazy."

"Of course." Miss Trevor was brightly acquiescent. She seated herself before the table. The man retired with instructions that Madame was not at home to other callers.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

CHOCOLATE CAKE

Who can resist a home-made chocolate cake? Served alone or with ice cream or canned fruit it adds the finishing touch to almost any sort of a home dinner.

A dark cake keeps moist longer than a white one and is good to the last crumb. If half butter and half lard are used the cake will be fluffier and more moist than if all butter is used.

This recipe calls for the yolks of the eggs only. Whe whites are used for the frosting. The cake can be baked in a dripping pan, covered with boiled icing and spread with melted chocolate. The chocolate forms a hard crust over the icing which tends to keep it soft.

Chocolate Cake

Two squares bitter chocolate, 1 cup milk, ½ cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon vanilla, few grains salt, yolks of 2 eggs.

Melt chocolate over hot water. Add one-half cup milk and cook until a smooth paste is formed. Cream butter (or butter and lard mixed) and beat in sugar. Add cooked mixture. Beat egg yolks with remaining half cup of milk and add alternately with flour. Mix well and add soda dissolved in a little hot water. Add vanilla and salt and beat well. Bake in two layers or in a dripping pan.

Fudge Cake

Two cups light brown sugar, 23-cup butter and lard mixed and melted, 1-3 cake melted chocolate, 2 eggs, ½ cup boiling water, 1 teaspoon vanilla, few grains salt, 1 teaspoon soda.

Cream shortening and sugar. Melt chocolate over hot water and add to mixture. Add eggs (unbeaten) and beat well. Stir in sour milk. Add flour sifted after measuring. Beat until smooth. Add boiling water and beat smooth. Add vanilla, salt and soda dissolved in a little cold water. Pour into two squares pans and bake half an hour in a moderate oven. Put together with fudge.

One-fourth cake, two squares of chocolate can be used.

Fudge

Two cups granulated sugar, 1 cup milk, 2 or 3 squares of bitter chocolate, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Put sugar and milk in a smooth sauce pan. Put over the fire and do not stir until mixture begins to boil. Add chocolate and stir constantly until the soft ball stage is reached. Add butter and cook one minute longer. Remove from the fire and let cool. When cool add vanilla and stir until creamy. Spread on cake.

Sour Cream Chocolate Cake

Two cups brown sugar, ½ cup butter, 3 eggs, 1 cup sour cream, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ cup grated chocolate.

Cream butter and sugar. Add yolks of eggs well beaten. Melt chocolate and add to mixture. Mix baking powder and soda with flour and sift. Add to first mixture alternately with sour cream. Add vanilla and fold in white of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Bake in two layers.

Icing

One-half cup sweet table cream, 2 squares chocolate (melted), yolk 1 egg, 1 teaspoon butter, powdered sugar to make stiff, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Scald cream over hot water. Add melted chocolate, yolk of egg and butter. Beat well and beat in enough sugar to make stiff enough to spread.

EVOLUTION OF MUSICAL CULTURE

All music that affords a true medium of expression is good music. Even as the evolution of mankind is represented by groups of people at different stages of development, yet all progressing, all grades of music that form the true expression of any set of people, have their place in the evolution of musical culture, from the lowliest ragtime to the most elevated chamber music.

As in the greater evolution, some people more fortunately disposed than others, move more quickly through the lower grades, and are apt to be impatient with and intolerant of the more slowly moving individuals. Here, as in all else, the trouble arises from those in advance who, through lack of sympathetic understanding, question the sincerity of the others. This results recrimination and rebellion by the more advanced, and an aping by those behind—the worst of all things, since it stops progress and begets the only bad music, that which is insincere.

MUSIC IN FACTORIES

The question of the effect of music upon the output of workers came into one of the discussions of the British Association at Liverpool recently. A paper was read giving the results of investigations scientifically made as to variations in the average daily output of a factory, and in the course of subsequent remarks, one of the speakers mentioned the widely held opinion that music is a stimulus to workers which has pronounced effect upon their working capacity. He supported the theory, making the point that if the sound of a trumpet inspires the soldiers going into battle, there is no reason why a worker in a factory should not perform a patricular task better by reason of the presence of music.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

St. Andrew's Church Had a Burns Night--Social Gatherings.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 22.—The Young People's Society of St. Andrew's church gave a Burns' night at their regular weekly meeting Monday evening in commemoration of the anniversary of the birth of Scotland's favorite poet. An illustrated lecture was given by E. H. Greig, the leading incidents in the life of the poet being referred to and views shown of his birthplace, of his different places of residence during his lifetime and of notable buildings which he had immortalized in song or with which he was otherwise associated. Pictures of some of the many handsome monuments that have been erected to the memory of Burns in different parts of Scotland and in London were also shown on the screen.

The lecture was interspersed with singing and reading, selections from the works of Burns being given the preference.

Alex. Rollo, president of the Society, accompanied by Fred Wigglesworth on the piano, rendered two solos, "Bonnie Wee Thing," and "Afton Waters."

Miss B. Ballantyne sang with faultless expression, "Loch Lomond," the song that the redoubtable Sir Harry Lauder at one stage of his concert career had the temerity to parody, but was compelled to withdraw his version in the face of the indignation of a people who would not stand for having one of the sacred melodies profaned by being mixed up with roysterers who found their finish in a police court.

Miss Hazel Atkinson, with taste and elocutionary culture, read "To Mary in Heaven," Burns' tribute to the memory of Highland Mary, an expression of grief none the less genuine though he had carried the burden of his sorrow for three years.

The last number on the programme was a solo, "Aisla Mine," by Mr. Wigglesworth.

At St. Andrew's Church

Rev. Hugh Shaw, a former pastor of the Baptist church here, preached very acceptably in St. Andrew's church Sunday morning. Mr. Shaw was obliged to retire from the ministry some years ago on account of throat trouble and he has since been living at Menie. His friends hope that he may yet recover his health and so be able to resume a useful pastoral career.

Rev. J. J. Black, of Burnbrae, took the evening service as Rev. C. F. McIntosh, the pastor, was out of town.

In the morning the musical service was conducted by a large choir of children who have been specially trained by Fred Wigglesworth, organist and choir leader.

The annual meeting of the congregation will be held Thursday evening.

Gave a Reception

On Friday evening, the home of Reeve and Mrs. George Vonvolkenbury, Seymour, was the scene of a very enjoyable event, being the occasion of a reception given in honor of the homecoming of their eldest son, Lloyd, and his bride.

Friends and relatives of the happy couple to the number of one hundred sat down to a sumptuous dinner.

The bride was the recipient of many beutiful and useful presents, which showed the esteem in which the young couple are held in the community.

The evening was spent in games and music.

Those present represented friends from Wooler, Peterboro, Norwood, Hastings, Havelock and Seymour, who join with those of Seymour West in wishing a life of happiness and prosperity to the young couple.

Euchre Party

Mrs. P. J. Kelly entertained over thirty of her friends on Monday afternoon. There were eight tables of euchre. The prize for lone hands went to Mrs. Glenn Thompson, and the other for points to Mrs. J. S. Loucks. After the game was ended, Mrs. Kelly served a dainty lunch.

Master Staunton Archer had a snowshoe party on Friday night. The young folks went for a tramp for about a couple of hours, then they returned to Staunton's home and had refreshments and a social hour.

Mrs. Chas. Macoun, of Seymour, left on Monday for Ottawa in connection with the Women's Institute work.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brown, Seymour, are the happy possessors of a young daughter.

Having disposed of my business it is important that all accounts due me be paid by Feb. 1st, otherwise they pass from my hands for collection. —J. I. Adams.

The Cost of a Typewriter

THE typewriter which costs you most is not your newest or most expensive typewriter.

It is the machine which, because of its age or the quality of its work, is inefficient. It is slow st and hardest to operate, and turns out the least work and the poorest work.

In the cost of typewriting, the price you pay for the machine is the smallest factor. A new Underwood, on the basis of only five years' use, costs but $3.00 a month, including maintenance.

The new Underwood is the cheapest typewriting machine, because of the greater volume of work it turns out. It is cheapest, because it requires least repairs, and lasts longest.

THE FUNERAL OF HARRY BURLEIGH

Many Floral Tributes Evidence High Esteem in Which Deceased Was Held.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 22.—The funeral of the late Harry Burleigh on Sunday afternoon was largely attended and was under the auspices of the Masons. The service was held at his parent's home at half past two and there were about sixty Masons present, as well as a large gathering of friends. Rev. C. W. Barrett, of Stirling, had charge of the first of the service, as both Rev. C. F. McIntosh and Rev. W. Elliott were out of town.

The pallbearers were as follows: R. S. Southworth, S. Armour, J. Storie, W. Henson, H. Lowrey and J. Birmingham.

There were beautiful flowers, many of them from Oconto, Wis., where the late Mr. Burleigh lived. Among them were: Sheaf from teachers and children of the Primary Dept. of the Presbyterian Sunday School class at Oconto, in which Verna, his only daughter, was a member; wreath, employees of the Oconto Woollen Mills; pillow, Oconto Woollen Mills Co.; anchor, Mr. Strouts and Mr. Merrill, Oconto; pillow, wife and daughter; pillow, family; wreath, Mrs. Burleigh's brothers and sister, Lewis and Bruce Gilchrist, Mrs. Scott and brother-in-law, Mr. Scott; anchor, Masonic Lodge, Campbellford.

The late Harry Burleigh was born in Campbellford thirty-one years ago. He was educated in the public and high schools here, then went in the Trent Valley Woollen Mills, afterwards becoming boss spinner. He has been away from town several years in mills at Markham, Brantford and another down East. About three years ago he moved to Oconto, Wis., and worked in the Oconto Woollen Mills. Shortly after going there he was made superintendent and held that position until he died.

He had had several attacks of appendicitis, taking a severe one on Thursday, Jan. 10th. He underwent an operation on Sunday, Jan. 13th, and died the next day.

Those who knew him best speak of his sterling qualities as a man, in his home, in his work, in his church and among his friends. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and one child, a daughter, Verna, aged 7 years. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Burleigh of town, and two sisters, Jean (Mrs. John Martin), Toronto, and Mrs. De Carroll, at present at home with her parents.

Mission Services

The Missionary services in the Methodist church were well attended. Rev. C. W. Barrett, of Stirling, preached morning and evening.

The morning subject was "The Problem of the Church." The policy of the Church is to stand for that which is outside of itself. Its life will depend on what it is doing to evangelize the world.

The subject at night was "The Solution of the Problems of the Church." The problems can be solved if the Church is consecrated. There are three ways: Consecration, prayer and gifts. If the prayer life of a church gets low there will not be much accomplished. More things are wrought by prayer than people dream of. Just as soon as we get to see and understand that the gold and silver is the Lord's will we use our money consistently and give our share as gifts to spread the gospel.

ONLY 83--WHY QUIT WORK?

WASHINGTON, C. H., O., Jan. 22.—The advancing shadow of old age has no fears for Frederick Swartz of Washington Courthouse.

He has been a skilled mason since he was 18 and has no thought of quiting. Working in the open, he says, has kept him in good health and strong enough to continue his work.

Swartz says he's the oldest brick mason in Ohio. He's also a Civil War veteran. He was born on board ship when his parents came here from Germany.

Cobourg and District

COBOURG, Jan. 21.—The evening entertainments were an enjoyable feature of the progress of the Bay of Quinte Winter School which closed here today. On Monday evening, Cobourg Methodist church orchestra, under the direction of Mr. M. E. Hall, put on a fine program of music. There was also a sing-song led by Rev. Roy Rickard, of Northport, with Rev. F. J. Horwood at the piano. Miss Jessie Tuite, teacher of elocution at Albert College, Belleville, gave a program of readings, with much excellence. In her repertoric she depicted the foibles of social life, and also of our cosmopolitan life; was remarkably good in selections pertaining to childhood, and gave a more dramatic selection with much excellence. Her readings were heartily applauded and very much enjoyed. The pastor of the convention church, Rev. R. F. Stillman, presided.

On Tuesday evening, the Cobourg Young People's League voiced its welcome to the delegates in no uncertain way. There was a good program of music, instrumental and vocal, presented by the Cobourg Leaguers, also readings and recitations. Then the company was divided for a musical contest that called forth much amusing competition. The judges were Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, Brighton, Rev. R. F. Stillman, Cobourg, Rev. W. Harold Young, Peterborough. There were other contests and stunts also, and afterwards the serving of refreshments brought a pleasant evening to a close.

Port Hope Entertained

On Wednesday evening there was another delightful entertainment, with the hall filled to capacity, notwithstanding rain and icy streets. The Port Hope Young People's League furnished the program, sending down a contingent of about twenty, who put on the enjoyable play, "Martha Made Over," concluding with a good programme of vocal music.

Impromptu Concert Thursday Night

On Thursday evening the students of the school gave an impromptu concert and it proved to be a most enjoyable one also. Capt. Harston asked Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, Brighton, a former Cobourg pastor to preside, which he did with much ability, interspersing the excellent program with enjoyable anecdotes and appropriate skits. The opening number was "O Canada," sung with much heartiness by the young people assembled. Then there was a vocal solo by Miss Alice Moss, Woodville, and a reading by Miss Edith Flett, Oakwood; Rev. J. G. McKee, Baltimore, contributed a vocal solo that was much appreciated. Mr. Albert Jewell, Cobourg, played a cornet solo, and Miss Edith Earl, Cobourg, sang. Miss Allison, of the Girls' Work Board, told enjoyable short stories. Mr. Harold McMillan, Cobourg, played a piano solo, and Rev. R. Rickard, Northport, sang. Mr. H. Matthie, Bloomfield, gave an enjoyable reading. Mr. Ernest Stacey, Cobourg, played the trombone. Miss Alice Scarpe, Cobourg, sang. Mr. Cornish contributed a violin solo and Mr. Stinson and Mr. Rickard a duet. Rev. W. H. Smyth, Seabright, gave a humorous address, and Miss Nellie Scarpe, Cobourg, gave a reading. Mr. Taylor Statten's contribution to the prog.amme was a special number that was heartily applauded. He and his boys put on some stunts that convulsed the house. Altogether the concert showed that a very considerable amount of talent was available, and all who took part in this impromptu affair did well.

SATISFACTORY BARGAIN

HER IMMUNITY

"Why don't you want us to take it down?" one of the officers asked.

HINTS TO THE WISE WOMAN

CARE OF THE HAIR
By HELEN GRANVILLE BUTLER

Untold money and needless worry could be saved if women would realize that the proper care and preservation of their hair lies in their own hands. Severe illness or nervous exhaustion causes loss of hair and lack of luster which will be corrected when health is regained. I refer to the care of the normal head of hair.

Before you commence the systematic care of the hair be sure that you have the proper sort of comb and brush. Use a fairly coarse comb with blunt teeth. Too fine teeth instead of untangling the hair tend to pull it out. The blunt teeth are not so apt to injure the scalp. The same theory holds true for the brush. Choose a brush that is strong but not stiff enough to harm the scalp or tear the hair. Both comb and brush must be kept immaculately clean at all times. Wash them well in hot water and ammonia, use a pure soap and be careful to rinse them thoroughly. Rub them and then allow them to dry in the sun.

In order to keep the hair glossy and give it the required stimulation daily brushing is necessary. Either in the morning or at night, devote at least ten minutes to your hair. Take the comb first and clear out the tangles Be careful not to jerk the hair; work from the ends up to the scalp. Now take the brush and give the hair a thorough brushing. Use a gentle stroke. The object of the brushing is not to clear the hair (the comb does that), but to massage it, to stimulate the action of the sebacceous glands, and carry the natural oil down the length of the hair in order to preserve its luster.

Frequent shampooing is as necessary as daily brushing. The hair should be washed every ten days or two weeks. Before the shampoo take olive oil and rub it well into the scalp. Use a piece of cotton for the application. Then wash the hair thoroughly with a castile soap solution. Be very careful to rinse every particle of soap out of the hair. A cold rinse at the end is beneficial but not necessary. Now rub the scalp well to start the circulation, and dry the hair by hand. Do not dry it in the strong sunlight as this tends to burn and streak the hair.

These simple measures if faithfully followed will keep the hair in good condition and give it the gloss that makes any hair beautiful.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Clive Roberts Barton

MISTER SPRIGG GOES TO SLEEP

The first thing she saw was the sign.

Everybody might have known that Mother Goose would be home for the Market Town Fair, even if she had missed the circus.

But everybody in Daddy Gander Land was so excited about it, they never gave her a thought at all. Not even Daddy Gander or the Twins.

Daddy was so busy carrying things to the Fair on his magic dustpan, he hadn't time to eat his meals properly, and I am sure that the cook stove in the Christmas tree house that the Twins lived in hadn't had a fire in it for a week. Everybody was eating pick-me-ups off the corner of the kitchen table.

First there was the Pieman's wares to be taken over to the lunch counter at the Fair grounds. For the Pieman was going to sell coffee and doughnuts and weeny sandwiches as well as pies.

Then there was Dame Trot who was having a butter and egg stand. She broke so many eggs on the way when she carried them that Nancy and Nick and Daddy Gander took her whole stock over for her in perfect condition.

And the Toymaker had a prize stand where he gave away dolls and drums, if you were smart enough to guess the next number on a big wheel.

Well, the day of the Fair dawned bright and clear and everybody in Daddy Gander Land was up at 6 in order to get an early start.

And you may be sure that things at home got little more than a lick and a promise as far as work went. dried without rinsing and stuck away in cupboards. Beds were made up them weren't so much as aired. And as for sweeping! Well, I may as well tell you right here that there was no sweeping done at all outside or in!

And by 9 o'clock everybody was off to the Market Town Fair, from Mother Hubbard's dog to the five little pigs.

Nancy and Nick liked the Ferris Wheel and the Jerk-Me-Round best of all and they were having such a gorgeous time that houses and housekeeping were as far from their minds as China.

Nobody noticed a little shadow pass the sun and float overhead toward Daddy Gander Land.

The first thing she saw was the sign which said "Daddy Gander—his Land" When she went away it had said—this same sign had—"Mother Goose—Her Land"

"H'm" she remarked grimly.

And the next thing she saw were the unswept swalks and the crooked, dusty doormats

"H'm" she remarked more grimly. If there was anything she liked it was order.

And every second she was getting crosser and crosser.

But suddenly something popped into her head. It was the Market Town Fair. What a good time everyone was having when she had looked down out of the sky

She began to smile and then to chuckle.

"When the cat's away the mice will play" she nodded. "And I don't blame them. From now on I'm going to make them love me as well as they do Daddy Gander. And off to the Fair she flew on her broom.

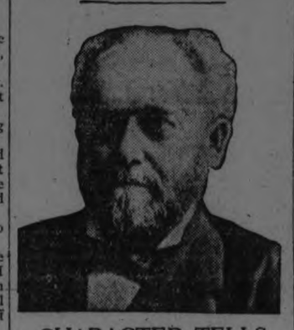
MADE A DEPOSIT BEFORE FAILURE

Interesting Point Raised in Home Bank Smash

TORONTO, Jan. 23. — With reference to the endeavor of the Roman Catholic Diocese of London to secure set off of its deposits in the Home Bank, with amounts owing to the bank, Bishop Fallon, of London, was examined yesterday by Chas Garrow, K.C., Master of Supreme Court at Osgoode Hall.

Bishop Fallon was questioned as to the cheque for $32,076 deposited in the Home Bank at London ten or fifteen minutes past two, standard time, on the day the bank closed its doors in Toronto at 3 p.m., daylight saving time.

It was contended that the deposit was made subsequent to closing time. Bishop Fallon fixed the time because on his return he had asked for his secretary, was told he had gone out, and then had looked at his watch. That night he had seen the manager of the bank, who had not disagreed as to time, and had told Bishop Fallon not to worry, that it would be all right.



CHARACTER TELLS THE STORY!

People throughout this county are giving more thought to hygiene and to the purity of remedies on the market, but no one doubts the purity of Doctor Pierce's vegetable medicines, for they have been so favourably known for over fifty years that everyone knows they are just what they are claimed to be. These medicines are the result of long research by a well-known physician, R. V. Pierce, M.D., who compounded them from health-giving herbs and roots long used in sickness by the Indians. Dr. Pierce's reputation as a leading and honored citizen of Buffalo, is a sufficient guarantee for the purity of that splendid tonic and blood purifier, the Golden Medical Discovery, and the equally fine nerve tonic and system builder for women's aliments, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. MUSCLE BUILDING

We are able to control the voluntary muscles, like the biceps, the large muscle of the front upper arm or that in the lower leg or calf. The muscles of the shoulders, back and neck, as well as certain ones of the face and jaw are also under our control to a great extent.

Involuntary muscles control the action of the heart, stomach and diaphragm. Over these we have no control or direct action. We can only supply them with blood and nerve force through proper hygienic living and the right kinds of food.

In building up muscle tissue you have to consider two principal actions. First, supplying the energy through proper food; and, second, in the proper exercising or use of muscles, to produce a healthy growth of tissue. Without a proper amount of use, your muscles will become flabby and almost useless.

The carbohydrates (starch and sugar) form a substance in the body called glucose. This is used up by the contracting muscles. The fat foods are also muscle producers.

In exercising and stimulating your muscles for growth and strength, you must use caution. Never severely tire or strain your muscles to the limit. When you feel the "pull" at the bulging part of a muscle you know it is growing—so to speak.

The muscle-fiber, nerve-fiber, and nerve-cell form a connecting link. Should a nerve be injured or crushed between the muscle and the spinal nerve-cell from which its fibers come, or if the nerve-cells are destroyed by disease, the muscle will become a useless mass of connective tissue.

A HEALTH LADDER

We have been told in a poetical or philosophical way that heaven is not reached at a single bound, but that we build the ladder by which we rise and we mount to its summit round by round. It is just as true and even more so in regard to our building and mounting the health ladder.

Proper, vigorous, efficient exercise is really the bottom rung of the health ladder. It is the one safe, hygienic method by which thousands of people, who pose as semi-invalids, may greatly stimulate their appetite, digestion and red-blood-making. In all the seven ages of man, the exercise game should be played with spirit.

Man wants to live long, but he goes about it in the worst way in 75 per cent of adults above 21 years of age. Some day, by accident or otherwise, he gets in touch with his physician. The information he gets almost takes his breath away. Then comes the transformation, almost pathetic in its attempt at enforcement. He is ready and willing to undergo any kind of treatment, submit to any regimen, do anything or go anywhere, if assured that his life may be extended.

The proper time to become fully interested in life expectancy is not when the undertaker is looking for you, but when one's life title is still clear and unmortgaged and there is blue sky overhead.

Man is an animal of highest type, fleet of foot, strong and agile, supple and enduring. By careless, sedentary habits and wrong ideas of life's battle, he has become puny, rheumatic, short of wind and diseased. If he continues to take all his exercise in an automobile for the next decade, he will be without sufficient leg-sustaining power for any distance.

We must begin to climb up the health ladder. In the following article, I will try to show you some ways of cultivating clean blood.

CHURCH UNION IN CANADA

UNIONIST "FACTS" EXPLAINED IN FULL FROM BASIS OF UNION

The Unionists tell us that:—"Throughout the English speaking-world, there is evidence of a drawing together of the Christian Churches and of a growing confidence in the desirability of Church Union."

THE ANSWER:—It is true there is a growing spirit of Christian Unity throughout the English-speaking world, UNITY:—But the Organic Union movement is dead or dying in the United States, and has recently been abandoned in Australia, and there is nothing like it in any other country.

The Unionists tell us that:—"Canada is giving leadership, because our needs forced definite action."

The Unionists tell us that:—"Parliamentary approval . . . . is designed to protect the rights of both Unionists and minorities."

THE ANSWER:—More accurately it should be stated that Parliamentary approval is necessary to legalise the taking of the property and identity of the Presbyterian Church by a minority of that Church intothe so-called Union Church of Canada.

The Unionists' So-called Facts are:

1. "Before a minister can be ordained, he must 'satisfy the examining body' that he is in essential agreement with 'The Statement of Doctrine' of the United Church.

THE REAL FACTS ARE:—That the Minister need not be so thoroughly in earnest about his "essential agreement" as to back it up with his signature, neither is he asked even to promise adherence by word of mouth. He makes no pledge whatsoever to teach even the Doctrines of the proposed Basis. He is only required to satisfy a so-called "Examining body" composed of men who themselves have taken no pledge to teach the proposed Basis, and whose examination therefore, may be expected to be a very cursory affair.

2. "The oversight of the Spiritual interests of each charge shall be entrusted to the Minister or Ministers and a body of men specially chosen or 'Set apart' or ordained for that work, who shall jointly constitute the Session."

THE REAL FACTS ARE:—They do not tell you that the men so set apart will be Elders in name only. The Session will no longer be a Court of the Church nor will the Elders any longer have the RIGHT, BUT ONLY THE POSSIBILITY of sitting in Presbytery, for the Presbytery Member may be "any one on the roll of the Congregation." The ORDAINED ELDER as known to Presbyterians today, is shorn of its meaning.

3. "Any pastoral charge, in view of a vacancy, MAY extend a Call to any properly qualified 'Minister or Ministers' subject to the approval of the SETTLEMENT COMMITTEE as now to Presbytery, etc."

THE REAL FACTS ARE:—In the Presbyterian Church there is no MAY EXTEND A CALL. The Call is an INDEFEASIBLE RIGHT, fought for and won, and now to be changed from a RIGHT to a concession.

THE SETTLEMENT COMMITTEE is supreme and its action cannot be overturned by any court. It consults the people's desire ONLY so far as it shall see fit, and reports "for information only". Its authority is far above that of the Presbytery at present. The Presbytery is responsible to higher courts, the Settlement Committee is not. The Presbytery's sole consideration is the character and standing of the person called but the Settlement Committee has power to refuse to allow a man to go to a Congregation that wants him, on the ground that they desire to put him elsewhere.

The Call as a Right of the People Disappears

4. "It shall be the duty of the Presbytery to induct or install Ministers . . . . to inquire each year, into the personal character, doctrinal beliefs and general fitness of candidates for the ministry . . . . to license them to preach and to recommend for the ordination of the Conference."

THE REAL FACTS ARE:—as we say that the Presbytery can do many things, but it CANNOT ORDAIN, and yet the right of the Presbytery to ordain is one of the foundations of Presbyterianism.

THE UNIONISTS STATE:

What we are asked to give up is nothing compared to the potential value of the proposed Union, and yet the Unionists will spend thousands of the Churches' money to make you believe you are giving up nothing at all.

WATCH FOR THE PENNANTS.

HOW TO FATTEN POULTRY

Considera ble advice has been given on how to fasten the surplus stock on the poultry plant, and by this time a good deal of the early cockerels have been marketed, but there are always a few of the later ones left, and it is more or less of a problem to know just what to do with them.

As a rule these cockerels are not only later but they are neither as well developed nor as strong and vigorous as the early birds. Neither are they suitable for the Christmas trade, so the best thing to do with them now is to get them ready for January's market. It does not pay to carry even late hatched cockereis into the winter for it is better to get rid of them before they crowd the pullets in their winter quarters. Put these birds in a well-ventilated pen by themselves, and give a mash feed three times a day. Any good mixture of home-grown grains mixed with skim milk or buttermilk will be satisfactory.

In crate feeding two mistakes are often made. Birds are fed too heavily the first few days, and losing their appetite, go down on their legs, die, or are killed by the other birds. In bringing the cockerels in off range where they have plenty of exercise, and confining them in the small space of a feeding crate, care must be taken for the first few days not to give them nearly as much as they want. Keep them hungry, gradually increasing the feed until about the fourth day when they may get their full ration twice a day. Epsom salts in the first feed helps (one pound to 100 birds). The second common fault is that the birds are put into the crates without being treated for lice, and, as a consequence, some birds will never put on flesh. Use a good louse powder as the birds are put into the crate, and again several days before they are killed and sprinkle well into the feathers. Dry sulphur also serves the purpose.

In feeding birds that are not really vigorous nor uniform in size and constitution, it is well to separate the sizes and match the individual birds carefully so that those carrying all the fattening they can stand may be taken out and killed. Some cannot go through more than a week or ten days of crate feeding, while others make good gains for five or six weeks. With late birds especially this difference is always more marked.

Some birds will not fatten and will never be fit for the market. Don't try to market these, it simply brings down the price of the better fowl. It is more profitable to make soup of them. Higher prices and a greater return would be received if nothing but properly-fitted birds were put on the market, and if these were distributed throughout as many months of the year as possible. It is the finishing touch that pays.

MUSICAL REVUE TO BE REPEATED

On January 31st and February 1st at the Grand Opera House, the Peterboro Kiwanis Clubd will repeat the revue which they staged a few months ago, the proceeds for the double performance to be devoted to the Young Men's Christian Association funds.

M. B. Chenhall, who has charge of the entire programme, is reorganizing the first part of the entertainment, which last year consisted of a light romance of the Southland and an opening chorus by children from the Summer Camp at Jackson Park. The opening section this year will be quite different to the former offering, and will consist of a musical farce, 'The Hermit of Hawaii,' which was put on some time ago in Cobourg and proved to be one of the most entertaining productions of the sort ever staged there. By substituting his section for the former minstrel show opening, and following it with the popular "Garden of the Shah," colorful, melodious second part, the entire production will consist of light musical extravaganza. "The Hermit of Hawaii" is described as being exceptionally attractive, with very catchy music and witty dialogue. It offers ample scope for the inclusion of the always-popular Hawaiian music.

SAILOR IN NOTED SEA BATTLE LOSES MIND

Man Who Took Part in U-Boat Blockade in Hospital.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23. — The story of the night at Zeebrugge, near the end of the war, when the British warship Vindictive was grounded in the harbor channel to prevent U-boat operations from their principal base, was told over and over by Quartermaster George Turner as he was transferred on a stretcher from the British steamer Roman Star at anchor in Los Angeles harbor to the Federal ward of Golden State Hospital.

Until a few days ago Turner was a dependable seaman in the crew of the Roman Star. Without warning he was stricken with madness and ran wild among his shipmates while the ship was at sea several hundred miles south of here, threatening the lives of all hands before they were able to confine him in an improvised strait-jacket, it was said.

Whether Turner's malady is due to his war experiences doctors were unable to say, but other members of the crew said he had been a member of the Dover Patrol during the war and went in with the famous expedition which put the Vindictive ashore at Zeebrugge and landed in face of terrible fire from the German shore guns. He wears the D. S. M. of the British service for his bravery on that occasion.

Aunt Martha's

HOUSEWIVES' COLUMN

It makes a big difference whether food is fresh or not. A difference in taste and a difference in healthfulness.

One thing I like about the Dominion Stores is that every single article on their shelves is surely fresh. It has to be, for the scientific Dominion selling system cleans those shelves right down to the boards so often it would surprise you.

No old canned goods in any Dominion Store, no old fruit or vegetables—or old anything at all.

Dominion Store stocks are measured by the experts here at the main office, as carefully as you measure the ingredients you put in your favorite cake when you expect important company. Then our skillful store managers see that their stock is sold out long before it could possibly get stale.

It is a real comfort to the particular woman, to look around the shelves of a neat, well-kept Dominion Store and know that everything there is clean, new goods that taste fresh and are fresh.

Yet the certain freshness of Dominion foods costs you no more. Indeed it costs you less, for this largest Canadian retail grocery organization buys and sells in huge quantities—at the low prices its vast business makes possible.

If you keep track of Dominion prices you will find the wisest plan is to buy regularly at one of the 300 Dominion Stores, because in that way you are sure of steady savings.

WHERE GIRL CAPTIVE WAS HELD

Bertha Potter, 22 years old, is declared to have been held captive for five years in the home of William Lent, 62 years old. Lent's home, situated in the heart of the town of Bear River, N.S., is the second building from the left. The next building is a stable, while at the end of the street is the Grant Central Hotel.

LONDON, DANCE MAD, OPENS "WORLD'S LARGEST" FLOOR

Two Thousand Couples Can Shake Their Feet at Once — Crowded Every Night.

LONDON, Jan. 23. — Greater London is going dance crazy. The city abounds with public dance halls and supposedly private dance clubs, where everybody with a clean shave and evening clothes can pay the price and become a member on a moment's notice.

Hammersmith, which begins where the fashionable West End ends, is erhaps the greatest rendevous in the world for dancers who are middle class but happy. Its "Palais de Dance" has provided room for hundreds of fox-trotters nightly for years, and now a few blocks away at Olympia there has been opened "the biggest dance floor in the world." It is big enough to keep 2,000 couples off one another's feet simultaneously. The opening night 5,000 people rushed it before 9 o'clock and the doors had to be shut on 1,500 more men and maids and matrons.

Crowded Every Night.

Just north of the theatre district, where there are many dancing clubs for those who can ignore the expense and do not mind having their style cramped by encroaching tables adorned with champagne bottles, there is a dance club with several thousand members. Every night, Sundays as well as weekdays, it is crowded. Tea-time is dancing time in the West End for hundreds who have nothing else to do with their afternoons, and in many of the hotels the afternoon dancers have hardly left when the night crowd begins to arrive.

East of the East End, dance clubs are springing up on almost as large a scale as west of the West End. The inhabitants of East Ham will soon have a ballroom for 800 couples, and Cricklewood already have a similar place to satisfy its rythmic impulses. So has Wibledon and Willesden Green and many others.

Tunes From America.

About nine-tenths of all the tunes danced to in these private and public ballrooms of London come here from America. Usually it takes several months for a fox-trot or blues to make the voyage, but at that, London can laugh at the Continental capitals, for in some of them the dance orchestras still satisfy the patrons with "Alexander's Ragtime Band," while every flapper in England has known about the scarcity of bananas for months. American musicians make up most of the better known dance orchestras, for somewhow Europeans have never learned to play jazz music well enough to satisfy the discriminating.

It is not necessary to take a girl to most of London's dance halls in order to dance. Nearly all of them have their own "sixpenny sirens"; professional partners they call themselves. One simply walks over to an enclosure ornamented by these young women, picks out the partner one wants, dances with her, and when the music stops she gets her sixpence and returns to her enclosure. Slick-haired dancing men are available to women patrons who want partners at the same price, half a shilling a dance.

That Hang-on Cough Must Go

Home Made Cough Mixture Best of all for the Cough that Sticks.

MAKE IT YOURSELF IN TWO MINUTES

The coughing season is on and every home should have a supply of the best cough remedy to be had, and as you can make its supremely excellent cough mixture yourself why pay high prices for the common kind.

Get from any druggist one ounce of Parmint (double strength) to this a little granulated sugar and enough water to make one half pint—that's all there is to it.

Then when any member of the family starts coughing or catches cold in chest or head, or has acute catarrh, you are prepared as you should be.

With speed almost beyond belief this home made cough mixture stops the toughtest hang-on cough, and all because in it there is a substance (too costly for ordinary cough syrups) that immediately covers the membrane like a soothing, healing poultice, and blessed relief comes at once.

And you should also bear in mind that any remedy that overcomes catarrh, partially or wholly is bound to be of benefit to those who are troubled with head noises and catarrhal deafness.

Get Parmint and get better.

DRYING LINGERIE

A clothes drier which you may put over the radiator is a good way to dry the lingerie or stockings you wash at home if you have no regular laundry.

SIDE TRAIN

A gown of gold lame cloth is uniquely draped so that the lining of green crepe is revealed at each step of the wearer.

STUDY CLUB HAD A GOOD MEETING

Work of Famous Painters Will Be Studied by Members.

The first meeting for this season of the newly-formed Art and Literature Study Club, organized under the auspices of the Women's Art Association, was held last evening at the home of Mrs. F. C. Neal when a review of the work which will constitute the programme of the club meetings this year was made, by Mrs. B. L. Barns. This season, the club intends to study the work of famous painters, up to the beginning of the nineteenth century, Mrs. Barns gave an interesting review of the series, illustrating her talk with prints descriptive of the works of the great masters.

The meetings will be held fortnightly, on Tuesday evenings, with the exception of the next meeting, to be held on Wednesday evening. A survey of the entire programme was made by Mrs. Barns, who divided the work of the great painters into various schools; the Italian, the Flemish, and Dutch, the German, the French, the Spanish and the English, mentioning the outstanding artists in each of the various schools.

Among the Italian painters a study will be made of the work of Leonardo do Vinci, Michaelangelo, Raphael and Titian; among Flemish and Dutch of Peter Rubens and his pupil, Sir Anthony van Dyke, Rembrandt and Frans Hals, Albert Durer and Hans Holbein will be the German artists considered; Antoine Watteau and Honore Fragonard will represent the French school, Velasquez and Murillo the Spanish, and the English painters whose works will be studied include Sir Joshua Reynolds and Thomas Gainsborough in portraits and Turner and Constable in landscapes.

A series of six evening is planned, the first to be given on February 6th at the home of Mrs. W. H. Meredith, Water street.

About twenty ladies were present a last evening's meeting, and appeared very enthusiastic over prospects for the series. At the conclusion of the talk, light refreshments were served.

"WE DELIVER ANYTHING ANYWHERE ANYTIME"

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

Property tied up by litigation is likely to be unproductive.

Property left to heirs without a will is sometimes expensive to handle. A bond must be given, and surety bonds cost money. There will be fees of various sorts and many other expenses. Much of this could have been saved by a will.

This wastefulness is bad enough in any case, but is sometimes ruinous when all or a large part of the inheritance is real estate.

Widows are often left penniless for months. Though their husbands' estates have ample properties of value, the estates are so involved, because of the lack of a will that they cannot use any of it. This causes unnecessary dependence and suffering.

Often real estate cannot be sold at the top of the market for the same reason. The heir must be satisfied with the price obtainable when the litigation finally clears up.

It is not enough to make good investments for the present; a "weather eye" must be "cocked" toward the future.

The pessimist of today is calling attention to the upward trend of wages and the falling trend of commodities. Can we still be prosperous?

Over a period of years the trend of wages is upward and the trend of commodity prices is downward. The result is a higher standard of living. The common laborer today has more comforts than a so-called "rich man" of a century ago.

The effect of rising wages and declining prices would seem to lead to diminishing profits. Yet these trends have been going on for many decades, and our country a still prosperous.

The answer, of course, is the increasing volume of production together with added economies in manufacturing costs. In the past, machinery has always been invented in time of need, which has enabled the nation to keep up its volume of production. They say necessity is the mother of invention. If she will have some more children, there will be no need to worry.

PARIS ALIVE WITH 'EM

PARIS—Paris streets are full of "caterpillars." But they're women. From her closely coiffed head, with its smooth bands of hair or cropped locks under a tiny black hat with front peak, to her feet, of which only the toes peep out under a long skirt, milady is one straight line.

STRIKE LEADERS HOLD A SESSION

SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press.) —Representatives of the British Empire Steel Corporation and coal miners were in session at general offices of the Dominion Coal Company, Glace Bay, to-day, where formal negotiations for a new wage agreement were re-opened Tuesday afternoon.

Sub committee of miners and operators assembled at ten o'clock this morning and will probably be in session all day.

Up to two o'clock there was nothing to indicate the trend affairs were taking, but efforts were being made to have the conference issue a joint statement at the end of each of the daily or half daily session.

It is expected that a statement will be given out by the committee and by the Premier later in the day.

SEEK ART STOLEN IN WAR.

French Say Germans Still Have 4,100,000,000 Francs' Worth.

PARIS, January 22. — While art objects worth 500,0000,000 francs were stolen by the Germans during the war, only 9,000,000 francs' worth have been recovered, according to the testimony of art experts formally attached to the French Restitution Service at Wiesbaden.

The testimony was given yesterday before the Chamber of Deputies' Sub-Committee investigating war thefts in the liberated regions.

The experts said they believed much more could be recovered if the Government exercised its rights under the Spa agreement and the Versailles Treaty.

Today's Quotations and Opinion and Reviews of the Ma kets.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. — (United Press).—Little change in the market's general characteristics was noticeable in the early dealings today. Steel Common showed signs of better support, rallying ⅛ to 100 3-8, due to the proximity of the dividend meeting January 29, at which time an extra payment is expected to furnish further bullish ammunition.

N. Y. Central was steady at 101 3-4 in face of the five per cent. wage increase granted 15,000 employees on a one-year contract and the fact that similar negotiations must be entered into next week with 17,000 conductors.

Studebaker also developed fractional rallying power but the general list showed few significant changes.

Foreign exchanges opened somewhat lower.

Rallying tendencies grew more pronounced in the main body.

Industrials, as the first hour progressed, Steel, Studebaker, Baldwin and American Can. scored fair-sized recoveries and bullish demonstrations were made in General Electric and Corn Products, the latter making a record high at 173½. Industrial Alcohol showed special strength, reaching a new high, 73½, in anticipation of an early $6 dividend rate.

The Pan - Americans continued under pressure, "A" stock breaking below 50 for the first time since 1922. Insiders are credited with owning "A" stock in large volume.

There has been heavy selling of stocks by traders on the theory that certain Washington disclosures might lead to weaken confidence, but public buying shows no falling off. Evidently the public is taking no more than a passing interest in the Sinclair investigation.

GAVE AN ADDRESS ON CARE OF THE TEETH

At the Prince of Wales School on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Home and School Association, Dr. J. J. Craig gave a very instructive lecture, entitled "Your Mouth and Your Health." His lecture was impressed upon the minds of the audience by the use of lantern slides which followed the talk.

Disease is the necessary evil which follows violation of some natural laws. The mouth is one of the best places to encourage the growth of bacteria. If one must have good health, they must be careful to have clean teeth and throat.

During the lecture Dr. Craig outlined the terrible effects of pyorrhea, a disease which attacks the teeth. A great deal of this can be removed by properly cleaning the teeth.

By means of a brush and model, he explained the proper way in which to brush the teeth and clean the mouth. The pictures showed instances of what is suffered from having decayed teeth.

Those who were fortunate enough to hear the lecture will not soon forget it.

A minstrel show, consisting of 20 boys from school added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening. The youngsters taking part showed great ability along these lines.

Broadway's Lure Causes Serbian to Propose to Professor.

NEW YORK, January 23. — A Leap Year proposal, born of the lure of Broadway, has been made to Professor Sidney K. Wolf, of Yale University, by Olga Yosepovitch, a pretty Serbian maid.

When Olga arrived and found it was America and Leap Year, she immediately popped the question to the College professor. As his wife, she pointed out, she could remain in this country.

The perplexed professor turned the matter over to Immigration Commissioner Curran.

MR. AND MRS. J. BELL TO VISIT THE CANAL

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bell of this city, who left here on June 4th last on a hiking tour to the Pacific Coast, are at present visiting Mrs. Bell's brother and his family, at Campbell River, on Vancouver Island. Mr. and Mrs. Bell made the trip to the Coast mainly on foot, reaching Vancouver city on October 3rd, after making a detour of three hundred miles to visit the ranch of Mr. Bell's brother, at Carrot Lake, Saskatchewan. They spent Christmas with relatives at Campbell River, making a boat trip of over ten hours to reach their destination. The boat leaves Vancouver at eight o'clock in the evening, and reaches its destination after six o'clock on the following morning. Mr. Bell reports excellent hunting and fishing on the Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell expect to visit the Panama Canal before they return home, going down through California and Mexico, but do not anticipate making the journey on foot.

the Montreal plant, though in the case of the local quarry there will not need to be so much blasting as in Montreal. Each mill in Lakefield will be run by a separate motor so that the entire plant will not be closed if one mill is in need of repairs. The steel work will be started April 15th, and the appearance of the buildings will be altered when the steel and corrugated iron superstructure is added. When this plant is operating at least 150 men will be employed and between 40 and 50 carloads of cement per day will be shipped. This latter will make for better railway service. Also this mill will operate when others won't and will be a year round operation. Lakefield is a nice little town and hard to beat and deserves boosting, not knocking.

J. A. Porter was the next speaker. The merchants are the middle men, and are not always a popular class. During the war the cry went out that if the middle man was eliminated the cost of living would be reduced. The merchant is necessary to the manufacturer as the merchant buys the manufactured goods and sells at the demand of the public according to the amount of money in circulation. During the war industries and the farmers flourished as the demand was greater than they could supply and prices were good and many expanded their producing capacity forgetting the certain depression which was bound to follow, and did so and at present there is not a great deal of money in circulation. The farmer finds the cost of production as great as during the war and owing to economic conditions of foreign markets there is lack of demand for the surplus product hence prices are low and money tight. In recent speeches both Honorable Arthur Meighen and Premier Howard Ferguson sound the optimistic note, saying that within the next five years we will be back to normal conditions.

E. A. Tanner was the next speaker. Mr. Tanner feels that Lakefield with its splendid natural attractions and resources, should try to attract more industries. What we have are good but we need more. We should get behind Sir Adam Beck in his scheme for the development of the St. Lawrence canals. Canada is in for a great period of growth and it behooves us to make our town as attractive as possible so as to participate in our share of that development. Regarding the fire brigade in which we are all interested, it is good and will be even better. Consideration will be given to the recommendations of Chiefs Webster and Gimblett, and an effort wil be made to bring these improvements into being.

J. M. Simpson was next called and he congratulated the birgade on what had been accomplished with the incomplete equipment for necessity had made the boys learn to use the alert mind and quick eye. Fire Chief Webster had been instrumental in installing fire extinguishers in the school which are very valuable.

The brigade will be stimulated no doubt by the expression of good will from the citizens. Lakefield is one of the most beautiful villages in Ontario and an increase in population would help very much in its progress.

J. F. Lillecrap regards the fire brigade as a municipal asset and is pleased to honor them. It is gratifying to learn of the progress of the plant of the Canada Cement Co. from Mr. Wagar as it is a valuable industry. A great many former lumber towns and villages in Ontario are, like ourselves, looking for industries and industriously pushing their claims. The Board of Trade and the Council have talked around this matter but do not concentrate on it. Everyone's business is no one's business and a committee of one or two live men might accomplish a good deal in this particular. We can hardly expect to get anything else as large as the Canada Cement Co. here but we should look out for smaller industries.

H. W. Stock was the last speaker. Mr. Stock referred to himself as a "has been." He was formerly a resident of Lakefield and received his schooling here and after forty-five years absence returned and sees great improvement in the village. This is the first occasion he has been able to meet the gentlemen of the village in a body and finds great pleasure in the banquet. He echoed the praise of the beauties of the village which he appreciates but feels, like the other speakers, the need of more industries and increased population. The taxes are somewhat high, but let us be public-spirited enough to face even more taxes and encourage more industries to locate here. We need propaganda to buy at home and in that way reduce our taxes. The speaker finds Lakefield prices better even than Peterboro and urges boosting of our town. Referring to the rush to California, in which so many Canadians have joined, Mr. Stock advises us to remain at home and quotes W. H. Barry, the architect, who recently left Peterboro to make his home in California and who regrets the more and intends to return. A tremendous per cent of the population are selling real estate and a slump is inevitable and then there will not be enough trains to carry away the people. The speaker urged a get-together meeting to plan ways of encouraging industries. Some small wood-working or metal industries would be good asert. Kitchener is a town which proves the advantages of a number of small industries.

A resolution moved by F. J. Moore seconded by W. H. Casement, was put before the meeting and carried unanimously.

The resolution was as follows: "Resolved that we, the business men of the village assembled here, respectfully urge the County Council of the advisability and necessity of rebuilding the Lakefield bridge with concrete throughout, from the fact that the report of the County Engineer not only condemns the present structure, but adds to the same what is practically an order to have a notice of its dangerous condition placed in conspicuous places adjacent to the bridge. We strongly believe that the carrying into effect of this resolution will not only avert damages and will probably save life but will do away with continuous repairs to the old steel structure.

Dr. Smith kindly sang "The Road to Anywhere," and in reply to a hearty encore gave the favorite "Too Many Girls," which brought down the house. E. J. Robertshaw was called for a song and rendered "They All Love the Elegant Bertie," with great effect and was forced to respond to an encore and sang "The Horse the Misses Dries the Clothes On." The singing was much appreciated as was shown by the bursts of applause which greeted each song. The singing of the National Anthem brought to a close one of the most successful banquets ever held in the village. The firemen present were: Fire Chief Gimlett, of Peterboro; Chief of Police, B. J. Webster, Fire Chief W. L. Webster, Deputy Chief R. Summers, Captain Jack Ridpath, Capt. T. Simpson, Lieut. Robinson, Teamster W. Graham, Firemen A. Summers, C. Ridpath, P. Stenner, S. Sheine, A. Webster, F. Webster, A. Barker, D. Alford, J. Sabatino, L. Sabatino, R. Green, W. Hamblin, M. Hampton, P. Hill, S. Gryels, J. McKibbin and Secretary E. Robertshaw.

Others present included Reeve J. C. Strickland, Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, Rev. Father Garvey, Dr. J. R. Fraser, Dr. J. C. Smith, Dr. N. E. Moore, Dr. M. P. Kennedy, Dr. G. E. Renwick, Messrs. H. G. The Alterer of Habits

FRANK STOCKTON wrote a tale about a monarch who relied on an official called the "Discourager of Hesitancy." This officer's task was to prod folks who dallied over important decisions.

Modern advertising likewise fosters prompt and judicious decisions. But advertising might better be called the "Alterer of Habits." It brings many changes to pass. And these changes are for the better—always.

Advertising has revolutionized the personal habits as well as the buying habits of the nation. It has elevated our standards of living. It has made us eat better, sleep better and dress better. It has added countless comforts and conveniences to the daily life of each one of us.

Advertising has taught us how to find the best buys in almost everything imaginable without indulging in the needless habit of "shopping around." It tell us just where and when to go for what we want and how much to pay. It lets us compare prices and qualities without even stirring from our homes. It vouchafes our money's worth.

Do you read the advertisements that appear daily in this paper?

It's a profitable habit

LABOR GOVERNMENT IS TACKLING THE STRIKE

A Seat Must Be Found for Arthur Henderson —Sidelights on New Government.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(By Ed. L. Keen, General European Manager of British United Press.) — The first act of the MacDonald government, even before it was quite formally in office, was to attempt a settlement of the rail strike.

While the Government of Great Britain was passing into the hands of representatives of its Laboring class every effort was being bent to bring to an end the slowly spreading industrial paralysis of the transportation tie-up.

Men chosen by Premier Ramsay MacDonald for the nation's first Labour cabinet were early at the various Government offices. Their retiring predecessors, the Conservatives, showed them "the ropes" before leaving.

Arthur Henderson already has assumed his duties as Home Secretary, although a seat in the Commons must be found for him before he can be officially given the seal of office.

It is characteristic of MacDonald, however, that he instructed Henderson not to wait but to "get busy and compose the differences of the engineers and firemen and their employers."

The British spirit of fair play as manifesting itself in the public and press reception to the Laborites.

To-day's newspapers, regardless of politics, are practically unanimous in commenting on MacDonalds' good judgment in his selection of a Cabinet. Even the Tory Morning Post admits "it might easily have been worse."

A Young Hostess.

LONDON, Jan 23.—Lloyd Allen, British United Press Staff Correspondent, Copyright, 1924.)—Ishbel MacDonald, the youngest and dimpledest hostess that ever came to gloomy No. 10 Downing street, is not a bit daunted by the responsibilities of entertaining the Empire's most famous and titled personages when she presides over the household of her father, Britain's new Labor Premier.

"It's the flunkies and the big policemen that scare me," she said, flashing her radiant smile that deepens the dimples in her rosy cheeks.

Upon her slender shoulders has fallen the duties of hostess of the Prime Minister's residence, that outwardly grimy, barn-like brick house, set in conspicuously Downing street across from the Foreign Office.

Mrs. MacDonald died in 1911. Ramsay MacDonald was nearly prostrated with grief.

Ishbel at an early age helped in running the household with the sturdy assistance of a Scottish housekeeepr, Miss Bevoets. The latter cooked, kept house and answered the door bell in the MacDonald residence.

"I never really kept house for father," Ishbel explained, "because we always had Miss Bevoets. She is going to organize the servants and the staff at No. 10."

In a smartly tailored school girl costume, Ishbel stood smiling on the doorstep of her new home. She had just been shown through the house by Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, wife of the retiring Premier.

The meeting of the two was like that of a mother and daughter. Ishbel explained that she just had come from her social science and domestic science classes at King's College.

Mrs. Baldwin showed me the house, she said. It's complicated, but I suppose I'll get accustomed to it after we move in.

"I do not dread the responsibilities of entertaining. In fact I look forward to it. Plenty of people have promised to show me the ropes.

"However I do dread these flunkies and these big policemen."

The latter guard No. 10, where Ishbel will have to preside at dinners to distinguished and titled visitors who are invited there by her Prime Minister father. But, she explained, her chief interest is social welfare work; it is for that purpose that she is studying domestic science.

Cabinet Appointments.

Cabinet appointments of Ramsay MacDonald that attract most attention are those of Viscount Chelmsford, as First Lord of the Admiralty and of John Wheatley as Minister of Health.

The naming of Lord Chelmsford comes as a complete surprise—one conservative newspaper calls it "a great shock" — for nobody had guessed that he had any affiliation with labour and the date of his conversion is quite unknown. He is prominent as former Viceroy of India who introduced there certain administrative reforms which displeased Conservatives at home.

Mr. Wheatleys' inclusion is generally regarded as sop to the Glasgow extremists to which he belongs. Born in humble circumstances he worked for twenty-two years in coal mines and is now publisher in Glasgow and considered most intellectual of Clydeside Socialists. As Minister of Health he will be responsible for rents and housing.

The Labour Ministry, headed by J Ramsay MacDonald, formally took office at noon to-day. Members of the retiring Baldwin administration visited Buckinghm Palace in the forenoon and shortly afterward Prime Minister MacDonald and his ministry arrived at the Palace and received their seals of office.

Wasting no time, the Premier called a cabinet meeting for this afternoon at which it was understood a policy to be presented to Parliament when it reassembles, would be considered.

TEA IMPORTATION.

OTTAWA, Ont.—Canada imported 39,125,147 pounds of tea during the 12 months ending November, 4.4 pounds for every man, woman and child in the Dominion.

Bernard Shaw Refuses to Act as Play Censor.

LONDON, Jan. 23. — (United Press).—Bernard Shaw may write plays, as indeed he does—plays requiring a whole week to present—but he won't censor them. No, not even if a Labor Government comes into power and asks him to!

"Certainly not," he said, then added, with true Shavian emphasis, "I wouldn't have it for words."

"All this licensing of plays ought to be stopped," Shaw declared. "Some sort of surveillance of plays must be carried out, but it ought to be as easy to do that as to control a public house."

NICK LENINE'S FUNERAL SUNDAY

Proclamation Issued to the Workers, Peasants and Soldiers.

MOSCOW, Jan. 23.—(By Jno. Graudenz, British United Press Staff Correspondent).—White Moscow, a city of black, prepared to receive to-day the remains of Nikolai Lenine. The dead Premier's fellow-leaders urged the workers, peasants and the Red Army to stand firm.

"Final victory for our party will be the best monument to Lenine," a proclamation issued by the Central Executive Committee, said.

Lenine's body was to lie in State here until Sunday, when it will be interred in the Kremlin Wall.

Tens of thousands of his followers are to be given an opportunity to gaze for the last time on the stilled features of the most powerful revolutionary figure in modern times.

Lenine, after a lingering illness, died at 6.50 p.m. at his villa at Gorky, passing away while unconscious. A cerebral hemorrhage caused a paralysis of the respiratory organs.

An official announcement by the Russian Government confirms the United Press reports that Lenin's death occurred exactly at 6.50 p.m. Monday, not 5.50, as erroneously reported by sources other than the United Press.

The chief care of Russia's present leaders—mingled with their genuine sorrow — is that there shall be no opportunity for enemies of the Soviet to take advantage of Lenine's passing.

The All-Russian Executive Committee addressed the following proclamation to the workers peasants and soldiers:

"The main order which the Eleventh Congress gives the Soviet Government at the moment of the death of Lenine is to protect the Workers' and Peasants' Union.

"Never sidestep a hand's breadth from Linene's policy. This is the principal question of our life."

The Central Executive Committee's proclamation was in a similar vein.

Its memorial says Lenine supplemented Marxism by actually creating a proletarian dictatorship in the creation of the Workers' and Peasants' Union. It praises Lenine's superhuman sense of duty and his devotion of his life to the working classes.

"The hope of our enemies that our party will collapse is vain. We will continue with an iron will because it is Lenine's party. We stand firm. Lenine's death will close our ranks tighter and final victory will be the best monument to Lenine."

BRIGADES WILL PREVENT RIOTS

Conditions in Paraquay Have Been Chaotic for Two Years.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 23. — (British United Press).—Following reports of extensive disorders in Paraguay the Argentine Patriotic League today announced that it was organizing Nationalist brigades to prevent Paraguayan agitators from crossing the border into this country.

The general strike prevailing in Paraguay, the league said, was attributed directly to Communist agitation.

"All business in Asunscion has been stopped by the strike," the league statement said. "Government authorities have discovered extensive deposits of arms and munitions apparently designed for use in a communist outbreak.

Conditions in Paraguay have been chaotic for the last two years following the last revolutionary movement in which a section of the army rebelled.

BROCK RINK WAS SCENE OF A FIRE

The Brock street sliting rink was attacked by fire at noon to-day, and damage to the extent of $400 resulted to the refreshment booth.

The flames were discovered by W. J. McFarlane, who had been working on the ice surface. When he opened the front door to leave for lunch the flames were fanned by the wind and burst from the west side of the refreshment booth, apparently coming from the neighborhood of the electric stove. McFarlane closed the door and called the fire department.

What sounded like a barage of gun fire at first puzzled the firemen, who could scarcely see through the denses smoke, but it was afterwards found that the explosions were caused by the popping of pop bottles. When the heat reached them the tops blew off, and a great deal of the stock was destroyed in this way.

The blaze spread upwards, and as a result no damage was done to the rink itself or to the dressing rooms on the first floor.

THREE MEN KILLED.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—The boiler on an Erie engine, hauling the morning express from Pittsburgh to Cleveland, over the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railway, exploded 23 miles west of here this morning while the train was running forty miles per hour. Engineer George Clark and Fireman L. Kuechter and J. R. Meade, road foreman of engines, were killed.

RAILWAYMEN HAD ANNUAL BANQUET

Address of the Evening by Justice W.R. Riddell

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press.)—Bonds which link together men engaged in a great business enterprise, gained new strength through social intercourse when last night 200 officials and representatives of traffic and other departments of the Canadian National Railways celebrated their gathering in convention by attending the annual banquet of their association. Worries of rates and overhead were forgotten in the delight in which railway men took in listening to the characteristically interesting address by Justice W. R. Riddell on the constitutional history of Canada. By his own confession nothing gave the speaker of the evening more pleasure than to talk to Canadians— and Americans— about Canada.

Before paying his respects to anomalies of Canadian and British constitutions Mr. Justice Riddell cited two cardinal principles upon which be believed the future policy of this country should rest. In the first place there should be no doubt about the fact that Canadians were determined to govern themselves wtihout interference from anyone.

But equally to be emphasized was the fact that Canadians would never consider severing their relations with Britain.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else all to pieces.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

GRAIN GROWERS HOLD A MEETING

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Jan. 23. — (Canadian Press). — "I care little what you do in provincial politics, but I implore you to stand by your guns in the Federal field," said Hon. J. A. Maharg this afternoon in his address as president to the opening session of Saskatchewan grain growers association convention. "I am persuaded," he went on, "that the best interests of Dominon will be served by the progressive group standing solidly together as to general policy and thus compelling both old parties to face issues as they are instead of resorting constantly to acts of mere expediency.

Mr. Maharg's address in which he approved of a wheat pool urged greater use of the pacific grain ronte and completion of the Hudson Bay Railway was feature of the conventions opening session. It was followed by address from Mrs. W. H. Frith, President of the Women's Section, and by reports on year's work from executive committee and central board.

The convention will be in session until Friday night.

DUAL MORAL CODE IS GRIFFITH FILM THEME

Tremendous Love Story in "The White Rose" Delicately and Beautifully Told

It is doubtful if D. W. Griffith ever labored more diligently in his career on any work than he did in the case of his latest United Artists production, "The White Rose," which comes to the Grand Theatre tomorrow. Here is something so distinctly different, so reverently tender and depending so much upon vastly superior characterization that the famous producer found it necessary to take scenes time after time in order that each might be perfect in its cameo-like delicacy and beauty.

Mr. Griffith's theme in this instance is far different than anything ever seen before on screen or stage. It was necessary that it be told in the most artistic manner and be arranged by a past master in the art.

A youth of high family and circumstance in a section of the South which boasts one of our oldest social orders is preparing for the ministry, thus fulfilling a dying wish of his mother. He is finishing his last year at the seminary and it has been practically accepted by all who know him that he shall marry a girl of equal family importance in his own neighborhood. To learn something of the world and broaden his outlook, he sets out on a walking trip and visits various cities.

Meanwhile there emerges from an orphanage a slip of a girl who must make her way unaided in the world. She obtains employment in an inn frequented by winter vacationists and her, this youth of religious mein meets her.

The waif has progressed to the acute flapper stage by this time, having been told she must make herself attractive to get on in the world She does so, but in a manner that out distances the others. The student preacher meets her, becomes enamoured, yet all the while thinking she is of a bad sort. Their friendliness ripens into something deeper and the divinity student flees from his charmer.

Then the world moves on in its cycle of woe. A flight of time finds the youth ordained an in high opinion as a preacher of exceptional powers. But in this time a baby comes to the waif and she is cast about and shunned by reason of her violation of that terrible single code of morals which has held so long.

Despite his surrounding and his success in the pulpit, the minister is unable to forget the girl he knew so briefly in his travels. He is about to wed the maiden of his own circle when the wanderer with her child happens into his locality.

The denouement of this delicate story of ennobling love progresses in a most gripping manner and there comes a meeting between the pair in a lowly negro shanty which takes rank with any scene ever shown on the screen or across the footlights of a theatre.

PINERO'S DELIGHTFUL "SWEET LAVENDER" COMING

First impressions of a play are apt to be more lasting and those who were fortunate to have seen Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's comedy "Sweet Lavender," when it was first produced in London or who later saws it in this country, remember with great pleasure their enjoyment of this particular play in those earlier days. And they will not be disappointed when they see the presentation of the piece at the Grand Opera House, when Anthony Gordon and a specially selected company of the best actors and actresses in England will interpret the several characters in the Pinero classic. The sweetness of the play, the charming atmosphere of the region of the London law courts and the gardens peopled with quaintly costumed folk of 40 years ago still present, still delightful. Pinero's play not only represents the characters and scenes of the bygone dayr but it represents the work that first made the dramatist famous for his art in play composition. "Sweet Lavender" is a perfect type of sentimental comedy of the time. To the lover of clean drama with plenty of genuine heart interest it appeals as strongly as ever, and remains a pleasing monument to the drama of its time and is capital entertainment however considered.

It is some time since Peterboro audiences have been favored with a six-year artist as clever as Little Blanch McKay, now appearing at the Royal. Her songs, "Wondering," "Has Anybody Seen My Cat?" and "Hello," are enthusiastically applauded at every performance. The other acts are good, but this youngster seems to be the outstanding feature of the bill. Jack Holt and Agnes Ayers in "Don't Call It Love," are also receiving favorable comment. To-night is the last showing of this programme. Three new vaudeville acts arrive to-morrow from Detroit.

SPECIAL.

Hoot Gibson won the world's championship as a cowboy and trick horseman in a Pendleton, Oregon, roundup several years ago. No one else has successfully sought the title.

Fans like to see the Gibson horsemanship on the screen. For that matter, any time a man can do something special the fans want to know about it. He is welcome on the screen if the public has anything to say about it.

But there are many kinds of horsemanship. There are the simple tricks of a rider who has a good mount and a good saddle under him. There are the rope tricks, the saddle-jumping tricks, the dismounting and the mounting tricks. But the strangest thing that Gibson has ever odne for the screen will be seen in "Dead Game," a picture coming to the Royal Theatre next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

In the story he is a man kidnapped and left in the desert to die. As he lies exhausted and weak against a cactus trunk, he hears a horse neighing. At first he doesn't believe it is possible that a horse could stray so far out into the desert. Then he realizes it is true, and he lies without a sound or movement until the beautiful black beast, saddleless and roneless, approaches him suspiciously but inquisitively. Then starts a wild ride that ends in action, thrills and romance.

PETES CAPTURE GROUP HONORS DOUBLING THE SCORE ON LINDSAY ICE

Several Hundred Fans Helped in the Victory By Accompanying the Team —Lindsay Adopted "Get-the-Man" Style — Whole Peterboro Team Played Well.

LINE-UP ALTERED.

By virture of a 6 to 3 victory over Lindsay in Scugogville last night, the Petes are "sitting pretty" in complete possession of the group honours and waiting for the word that will send them into action in the second round of the O.H.A. intermediate race. That cannot come for two weeks yet and in the meantime the fans will get a chance to see them try wares against two or three of the Toronto senior teams in exhibition games.

To doube the score over a Lindsay team on their own ice at any time is not easy; to perform that feat when Lindsay are fighting with their backs to the wall, as they were last night, facing elimination if the Petes won, is a task of much greater magnitude, and the blue shirts had to stand up against a persistent gruelling from the Lindsay crew and endure refereeing that was far from first class, to turn the trick.

The losers gave every ounce they had, they checked closely and none too cleanly at the best of times, and very crudely during most of the game. They were under orders to "play the man" and followed instructions closely, and although the Petes were nearly always ahead and never worse than tied with their opposition, it was a grilling, tough argument all the way.

By periods it was 3 to 2, 4 to 3 and 6 to 3, with the blue shirts in front at each breathing spell.

Fans Were Loyal.

Two hundred Peterborough fans made the annual pilgrimage to Lindsay and rooted steadily and vigorously. They were rewarded for their journey by seeing their favourites pull off a clean-cut and clever win over a crew of sturdy battlers who fought to the last ditch to stay in the running and were none too particular as to what tactics they used. The Petes, individually and as a team, outplayed their old rivals all through the piece. They showed much the better combination, although the close checking naturally broke up the passing game pretty effectively, they stick-handled better and had an edge in speed as well, the persistence of the Lindsay checking alone keeping the score down.

Referee Glen Smith did not make much of a hit with the Peterborough fans, who resented the penalties handed out to the blue shirts for trivial offences and the fact that much of the Lindsay stuff went unpunished. The Petes, as they usually do, used the poke check almost exclusively and four or five itmes in playing the puck drew penalties for unintentional trips, while Lindsay, whose policy from the start was obviously a stop-the-man game, escaped much more lightly. It was lively hockey, every moment of it, with more than a dash of tobasco, and three minutes before the final bell there was a near-riot that threatened to break up the game.

Spectator Injured.

Frankie Collins hit W. Killen, the Lindsay defence player, during a scrimamge, and was chased. As he started for the side lines, J. Killen, subbing in the penalty box at the time, jumped out on the ice and charged at Collins, who ducked and let the infuriated Lindsay player go over his head. In an instant a portion of the crowd was on the ice and there was a miniature Donnybrook before the police finally subdued the riot. During the mix-up Deputy Reeve Les Richman, of Lindsay, fell on the ice and received a nasty gash in his head. It was a regrettable affair, Killen's lack of judgment being primarily responsible.

The Petes used a shifted line-up last night, George Lackey teaming up with Parker on the defence, while Grover Halpin was the right wing sub, the changes being made as most likely to be beneficial in view of the ice conditions. Lackey performed nicely on the defence, and in addition to checking well, scored two neat goals, one on a pretty shot from outside the defence, and the other oi a combined dash with Collins. Parker, whose work stood out all night ,also bagged a pair of counters after pretty individual efforts, so that the rear guard were responsible for four out of the six counters, Collins and Ranger getting the other two. Lindsay bodied Parker at every opportunity but they could not keep him out all the time, both of his goals being scored after pretty stick-handling.

Forwards Unselfish.

Up on the forward line there was no particular star; every man stuck to his guns and his position, they passed unselfishly and their checking was a treat. Team work is developing fast and there were plenty of signs of it last night in spite of the small ice surface.

As for Dwyer ,the sorrel topped net guardian was never better. One goal scored against him was a fluke, a rebound from the end of the rink bouncing in off his skate, another was pushed in on a rebound after a fine stop and the third was lifted over him as he lay on the ice after stopping two close range shots in quick succession. Otherwise he was invincible. The Lindsay rink is always a mean one for a goaler and the Lindsay crew were pumping them in hard and fast from all angles, but Dwyer caught or blocked everything, half a dozen times spread-eagling across the net to kick a low corner shot around the post.

Reeves Conspicuous.

For Lindsay, the most effective puck carrier and the most dangerous attacker, was Reeves, who, in addition to good offensive work, was steady and useful always on the defence. Up in front, Hamilton, a youngster, who was found to be too old for junior company after playing an O.H.A. game against the Peterborough juniors, worked like a wild man and was a pest to the Petes every minute he was on the ice. Wilford was good both ways, saving more than one goal by fast backchecking, while his shooting was always on the mark. Coombs showed little trace of his old time form and tried to make up for it by riding the blue shirts at every opportunity. In the nets McClory did some nice blocking and the Petes earned most of their counters.

The teams:

It was a lively party from the first face-off, with the Petes setting the pace, and Lindsay sailing into them hard. Right off the bat Collins, poke checking at the puck, tripped Coombs and was chased. Burgess broke away and had the first real shot of the game, but McClory saved. Collins came back and worked inside only to have McClory beat him ,and the Lindsay net guardian also outguessed Parker and Ranger on a combination rush. Coombs came down and shooting from outside the defence, missed by inches. Dwyer kicked out a dangerous shot from Wilford. Parker stick-handled down the rink, but could not beat McClory. Collins did, however, a moment later when Burgess went down the side and centred neatly. Collins scoring at point blank range. That goal took 5.45 minutes, but the next required less than thirty seconds. Lackey broke away nicely and when he reached the Lindsay defence pair, uncorked a shot between the two that beat McClory completely.

That put the Petes two to the good and, assisted by clever goalkeeping by Dwyer, they were sailing along nicely until Halpin and Collins were penalized almost together. Playing six men to four, Lindsay pressed and Wilford worked close in to drill one at Dwyer, who diverted it past the post only to have the rubber rebound off the end of the rink, strike his skate and glance into the net.

Lindsay fought hard to even it up, but the Petes held them off nicely, and a neat Lackey to Collins to Lackey play was responsible for another Peterborough counter. Lackey broke up a rush and got away with Collins alongside. A neat pass, Collins returned as the defence was reached, and Lackey waltzed inside to beat McClory at close range.

That made it 3 to 1, but Lindsay kept coming and Dwyer had to move fast several times to save counters. Finally Williams went down the boards and laid one on Dwyer's pads. Hamilton hurled himself in for the rebound and the Lindsay sub, Dwyer and the puck all dropped into the nets about the same time, leaving Lindsay but one goal down at the end of the period.

Second Period.

J. Killen drew the first Lindsay penalty early in the second period for tripping, and while he was off Burgess came within an ace of scoring, his shot hitting the post with McClory beat.

Lindsay were using body checking to stop the Petes at this stage, and it was strenuous going; somebody bounced into Lackey as the Peterborough defence man started a rush, and bounced off again. Lackey was chased for this, and a moment after Coombs and Collins were benched for a private feud of their own. Halpin followed them in a few seconds after and the Petes were outnumbered 5 to 3. Rose, Parker and Dwyer being the only blue shirts on the ice. The trio held the fort in good style, but just as Lackey got back, Williams scored for Lindsay from a mix-up, lifting the rubber over Dwyer, who had thrown himself down after stopping several shots.

With the score tied, both teams let out a notch and it was fast going. Wilford saved a counter for Lindsay by fast back-checking, crashing into Collins when the latter was inside and picking out an opening. W. Killen and Coombs served sentences in succession and the Petes pressed. Collins, from a scrimmage, shot over the top when a goal seemed certain. Finally, however, Parker put the Petes out in front, never to be headed, when he went down alone and, shooting from the right boards, caught the corner of the net with a beautiful shot. That made it 4 to 3, and there was no change at the end of the period, although Reeves nearly tied it up again after a beautiful rush, Dwyer making a fine save. Before the period ended, Parker drew a penalty for tripping and W. Killen followed for cross-checking.

Last Period.

There was no let up in the early part of the last session. Right off the reel Collins had an opening, but McClory blocked. Dwyer saved sensationally on a close-in shot from Coombs. Wilford drew an exile for tripping and Burgess got a similar sentence. It was hard going until the Petes' fifth goal took a lot of pep out of the homesters. Rose and Burgess got away together, and although Rose shot past the net the rubber rebounded out to Ranger, who took plenty of time and drilled a beauty past McClory.

Parker knocked Williams' stick out of his hand and was waved to the side. A little later W. Killen chopped Ranger over the leg and got away without a penalty. Ranger had to go off for repairs. Penalties came thick and fast for the next few minutes. Collins and W. Killen came off together and J. Killen followed shortly afterwards. With a two gaol lead the Petes adopted a defensive game, shooting the rubber down the rink amidst a "booing" chorus from the Lindsay fans. Seeing that they ddi not seem to be satisfied with that style, Parker grabbed the rubber and carried it inside for a beautiful goal, putting the Petes threw to the good.

Then came the almost riot three minutes before full time. It was bad while it lasted, but the final ninety seconds were tame, a penalty to Hamilton being the only feature.

It was a nice win and gave the Petes the group championship without a defeat, after winning four straight games and scoring 32 goals as against 7.

WANT FIRPO IN THIRTY CITIES

The Argentine's Manager Makes Trip to South America to Discuss the Details of Bout With Wills.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 22. — It was announced to-day that the fight between Luis Firpo and "Farmer" Lodge has been postponed from Feb. 10 to Feb. 16. The date for the bout between Firpo and Erminio Spalla also has been postponed pending the arrival from Italy of Spalla. The Italian heavyweight is expected to reach Buenor Aires on Jan. 30.

MEETS MANAGER.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Jan. 22—Luis Firpo, the Argentine heavyweight, to-day met "Farmer" Lodge, the United States pugilist, for the first time, on the deck of the steamer Pan-American, which arrived from New York. Firpo had come to Montevideo to meet Hugh Gartland, his United States manager, who also was a passenger on the Pan-America. Gartland and Firpo will proceed to Buenos Aires to-morrow in a seaplane.

Gartland, in an interview, said he had brought with him from the United States the details of a proposed fight between Firpo and Harry Wills, the negro heavyweight, but that he would not discuss them until after Firpo was ready to make a decision on them. Gartland added he had offers for exhibition bouts between Firpo and other boxers in 30 cities of the United States.

Lodge, who is soon to meet Firpo in a bout in Buenos Aires, said he was confident that he would beat the Argentine. He spent a large part of his time on the voyage from New York in vigorous training and said he was in perfect condition.

HOCKEY

The Kingston Standard says: Queen's were not speedy enough for the U. of T. team at the Toronto Arena on Saturday afternoon and they were whitewashed by the Blue and White by the score of 7-0, the same as Varsity beat Queen's last year. Varsity used the same system as Queen's, but broke away faster and throughout the game showed much more speed than the locals. Louie Hudson, the brighest light that shines in the Intercollegiate, was the star of the game, but he was no more popular than "Red" Legon, the Queen's red-thatched beauty, who was as popular with the crowd as anyone could be. "Red" did not show any of Louie's speed or hockey ability, but he made a hit with the crowd by his hard work and when he was taken off the crowd hollered "Bring on "Red", we want "Red," etc.

CLASHES WITH BONSPIEL.

Ontario Tankard finals have been called for Toronto on the same day as the Peterboro bonspiel. This is bad news for many who wanted to take rinks to Peterboro. The same clash has happened in two or three years past, and it would seem that the Peterboro club did not want to have the Lindsay Tankard players participate in the Peterboro 'spiels. However, Lindsay will still be well represented.—Lindsay Post.

SAYS BOXING IN COMBINE'S GRIP

Rickard and Ringling Alleged in Control of Big Bouts Confined to New York.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 22. — Charges that boxing in America is dominated by a powerful combine, consisting of Tex Rickard, John Ringling, the circus king, and the Sports Alliance, and as long as this combination fastens its grip on the sport few championship bouts will ever be staged outside of New York, were made by members of the National Boxing Association in annual convention here to-day.

Officials of the association late in the day were trying to determine if any of these interests had a spy at the present meeting and were said to hold the opinion that one member of the delegates present was acting as an observer for these men.

E. A. McAuley, Michigan Boxing Commissioner, had been leading the opposition to the appointment of W. Muldoon, former New York Boxing Commissioner, as dictator of boxing. The Detroit delegate charged that Mr. Muldoon alone stood in the way of New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts joining the National Boxing Association. Mr. McAuley also charged the alleged Rickard-Ringling faction with having sent paid agents to Shelby to ridicule and discredit the Dempsey-Gibbons fight because they did not want to see a world's championship fight held outside of New York.

LEDOUX LOST FRENCH BANTAMWEIGHT TITLE

PARIS, Jan. 23—Canadian Press — Andre Routis last night became the bantamweight champion of France when he was given the decision over Charley Ledoux on points in a 20 round bout.

France's Charles knocked out Georges Rauquet in the third round of what was to have been a round bout and retained the French middle weight championship.

Spectators volubly protested against the decision of the judges, which took away from Ledoux the title he has held for 14 years.

SHEPPARD LOSES THE DECISION TO GENARO

BOSTON, Jan. 23. Canadian Press —Frankie Genaro, the United States flyweight champion, earned the decision over Johnnie Sheppard of Woburn, in a hammer and tongs ten round bout here last night. Genaro weighed 115 3-4 pounds, and Sheppard 119.

TORONTO UNIVERSITY JUNIORS IN RUNNING

TORONTO, Jan. 23—(Canadian Press).—The University of Toronto Juniors qualified for the play off series in the local O.H.A. group when they defeated St. Mary's last night by 6 to 1. Three teams, St. Mary's Aura Lee and Parkdale are in the running for second place and have right to compete against Collegians, but unless one of these shows remarkable improvement, "Conny" Smythe's team will not have any trouble in winning the group title.

WHITBY JUNIORS WIN A DECISIVE VICTORY OVER OSHAWA'S TEAM

WHITBY, Jan. 23. Canadian Press —Whitby defeated Oshawa here last night in a fast O.H.A. junior game by a score of 5-3. The goal work of Howes for Whitby was largely responsible for their victory over the visitors. Elliott, the recruit, who started in goal for the losers, was removed in the final frame, being replaced by Garrison, the regular goal tender.

BRACEBRIDGE WON FROM HUNTSVILLE BY 11 TO 5

BRACEBRIDGE, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press.) — In a hard fought, clean O. H. A. intermediate game here last night, Bracebridge defeated Huntsville by 11 to 5. "Polly" Jocque in the nets for Huntsville, was the outstanding player. Kinsey and Walker starred for the locals. Huntsville was represented by two hundred fans who arrived on a special train.

ELORA PUT UP FIGHT BUT LOSE DECISION

BRAMPTON, Jan. 23. —(Canadian Press.)—Coming through with a carnival of goal getting in the last period, the local O.H.A. intermediates continued their victorious march to the group championship by defeating Elora 6 to 2 here to-night. The visitors put up a great struggle until the last twenty minutes and were leading at the end of the second period.

BURNED TO DEATH.

POTTSVILE, Pa., Jan. 23. — A mother and her four daughters ranging in age from one to sixteen were burned to death in a fire at Middleport, 5 miles from here early to-day, when their home was almost completely destroyed.

INDIAN-RED SOX TRADE PROVES ONCE MORE THAT FANS ARE REAL MOGULS OF BASEBALL

GEORGE BURNS, Star first baseman, who returns to the Cleveland Indians after three years with Boston Americans.

The recent deal between the Indians and Red Sox, involving three stars and four lesser lights, proves this.

The deal was put through with one object, only—to place George Burns back on the Cleveland roster. The protest of the fans against the deal which sent him out of Cleveland two years ago, caused the Cleveland club owners to take this means of strengthening the club at first rather than any other possible solution.

Burns was bought outright from the Athletics by the Indians in 1920 to play first base for Doc Johnston whenever that gent's charley horse acted up. Before the season ended he was playing the bag against left-hand pitchers, alternating with the lefthand hitter Johnston. His batting and fielding were factors in the team's pennant fight and in the world's series, which Cleveland won from the Dodgers. Burns won the sixth game of the series with a timely hit.

Then The Shock

The next season the fans were astounded when the club sent Burns, Joe Harris and Elmer Smith to Boston for one man—McInnis. Stuffy king of first sackers in his day, played a good game afield and at bat but the fans missed Burns and his spectacular hitting and generally popular disposition. They not only rode Manager Speaker from the stands but voiced their disapproval of the parting with Burns in other ways—including their absence from the game.

McInnis was given his conditional release a year ago. The Cleveland owners showed their sportsmanship, starting several months ago to regain Burns' services. Efforts failed, however, under the former regime in Boston. With the taking over of the reins there by Bobby Quinn and Lee Fohl negotiations were reopened.

While Bill Wambsganss, second best second baseman in the league, was probably the outstanding figure in Cleveland's end of the trade it is believed that the Red Sox insisted that O'Neill be included before the deal was consumated. Fohl always had admired O'Neill's mechanical ability and his knowledge of pitchers and batters and it's a good bet that Fohl believes the veteran—one of the greatest catchers the game has produced—can help tame the wild man Ehmke and get more out of Ferguson, Piercy, Murray and Fullerton, his other pitchers.

Outfielder Joe Connolly and pitcher Jim Boone, both youngsters were the other Clevelanders in the trade and the Sox threw in Chick Fewster and Al Walters.

Red Sox Got The Edge

Viewed from the playing value of the men involved the Red Sox seemed to have the edge on the deal. There is this to be said, however, O'Neill is nearing his last playing days. A year or so later Cleveland would have been faced with the problem of disposing of him. They probably felt they could do no better later than they did in the deal just pulled. They have two brilliant young catchers pining to work—Myatt and Luke Sewell. Walters will give them a more experiences man for emergencies.

The club strengthens its infield materially by acquiring Burns. Wamby will not be missed greatly at second with Stephenson here.

But the real reason the trade was made was to rectify the boner pulled in letting Burns go.

STRATFORD WON THEIR FIFTH STRAIGHT GAME

STRATFORD, Jan 23.—(Canadian Press).—In a keenly contested O.H.A. senior game here last night Stratford came through with their fifth straight win, to beat Galt 8 to 6. It was a great game with the result in doubt until the middle of the third period. It saw a roaring finish Over 2,000 fans attended. Galt had the honor of scoring most goals against the locals of any team this season. For the first period Stratford looked good but in the second they went back for time. Scoring honors for Galt went to Woods while on the local line up practically every player figured in good work.

Kelterborne and Carson got two tallies that spelled win.

PORT COLBORNE WON

NIAGARA FALLS, Jan. 23.—Canadian Press.—The Port Colborne hockey team scored another victory here last night when they defeated the local intermediates 3 to 1 in an O.H.A. group game making their grip on first place more secure.

Visitors were masters of situation throughout, locals scoring their only goal in first 40 minutes of play.

PREMIER FLOURISHES LABOR BROOM TO DUST OLD PARTIES' LODGINGS

Expects Punctuality of Colleagues in Reporting For Duty — Informs Himself About the Personnel and Work of the Foreign Office Departments.

NEW CABINET MEETS.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Ramsay MacDonald, who took office yesterday as England's first Labor Premier, gave tacit notice to the country and his colleagues that he expected to give the British people a business-like administration and would look for punctuality on the part of his associates in reporting for duty each day.

Soon after partaking of a light, quick luncheon, he called at the Foreign Office at about two o'clock yesterday afternoon in the expectation of seeing Marquis Curzon or Sir Eric Crowe, who in the Foreign Secretary's absence is the executive head of the department. But Lord Curzon had already given up the reins of state and gone home and Sir Eric had not yet returned from luncheon.

The new premier's entry was scarcely noticed, and his sudden, unannounced appearance at Lord Curzon's door caused a flurry throughout the big stone building. Doormen and clerks ran excitedly to the telephone to inform their superiors of the surprise visit of the new chief.

Department Information.

Sir Eric Crowe did not arrive until after 2.30, Mr. MacDonald meanwhile having cooled his heels in an anteroom. Sir Eric apologized profusely for his tardiness, after which the Premier engaged him in a long talk over the personnel and functioning of the various departments of the Foreign Office.

Mr. MacDonald later crossed to the official residence of the Prime Minister at Number 10 Downing Street, pausing midway in the midnight darkness and fog which prevailed in the short cavernous alleyway to pose for flashlight pictures by a battery of photographers.

The Premier then convened the first meeting of his cabinet in the strange old two-storey brick building where the fortunes of the empire have been directed by his predecessors for so many years. Democracy and simplicity were the dominant notes in this first ministerial assemblage of the Laborites. J. H. Thomas, Secretary for the Colonies was the only member of Mr. MacDonald's official family of twenty to arrive in an automobile, the rest travelling on foot through the rain.

No Ceremony.

"Hello Jim, ...hurry up you'll be late," was the cheery greeting accorded the new Colonial Secretary. Many of the other ministers were also welcomed by their given names or familiar diminutives.

The cabineteers who wore silk stovepipe hats were Viscount Haldane, Viscount Chelmsford and Sir Sydney Olivier. Their aristocratic appearance contrasted oddly with the unostenatious dress and bearing of their colleagues.

The Cabinet remained in session more than two hours, devoting itself mainly to a discussion of the future program and general policy of the government at home and abroad.

Two Versions of Montreal Murder

MONTREAL, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Evidence in the case of Mrs. Arthur Bergeron, who was strangled to death and beaten in her home in Seaudry Street on January 24th, 1922, was given in the Enquete Court here yesterday. Alfred Dagenais, who is charged with the crime, and who was arrested in a lumber camp in Sudbury district this week, appeared in court and was committed for trial, a voluntary statement being fixed for January 29th. Edouard Frelier, who is also charged in connection with the case, was sent up for trial last week.

Two versions of the murder were given. Joseph Duguay swore that Corinne St. Jean had arranged for himself, Frelier and Dagenais to go to the house to rob Mr. Bergeron, and had stipulated that she (St. Jean), who lived in the house, should be tied up by them and gagged, so as to provide an alibi. St. Jean emphatically denied this, and said she had been overpowered by men and had fainted. Duguay continued that after robbing Mrs. Bergeron they left the house. He did not notice whether she was alive when they went.

POWER PROJECT TO WASHINGTON

The Federal Government Believed to Have Suggested an International Board of Engineers on St. Lawrence Scheme.

OTTAWA, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Following a meeting of the Cabinet last night, Premier King announced that a communication in regard to the St. Lawrence power project would be dispatched to Washington immediately. It is expected that the attitude of the Dominion Government will be set forth in a general way in this document, and that proposals for obtaining more detailed information regarding the sceheme will be submited.

While no indication was given by the Premier of the attitude which the federal Government will assume in connection with the plan to develop power on the St. Lawrence river it is expected that the advisability of appointing an international board of engineers to consider all angles of the scheme will be suggested.

Since the Ferguson government assumed office in Ontario the desirability of harnessing the St. Lawrence has been urged with increasing vigor. Quite recently a large deputation representative of Ontario Hydro municipalities visted the Capital and advocated federal support for the enterprise. Since that time Premier Ferguson came to Ottawa and had a conference with Premier King at which it was understood that the question of St. Lawrence Power development was one of the principal topics of discussion.

Toward the end of last week plans for a power dam and generating plant on the upper St. Lawrence which had been approved by the Ontario Government were submitted to the federal administration. They were considered by the Cabinet and the communication which went forward to Washington last night, is presumably based upon the consideration given these plans by the Dominion ministers.

SEES AIRSHIPS AS INFLUENCE IN UNITING EMPIRE

Four Years Have Witnessed Wonderful Strides in Aviation in Britain, Says Director of Air Ministry in Address to Engineers.

HAVE FLYING CLUBS.

OTTAWA, Jan. 24.—That wonderful strides had been made in aviation in Great Britain during the past four years, especially in the production of freight and passenger carrying aeroplanes, and that it was within the bounds of possibility that within twelve years, a bi-weekly airship service would be inaugurated, making it possible to travel from England to Australia via India within a period of 250 hours. This was the outstanding feature of a remarkable address on aviation delivered yesterday afternoon before the engineering institute of Canada, in session here, by Major-Gen. Sir William Softon Brancker, Director of Civil Aviation of the Air Ministry of Great Britain.

Commercial airship service could then be established between Canada and England on a paying basis, he said. He had heard that helium was being produced in Canada and he hoped that this important development would be proceeded with as it was a vital feature in aerial transport. In order to promote flying the British Air Ministry was promoting flying clubs all over the country and had induced big firms and designers to open Government-assisted commercial air schools, where persons desirous of learning how to fly could do so without having to take military service. Six of these schools had been started and there were more to follow.

Supplement Railways.

He expresses the opinion that air transport could never compete with rail or steam as owing to its very nature it would naturally be a more expensive method of travelling. The commercial air service, however, would supplement the railways and would do away with the necessity of further construction in this aspect and would supply speedy service which would mean a saving in time and consequently money. One of its main features would be that it would prove an antidote to the present day difficulties of keeping the empire bound together.

While the construction of airships and airplanes was costly, it was but a flea-bite compared to what the construction, say, of a railroad between Cairo and Bagdad, would cost.

He had been pleased to find in Canada that solid businessmen were backing aviation which was so different in Great Britain, and he believed that Canada had a more practical and useful show in aviation than could be found in any other part of the British Empire.

Gen. Brancker stated that it had been learned that an airplane can travel for 1,500 hours without overhaul and it should be kept busy enough to cover the 1,500 hours in one year.

It had been proved also that the airplane was not a fragile but a long-lived thing under proper commercial organization. Also that a pilot can do 600 hours of flying in a year without undue strain. Commercial air transport had progressed to such an extent since 1920 that while in that year the mileage had been 500,000 up to the 1st of December last year, it had been 600,000 with the likelihood that the million mile mark would be touched by March1, which would be the end of the fiscal year. Last year a total of 16,000 passengers had been carried and in four years there had only been three fatal accidents in the passenger carrying air traffic, due in two instances to weather conditions. This showed conclusively that the public was beginning to use the air service. He stated that the cost of a craft cruising 100 miles an hour carrying a ton for 250 miles could be operated for three and six pence a mile.

Bon Voyage!

No wonder members of the crew of the Dollar liner President Harrison were so light hearted when they left San Francisco on the first regular round-the-world passenger service. These four sailorettes are shown descending the ladder after wishing bon voyage to all aboard.

CAVAN TOWNSHIP BARN DESTROYED

Lantern Exploded With Disastrous Results—Part of Contents Lost.

CAVAN, Jan. 24.—Last evening between six and seven o'clock a frame barn on the farm of Mr. James Huston, 10th Concession of Cavan township, was destroyed by fire. Two calves, all the chickens, some implements and the hay and straw were lost. The rest of the cattle and horses were saved. The fire was caused by a lantern exploding.

Confusion Ends Miners' Meeting

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 23.—Cries of "Let's go home," and "We're done," by radicals to-night ended the second day's session of the United Mine Workers' convention in confusion. Radical delegates had mustered only 421 votes, for their proposal to reinstate the deposed district officials of Nova Scotia. The vote was on their demand for a roll call, for which a thirty per cent. vote is necessary. And it failed by about 150 votes.

EDWARD FINNIE HAS ENDED HIS DUTIES

For Twenty-Five Years He Was Engaged As Special Night Watch in the Business District.

No more will citizens salute Edward Finnie with that time-worn interrogation, "Watchman what of the night?" For Mr. Finnie has made his last round of the extensive beat in the business section of the city which he has vigilantly covered for twenty-five years. He has relinquished this duty, and in passing wishes to thank all those who engaged him, for their many courtesies during the full quarter of a century of his employment. Mr. Finnie is deeply grateful for the kindly relations he enjoyed with business men and others whose property he inspected nightly and for their confidence in him. In December he was taken ill with a severe cold which for a time gave his physician grave concern. Since then his condition has greatly improved and he is able to be up and about the house although the outdoors are still forbidden him. His many friends will wish him years of comfort and happiness in his retirement.

WOULD AMALGAMATE PRAIRIE PROVINCES.

One Legislature Could Operate As Efficiently As Three and More Economically.

WINNIPEG, January 24 (Canadian Press). — Amalgamation of three Prairie Provinces into one great body, with one Premier, one Legislature, and one operating machine was urged as an economy measure by W. F. Dutton, president of the Western Canada Retail Lumbermen's Association in his annual address at the opening session of the annual convention here yesterday.

"Identical in interests, problems, and destinies, the three Prairie Provinces could be merged into a single entity," Mr. Dutton declared, "without the loss of an ounce of efficiency and with the elimination of two out of three of the provincial machines."

THE WEATHER.

The thermometer was down to 7 below zero last night, though the air was calm, and the cold was little felt. By daylight this morning it had risen to 4 above zero.—W. P.

OPPOSITION IN QUEBEC DEMAND MERGER DETAILS

NO FEDERAL AID.

QUEBEC, Jan. 24.— (Canadian Press).—In the course of the Government's bank merger bill discussion in the Legislative Assembly of Quebec yesterday afternoon, the opopsition made it clear in speeches delivered by Arthur Sauve, the Conservative leader, Hon. E. L. Patenaude, M.L.A. for Jacques Cartier and Alfred Duranleau, M.L.A. for Laurier, Montreal, that they were not satisfied to accept the measure without further information. Furthermore Mr. Patenaude suggested an amendment, though not by the way of formal motion. He wanted a line of demarcation drawn between the Banque Nationale shareholders and the Hochelaga Bank shareholders when the new bank commences.

La Banque Nationale shareholders will have $1,500,000 of stock of the new bank, the dividends on which will be $150,000. His idea is that this $150,000 should not be paid to them, but turned over into a trust in the hands of the Government together with the sinking fund on the $15,000,000 bonds issued by the Government or on such portion of them as are negotiated which he calculated would retire the $15,000,000 of bonds in fifteen, sixteen or seventeen years' time and only then should La Banque Nationale shareholders be eligible for dividends.

Proposed Meeting.

Premier Taschereau conceded to the opposition that it was quite probable that some of them did not have the requisite amount of information necessary. Therefore he invited the members of the opposition or such of them as are willing to meet him in Montreal next Saturday in company with Sir Vincent Meredith, Hon. George Amyot, president of La Banque Nationale, Henri des Rivieres, General Manager of La Banque Nationale, J. A. Vallancourt, president of the Hochelaga Bank, Beaudry Leman, general manager of the Hochelaga Bank, Sir Hermidas Laporte, president of La Banque Provinciale and Tancrede Bienvenue general manager of La Banque Provinciale, and there, have a round table conference but in the meantime the bill would have to be given second reading. If they were not satisfied with the statements produced and the explanations given they could press on the House for further information on third reading of the bill.

Mr. Patenaude and Mr. Duranleau, who followed the Premier refused the offer objecting that it was a dangerous precedent, even more so than the present bill.

Hon. A. Galipeault, Minister of Public Works added to the Premier's offer when he suggested that the bankers named meet the members of the opposition in Quebec.

Approached Ottawa.

Another contribution to the debate was the statement by Premier Taschereau that he and others had endeavored to have Ottawa intervene to aid La Banque Nationale but such had not been available. The Premier said the Federal Government had not the means of aiding, furthermore that the Ottawa session would not commence until the end of February, by which time it would have been impossible to save the Banque Nationale.

Hon. Mr. Patenaude and Mr. Galipeault clashed because of the fact that Mr. Patenaud, stated that the religious institutions which owned shares of La Banque Nationale, while they deserved sympathy were in the same position as other share holders, viz: responsible in the first instance for the administration of the bank and if called upon would bear their losses with fortitude as they had borne other sacrifices. Mr. Galipeault maintained that those religious institutions were a concern of the province and should be helped. The opinions of Bishop Fallon were referred to and Mr. Patenaure declared he did not share them. Mr. Galipeault interpreted this to mean that Mr. Patenaude meant that he had no sympathy with Bishop Fallon and declared he had and so had the mass of the province.

Mr. Duranleau raised the constitutional issue, doubting whether the Legislature had the right to intervene in what he considered to be purely the federal field, a contention which brought the retort from Premier Taschereau that the province had the right to give away what it wished.

SASKATCHEWAN GRAIN GROWERS PROPOSE TO QUIT POLITICAL FIELD

Bourassa Prefers Britain's Policy

MONTREAL, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—"I stand for the foreign policy of Great Britain as it is expressed today, first because I believe that it is just, and secondly, because I believe that it is best in the interest of my country. If tomorrow the policy of France corresponds better to what I believe to be the true interest of my country I will stand by that policy, not because it is the French policy, but because I believe it is the best policy."

In the above words pronounced before the Shoe Trade Convention in session here today, Henri Bourassa, for many years the active leader of the Nationalist Party in Canada, expressed his attitude on affairs in Europe. The endorsation of Britain's present foreign policy came at the end of a lengthy address in which Mr. Bourassa reaffirmed his Nationalist faith and urged Canadians to stand on their own feet in fiscal matters. He favored a Brittanic association of free communities, working for the maintenance of an equal standard of liberty in matters of tariff as in matters of peace and war.

STRIKE CLOSES MINES IN WALES

Train Movement Improved But Other Industries Are Tied Up and Coal Shortage Is Threatened.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—The expected meeting between representatives of the Executive Committee of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen and the railway managers, at which it was hped discussions would be renewed with a view to ending the railway strike, did not materialize yesterday.

The railway managers met in the afternoon to consider the offer of the Associated Society for a parley, but their decision with regard to a discussion was deferred. J. Bromley Secretary of the Society told the newspaper men that he had not heard from the managers. He added that the strike of the men of the Society was becoming increasingly effective.

Government Presses

It is considerable probable that the railway managers will meet again today to discuss the situation. The mediating section of the Trades Union Congress met yesterday and went over the situation, but adjourned without having reached any definite decision to try to bring the controversy to an end, although the new Labor Government is reported to be pressing for an early solution of the trouble.

Continued improvement was shown yesterday in the movement of trains. The strike, however, is having an increasingly adverse effect on the Scottish and Welsh industries The iron, steel and tin works and the foundries are running short of supplies. In South Wales 80,000 coal miners have been rendered idle in consequence of the strike, and some of the blast furnaces have been damped down because of lack of coal.

Coal Stocks Dwindle

In London the coal stocks are dwindling alarmingly and householders are threatened with a serious shortage if the strike lasts into next week. Eleven hundred youthful Eton students, due back at their famous school yesterday after the holidays, trooped in for a resumption of their studies by automobile and all sorts of other vehicles, from all parts of the country. They were in high glee over their adventures on the road, but apparently they were the only persons who regarded the strike as a huge joke.

Central Board Points Out That Many Farmers Refuse to Join on Political Grounds and They Are Thereby Lost to the Growers' Association.

PARTY ALLEGIANCE.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., January 24 (Canadian Press). — In the opinion of the Central Board—a representative body of 28—of the Saskatchewan Growers' Association, it is doubtful if the farmers as a whole in that province "are yet free from giving allegiance to a party name."

The Board, in recommending yesterday to the annual convention that provincial political action be abandoned for the time being, declared the present form of political organisation was not effective and was not a source of strength to the association.

The recommendation of the Board, which is supported by the executive committee, a small body of eight members, will come before the convention to-day, and will provoke a keen debate, it is expected.

The concrete proposal is that the association rescind the decision of two years ago that it take active steps in the way of provincial political action.

On this subject the report of the executive reads as follows:

"There is a feeling in many quarters of the Province that the association is suffering from the effects of its decision in the 1922 convention to allow its members, in any provincial constituency, to use the machinery of the association for the purpose of nominating and electing a member to the Provincial Legislature."

Against Government.

There can be little doubt that when the delegates passed the resolutions in connection with provincial political action in the 1922 convention, they had in mind the creation of a political organisation which could be used effectively in a provincial election to elect representatives other than supporters of the present Government.

"On the other hand, it seems doubtful if the farmers as a whole in this Province are yet free from giving allegiance to a party name. They are much more free from susceptibility to blind party loyalty than they were ten years ago, but we must recognise that the old party spirit, however unreasonable it may be, is difficult to eradicate, and very often those most under its influence are quite honest and sincere.

"Our great objective is to build up an organisation which will unite within its ranks the largest possible percentage of the farmers, through which they can work effectively in raising their industry from its present unenviable position.

Emphasise Agreement.

"In order to do this, we must, for the time being, leave in the background the things which, rightly or wrongly, may cause division and place in the foreground things around which the largest number can unite. This will mean that we must have an objective which will appeal to the farmers as of vital importance to themselves.

"The present form of organisation —so far as the relationship of the association to provincial politics is concerned—is not effective and is not a source of strength to the association. There are very many farmers throughout the Province who would be loyal members of the association but for the fact that they regard it as an organisation which may be used to oppose the present Government of which they are supporters in the next election."

The report of the executive said the farmers of Saskatchewan had never been harder pressed than in 1923. Disparity between prices of wheat the farmers bought and sold, together with high interest rate and transportation charges would, "unless relief is given very shortly, so impoverish the Western country as to make future agricultural development very difficult, if not impossible."

PETERBORO NOT AFRAID OF THE TANKARD SKIPS

Peterboro Bonspiel Has Always Been Arranged Week Ahead of Tankard Dates.

Replying to a report from Lindsay implying that Peterboro had arranged the local bonspiel to clash with the Tankard finals, a local official of the Peterboro Curling Club stated to-day, that in the history of curling the finals in the Tankard games have never been called before the first of February and the local bonspiel has always been called one week before that date "We are not afraid of the tankard skips, declared this official. We would like to see them bring the whole Tankard rink down."

The annual meeting of Knox Presbyterian Church congregation took place last evening. Splendid reports, showing good balances in all departments, and recording one of the best years financially in the history of the church, were given. Excellent advancement was made also by the church school. Rev. M. C. Mackinnon presided at the meeting, and Mr. John Buyers acted as secretary. Re-elections to the Board of Management were made in Messrs. J. Buyers, J. Jackson and Davis, and new members are Messrs. Chambers, K. Denoon, A. Pitchford and H. J. McCannan. The Board of Management for the past year, with Mr. Frank Grey as chairman, was congratulated on the success of their work.

MINE WORKERS TO CONTINUE EFFORTS

SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 24. Canadian Press. — Representatives of the United Mine Workers of America district executives, and management of the British Empire Steel Corporation meeting at the company's offices, at Glace Bay, this morning, continued their efforts to find a way out of the difficulty which arose, when following expiration of their wage contract with the men, the company announced a reduction of 20 per cent.

Neither side would discuss the progress made in the negotiations, when the conference rose for lunch. It is generally believed, however, that substantial progress is being made, and that an agreement providing a wage scale somewhere between 1921 and 1923 rates eventually will be reached.

Annual Meeting St. Paul's

The annual congregational meeting of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, for the transaction of business and to receive reports from the various organizations, was held last evening in the Sunday School hall. The attendance was larger than usual at such meetings, one reason for this being the interest of the people in the report of the committee on the installation of a new organ. A year ago such a committee was appointed. It has not been idle, by any means. In its report last evening it was able to record progress. After some discussion, all of which was in favor of something being done at once, it was decided to authorize a committee to make a thorough canvass of the congregation, and to arrange with the Board of Managers to take steps immediately to have the contract let so that the matter might not be delayed. In the shortest time necessary to complete arrangements and build an organ of the type which the congregation wishes to install nearly a year will be required.

Great interest is always taken at annual meetings in the financial side of the work of the Church. It was with satisfaction the people heard that, notwithstanding the depression in business and the financial world, the givings of the people showed little falling off, and that the total receipts were even ahead of what they were three or four years ago. The Managers closed the year with a balance, after meeting all indebtedness, of $189.80.

One feature of the report of this congregation each year is the large amount which it gives to missions, the amount being generally the equal of what it spends on its own work. Its total gifts for all purposes may be summarized as follows:

Current revenue	$ 9,810.99
Missions	6,735.82
Women's Missionary Society, the Fraser Auxiliary and Faithful Workers	1,959.13
Sunday School	1,175.71
Ladies' Aid	1,798.77
Choir	107.61
Total	$21,588.03

The above totals do not include the amount subscribed towards the new organ, nor does it the amounts given for the Bible Society, the Lord's Day Alliance, and the Dominion Alliance.

The Session report passes in review the different departments of the organized life of the Church. And a few extracts from that report are here given:

"There is cause for gratitude, first, in the large number who have united with the church during the past year on profession of their faith in Christ, as well as for the number who have united with us from other congregations. Fifty-one professed their faith in Christ, for the first time. Many of these were from the teen age, children of our own families and members of the Sunday School. It is from this class that future members of the church must be constantly recruited, hence the importance of work among the young. Ninety new members were received during the year. After a thorough revision of the Roll it was found that forty received their certificates, twenty-seven were dropped from the Roll, and eighteen by death. The net membership is now 1078.

The work of the Sunday School is more encouraging than it has been for months. A year ago Mr. Oliver Steer was appointed Superintendent. Gradually throughout the year he has been able to come into closer touch with the school in all its departments, and set things in motion which have resulted in an increase in attendance and a more loyal devotion to the school upon the part of both teachers and scholars, and we trust, also, of the parents. We are looking forward to still more effective service in the school during 1924. The members of the congregation may not all know that the school is in four or five departments, with a superintendent for each. Mr. Steer is General Superintendent and Superintendent of the Intermediate Department. Mrs. Russell Wood is Superintendent of the Junior Department, Miss Ethel Rae of the Primary Department, and Miss Lizzie Scott, who has been taking Miss Florence Cameron's place, of the Beginner's Department. Mrs. Wightman, assisted by Miss Scott, has been doing good work in connection with the Cradle Roll. There is a more perfect enrollment now in this department, than has been the case for years. The Session greatly appreciates the fine work which is being done by the teachers of all the departments. There is a body of consecrated teachers in St. Paul's Sunday School for which any church should be thankful. We wish to mention in a special way the helpfulness of the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. M. Chenhall, which plays in the main school and has assisted at any special meetings which have been held from time to time in connection with the school.

One organization in the church which shows no sign of weakness or retrograde movement is the Women's Missionary Society. The steady growth of this organization would be hard to duplicate anywhere in our Presbyterian Church. This does not mean that those who are specially interested in the work are at all satisfied. They are not, and will not, until every woman who is a member of the congregation is also a member of the Women's Missionary Society. Both the Fraser Auxiliary and the Faithful Workers' Missionary Societies have accomplished good work throughout the year.

The ladies have been active in other ways than in the missionary societies of the church. Through the Ladies' Aid Society many of them have been doing a necessary and helpful work in connection with the congregation. This Society has been quite busy during the year. It should specially receive the thanks of the congregation for supplying the blinds for the manse, and thus saving a considerable outlay from the regular funds of the church.

Our choir has reached a strength within the last few months which it has not reached in years. The music is worshipful, reverent and uplifting. The services of Miss Greta LeBarr have recently been engaged as soloist. With the strengthening which Miss LeBarr will give to the choir, and the addition of some new voices, the congregation can feel that the musical service of the church for the coming year will be all that is to be desired. Mr. Martin Chenhall, as organizt and choir master, holds the affection and admiration of the choir, as well as of the congregation, for the ability of his leadership and the all around efficiency of his work. The Session wishes to express its appreciation of the regularity of the attendance of the members of the choir, and of their devotion to a part of the Church's work which calls for the free gift of time and energy.

Another matter touched upon in the report was the new organization known as "The Men of St. Paul's." Great things are expected from this organization.

Reference was also made to the passing away of Sheriff Hall and the loss sustained by the congregation in his death.

Mr. J. Wells Fraser acted as Chairman of the meeting in an efficient manner. The meeting, which had given itself heartily to the consideration and discussion of the report, was brought to a close by the Benediction by the minister.

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED WITH SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

At the Wednesday session, J. W. Bickle and Rev. Dr. J. T. Daley, superintendent of the Children's Shelter at Port Hope, appeared before the Council to ask for a renewal of the grant of $300.00 for the upkeep of the institution. They were accompanied by Rev. Canon Sawyer of Cobourg, formerly of Peterborough.

Warden Fowlds promised the deputation that their request would receive careful consideration, and the matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

Address on Road Building.

The greater part of the session was devoted to hearing and discussing an address by John McVickar, engineer of the Highway Department of Toronto. The speaker recommended all townships that have not already done so to do away with statute labour and avail themselves of the grant from the Legislature. He advised the various Councils in the municipalities to take this matter into their own hands instead of submitting the question to the vote of the people. There would likely be some criticism at the start, but it would be found that when once tried the system would give general satisfaction. Fully 60 per cent of the townships in Ontario have done away with statute labour. Mr. McVickar said that a number of townships had proved the efficiency of contract work over the old system of statute labour. The test was the cost of moving a yard of gravel for one mile. By statute labour, the highest cost was $6.00, and under the contract plan only $1.09. In brief, the municipality adhering to the old plan gets 33 cents' worth of work for every dollar expended, while practically full value is obtained under the contract system.

Praising the road work done in the United Counties by Superintendent Greer, who spends 40 per cent. of the funds available on maintenance and the balance for construction, Mr. McVickar went on to criticise the plan followed here in the matter of road grants to towns and villages. Instead of small yearly allowances, he thinks the urban communities should waive all assistance for say three or five years, at the end of which time they could ask for a lump sum sufficient to enable them to construct permanent roadways, the only kind, that can stand up under the traffic, which has increased seven-fold within the past few years. In the meantime, the roads leading to the towns and villages could be built up,

Warden Fowlds ,Reeve Holdaway, and other representatives from the towns and villages, could not accept Mr. McVickar's advice in this matter. With them a bord in the hand ter. With them, a bird in the hand was worth a whole flock out in the woods. They hesitated about allowing their grants to pile up lest in the end they should receive nothing.

U. E. Loyalists' Anniversary.

W. C. Mibsel, of Belleville, wrote asking a grant of $100 to defray the cost of the celebration of the 140th anniversary of the arrival of the United Empire Loyalists in this district.

The letter was turned over to the Finance Committee.

To give the different committees a chance to prepare their reports, the Council took a recess until 7.30 on Thursday evening.

Sturdy Young Canadian.

Harry M., the 11-year-old son of Warden Fowlds, of Hastings, at present a pupil in Trinity School, Port Hope, walked from that town to Cobourg yesterday, a distance of seven miles, to see his father and to congratulate him upon his election to the Wardenship. It is needless to say that the pleasure of the visit was mutual. The cold weather did not dismay the sturdy little fellow, who has evidently inherited some of the energy of his father. Harry returned to Port Hope in the evening in the car of Reeve Holdaway of that place.

Dean of the Council.

The oldest member of the Council is Reeve John cMCubbin, of Percy, elected chairman of the Contingencies Committee. Mr. McCubbin owns to 68 years, but if he cared to shave a matter of ten years or so from that figure no one would be inclined to dispute his statement.

In point of continuous service the crown goes to Reeve Van Volkenburg of Seymour, runner-up for the Wardenship. He is on his eigth consecutive term.

DR. ROBERT WALKER FOUND NOT GUILTY

TORONTO, January 24 Canadian Press. — "Not guilty," was the verdict of the jury in the winter assizes last night after 90 minutes deliberation on the case of Dr. Robert R. Walker, who was charged with murder in connection with the death of Miss Ivy Patterson.

During the course of his summing up His Lordship said he thought it would be wiser for the jury not to find him guilty of murder, and explained that "If a man, by reason of his skill and experience believed—and he has a right to believe—that he can perform that operation without causing death, then you have the right to find him guilty of manslaughter only."

The evening was a special social one as the Auxiliary entertained Mrs. Sergeant's Sunday School class. There were games, contests and music during the evening, after which lunch was served. This society is doing good work among the girls of the congregation, and a greater interest is being shown by the larger numbers attending.

A very enjoyable evening was spent in the Sunday School-room of the Methodist Church on Tuesday night, when the "Mizpah" Mission Circle had as visitors St. Andrew's Mission Circle,

DEBATE WON BY SOUTH MONAGHAN

Scored Heavily on Indian River Orators — Bailieboro Reports 28 Below Zero—Skating Good.

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 23.—In the debate which was held in the club rooms at Indian River between the Indian River and South Monaghan U.F.Y.P.O. clubs last Friday evening, South Monaghan again scored a victory. Messrs. Harry Campbell and Geo. Morrison were the home debaters and won the debate by a large number of points. Mr. Douglas Deyell accompanied the debaters there as their judge.

The subject of the debate was: Resolved, "That the Canadian form of Government is preferable to that of the United States." South Monoghan taking the affirmative.

Driving on Lake

The first traffic noticed on the upper end of the lake was on Saturday afternoon, when a horse and cutter was driven up the south side to Bewdley.

Heavy Snowfall

Monday and Tuesday's wind and snow proved too heavy for many of the local mailmen to make their entire trips. Some of the roads have been made through the fields, and it takes very little snow to fill up the gaps in the fences through which they have to travel. Th3 highway is once again impossible for car traffic.

C. O. F. At Home

The Canadian Order of Foresters held an "at home" in the town hall, Bailieboro, on Friday evening last. There was a splendid crowd present, many coming from Millbrook and Fraserville.

Mr. Evan Stewart and Misses T. Wood and G. Holdden furnished good music for dancing during the entire evening.

Those who prefered to play cards amused themselves thus in the Forester's hall.

Lunch was served at midnight by the ladies and altogether a most enjoyable time was spent.

Miscellaneous Shower

On Thursday evening last the friends and neighbours of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Finnie met at their home in South Monaghan and presented the young couple with a miscellaneous shower.

A beautiful address was read, to which Mr. Finnie made a very suitable reply, expressing his gratitude and appreciation in a brief way.

The gifts were numerous and useful and after the reading of the address the remainder of the evening was spent in playing cards, games, etc., and a very enjoyable and sociable time was spent by all present. Lunch was served during the evening by the ladies.

A number of the young people gathered together and went in sleighloads, which meant a merry time for all on such a delightful night.

Record 28 Below Zero

The coldest day that has been felt in this locality this winter was on Monday morning when the thermometer registered eighteen below zero. On Monday evening at six o'clock it had fallen to twenty-eight degrees below zero.

Good Skating

On Friday and Saturday of last week the ice on the lake and creeks was the best for skating that it has been this winter. The young people of the village and district made good use of the ice during the two days, and especially on Saturday, when large crowds gathered both afternoon and evening.

WANT CONTROL HYDRO SYSTEM

Request to the Cobourg Counties Council Now in Session.

COBOURG, Jan. 24.—The total debenture debt of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, as shown in the report of Clerk-Treasurer MacNachtan to the Counties Council is $41,437.60. This debt has been reduced from $60,000, incurred in 1906 and bearing interest at 4 per cent by yearly payments of $3,469.80.

The total receipts for 1923, including the balance on hand at the beginning of the year, amounted to $610,451.80, and the expenditure was $608,515.65, leaving a balance in the bank of $1,936.65. The total liabilities are $66,298.90.

New Grant Received

The financial statement shows further that on January 22nd, there was a balance in the bank of $6,077.37. This includes $2,399.80 paid by the Provincial Treasurer for the maintenance of the House of Refuge. This is the first time such a grant has been received but it will be paid yearly, based on the number of inmates cared for in the institution.

The Counties owe the Department of Highways $52,298.90 for the building and maintenance of roads.

Estimates for Highways

S. L. Squire, deputy minister of highways, sent in estimates of the amounts to be spent for the building and maintenance of the Provincial roads in the Counties during 1923. The total is $398,320, the Counties' share of which, payable in 1925, is 20 per cent, or $79,664. In 1923 the amount so expended was $30,717, of which the Counties will pay this year $30,717.

Want Act Amended

A memorial was received from the County Council of Hastings asking for co-operation in an effort to have the Highway Act amended so as to relieve municipalities of some measure of responsibility for accidents to drivers of vehicles. It is proposed to bring pressure to bear upon the Legislature so that any municipality can apply to the Department for an inspection of their roads. If these are built up to the required standard then such municipalities are not to be held liable for accidents. It is also the aim of the promoters of this movement to have the Act changed so that municipalities will not be responsible for accidents that occur in the ditches or on what is known as the roadside, but will be required to keep the roadside only in proper repair for traffic.

Hastings County has a peculiar interest in this matter. Some time ago Dr. George Clinton, at that time District Health Officer and residing in Belleville, travelling through the County of Hastings, met with a serious accident when his car took the ditch. He sued the County for damages and secured a verdict of $5,600.

This award was raised to $10,600 by a higher court and the County, including the costs, is out about $20,000 on the case. It was stated in the communication received from the Hastings County Council that the case referred to has encouraged others to start suits for damages and that these were compromised so as to award the risk of a trial until the financial burden had become almost unbearable.

At the session of the Legislature last winter H. Denyes, one of the U.F.O. members from Hastings, introduced a Bill covering this matter but it was never even referred to a committee, the legal members of the House being inclined to treat the affair as a joke.

After the Hydro

Ontario County Council sent a memorial asking that Northumberland and Durham join in a request to the Government at Toronto to withhold further grants to the Hydro Commission until the people's representatives are given full control and regulation of the Hydro system. The communication charges that the Hydro Commission is unfair in its treatment of the rural sections as the rates are prohibitive. These, it is asserted, are supposed to be based on "electricity at cost," but that the charges vary even in the same communities.

Where United Counties Led

Ontario County also asks for co-operation in a movement to have the Highway Act amended so as to have the cost of building and maintaining the provincial roads maintained entirely by the Province without help from the municipalities that have no say in such expenditures.

The Counties Council here is already on record with regard to this matter. At the December session Warden Fowlds, at that time plain reeve, introduced such a resolution and it was adopted without opposition.

The increase of over $200,000 in the amount to be expended on the provincial highway this year, with the consequent additional burden to the County, is likely to arouse some opposition when the matter comes before the committee on roads and bridges. It is now taken as certain that the Kingston highway is to be finished this year. This road will pass over the main street in Cobourg.

A CHANGE FOR POLICE FORCE

Inspector Pavton is the Man Who Resigned—Other Changes May Follow.

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Hon. W. F. Nickle, attorney general, is thinking over his next move in connection with his inquiry into Ontario Temperance Act enforcement, which ended in the resignation of Staff Inspector A. T. Paxton. The Attorney General intimated yesterday that there would be a further inquiry which might bring some changes in provincial police force as at present organized. Meantime he is withholding in acceptance of the resignation of Staff Inspector Paxton who has not been at his office since the week end.

Staff Inspector Paxton has been with the provincial police department for past three years. He was previously in mounted police.

No information has been given out as to nature of reports upon upon which attorney general acted. Reports reached Hon. Mr. Nickle through James Hales, K.C. chairman of the Ontario License Board. Until the attorney general makes a full inquiry which he has in mind he has decided to defer a statement as to what took place at the investigation thus far. Searching of grips of travellers from Montreal is said to have played a part in last week's inquiry at the office of the attorney general.

COUNTY FARMERS AT COMPETITION

Judging Contest Suggested For the Peterboro Fall Fair.

Representatives from Peterborough County who attended the Ottawa Winter Fair last week are enthusiastic over the benefits accruing to farmers from the stock judging contests. Those who attended from this district were District Representative F. C. McRae of Norwood, accompanied by a team of young farmers who took part in the competition; Messrs. Hambling of Warsaw, H. English of Asphodel and V. Milburn of Peterborough.

The contest, which was won this year by Lanark County team, is an annual affair, sponsored by the Department of Agriculture. The competition is on the judging of sheep, swine, beef and dairy cattle, and each county is represented by a team of three young men, competing for cash prizes.

The educational benefit to be derived from taking part in the contest is in the opportunity afforded for noting expert judging methods. The young men are asked to place the different classes of animals and give their reasons for such placing. Then the judge gives the correct classification, and points out defects in the contestants' opinions, also giving reasons for his judgments.

The suggestion is made that such a contest would be a drawing card for Peterborough's annual Fall Fair, and might be arranged in co-operation with the department.

FIRE THREATENED HASTINGS BARNS

Two Alarms Caused Excitement in Village Yestesday.

HASTINGS, January 24. — Considerable excitement was caused in the village on Wednesday when two fire alarms were turned in.

At about 10.30 a.m. a chimney fire was discovered at the home of Mrs. Tim O'Grady on Albert Street. Although the house was filled with smoke, no serious damage was done.

The second fire was located in the south-east corner of the Claredon House barns. No tracks could be found in the snow from any direction, and no one had been in the building, as the doors were frozen shut.

Four automobiles were stored in the barns. Mrs. R. Simpson gave the alarm.

A Social Evening.

A pleasant social evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Thompson, Gravel Road, on Monday evening. About eighty guests were present.

Music was provided by local talent, and the evening was spent in dancing and card playing. Refreshments were served and congratulations were extended to the host and hostess, after which the guests departed for their homes.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 24, 1924.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE.

It seems necessary in view of the almost fatal accident in Galt, closely following the death of a London woman from the same cause, to warn Examiner readers of the danger that exists in touching any electrical appliance while taking a bath, or even while standing on a wet floor.

In these latest cases the victim attempted to move an electric heater while in the water, with the result that one woman lost her life and the other was very badly burned.

Similar results have followed an attempt to turn on an electric light while taking a bath, and everybody should be on guard against this peril.

The Globe, discussing the danger, suggests that every purchaser of an electric heater should be warned against the risk of handling it under these circumstances, and adds that the safe plan is not to use them in a bathroom at all.

However, in many cases they are a necessity there, and the next best alternative to banishing them from the bathroom altogether is to make sure that they are so placed before getting into the water that there will be no need of moving them or no danger of the bather inadvertently coming in contact with them.

The use of heaters naturally is greatest during a cold snap—so that this warning suggests itself to the Examiner as both needed and timely.

THE TRAGEDY NEAR GODERICH.

An English "home" boy, Charles Bulpitt, of good education and more fitted as well as more anxious for office work, was instead placed on a farm near Goderich.

He had long hours of hard work, no friends, no recreation, and finally his farmer employer thrashed him for "telling lies."

The tragedy calls attention to the fact that the system of inspection of homes where children from British charitable institutions are placed in Canada is at best but a superficial one that does not begin to get at the real conditions.

Nobody can authoratively say how many lonely, low-spirited lads there are, unfitted for farm work, working among strangers and under circumstances that make life merely drudgery for them.

It has been suggested, and to the Examiner the proposal seems a satisfactory solution, that the machinery of the Children's Aid Society should be called into service.

Their inspectors know the conditions in their own district, and as the coroner's jury in the Goderich case pointed out, "can visit the children more frequently and make an inspection which is not perfunctory as has been the case frequently in the past."

The tragedy of this poor, lonely English boy must not be repeated; it is a reproach upon our civilization.

Boys physically unfit for farm work should not be sent to a farm, as it is to be feared too many of them have been sent under the present haphazard system.

A CHANCE TO SAVE.

The Examiner believes that the only hope for reduced taxation in Canada is for our Governments to quit spending money, rather than to occupy themselves with new methods of raising revenue.

Somewhat along this line is the announcement that a committee of the Senate is to be appointed to investigate the Civil Service with a view to discovering means of reducing its cost.

In most other countries the cost of national overhead has been pruned since the war; here in Canada, on the other hand, there has been a considerable increase since 1919.

It is not likely that the sensational investigation will show that the salaries paid are in the main too high.

The majority of civil servants are not over-paid, and some of them hardly receive enough in view of the increase in the cost of living.

But undoubtedly the solution lies in a reduction in the number of Government employees.

Departments to the outsider at least seem to be far too heavily manned, and it is difficult to believe that a sharp reduction in the staffs would cause the service to be seriously impaired.

When it comes to "packing them in" our Federal and municipal Governments, whether they have been Liberal, Conservative or Farmer, could always have given pointers to street railway companies, expert as the latter are in carrying two people in space provided for one.

The Government service is more crowded than a street car in the rush hour, and the Senate Committee should be able to find a chance to save money—and lots of it—by slashing into the personnel of the departments.

MORE WHITE COLLARS THAN OVERALLS.

The feature about the new British Cabinet that is causing the most comment is the fact that manual workers are very much in the minority.

It is, in fact, much more of a "white collar" than it is an "overall" Ministry.

The Globe describes them as follows:

"Of the twenty members, not half a dozen are wage-earners or have labored with their hands for a living. Chelmsford, Buxton and Trevelyan belong to aristocratic families. Lord Haldane and Lord Parmoor, the former once a Liberal, the latter once a Conservative, are great jurists and experts on constitutional law. Colonel Wedgwood is a famous captain of industry. Sir Sydney Olivier has been a distinguished colonial administrator and a protege of Joseph Chamberlain. Sidney Webb is a writer on economics. Philip Snowden was a civil servant. The Prime Minister himself, the son of a poor farmer, has earned money for years only by his pen. Even those who have graduated from the school of trade unionism, such as Clynes, Henderson, Shaw and Adamson, have had 'white collar' positions for years."

It is agreed that Mr. MacDonald has surrounded himself with many able men.

How they will get along together and how successful they will be in appeasing and holding in check the Red element in the Labour Party remains to be seen.

They are assured of Liberal support so long as they do not attempt to put into force any of the Socialistic doctrines with which a section of the party is heavily loaded.

The latter are noisy and militant, but Mr. MacDonald has held them in hand remarkably well in opposition, and his task should now be easier inasmuch as the fate of his Government hinges upon the elimination of a Socialistic programme and the motive of self-preservation should help to curb the Reds.

ONTARIO SHOULD ACT.

Russell T. Scott, with $40 and a few clothes to his credit, is in trouble in Chicago, says the London Advertiser. He is not yet 30 years of age, but has handled and lost a lot of easy money.

He figured in several nasty cases in Toronto and Hamilton, one of seduction and another breach of promise.

He is one of those individuals who prefer that hard work shall be done by other people. His time for action comes after other people have worked hard and secured the rewards for their labor. It was his policy to step in then and take the money away from them.

His business was selling bonds. He preferred the word "bonds" to anything else. He was able to drag an official of the State of Michigan over to a dinner in Toronto, where he told the guests "If all investment companies were like R. T. Scott & Co. there would be no need for blue sky laws."

He was allowed to operate in Ontario, but when he tried to worm his way into the Province of Quebec, officials there put the lid down tight, and he had to get out.

When is Ontario going to come to the stage where it has as much sense in putting the boots to unworthy financial adventurers as Quebec, Saskatchewan and other of our Provinces?

SYMPATHY MISPLACED.

The Toronto Star's sob editor has been having the time of its life of late editing the sympathy letters for "Red" Ryan.

Another protesting against the application of the strap to the beloved person of the bandit receives a warm welcome to the sob sympathy spot of the Star, but should a letter come heartily endorsing the strapping the sob man will hunt up all previously published letters and present a synopsis of passages from them of tender sympathy for the fellow who is due to receive his just deserts.

This Star sob person appears to have forgotten the faithful bank messengers shot down while defending their employers' property and those, too, who were shot after they were down. Forgotten are the bank men over the country who were shot and clubbed—not with a soft strap either, but with a sawed off gun or the butt of a pistol. Even the women and children and the public generally were not protested from danger and abuse of these fearless brutes.

Forgotten also are the dead from such hands and the weeks spent in suffering and weakness in the hospitals by those wounded doing their duty.

The country's treasure lavishly spent and lives endangered in capturing these scoundels was all wasted if this sob ympathy business is right.

What kind-hearted and sound-minded parent would hesitate to apply slipper or strap to correct a beloved child going wrong? "Spare the rod, spoil the child" has ancient origin, but it appears to have gone out of fashion. Some of that medicine applied to these fellows in their childhood might have taught them early the meaning of authority and valuable lives, much suffering and a mint of money would have been saved.

The increase of violent crimes is deplored by all, but is it any wonder? when influential and widely circulated papers like the Toronto Star send their special and best writers, hundreds of miles to interview the criminal and devote pages to describing him, his clothing, noting even the peculiar smile of the criminal, send a special writer along on the train to amuse the prisoner and even go so far as to see him undressed and the prison togs put on.

It need not cause surprise that crimes of this nature grow and flourish in Canada and the United States when the movies and big influential papers make notorious the bandit butchers. A brave deed or a glorious discovery that will benefit humanity the world over does not receive any notice by comparison.

The Intelligencer rejoices that Canada has some judges who have the courage to make the punishment fit the offence, to some extent at least, and we only hope that "Red" Ryan can be "induced" to remain in "the pen" long enough to receive what he richly deserves and earned.

We haven't heard that The Star has applied to the Department of Justice for leave to extend their famous radio to the cell of "Red" Ryan, the poor fellow should be amused, if he cannot amuse himself by shooting people who oppose him or cannot be allowed out to occupy himself by robbing a bank.

Stop the sob slush, everybody has had more than enough.—Belleville Intelligencer.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Unemployment demonstrations are usually based on the idea that they may get the demonstrators somthing for nothing. And that is not a sound foundation.

A summer resort tax in Ontario is the latest form of revenue-getter mooted. What the people really want is not new modes of securing revenue, however, but rather on easing up of expenditure, making possible a less vigorous use of the old method.

The Federal Advisory Fuel Committee has discovered that if Alberta coal could be laid down in Ontario at a cheaper rate than at present it could be sold. And even before the committee started work there was a general feeling along exactly that same line.

WARRANTS AGAINST ESCAPED CONVICTS.

Went Over the Wall With "Red" Ryan — Will Be Extradited If Captured.

KINGSTON, January 24 (Canadian Press). — Warrants against Convicts Gordon Simpson and Thos. Bryans, who on 10th September escaped from the PPortsmouth Penitentiary along with "Red" Ryan, Art. Brown, and Edward McMullen, were sworn out yesterday afternoon before County Magistrate Bradshaw, charging the two men with assault of Chief Keeper Matt Walsh, escaping from lawful custody, and being at large.

These warrants were sworn out so that in the event of the capture of the fugitives in the United States, exradition will be made easier, and he men can be brought back to the Penitentiary speedier.

It is understood that a close watch is being kept for the men, and it is beleved that they will be capured before very long.

Of the bandit gang, one was wounded trying to escape, and was recaptured, another was shot dead, and the third, Ryan, was brought back to the Penitentiary two weeks ago.

Butchers' cows were steady, and the choice ones brought 5¼ cents, and good cows, 4½ to 4¾ cents. Medium quality cows sold close to 4 cents.

Calves ran riot yesterday morning, and some not considered tops sold at 13 1-2 cents, and one sale was made at 14 cents a pound. Good medium calves were 11 to 12 cents, and common ones 8 to 9 cents. Grassers sold at 4½ cents.

What was thought to be a move on the part of the packers to simulate the sale of storage lambs, was the bidding up of lambs yesterday morning over a dollar a cwt. One deck sold at 14¼ cents, and single ewes were sold at 15 cents a pound. Extra heavy lambs brought 11 cents. Choice handyweight sheep were wanted at 7½ cents and over. Heavy sheep sold at 5 cents.

Hogs are holding firmer on the limted supply, and $8.50 a cwt, fed, was being realized yesterday, and some are predicting $9 a cwt, before today.

BUILD HOME OUT OF CELLAR DIRT.

With the Passing of Years the House Will Turn Into Stone and Last For Centuries.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Buy a lot, dig the basement—and build your house with the dirt!

It's the latest blow to high building costs, and mechanical engineers declare the cheapness and durability of such construction may revolutionize small home building.

Dr. H. B. Humphrey, a Government scientist, gave serious thought to Pliny's description of Hannibal's walls "molded rather than built by enclosing earth within a frame of timbers." He tried it, and his attractive new home is the result.

Among the features of this "packed earth" construction are: durability said to surpass that of brick; sound-proof, vermin-proof, odor-proof walls, warmth in winter, coolness in summer.

Frames are built as for concrete construction. Dry soil is packed into the frames. Four inches of dirt is put in at a time, and rammed until solid. Unskilled labor can do the work.

With the passing of years, the walls solidify into stone.

Construction of this type, technically known as "pise," has been successfully carried on in Africa for generations. Is it the answer to the wage earner's prayer for a home of his own?

Mrs. Eliza Killingbeck

Could Hardly Lift Her Hands

Terrible Weakness Caused By Digestive Disorders Quickly Relieved By Dreco. Peterborough Lady Now Has Splendid Appetite, Sleeps Soundly And Strength Is Returning Every Day.

"For years I had suffered from stomach trouble and indigestion," says Mrs. Eliza Killingbeck of 200 Edinburgh street, Peterborough, Ont. "I had a very poor appetite and would bloat terribly after eating. I had frequent dizzy spells and felt very weak and run down. My nerves were all on edge and I couldn't sleep at night. Sometimes I was so weak I could hardly lift my hands to my mouth. My kidneys, too, were bad and I suffered no end of misery from them. I was also chronically constipated.

"I took all kinds of medicines and dear knows how much money I spent trying to get relief, but nothing did me any good. Finally, my son advised me to try Dreco, and after taking four bottles, I can truthfully say that I feel 100 per cent. better. While I still have to watch my diet, everything I do eat agrees with me, and my nerves are steadier than for years. I sleep soundly, have no more dizzy spells or bloating and my kidneys are in good condition. My constipation is also relieved, and I feel that my experience with Dreco justifies me in recommending it very highly."

Dreco is the most reliable corrective and tonic for digestive disorders made. It stops suffering by stopping the cause of it, which in most cases is nothing but weak, lazy digestive organs. Dreco strengthens and regulates these organs till they do their work properly. It contains no mercury, potash or habit-forming drugs, being a purely herbal preparation with absolutely nothing injurious in it.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterborough by Bond's Drug Store. Go there to-day and ask for Mr. Vaughan, the Dreco Expert, and let him explain the merits of this great remedy. There is no charge and he will tell you honestly if he believes Dreco will benefit you. Dreco is also sold as follows:

LABOUR MINISTERS MEET KING WITH CEREMONIAL BUT MINUS LIMOUSINES

Walked to Buckingham Palace to Receive Seals of Office As Sign of New Order in Government — Scattered to Their Departments.

HUMBLE BEGINNINGS.

LONDON, Jan. 24. — The new Prime Minister, J. Ramsay MacDonald, has completed his ministry with an expedition somewhat unusual with the older political parties, owing to his having been in the novel position of knowing some weeks beforehand almost the actual date the Baldwin Government would be defeated, and he could therefore mature his plans in readiness for his taking office.

His list of appointments announced on Tuesday constitutes the Cabinet. Those announced yesterday are outside the Cabinet. A Cabinet of 20 members is a somewhat large one, but in this matter Mr. MacDonald did not depart from the traditions of British governmental practice. Some of the cabinets in the past have been so large that it was found necessary to form a sort of inner Cabinet to carry on the most important business.

The ceremony of transferring the seals of office and swearing in the members who were not previously members of the Privy Council, which confers upon them the title of "The Right Honorable," was performed in the customary maner at Buckingham Palace yesterday morning, before the King, presiding over the Privy Council, and in the presence of the Prince of Wales.

Adheres to Tradition.

The Prince of Wales appears to be displaying the same keen interest as his father in the accession of Great Britain's first labor government and there has been no omission of the regular ceremonial; nor has there been anything indeed except a little less formality of garb among the Labor Ministers, and the fact that most of them went afoot to the palace instead of using limousines, to differentiate the present change of government from any similar ceremony in the past.

Also in the choice of his Ministers Premier MacDonald has shown large consideration for tradition, which has had much to do with allaying the fears of those who expected immediate radical changes from the Labor administration.

Woman in Government.

Among the new ministerial appointments announced yesterday the most interesting was that of Miss Margaret Bondfield, the first woman to find a place in the British government. Lady Astor, at a political meeting earlier in the day, had voiced her extreme regret that Miss Bondfield was not included in the Cabinet, saying:

"Maggie Bondfield is worth twice some of the men in the Cabinet."

The other appointments, like those of Tuesday, were almost equally divided between intellectuals and workingmen.

Charles Ammon, Parliamentary Secretary of the Admiralty, began life as a telegraph messenger; Rhys John Davis as a farm laborer; John J. Lawson, Financial Secretary of the War Office, was the son of a miner and after studying in Ruskin College, Oxford, returned to Durham and worked in the mines. Wm. Lunn began as a miner; James Stewart was the son of a hair dresser.

Some of the appointees, like Miss Bondfield, were elementary school teachers, or in similar occupations, while others come from the professional classes and had university educations.

Roberts a Printer.

Frederick O. Roberts, the Minister of Pensions, which is likely to be among the difficult posts of the government, had a comparatively humble origin. He is the son of a village postmaster and worked for 25 years in the printing trade, but has had much experience in trade union service and is an expert on the pensions question, and the champion of ex-service men.

Arthus Ponsonby, Under-Secretary of the Foreign Office, is the only member of the Labor Party who has been identified with the splendors of the court, he having been a page to Queen Victoria. He is well versed in diplomacy and foreign affairs, but has always shown a fearless independence, and earned much unpopularity by opposing the late war. He has been for many years in the vanguard of all advanced progressive movements, but notwithstanding is liked and admired in the House of Commons.

Born in a Barn.

Rhys Davies, the Under-Secretary of the Home Office is the son of a road mender, and is said to have been born in a barn without floor or windows. Beginning as a farm laborer, he spent ten years as a coal miner. His brother is a well known Welsh poet.

Wiliam Graham, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, who is chief assistant to Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is a journalist, with a long parliamentary experience.

Clement R. Attlee, Under Secretary of the War Office, is an Oxonian and a barrister; he has been secretary to Ramsay MacDonald.

Emanuel Shinwell of the Mines Department, is another member from the extreme Clyde section of the Labor party, which has thus two members in the government. Of Jewish birth, his father was a clothing manufacturer in the East end of London. He suffered imprisonment for his strike activities, but was presented with a gold watch by the strikers whose cause he championed.

Sold His House.

Of John James Lawson, Financial Secretary to the War Office, it is related that he and his wife sold their home 12 months after their marriage to enable him to go to Oxford to study, while his wife went into domestic service. He later jointed the Labor party, and became one of Mr. MacDonald's sceretaries.

Henry Slesser, the new Solicitor-General, is not much known to the public, but he has been a close associate of Sidney Webb, the new president of the Board of Trade, in the Fabian Society, and is well versed in law affecting trades union.

MONEY WAS ILL-SPENT ON HILLY EAST ROAD DEPUTATION DECLARES

Twenty Residents of Otonabee Presented a Strong Argument to the County Council — Ask Independent Investigation.

Mayor Turner Spoke.

"You spent $9,000 on a one-mile stretch of road last year and left the hills steeper than when you started; you spent $9,000 to give us more hills instead of less," declared Samuel Armstrong yesterday, heading a deputation twenty strong, which waited on the County Council in session at the Court House. Mr. Armstrong produced and displayed several maps and contour maps, certified, he said, by the Department of Highways, showing his contention to be true. He asked on behalf of the residents of Otonabee that work be discontinued on the north road pending an investigation by the best independent engineer obtainable.

Council referred the subject to the County Roads Committee, under H. B. Rye, Chairman.

Peterborough City Board of Works was represented in strength, and His Worship Mayor Turner spoke in support of an investigation to bring out the merits of the alternate routes.

History of Road.

Mr. Armstrong said the north road out of Peterborough is a very old road, having been made by early settlers over 100 years ago. It wended its way in a zig-zag direction from one settler's home to another.

When Peterborough developed into a village and Norwood grew to importance, Mr. Birdsall was instructed to lay out a highway between the two villages, beginning at Norwood. He decided the present was the best road until he got to Graham's hill, which he found impassable. Being unable to cope with this obstacle, he went out the sixth line until he came to the settlers' straggling track and decided to make that the highway. That road was completed about 60 years ago.

The Suburban Areas Commission, Mr. Armstrong said, started to fix the northern road, and up to a point that was all right. About sa year ago however, it was announced that it was planned to make the northern road the principal road through the township, and a protest was voiced over the names of 217 residents in the district.

"Stories are spread around about the block road," Mr. Armstrong continued, describing the block road as the proposed route lying south of the highway now used. "Mr. Deyell, Chairman of the commission, said there is a swamp through which it would be as difficult to construct a road as it would be through Rice Lake. I took an iron rod to the deepest part of the swamp and struck solid bottom at eighteen inches. There is no such place as this bottomless swamp—it is somebody's imagination"

Only Hired Man."

"The, County Council said the Suburban Areas Commisston spent the money'" Mr. Armstrong said, "but so far as we ratepayers are concerned there is no Suburban Commission in existence. We are living in a country with responsible government. We elect you to be our representatives. If there is any law on the statute books by which you can give away part of what you are elected to do, then the sooner it is corrected the better. Such a law means the end of responsible government. The commission is answerable to the County Council, and you are responsible for every dollar that is spent on roads."

Mr. Armstrong read several extracts from the statutes which indicated, he said, that the Suburban Areas Commission has not power to levy a single dollar; and that a member of the commission may be removed by the City or County Council.

"You control the roads, money and men," he declared. "The Suburban Areas Commission is simply a hired man to do as you tell him."

Digressing again, Mr. Armstrong told the Councillors they had decided that money contributed by a township towards good roads would be spent on roads in that township, but had failed to carry out that programme.

"Belmont," he alleged, "paid $320 last year which should have been returned. It is morally indefensible to take money from Belmont to build roads in Otonabee."

The Alternative Road.

Returning to a consideration of the Norwood road, the spokesman condemned the plan that called for building a main township road on the present hilly track. There are four hills on the road now over the 8 per cent. grade, which is the limit the law allows. On a profile map he pointed out hills which graded 12 per cent. and declared they were steeper than before the $9,000 was expended on "lowering" them.

In favor of the south road, Mr. Armstrong said a gravel bed runs a great part of the length of the road and would be easily accessible for building; the six bridges required would be only half as big as the six required for the north road; the drainage is better, and there is only one hill, it having a five per cent. grade.

"A county Provincial road," he affirmed, "could be built on the south for less than half the cost of a county road on the north."

On a county road the Department of Highways expects nothing steeper than a 4 per cent. grade and will not accept anything greater than 8 per cent. The south road can be brought easily to 4 3-4 per cent., which is the maximum throughout its length. The north road, on the other hand, has four hills—Develin's, Shear's, Anderson's and Torpey's—with nine per cent. grades. These are in the section on which the money has been spent, and it will cost five times more now to bring these four hills to the 8 per cent. grade than to bring the hills on the south road over six miles to the same maximum.

Another hill is 12 1-4 per cent. and is 1,500 feet long. This will cost as much to lower as it would take to build the entire south road."

The natural foundation, Mr. Armstrong said, is very little better on the north road than on the south, and snow does not drift so badly on the latter road. The north road is 6 miles long; the south road 4 3-4 miles.

"We request," the spokesman concluded, "that you take a statesmanlike view, and that you stop all work except maintenance on the north road until the best engineer obtainable has made a survey of the location and reported on it."

Townships turn in to the County Council be spent on this highway in those townships.

W. Henderson of the 7th line, George Fife of Otonabee and Adam Humphrey, representing Asphodel Council, supported Mr. Armstrong, voicing the opinions of their districts.

City Asks Stay.

Mayor J. J. Turner said he was not deputed to represent the City Council, but came for education on the subject of this road. The doubt raised as to the advisability of expending money on the road in question is serious, he said. "While I have no fault to find with the commission, I would like to see a halt called to the work until an investigation has been made by an independent engineer. The city is vitally interested in the matter, paying 30 per cent. of the amount expended, and we have no money to waste. It seems to me the request is a reasonable one and the point is well taken. All we request is just to be absolutely sure you are correct."

Warden M. P. Coughlin assured the deputation that the question would be thoroughly sifted by the County Council.

Other Deputations.

A representative of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind pressed the institute's request for a grant of $500. There are 39 blind persons in Peterborough County now receiving tuition and assistance from the institute, he said. Mr. Brownlee is one of the most successful men trained by them.

The Children's Aid Society was represented by Messrs. Edgar and Powell, who asked a grant of $1,000. Alderman Stocker said the Children's Shelter here is the most economically maintained in all of Canada.

F. McKee, W. A. Herd, G. W. Mann, G. Cobourn and I. Milburn were a deputation from Smith Township requesting a bonus or grant towards the construction of wire fences along roads. These, it was claimed, assisted in keeping the roads clear of snow drifts.

HOW VOTE WENT ON WARDENSHIP

Fowlds Made Warden on the Fifteenth Ballot--Cobourg Meeting.

(By Staff Reporter.)

Fowlds of Hastings was elected Warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham at the opening session of the Counties Council last night on the fifteenth ballot, getting 34 votes out of a total of 40. At the end of the twelfth ballot Reeve Van Volkenburg withdrew and the majority of his supporters switched to the leader. Reeve Haig of Haldimand and Reeve McColl of Brighton Township were also in the contest, but their support varied, although they remained in the race until the end.

Third vote—Fowlds, 13; Van Volkenburg, 15; Haig, 6; McColl, 6.

Fourth vote—Fowlds, 10; Van Volkenburg, 7, Haig, 11; McColl, 12.

Twenty-one votes were needed for an election, and according to the rule of this Council when there is no choice at the end of the sixth vote, adjournment is taken and new nominations put in.

The same four candidates were again nominated by their former sponsers, and the voting was continued as follows:

Seventh vote—Fowlds, 14; Van Volkenburg, 8; Haig, 7; McColl, 11.

Eighth vote—Fowlds, 14; Van Volkenburg, 8; Haig, 11; McColl, 7.

Ninth vote—Fowlds, 17; Van Volkenburg, 5; Haig, 6; McColl, 9.

Tenth vote—Fowlds, 18; Van Volkenburg, 8; Haig, 4; McColl, 10.

Eleventh vote—Fowlds, 15; Van Volkenburg, 12; Haig, 7; McColl, 6.

Again the voting was declared closed and new nominations were called for. Fowlds, McColl and Haig were again named, but Van Volkenburg dropped out. Reeve Hartt of Murray was nominated by Deputy-Reeve Elliott of Murray and Reeve Honey of Alnwick. Three more votes were required for a choice, the members distributing their support as follows:

Thirteenth vote—Fowlds 19, Hart 9, Haig 6, McColl 6.

Fourteenth vote — Fowlds 20, Hart 8, Haig 6, McColl 6.

Warden's Address.

After Warden Fowlds had been invested with the toga of office by his mover and seconder, who escorted him to the chair, he was heartily congratulated by his mover and his seconder.

'I' wish to thank my mover and seconder and all the others who have given me their support," said Warden Fowlds. "With your co-operation I will endeavour to do my best for the welfare of these counties just as I have always tried to do in the past. I have for some years been a member of this Council, and this position was my aim, and I am proud now that I have attained my ambition.

"My father was a member of this Council from the village of Hastings for 25 years. I can remember when as a boy I heard him speak of the little Parliament in Cobourg, and of the honour there was in belonging to it. Hastings has been an incorporated village for 50 years, and this is the first time we have had the Wardenship. Fifty years ago when we were a part of Percy my uncle, James Fowlds, was the Reeve of that township, and in 1874 he was elected Warden. I feel proud of the position to which I have been elected, and hope I will be able to fill it with credit to myself, to the counties of Northumberland and Durham, and to my home town."

Ex-Wardens Harry B Phillips of Brighton and F. W. Bowen, M.P. of Durham, were invited to the platform, and both made brief addresses congratulating the new Warden and the members of the Council on the wisdom they had shown in their selection.

Standing Committees.

The reeves and deputy-reeves on alternate years select the standing committees, and this year the latter discharge that duty. The reeve of every municipality that has no deputy acts on this committee.

Reeve W. T. Wood, of Millbrook, was elected chairman, after which the committee adjourned until 9.30 on Wednesday morning.

A number of communications were read and referred to the proper committees, these matters to be finally disposed of at the regular session when reported back.

The Council adjourned until three o'clock on Wednesday afternoon.

Deputy-Reeve Dorie was one of the few members who voted without change. He supported Van Volkenburg as long as the Reeve from Seymour stayed in the field, and then stood by Fowlds to the end. The majority of the members jumped around from one candidate to another like popcorn on a toaster. As soon as Reeve Hart voted against himself, his entire following bolted for the Fowlds camp.

The New Warden.

Walter Millbourne Fowlds, the new Warden, is a native of the village which he represents, a successful young business man, and a member of one of the oldest families in the district. His talent for municipal legislation appears to be a matter of heredity, as his uncle, the late James Fowlds, was Reeve of Percy and Warden of the united counties in 1784. His father, too, was Reeve of the village of Hastings for 25 years. James C. Fowlds, now of Oshawa, held the Reeveship in Campbellford for two years. The latter was here yesterday to see his younger brother installed in the Wardenship.

Warden Fowlds is serving his eighth term as a member of the Counties Council. H eserved four Counties Council. He served four years in the ranks in the Hastings Council, so that his experience in municipal life has been ample. He has always been a hard worker at Cobourg, both in committee and on the floor, and with his co-operation in his own Council, Hastings village is one of the soundest municipalities financially in the Province.

The new Warden is popular with his colleagues, and his election will give general satisfaction. His success was assured from the start, but members voted for other candidates as a matter of courtesy.

Reeve Van Volkenburg was a strong candidate, as the voting shows. Seymour Township, however, has had the Wardenship no longer ago than 1914, and a number of times previously, while Hamilton never captured the honour until this year.

Mary watched her closely as she stirred the tea with a little business-like air, warmed the cups, distributed the lemon and then poured out the clear brown fluid.

"Formosa Oolong," she said sniffing daintily. "The only tea. I hate people who drink scented teas, don't you? I'm going to have a very strong cup, so I'll wait a minute or two. I'm—rather tired."

"You? You look as if you never relaxed in your sleep. How do you keep it up?"

"Oh, think of the life the younger women lead. Mine is a quiet amble along a country road by comparison. . . . But . . . monotonous!"

The last word came out with the effect of a tiny explosion. It evidently surprised Miss Trevor herself, she frowned, poured out a cup of tea that was almost black, and began sipping it with a somewhat elaborate concentration for one so simple and direct of method.

"I'm afraid good works are apt to grow monotonous. A sad commentary on the triumphs of civilization over undiluted nature." Mary continued to watch the torch bearer of the East Side. Don't you sometimes hate it?"

She asked the question idly, interested for the moment in probing under another shell hardened in the mould of time, and half-hoping that Agnes would be natural and human for once, cease to be the bright well-oiled machine. She was by no means prepared for what she got.

Miss Trevor gulped down the scalding tea in an almost unladylike manner, and put the cup down with a shaking hand.

"'Oh, think of the life the younger women lead. Mine is a quiet amble . . . by comparison.'"

"That's what I've come to see you about," she said in a low intense voice, and her teeth set for a moment as if she had taken a bit between them. "Mary, you've upset my life."

"I? What next!"

"I suppose you have troubles of your own, dear, and I hate to bother you with mine——"

"Oh, mine amount to nothing at present. And if I can help you——" She felt no enthusiasm at the prospect, but she saw that the woman was laboring under excitement of some sort, and if she could not give her sympathy at least she might help her with sound practical advice. Moreover, she was in for it. "Better tell me all about it."

"It is terribly hard. I'm so humiliated—and— and I suppose no more reticent woman ever lived."

"Oh, reticence! Why not emulate the younger generation? I'm not sure—although I prefer the happy medium myself—that they are not wiser than their grandmothers and their maiden aunts. On the principle that confession is good for the soul, I don't believe that women will be so obsessed by—well, let us say, sex, in the future."

Miss Trevor flushed darkly. "It s possible. . . . That's what I am—a maiden aunt. Just that and nothing more."

"Nothing more? I thought you were accounted one of the most useful women in serious New York. A sort of mother to the East Side."

"Mother? How could I be a mother? I'm only a maiden aunt even down there. Not that I want to be a mother——"

"I was going to ask you why you did not marry even now. It is not too late to have children of your own——"

"Oh, yes, it is. That's all over—or nearly. But I can't say that I ever did long for children of my own although I get on beautifully with them."

"Well,?" asked Mary patiently, "what is it you do want?"

"A husband!" This time there was no doubt about the explosion.

Mary felt a faint sensation of distaste, and wondered if she were reverting to type as a result of this recent association with the generation that still clung to the distastes and the disclaimers of the nineteenth century. "Why didn't you marry when you were a girl? I am told that you were quite lovely."

"I hated the thought. I was in love twice; but I had a sort of cold purity that I was proud of. The bare idea of—of that nauseated me."

"Pity you hadn't done settlement work first. That must have knocked prudishness out of you, I should think."

"It horrified me so that for several years I hardly could go on with it, and I have always refused to mix the sexes in my house down there, but, of course, I could not help hearing things—seeing things—and after a while I did get hardened—and ceased to look upon all that sort of thing as a matter of course. But it was too late then. I had lost what little looks I had ever possessed. I grew to look like an old maid long before I was thirty. Why is nature so cruel, Mary?"

"I fancy a good many American women develop very slowly sexually. You were merely one of them. I wonder you had the climacteric so early. But nature is very fond of taking her little revenges. You defied her and she smote you."

"Oh, yes, she smote me! But I never fully realized it until you came."

"I hardly follow you."

"Oh, don't you see? You have shown us that women can begin life over again, undo their awful mistakes. And yet I don't dare—don't dare——"

"Why not, pray? Better come with me to Vienna if you haven't the courage to face the music here."

"Oh, I haven't the courage. I couldn't carry things off with such a high hand as you do. You were always high and mighty, they say, and have done as you pleased all your life. You don't care a pin whether we approve of what you've done or not. It's the way you're made. But I—couldn't stand it. The admission of vanity, of—of—after the life I've led. The young women say, in their nasty slang, that I was probably man-crazy."

"And aren't you?" asked Mary coolly. "Isn't that just what is the matter? The sex-imagination often outlives the withering of the sex-glands. Come now, admit it. Forget that you are a pastel-tinted remnant of the old order and call a spade a spade."

"There's something terrifying about you, Mary." Miss Trevor had flushed a dark purple, but she had very honest eyes, and they did not falter. "But I respect you more than any woman I have ever known. And although you are not very sympathetic you are the only person on earth to whom I could even mention such a subject."

"Well, go ahead," said Mary resignedly. "If you want any advice, take your courage in your hands and do it. However people may carp, there is nothing they so much admire as courage."

"Yes, but they make you suffer tortures just because they do admire it—or to keep themselves from admitting it."

"True, enough. But, after all they don't matter. Life would be so much simpler if we'd all make up our minds that what other people think about us does not signify in the least. It's only permitting it to signify that permits it to exist."

"That's all very well for you, but it's really a question of temperament. Do you think I'd dare come back here looking like a girl again—and I suppose I should. I'm sixteen years younger than you. . . You must know how many of the women hate you."

"That sort of hate may be very stimulating, my dear Agnes," said Madame Zattiany drily.

"I can understand that. But I should return to what it is hardly an exaggeration to call a life of a thousand intimacies. The ridicule! The contempt! The merciless criticism! I don't want to live anywhere else. I can't face it! But, oh, I do so want it! I do so want it!"

"But just think of the compensations. No doubt you would marry immediately. If you were happy, and with a man to protect you how much would you care?"

"Oh!" Once more the thin ascetic face was dyed with an unbecoming flush. "Oh!" And then the barriers fell with a crash and she hurried on, the words tumbling over one another, as her memory, its inhibitions shattered, swept back into the dark vortex of her secret past.

HELIUM GAS MAY BE TRANSPORTED

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Solidification of helium gas is an experiment upon which Professor J. C. McLenann, of the University of Toronto, is now working, it became known yesterday. After a series of experiments, conducted with the assistance of the British Government and private individuals, Professor McLennan liquified the gas. He is now at work on the solidification experiment, which may take some time. In a report to the British Admiralty, Professor McLennan drew attention to the fact that millions of cubic feet of helium gas was bubbling away in the province of Alberta. The gas is non-inflammable and makes an airship a formidable weapon during warfare.

OH! FOR A ROBERT BURNS NOW!

Bailie MacDonald and Dougall MacDougall Discuss Burns and Other Topics. Wishing That He Had Been Living In This Age Of Opportunity.

(Contributed.)

When Dougall MacDougall dropped in for his usual Sunday evening's chat with the Bailie, he found that worthy ensconced in his favorite easy chair, note-book on his knee, and wearing the look of one engaged in a profound mental struggle. He greeted his old freend heartily.

Welcome, Dougall, welcome! Never was I better pleased tae see anybody, for, truth tae tell, I'm wrastling wi' a task that's nigh beyond me. Sit doon ben, and maybe you'll be able tae gie me the benefit o' your book readin' and guid advice.

Tae let ye un'erstand the situation, next Friday, I'm tae be present at the great Burns' Banquet o' Auld Cronies' Club,an event that I would, under ordinary circumstances, look forw rd tae wi' pleasure and anticipation. In an ill moment, however, I hae consented tae propose: "The Immortal Memory," hence my apprehension. Efter-dinner speechifyin' wis never my strong pint, an' tae attempt tae propose a toast like that without adequate preparation would be naething short o' sacrilege.

I dinna mind confessing, Dougall, (went on the Bailie, dr'wing closer tae the fire and handin' oer his tobacco pouch), that I open my Burns wi' something o' the same reverence as I open my Bible, for I find i', the ane muckle that's i' the ither. Here speaks (he went on, tappin' the boards o' a well-thumbed volume) a true Scot, a leal patriot, and above a' a man. Though it's o'er hunner an' twenty-eight years since they laid him in the sod, ilka line that he wrote rings true to-day. Never had auld Scotia a son sae jealous o' her honor and welfare.

An Age of Opportunity.

You and I, Dougall, were just lately lamenting the apathy o' our members at Ottawa and Toronto, wha hae fitted sae well intae the party machine that their voices are hardly ever heard for it's noise, and wha remain passive and mute while public opinion here is flouted, but a' mum confess that we hae nae sae bad members and we'll bide a' wee tae see wit they dae.

Dae ye mind, what Rabbie said in his "Earnest Cry and Prayer tae the Scottish Representatives in the Hoose o' Commons":

"In gatherin' votes you were na slack;
Now stand as tightly by your tack;
Ne'er claw your lug, an' fidge your back,
An' hum an' haw;
But raise your arm an' tell your crack
Before them a'.
"Some o' you nicely ken the laws
To round the period an' pause,
An' with rhetoric clause on clause
To mak' harangues;
Then who thro' Saint Stephen's wa's
Auld Scotland's wrangs.

Certes! It wouldna be a bad idea tae let each o' our M.P's hae a copy o' that same verses on a post-card when Parliament reassembles, just tae mind them that their country expects something fae them that are honor by her chosen legislators.

I think you'll agree wi' me, Dougall, that were the bard alive and wi' us noo he would never be at a loss for something tae write aboot. What an age o' opportunity for a fearless man wi' a ready pen and a readier wit.

Tae a Limpet.

Many a time hae we enjoyed "Tae a Mouse," and chuckled over "Tae a Louse," but try and imagine, if he can, Burns' "Tae a Limpet" (a limpet is a sea sheal fish which are common on the shores of auld Scotland). I hae nae doot he would hae made even the maist rhinocerous—hided o' them squirm had he honored them wi' a screed something after this fashion:

Well are ye named after the beastie
That clings fast tae the rock's hard breastie,
For o' the truth you are na hasty
Tae rise and flit;
Though frae your job men fain wad chase ye,
An' gar ye quit.
Immune frae panic and alarm,
In days o' strife and stress and storm;
Ye keep your couthy billet warm,
An' mak' pretense,
Tae toy wi' schedule, file and form,
At our expense.
But though ye cling wi' micht and main
Limpet, your effects are but vain;
Your cunning fate you little ken,
Sae wait and see,
The best laid schemes o' supermen
Gang aft' aglee.

The Honor Rank.

"The rank is but a guinea stamp," said Rabbie, and there's nae doot that the sight o', say, an honor list, would hae moved tae even mair caustic comment.

For honors are sae lavish spread,
They fa' as rain frae overhead.
As flutterin' snowflakes baiinces seize,
Some folk would grab at O.B.E's,
Or 'pleqish weel the Party Purse.
That they may be addressed as "Sirs"—
Or of their substance gie a whack
That "Bart" they tae their name may tack
Nae man can tether time nor tide
Nor satisfy vain glorious pride.

But, Dougall, my freend, if there's ae thing mair than another that would hae roused the fiery indignation o' a man o' Burns' temperament, it's the irksome, gallin', and wholly unnecessary restraints and restrictions that are still put upon our liberties under the spacious plea o' necessity. In war time we could put up wi' a great deal for the common cause that only now irritates and angers us. We're ticketed an' docketed, questioned an' cautioned, permitted and forbidden, cribbed, cabined, and confined ilka way we like turn.

The worst aspect o' the whole situation was the question o' the change o' Parliament because we were beginning tae see and realize tae our sorrow that the barnacles that had fastened themselves tae the ship o' state had nae intention whatever o' lettin' go but we remained firm and fast until we scraped them off. Nae doot ye ken the result yersel'.

Fitba' In a' Countries.

Quite true, Baillie, said Dougall, breaking into the conversation. Nae doobt, the people thocht at the last election that they were voting on the liquor question and maun it wis an awfa' slapt on prohibition. Truth tae tell, it's been the biggest fitba' in a' countries since a' hae mind, but, Baillie, maunna a time hae a thocht whit Rabbie wid hae said on prohibition, and I think he would have replied in a few lines tae the pint. I believe in havin' it in the hoose in case of emergency, in fact, I like tae see my fellowman hae his nappie in the summer time tae cool himself and in the winter tae keep himsel' warm. Of course, Baillie, ye can abuse anything you like, but a Scotsman likes his wee drappie in its place. Dae ye ken this, am a strict teetotaller mysel' but am like Rabbie, I like a' folks tae hae their liberty.

What Is This Demon Ca'd Control?

What is wanted is a rousing slogan tae awaken men tae the urgency an' need o' the moment. "Now's the Day and Now's the Hour" tae bestir ourselves an' rid the land for ever o' the trammels o' red tape and arrogant officialdom.

I'll gie ye a puir imitation o' Rabbie on the situation, but, though my verse may falter, I'll wager my sentiments are the same as his would be hae been in such a time:

What is this Demon ca'd control
That cocks its heid an' a' that?
Wi' arrogance that's ill tae thole
It interferes wi' a' that.
Wi' a' that and a' that,
Our liberty and a' that.
We're harried here and driven there
And bothered sair for a' that.
Then let us pray that same fine day,
We'll forge and pass a law that
Will end post-haste this wanton waste
And clear our feet o' a' that.
For a' that, and a' that,
Controllers craw and a' that,
But bureaucrats w' a' their power
Shall broke be for a' that.

The Other Side of the Picture.

But there's the other wide o' the picture tae look at. Think how Rabbie would hae inspired a people that hae come through the fire o' adversity tae hand up their heids and say, "Here's tae oursel's, wha's like us?"

Oh, that Scotland's bard could but sing the praise o' the gallant lads wha lie "oot there," whaur they suffered for Scotland's sake, and kindle anew within us the patriotic fire that burned sae fiercely in his soul.

'Twould tak' a pen like his to tell
How Scotia's sons braved battle's hell,
And strove and suffered, fought and fell
The world over;
Tae mak' an end and sound the knell
O' despots' power.

Dye, we live in strange and trying times, Dougall, but as long as Scotsmen read their Burns, there's little fear but what they'll remain leal and true tae the land that gave them birth. But for our so-called statesmen and politicians my only hope is that 'Rab' himself was efter when he picked up his pen, and gave the world these memorable lines:

Oh, wad some power the giftie gie us
Tae see oursel's as others see us!

HEALTH IN WINTER

How to Avoids Colds, Influenza and Like Troubles.

Have you noticed that some people enjoy good health through the most trying weather, while others succumb to colds or influenza at every touch of wintry conditions, or are attacked by rheumatism or sciatica? The reason is to be found in the condition of the blood. If it is rich and pure the system is able to resist the disease. But let the blood become impoverished and the way is made clear for disease to enter the system.

The common-sense way to avoid colds and influenza is to keep a plentiful supply of rich, red blood in your veins. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have achieved world-wide fame for their remarkable blood-enriching powers. The new blood which comes with the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills tones up the whole system, and so helps the body to resist winter ills.

If your system has already been weakened by colds of influenza, or if you are enduring the agonies of sciatica or rheumatism, then Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are even more valuable for restoring your health and building up your strength so as to render you immune from further attacks. Give these pills a fair trial and they will not disappoint you.

The new sales tax will not increase the price of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as the company pays the tax. You can still obtain the pills through any medicine dealer at 50 cents a box, or by mail, post paid, at this price, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

KINGSTON SPINSTER STRANGELY MISSING

KINGSTON, January 24 (Canadian Press). — Miss Ada Strachan, aged about sixty, who lived alone in Kelso Cottage, at the corner of Division and Elm Streets, left her home between 12 and 1 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, walked out Division Street, was overtaken near the top of Kemp's Hill by a sand drawer, and given a ride to the cross road just north of Kemp's Hill, where she alighted.

She turned eastwards down the cross roads leading to Montreal Street, and since then has not been seen, though search parties were sent out on Tuesday night and again yesterday morning.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion or Stomach Trouble CUT THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach," says a well know authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis, accompanied by dangerous stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestents that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little hot water and Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia, to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. It soaks up the harmful excess acid much as a sponge or blotting paper might and your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.

DEATH APPROACHES IN ARCTIC TRIANGLE

Two Eskimos to be Hanged on Herschell Island.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 24.—The final chapter of an Arctic feud, caused by the desire of a white man to marry an Eskimo girl, will be written in the picturesque barracks of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Herschell Island, Feb. 1, On that date Alik Omiak and Eski-Tetamangma, of the uncivilized copper Eskimo tribe of Prince Albert Sound, will be hanged for the killing of Corporal Doak, of the Mounted, and Otto Binder, a trader of Coronation Gulf.

Binder in his quest for the treasures of the north met and loved a girl who already was bethrothed to a member of her tribe. But the adventurous whit, man had made his friends among the inhabitants of the leak and barren regions and the tribe was divided as to who should win the hand of the daughter of the Arctic. Bitter feeling grew into hatred and tragedy was the result Besides th, two white men several Eskimos were killed, including a 4-year-old girl who was strangled to death after her parents had been slain and the tribe did not want a charge on their hands.

In the unique setting of the Arctic island post of the mounted police fiv, persons were tried before a jury of steamboat men, trappers and traders. Ekootuk, medicine woman and socreress, was found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to one year imprisonment, while two others were released.

Sergt. Tjorse, veteran of the mounted, began his long trek to Herschell Island with the death war rants early in September. His 2,000 mile journey involved many modes of travel, including the ocean going steamers in the Alaskan service, th, primitive dog sled and the canoe.

SALE OF ARMS AID TO PEACE

Reason Why United States Sold Material to Mexico

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. — (United Press).—The sale of arms by the United States Government of Mexico is to aid the stability of a legally - constituted Government against an unwarranted uprising, Secretary Hughes told the Council on Foreign Relations in an address last night.

Hughes said the movement against President Obregon, started by Adolf La Huerta, was not an uprising by an oppressed people but the result of selfish political motives.

The Secretary forecasted that other Powers will sign liquef treaties with the United States similar to that signed yesterday with Great Britain, under which British ships carrying liquors not destined for the United States may enter this country's territorial waters.

The early recognition of Greece as a result of the recent political changes there was indicated by the Secretary.

DYSPEPSIA WAS SO BAD

Could Hardly Eat Anything

Mrs. C. Stone, Nanticoke, Ont., writes:—"Some time ago I had a very serious attack of dyspepsia, and was also troubled with gas on my stomach. I could hardly eat anything, and very often had pains after meals. I had used different medicine, but they didn't seem to do me any good. At last I happened to run on the track of Burdock Blood Bitters, and after using it for a short time I felt a lot better. I continued its use until I was completely relieved and now I am ready to recommend it to anyone troubled as I was."

A PETERBORO MAN IN TORONTO CASE

All Day Session Before Judge Widdifield-- Defendant Won.

Christopher Eaton, an electrician, formerly of Peterboro, was the successful defendant in an action brought by his son-in-law, David Crawford, for conversion of the goods and chattels of Crawford.

Mrs. David Crawford was formerly the wife of Alex. Thompson, a toolmaker, whom she divorced in Buffalo, and then married David Crawford. She alleged that he deserted her, and left her with her two children, and she thereupon invited her father to remove the goods from the house, and as some of these were removed to Mr. Eaton's home, David Crawford sued him for $800 damages.

Mrs. Crawford had come from California, where she is a resident, and an applicant for divorce from her former husband, David Crawford.

After an all day session before Judge Widdifield, the Judge decided to dismiss Crawford's claim.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., of Peterboro, appeared for Mr. Eaton, and T. N. Phelan, Esq., K.C., of Toronto, appeared for Mr. Crawford.

HOLD TOGETHER SAY RUSSIANS

Lenine's Death Will Not Result in Smash Observers Declare.

MOSCOW, Jan. 24. — (By John Graudenz, United Press Staff Correspondent, Copyright, 1924, By United Press). — There is not the slightest reason why Lenine's death should cause a change in Russia's policy.

It has been repeatedly pointed out that the Government has carried on its business for more than a year without Lenine's active co-operation. Had he died before laying the foundation of Russia's policy, the result might have been different. But he prepared the bed and the success of his policy, as demonstrated in the recent period, proved him correct in every aspect.

It is common-sense, therefore, that Russia's ruling party will follow the dead Premier's policy. His clever head and practical decisions surely will be missing, but that has been so for the last year, and the party apparently made up its mind long ago that it would be compelled to continue without him.

If Lenine's death will have any direct result at all it will be a tightening of the party he headed, not a weakening, despite personal differences on various questions.

The unity of the party, above all, was Lenine's first principle, which the party now regards as the most important and sacred inheritance.

HIGH TAXATION WAS DISCUSSED

Manufacturers' Meeting in Hamilton Today — "Too Much Overhead."

HAMILTON, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Present high taxation and remedies for same, tariff and its cause and effect—these were prominent questions discussed to-day at special general meeting of Canadian Manufacturers' Association which opened here this morning.

"Our taxes at present are staggering," was the popular note struck by C. Howard Smith of Montreal, president of the association, in his address at noon luncheon. Conditions in Dominion arose, he said, chiefly because of the small population.

"Our overhead is too high," he declared. "We have enough machinery now in the Dominion, Provincial and Municipal governments to govern fifty million people instead of nine. We have enough railways to serve two or three times our population. Our present system of manufacturing, banking, retailing and wholesaling would provide for the wants of many millions with very little additional expense. Our taxes are only high in proportion to our population."

He held that tariff must be scientifically adjusted—raised or lowered to meet needs of industries— and proper immigration assured before any reduction in taxation in the Dominion could be expected.

WOMAN SUFFERED FOR MONTHS

Weak and Nervous. Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Webbwood, Ont.—"I was in a very weak and run-down nervous condition, always tired from the time I got up until I went to bed. Sleep did not rest me at all. My sister recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and others told me about it, but it was from my sister's advice that I took it. It did not take long until I felt stronger, headaches left me and my appetite came back to me. I am a farmer's wife and have many things to do outside the house, such as milking, looking after the poultry, and other chores. I heartily recommend the Vegetable Compound to all who have the same trouble I had, for it is a fine medicine for women."—Mrs. LOUIS F. ELSASSER, Hillcrest Farm, Webbwood, Ont.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it helped me so much that I soon felt fine."—Mrs. CHARLES BEHLER, 601-14th St., Port Huron, Mich.

Women who suffer from any feminine ailment should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

LAKEFIELD IS MAKING A BID FOR CONCRETE

Will Enter County Roads System if County Council Paves Main Street—Council Turns Tables and Holds Up Bridge.

WOULD SAVE $8000

A persistent battle by Reeve J. C. Strickland on behalf of Lakefield village proved unavailing yesterday in the face of apparently very strong the face of very strong opposition in the County Council. Mr. Strickland proposed what he termed "a straight business proposition," by which he claimed the County Council and ultimately the rate-payers would save $8,000 and possibly more. On a division at 6.30 yesterday evening his proposal was ignored, no seconder being found, and a second amendment to a motion to accept the lowest tender carried, providing that the lowest tender on the bridge be accepted on condition that Lakefield enter the county roads system. This, Reeve Strickland said, the village will never do except on its own terms as laid down by him previously.

The discussion arose out of the opening of tenders for construction of the bridge, fourteen of which were received, ranging fram $20,000 to $36,000. Reeve Strickland reported the present structure in very dangerous condition, a horse having broken through the timbers on Tuesday and several of the bridge's stringers being broken.

He asked if there would be any saving on the construction of the bridge if Lakefield came under the county roads system. A. W. Connor, county engineer, replied that the government will give 40 per cent of the cost in that event.

"If we go into the good roads system we are taxed for the roads and very little is done on the village street. We are quite willing to enter the county roads system if the county will pay the connecing link through the village. The village cannot afford to do the paving itself, but if in the county roads system we were assessed 3 mills this would take care of the 20-year debentures and Lakefield would be paying the tho cost. I think it would be good business on th part of the Council, since you would then get the 40 per cent grant toward building the bridge, amounting on the lowest tender to $8,000."

Engineer Connor said the government will not allow the grant on a strip wider than 20 feet, and the village would be compelled to pave the sides out to the sidewalks at its own expense. "The village has a good proposition," he said, citing instances where the plan has been carried out.

Reeve Strickland said he would be satisfied with the 20 foot strip, and the village would pave the remaining width in the business block. The project, he said, would not cost the county a cent and the car of the road would have been disposed of forever, with a saving on the bridge of $8,000.

Lakefield is Firm

To all suggestions that Lakefield come into the county roads system regardless of the paving plan, Reeve Strickland said "nothing doing."

Reeve Rye said Lakefield and Havelock should come into the county roads system just the same as Peterboro. There is a connecting link through Peterboro just the same as in Lakefield, he said.

Reeve Strickland introduced his motion for a by-law including Lakefield in the county roads system, providing the county paved the village street for one mile in length, the work to be started this year.

The roadway, he said, would help Lakefield, where there is an annual repair bill of $1,800; it would bring the village under the county road system by which the county would get back 40 per cent. of all money used on the road and bridge, which it will not get if Lakefield stays out of the system; and the three mill rate levied on Lakefield for road construction would meet the 20 year debentures without the concrete road having cost the county a cent. "It is a straight business proposition to save the ratepayers' money. We cannot go into the county roads system unless we get our road fixed up, and I take that stand with the village behind me. If you are not satisfied, go ahead and build the bridge and lose $8,000.

M. Smithson said the only point of doubt to him was the cost of the concrete road, which might be anything from $16,000 to $55,000.

Would Accept Less.

Following two hours' debate without result, Reeve Strickland announced his readiness to accept three quarters of a mile of paving this year in the expectation that when the county council saw the advantage it would continue the work in future years.

On failure to secure a seconder for this motion, Mr. Strickland withdrew his terms and proposed that J. McNab, having the lowest tender, be given the construction of the concrete bridge at a cost of $20,933. R. Scott seconded the motion.

Councillors Anderson and John Scott moved an amendment that the decision be deferred until the question is decided of having the road designated a county provincial road.

Councillors Middleton and Lillico moved that the tender be accepted on Lakefield's entering the county roads system.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

DADDY GANDER GOES TO THE FAIR

"Hello, daddy! There you are!" she cried heartily.

The Town Market Fair was a great success.

The Pieman sold out over and over again, and even Greedy Nan said that for once in her life she had had enough to eat. The Popcorn Man said he had sold enough pop-corn to trim a thousand Christmas trees, and as for lemonade! Well, it's a living wonder that the Daddy Gander Land people didn't float away altogether and never come back.

Nancy and Nick had ten rides on the roller-coaster, straight running—no, I don't mean to say that the roller coaster was straight running. Roller coasters never are! But they had ten rides in a row. And then they decided that they would try the Ferris Wheel.

It was great fun to get into one of the little seats in the great wheel and then begin to mount slowly toward the sky. When you were up there it was like being on top of a mountain. You could look down at the earth spreading out like a map under your feet, and it made you feel ever and ever so important.

Well, by and by, lunch time came, and then such a hurrying for baskets and boxes and a scurrying to find shady places to spread table cloths on the grass.

All at once there was a rustling among the tree-tops and who should come gliding down to earth but Mother Goose, smiling her jolliest smile.

"Oh, goodness!" whispered Missez Sprat to Jack. "I left my front porch and walk in a dreadful way. I do hope I can get back home and clean it up before Mother Goose sees it!"

And Missez Dumpling and Missez Blue said about the same thing. Everybody in Daddy Gander Land, or I must say Mother Goose Land, now that she was back, was thinking of how he or she had hurried away and left the morning's work half finished.

But poor Daddy Gander! He was the most worried person of all. And he whispered to the Twins that he and Tom Tinker would have to manage to turn the gate sign around before Mother Goose would see it. And he was just about to step on his magic dustpan and wish himself out of that, when Mother Goose spied him.

"Hello, daddy! There you are!" she cried heartily. "I'm glad to know you've taken affairs into your own hands at last and that you call this place after yourself. I'm getting too old to go gallivanting through the sky any more and you can take my place. Hereafter I stay at home and take it easy and you can run things to suit yourself."

"You don't mean it, mother!" he exclaimed.

"Indeed I do!" And I wish to say you were all very sensible to not waste any of this nice weather. Steps and door-mats and walks can wait. Fairs don't come every day, and one can sweep any time."

"Hurrah for Mother Goose!" cried everybody.

"Hurrah for Daddy Gander!" cried the Twins.

And everybody was happy.

EXCELSIOR LIFE HAD GOOD YEAR

Annual Meeting Produces Some Interesting Figures.

Statements submitted at the annual meeting of the Excelsior Life Insurance Company, presided over by Alex. Fasken, K.C., show that in 1923 a splendid gain of $184,141.88 was made in the unallotted surplus, bringing surplus on policyholders' account up to nearly $1,500,000.

Interest earned on investments again exceeded 7 1-2 per cent.

The favorable mortality, always experienced by this company, has continued even more so, being only 40 per cent. of the expected in 1923.

Premium income, together with receipts for interest, etc., were $2,197,051, an increase of $212,918.76, the largest in the company's history.

To policyholders was paid during the year or set aside for their protection $1,657,963.14.

Assets for security of policyholders, which include nearly $2,400,000 of Government and municipal bonds, total $9,339,995.64.

Included in the report is the announcement that mortality experienced on lives accepted without medical examination has been extremely favorable, notwithstanding the fact that male lives from ages 15 to 45 are accepted up to $2,000 on this plan.

ELUSIVE DEATH.

VIENNA—A young woman afflicted with melancholia threw herself before a train a few miles out of Vienna, but fell between the rails so the locomotive and 14 trucks passed over her without injuring her. It was her third attempt to destroy herself. She once sprang from a window, 30 feet from the ground, but alighted on some hay on soft earth, being scarcely hurt. A few months ago she leaped into the Danube from one of the Vienna bridges, and was promptly fished out.

THE SNOWSHOE CLUB HAD A GOOD TURNOUT

The Peterboro Ski and Snowshoe Club held a most successful tramp last night, when about 65 members took advantage of the beautiful moonlight night and went over Armour's Hill to the canal, then up as far as the Golf Links, and back through Nicholls Oval and via Driscol Terrace to the city. After the tramp, the club members were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Roy at their studio on Hunter street, where refreshments were served and a couple of hours spent in dancing. The members felt deeply indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Roy for their generous hospitality, and a hearty vote of thanks was extended to them.

This was the best turnout so far, and it is safe to say that none of the members present will want to miss the club's next meeting, which takes place on Tuesday night, Jan. 29th.

LOTS TEA FIGHTS FOR NEW MEMBERS

England's Women Members of Parliament Will Have Their Hands Full

LONDON, Jan. 24. — (United Press).—England's women members of Parliament have supplanted the season's crop of debutantes as the attraction most sought by hostesses.

Viscountess Astor's reception "to meet the women members of Parliament" started it. Now the high spots of London's "all the year round" season are luncheons and dinners, at which the newly-elected women M.P.'s are "lionized."

Meanwhile, wives of members of Parliament who are in Ramsay Macdonald's Cabinet have made plans to entertain on behalf of the Socialist party. Their receptions probably will be carried out on a co-operative basis, and for this purpose a club called the Half Circle Club has been formed. All the women prominent in Socialist circles are members, Mrs. Clynes, Mrs. Henderson and Mrs. Sidney Webb being the three moving spirits.

The Half Circle Club will organize all the official entertaining from No. 10 Downing Street if Miss Ishbel Macdonald, the Prime Minister's daughter feels herself too young for the task at twenty.

Sleeplessness

Sleeplessness, like insanity, is greatly on the increase. Modern life, with its hurry and worry and noise, brings an enormous strain on the brain and nerves.

The temptation to depend on sleeping powders or tablets must be fought off if you would avoid catastrophe. Means of reconstructing the starved nerve cells must be sought. Since the digestive system fails to supply nourishment to the blood and nerves it is necessary to employ such treatment as DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD to instil new strength and energy into the tired nerves. This is Nature's way of affording lasting relief.

You will notice that while the price of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has been increased to 60c. the box now contains 60 pills instead of 50 as formerly.

The coldest weather we have experienced in years is here, and coming so quick after the fine spell the people did not expect it and were not prepared for it. Frost was seen in a great many houses and plants and vegetables were frozen.

DROVE THROUGH DRIFTS DEFEATED BY HASTINGS BUT KEENE WERE GAME

Otonabee Boys Started and Finished Strong But Dad Clapper's Tanners Ran Wild in Second Period—Rink Was Dark Nearly An Hour.

MANY PENALTIES.

HASTINGS, Jan. 24.—Outplayed but not outgamed the Keene team held Hastings to one goal in the first period of their Trent Valley League fixture last night, then wilted in the second and when the final count was totalled the visitors had the short end of the score of 9 to 2.

They had driven over, through and around the snow drifts down through Otonabee and Asphodel, making the trip by bobsleighs in three hours. In the opening chapter of the piece they showed a good defense, but in the second Hastings sifted through frequently and only the splendid performance of Renwick, making his first appearance in the nets, held down the score to fairly close figures.

In the final session Hastings ran in two more, and from then on, especially in the last ten minutes, Keene came back strong and fought Hastings on better than even footing, getting their two goals in that time and making a fighting finish.

The game was rather rough with unnecessary slashing and although Bill Wellman handed out a row of penalties he was unable to get the teams in hand.

The players were:

The goals were scored by the following, for Hastings: Hill five, Clapper two and Doonan two, Keene Keitle one and Fletcher one.

The Keene team was accompanied by about twenty-five supporters. The next game in this section is in Campbellford on Friday night when Keene makes the trip going down by the afternoon train and returning Saturday morning.

Lights Went Out.

Anchor ice in the wheel pit at the power plant put out the electric lights for about three-quarters of an hour at the end of the first period, and it was after that delay that Hastings opened up on the visitors.

NEWARK CLAIMS GIANT PITCHER

The Purchase of Howard Baldwin Contested By McTighe of Newark.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Howard E. Baldwin, star pitcher of the Newark International League Club, today became the centre of a new baseball controversy.

Baldwin's purchase from former owners of the Newark Club was announced several days ago by the New York Giants, but to-day Michael McTighe, head of a syndicate which recently acquired the Newark Club's franchise, denied the legality of that proceeding and declared the twirler had signed a 1924 contract to play with Newark.

"Baldwin became our property with the franchise," said Mr. McTighe, "and we have sanctioned no deal with the Giants. So far as we are concerned, he will play with Newark, according to his contract. We will oppose any effort to transfer him elsewhere."

Officials of the Giants, on the other hand, are equally as confident that they have clear title to Baldwin.

"We obtained Baldwin in a deal with Bernard Moan and William Ashton, of Baltimore, former owners of the Newark Club," said Judge F. X. McQuade, Treasurer of the National League champions. "The agreement of sale with the new owners contained a stipulation that Baldwin could be sold by Moan and Ashton. We are satisfied that we have clear title to Baldwin and are not interested in the attitude of the Newark owners."

The case has been carried by Mr. McTighe and his associates to John Conway Toole, president of the International League, who said to-day he had it under advisement.

In baseball circles it was believed ultimate settlement of the controversy may devolve upon Commissioner Landis.

BATTLED OVER NICKELS

Sammy Mandell, the flashy Chicago featherweight, got his start as a fighter in the freight yards in Rockford, Ill., his home town. The railroad workers would throw nickels into the air and the kids would scramble for them. Mandell got most of the nickels, and in doing so developed his skill as a battler.

MADOC STUDENTS WON.

MARMORA, Jan. 24.—In a Trent Valley High School league game last night the local team was defeated in Madoc by the score of three goals to none.

PETES IMPRESSED LINDSAY SCRIBE

"Both teams played good combination at times but the Petes with there smooth working trio showed the result of much playing together,', says the Lindsay Post of Tuesday night's game.

Peterboro was particularly good on the defense and Lindsay was seldom able to penetrate and had to be content with outside shots which were pie for "Bun" Dwyer.

The Lindsay forwards played a good offensive game and were up at them all the time. Their backchecking broke up many dangerous rushes.

Dwyer and Parker starred for Peterbor and Wilford, Williams and Hamilton for Lindsay. "Buffer" Reeves played a fine, all round game and made several end to end rushes only to be prevented from scoring by Dwyer's eagle-eyed net guarding.

The visitors worked the fake pass nicely and also the drop puck idea for the trailing player to pick up.

Parker, the big Peterboro defence player, was fast and at times brilliant. He was cool and collected, handled his stick nicely and played clean. One of the Peterbor goals was secured by Parker on a beautiful lone rush.

Lindsay lacked the finish of the Petes. They flopped considerably in the first period and showed a little lack of condition as compared with the visitors.

Coombs played his usual good game and started many a rush. His shots were at all times dangerous.

Frankie Collins, baseball player and hockeyist, was the "bad" man on the ice. He was inclined to play tricky and rough and although he was frequently penalized yet the referee did not see half of what the spectators noticed. He was also responsible for the "douneybrook" in the last stages of the game when he checked Jack Killen without cause and when the puck was yards away.

Collins was also an effective player and scintillated on different occasions.

The brand of hockey was of the fast, brilliant kind. Both teams never let up in the fast clip and fans got the worth of their money.

Hamilton, the Midget on the Lindsay line, was too much for the big Peterboro defence men, and frequently he sprawled them on the ice.

The subs were shot out in pairs in last night's game and this kept the game going at a fast clip.

ST. MARY'S TEAM HERE TOMORROW

The Toronto Crew Will Meet the Peterboro Intermediates.

The fast St. Mary's senior O.H.A. team will tie into the Peterboro intermediates at Brock St. Rink tomorrow night in what promises to be the best exhibition of hockey of the season. The Toronto crew will be at full strength with "Bozo" Kells in the nets; the veteran Glen Sullivan and Kitchen formerly of Aura Lee on the defence and a forward line that will include Frank Sullivan, known as hockey's leading "pinch hitter", Brophy the clever ex-Collingwood boy and Burke one of last year's St. Mary's juniors. That is a line up that will test the Petes all the way and the clash should give the fans an evening of real enjoyment. This is the first of a series of games with Toronto senior teams, keeping the Petes in shape for their second round fixture when the latter are scheduled. Both teams are taking tomorrow night's game seriously and it should be about the classiest clash of the year.

DRAW FOR SKATING RACES AT CHAMONIX

CHAMONIX, France, Jan. 23.—The drawings took place this evening for the 500 and 5,000 metre (596.80 yards and 3.105 miles) skating races of the Olympic games scheduled for Saturday, in the hope that cold weather will set in and the games can be started.

In the 500 metre event Joe Moore, New York, will meet Eric Blomberg, Sweden; Harry Kasky, Chicago, will meet Marcel Moens, Belgium; William Steinmetz, Chicago, will have Oscar Olsen, Norway, as his opponent, while Charles Jewsraw, Lake Placid, was drawn against Charles Gorman, Canada.

WATER COVERS OLYMPIC RINK

CHAMONIX, France, Jan. 23.—Heavy rains last night and a continued thaw to-day converted the Olympic skating rink into a miniature lake, melted the snow at several turns in the bobsleigh chute and caused mud to crop up at spots in the ski jumps. It may be necessary to postpone the opening day of the winter Olympic games, scheduled for Saturday, unless the temperature takes a sudden and sharp drop.

The Canadian players are disconsolate at having to abandon their ice training which they sorely need after their long ocean and railway voyage.

"Carrying snow to the mountains," is becoming as popular as bearing coals to Newcastle, as a small army of workmen is engaged in plastering the turns in the bobsleigh chute and plugging up the mud-holes in the ski jumps with snow taken from the higher altitudes.

The Canadian hockey players are doing road work to keep themselves in condition. The members of the United States' hockey team are also taking hikes to keep in form. The puck-chasers from Canada are unused to such a large sized ice surface as has been provided for the matches and the absence of board sides, is proving a handicap. Instead of playing the puck against the boards to elude their adversaries, which is a feature of Canadian hockey, the boys have had to after their game, eliminating this important feature. The United States players also miss the board sides.

HAMILTON WON AN EASY GAME

HAMILTON, Jan. 24. Canadian Press. — Hamilton had rather an easy time disposing of Canadiens in an N.H.L. fixture here last night, the final count reading 4 to 1, and only the good work of Vezina saved the Frenchmen from a worse licking.

Injuries have weakened the Montreal team. Boucher experienced much trouble with his bad knee, and could not get going. His failure to keep up the play had an effect on the rest of the forward line, and at no time during the sixty minutes of play did they measure up. The Tigers showed punch in their attack.

In the opening session they went in on Vezina three abreast, and continued such an attack until they appeared to have things clinched.

Then they played a three man defence and a few rushes that Montreal started generally ended before getting near Forbes.

CURLING

COMING TO BONSPIEL.

LINDSAY, Jan. 24.—Many curlers are contemplating taking in the Peterboro bonspiel next week. Among the rinks will be the J. E. Anderson quarette, who were successful in annexing the Morrow trophy last year. They are: J. E. Anderson (sk.) W. J. Carlisle, G. A. Flavelle and Les Frost. The latter takes the place of Neil Gregory who is now residing in Toronto.

Messrs Leo Rogers, Ken McAskill and Earnie Wetherup are looking for a fourth player to complete their rink for the Peterboro bonspiel.

One of the new rinks to enter the Peterboro bonspiel from Lindsay will comprise Messrs. H. A. Wood, M. J. Dedman, Geoffrey Edwards and S. L. Reade. They will probably draw lots for positions on the rink but they figure on being the dark horses of the big 'spiel.

NORWOOD DEFEATED ON OWN ICE BY HAVELOCK

Railroaders Broke Away In Second Period and Put Game on Ice With String of Four Goals—Play Was Clean.

NORWOOD, Jan. 24.—Havelock strengthened their position in the Trent Valley League last night by defeating Norwood by the score of 5 to 2. It was a fast interesting game from the side lines, with the bulk of the scoring in the second period.

Doug Brennan gave Havelock a start in the first, but that was all they could get while they held the home team out. In the second period the Railway crew took advantage of a penalty to Weir and in his absence ran in two goals, and with that encouragement tallied another brace while Norwood's best was a lone counter.

Each team added another in the third which was marked by hard, strenuous play. The game all the way was fast and clean, and drew a fairly large crowd.

The line-ups were:

Havelock.—Goal, Hooper; defence Brennan and Quinn; centre, Pollock; right wing, Ruggs Wright; left wing, Don Wright; subs Armstrong and Burgess.

Havelock's goal-getters were Doug Brennan two, Ruggs Wright two, Pollock one; and Norwood's King and Vincent.

Balloon Race Dates Changed By Disaster.

BRUSSELS, January 24 (Canadian Press). — June 15 has been officially set for this year's balloon race for the Gordon Bennett Cup.

The advancement of the date from September was made with the hope of avoiding the stormy weather which last year proved so disastrous to several of the entrants.

LINDSAY JUNIORS ARE ONE GOAL UP

Will Try to Pile Up Score Friday Night on Home Ice.

(From Lindsay Post)

Last night's game was a veritable battle. The old rivals Peterboro and Lindsay, can always be depended on for a hard fought game. Lindsay lost out and the intermediates were eliminated from group honors, but there will be another clash Friday night of this week when the Peterboro juniors play the Lindsay Midgets in the Lindsay Street Rink.

Goals count in the junior group and at present Lindsay have a small one goal lead, with two games to be played. In the first game at Lindsay the Midgets won by one goal, while in the second game they held the Peterboro team scoreless right on Peterboro ice.

Consequently the game Friday night should be of the rattling fast character. The Midgets must endeavor to secure a large lead and the Petes will do their best to keep the score down, and if possible wipe out Lindsay's one goal lead.

Hockey fans are assured a big battle. Let them turn out in large forces.

FEARS RETURN OF TRICK PITCHING

MANAGER LEE FOHL OF BOSTON RED SOX HAS DEFINITE VIEWS

(By Billy Evans).

About five years ago the major leagues started a war on trick or freak pitching. Such deliveries were banned, including the spit-ball.

In order to make it a difficult matter for the pitchers to tamper with the ball major league umpires made it a practice to put a new ball into play on the slightest pretext.

Incidentally it made for increased hitting. The scheme therefore served both purposes desired, the elimination of trickery in pitching and a decided increase in batting.

Naturally the pitchers as a whol complained. Those who were tampering with the ball in order to increase their effectiveness, yelled to the heavens. Also the pitcher who was working legally entered a strenuous kick, for it is a well-known fact that a curve-ball pitcher can get a much better break on the ball when he is pitching an old one.

Great Increase in Hitting.

Every reform has its reaction, that often is as bad as the evil that has been eliminated. The almost constant use of new balls proved very costly. In addition it so increased batting that it took the premium off the .300 hitter.

During the final stages of the 1923 race both major league staffs of umpires exercised much more care in putting old balls out of play. The result was an immediate increase in the effectiveness of the pitchers and a slump in the base-hit market.

Lee Fohl, resourceful leader of the Boston Red Sox, fears that the drastic change in the policy of handling the balls will make for a return of trick pitching. Says Fohl:

Has Logical Argument.

"I am in favour of keeping old balls in play that formerly would have been thrown out if the scheme increases the effectiveness of the pitchers through natural methods.

"However, I fear that many pitchers who are inclined to resort to trick pitching will find the old gill greatly to their liking.

"For five years the umpires have worked overtime to cut out trick pitching. Now that it has been practically eliminated by their zealous efforts I fear they are courting danger by going back to the old system.

"There are some pitchers who seek to win regardless of the methods used. When a certain few use trickery, and get away with it, other pitchers who have been working honestly, decide they might as well cheat. And then there is trouble galore."

OLD TIME SHINNY.

TRENTON, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—In a fast game of hockey that at times threatened to develop into old-time shinny, Trenton juniors lost to Picton in an O. H. A. game here last night by the score of 6 to 3. The work of Boyle, Picton's centre, and extraordinary work of Yanover in goal, were what defeated the locals.

MEAFORD TEAM WON.

MEAFORD, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Meaford's Junior O. H. A. team defeated Stayner here last night by a score of 9 to 2, and now meet Collingwood in the final for District No. 16. By winning from the latter they will be tied for first place. Croft in goal, Vail on its defence, and Randle and Brown as forwards, played stellar game for Meaford.

PORT HOPE LOST GAME.

PORT HOPE, Jan. 24. — Canadian Press. — Bowmanville defeated Port Hope in the Junior O. H. A. fixture here last night in ten minutes overtime, by a score of 7 to 5.

Port Hope had the better of the play in the first period but Bowmanville came back strong in the second and last periods.

In the last period Port Hope led by 3 to 5, and later got 2 more, making the score 5 to 2, but shortly after seemed to go to pieces while the visitors came back with a rush, and soon evened up the score, scoring two in ten minutes, and winning the game.

SCORE A KNOCKOUT.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Jan. 24. — Canadian Press. — Jack Renault, the Canadian heavyweight, knocked out Tom Roper of Roanoke, Va., in the second round of a twelve round bout at Marieville, last night.

THIRTY MINUTES OVERTIME

MONTREAL, Jan. 24. —(Canadian Press.) —In thirty minutes of overtime University of Montreal tied the score at four goals all with McGill University, in an Intercollegiate hockey league game here last night.

OTTAWA SENATORS TOOK FIRST HALF

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—The largest crowd that has attended a professional game in this city saw Ottawa Senators win their tenth game of N.H.L. annual scramble last night at the Arena, when they closed the first half of the season by defeating St. Patricks, present occupants of the second position, by 5 goals to 1, and the visitors proved conclusively why they are the world's champions, why they have lost only two games since the N.H.L. season opened on December 15th and why they will likely win the league again this year.

Although they came down without Punch Broadbent and Cyril Dennenay, their regular acting men, who were replaced by King Clancy and Spiff Campbell, late of Edmonton, they turned in the best game that has been provided by any team at the local hockey headquarters this year and had things pretty well their own way throughout, although the locals gave them a good argument until the second period was under way, but from then on it was a case of how big the margin would be when Timekeeper Jim Bailey decided the fans had had enough.

ROBERT CECIL OUT OF A JOB

Peace League Will Have to Function Without Lord Robert.

LONDON, Jan. 24. (By Lloyd Allen, British United Press Staff Correspondent.) — His Labor Government practically completed, Premier Ramsay MacDonald turned his attention to foreign affairs to-day.

One of the first of a number of pressing foreign office matters demanding his attention was to receive the resignation of Lord Robert Cecil as British representative of the League of Nations council.

Cecil will be succeeded by Lord Parmoor, president of the Council in MacDonald's cabinet, and it is understood that he and the Prime Minister will press vigorously for the early inclusion of both Russia and Germany in the League of Nations.

Other problems acumulating for MacDonald's attention, are recognition of Russia, ratification of the Lausanne treaty and the Tangier convention, negotiation regarding the Mosul oil fields, and the Egyptian dispute, to say nothing of the Anglo-French ocupation of German territory, and over reparations.

It is considered unlikely that MacDonald will be required to devote much immediate attention to the rail strike, although there was no break in the deadlock to-day, and J. Bromley, leader of the engineers and firemen, who went out on Sunday midnight, said the strikers' position was stronger than ever.

Gumshoe Squad Out.

Special armed detectives, who formerly accompanied Cabinet Ministers on their travels in Britain and abroad, have been withdrawn from duty, says the Daily Mail. They will be assigned to members of the new Cabinet, if a request is made for their services.

Seeks Good-Will.

A British India Madras newspaper prints a message from Ramsay MacDonald, in which he pleads for reason and good will between India and Britain, and asserts that "No party in Britain will be cowed by threats of force or by policies designed to bring a government to a standstill. If any Indian sections are under a delusion that that is not so, events will sadly disappoint them," he said.

Chelmsford Surprised.

Viscount Chelmsford, Conservative, whose appointment as First Lord of the Admiralty has excited universal astonishment, reveals in an interview that the offer of the post was as much of a surprise to him, as his nomination has been to the public.

He says that he was approached only about ten days ago on behalf of Mr. MacDonald and up to which time he was entirely unaware that such a proposal was in prospect.

"I had met Mr. MacDonald only once, and that was more than twenty years ago, when I was a member of the London county council."

GOLF ATMOSPHERE MUST BE CORRECT

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. British United Press. — John D. Rockefeller, Junior, will follow in the golfing footsteps of his father—provided he can afford it.

While acting as toastmaster at the annual dinner of the Men's Bible Class of the Park Avenue Baptist church last night, Rockefeller took occasion to explain that his absence from the affair last year was not due to the fact that he was in Florida golfing.

"If my money holds out, however," he added, "I will eventually learn how to play a pretty good game of golf. Thus far all I have learned is to hit the ball once, in ten tries, never to pick up a lost ball until it stops rolling, and to play the game in a snappy suit that gives atmosphere, never in a gymnasium suit."

BUFF VICTOR IN BUFFALO BOUT

Coming Here to Take Part in Next Boxing Bill at Early Date.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 24. — Willie Buff, amateur champion, 135 pounds, defeated Jimmy Dorsey, of Buffalo, here last night in three rounds. The crowd was well pleased with Buff's whirlwind speed and punching power. The champion is a great favorite with the Buffalo fans, and a record crowd witnessed Buff's victory.

The local boxing committee are arranging another card of bouts for the first week of February, when Buff will be seen in two bouts with Ed. Dugan and Lorne Combe.

The boxing classes for Friday night at the G. W. V. A. Hall have been called off, as the rooms will be in use. The classes will be resumed on Monday night. South London A. A. C. have sent in a request for several local boxers to visit London early in February to take part in a tournament.

CAMPBELLFORD ORDER HELD A WHIST DRIVE

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 24. — Lodge Court Victory, Ancient Order of Foresters, held a whist drive in their lodge rooms on the evening of the 22nd inst., when a large number of members were present for an enjoyable evening. High scores were secured by Mrs. Arthur Morgan and Miss Ivey Clark, W. Collinson and Bro. W. Ellis. The remainder of the evening was spent in partaking of a bountiful supper, followed by dancing.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

"THE ISLE OF LOST SHIPS" IS REPLETE WITH THRILLS

Milton Sills, Anna Q. Nilsson, Frank Campeau and Walter Long are the principal members of the cast of "The Isle of Lost Ships," a First National attraction produced by M. C. Levee and personally directed by Maurice Tourneur which will be the feature at the Capitol Theatre today Friday and Saturday. It is based on Crittenden Marriott's famous drama of the sea. The remainder of the cast likewise leaves nothing to be desired.

Milton Sills, as the escaped convict—facing death in the electric chair—who saves thelife of the beautiful young society girl when the vessel on which he is being taken back to the United States is rammed by a derelict, gives his customay strong characterization.

Miss Nilsson, as the heroine who finds herself compelled to marry within twenty-four hours, has a strenuous role, which she enacts with skill and finesse.

Frank Campeau as the indomitable detective and Walter Long as the powerful and arrogant ruler of the little community of castaways on a strange island of ships in the center of the Sargasso Sea, are excentionally well drawn roles.

Bert Woodruff and Aggie Herring, as Patrick and Mother Joyce furnish exceedingly delightful comedy bits.

Director Tourneur, with the poetic touch that identifies all his pictures, has given this unusual story of the Sargasso Sea picturesquely beautiful settings. Getting off to a fast start, "The Isle of Lost Ships" is replete with thrills and unusual situations galore, one of the episodes showing the little band of castaways escaping from the mysterious island in a submarine that had been washed up.

AT THE GRAND.

PASTORAL BEAUTY GRIFFITH SPECIALTY

Effectively Shown in His New Photoplay Production "The White Rose"

When it was announced that D. W. Griffith, the master motion picture producer, was engaged in making a Southern story amid scenes of that region for his newest offering, "The White Rose," a United Artists release at the Grand today, Friday and Saturday, many were quick to declare he was in a field in which he was best suited.

"Griffith is a Southerner and he can make Southern scenes best of all remember his 'Birth of a Nation' and other things!"

This might lead some to consider that Mr. Griffith in his liking for re producing country and nature scenes was inclined to favor or be more happily engaged in the work amid Southern vistas than elsewhere. This is far from the facts in his career.

That Mr Griffith excels in the pastoral is not denied. From the time he began making one-reel pictures for the old Biograph company, he stood alone in this field. However, a review of his work should at once disillusion anyone who might consider him only at his peak amid the countryside of the Old South. True in "The Brith of a Nation" and some other offerings he gave the motion picture a series of landscapes below the Mason and Dixon line which will stand as a mark for others to shoot at for many years. But became along in "Intolerance" with pastoral scenes of the olden periods in ancient days that will not soon be forgotten. In "Hearts of the World" his roadside and field views of old France and Flanders were works of art and then he journeyed afar to give us old China and the Thames water front in "Broken Blossoms." Idyllic glimpses of intoxicating tropical outdoor were to be found when he photographed in the West Indies and the Bahamas "The Love Flower."

However, what a chance next occurred We next find Griffith revelling in the vast beauty of New England, amid pastures and rolling fields and along streams far northward. He photographed this region during the four reasons of a year and gave us Nature matching the changes and moods to that of the humans in the play. Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter were all shown unusually in that successful tale of the land of long winters and sleighbells, "Way Down East."

"Orphans of the Storm" provided opportunities for the display of the glories of old French exteriors in the days of Louis XV. As the audiences followed the trip of the old "Dusty diligence' or Normandy coach miles of scenes worthy of Millet were passed and recorded by the Griffith cameras. "One Exciting Night" next furnished an excuse for delightful Kentucky garden and roadside views.

That the Southern scenery appeals to Mr. Griffith is not denied and he set about his work in making 'The White Rose" with a great degree of enthusiasm. He travelled far and wide through the South to obtain sites of undisturbed old Southern pastoral views and probably knew better than any other in his field of endeavor when and where to find these Nevertheless, there is nothing provincial about the pastoral art of Griffith.

"SWEET LAVENDER" COMING.

A theatrical event that promises to record itself pleasantly with present-day theatregoers is the forthcoming presentation of Anthony Gordon of Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's "Sweet Lavender," announced for a two days' engagement at the Grand, commencing Monday.

The company which will support Mr. Gordon is an all-English one, which came direct to America after a highly successful tour of England, following a London season at the Ambassador Theatre. "Sweet Lavender" with its gentle humanity, genial humor, fragrant simplicity and masterful construction will be a welcome relief contrasted to the recent influx of bedroom farces and wierd and incongruous mystery plays. Among the names on the "Sweet Lavender" program besides Mr. Gordon's are those of such notable players as Viva Birkett, Sydney Paxton, Alice Moffat, Leslie Stiles, Joseph H. Bell, Ambrose Manning, Dorothy Fletcher, H. Tyerrell Davis and Ormonde Wynne.

AT THE ROYAL.

NEW VAUDEVILLE AT ROYAL TO-NIGHT.

Three new vaudeville acts arrived to-day for their three-day engagement at the Royal. Comedy predominates the entire programme. "Dale and Reed," who call themselves "Two Nuts," "LeRoy and Lawrence," "Reel Nonsense," and "Johnson and Harding," "Watch the Quadrille." The main photoplay attraction is Hoot Gibson's newest Western romance, "Dead Game." The remarkable horsemanship of the star has never been revealed to such an extent as it is in this picture, and Gibson has done some riding in the past.

OLDWEST SCENE OF NEW GIBSON FILM AT RIALTO.

Hoot Gibson, the inimitable Western screen humorist of "The Gentleman from America," "The Thrill Chaser," and other Universal successes, will be seen at the Royal Theatre to-night in the starring role of a rollicking comedy drama of the old West, "Dead Game."

"Dead Game" is the tale of a young man of the Texas ranges who knew the ranges and his horse awfully well but when it came to women he was at a terrific loss for knowledge. An old man sitting on a rail fence rudely informed him that he was a "dumb bell" where the ladies were concerned. From then on the "lesson" in love was spirited and entertaining — for all who were entangled in it.

HIAWATHA HAD A CELEBRATION

Thirty-Sixth Anniversary of a Local Lodge

Hiawatha Encampment No. 66, I.O.O.F., celebrated their thirty-sixth anniversary yesterday, with an all-night session that commenced about ten o'clock, with the arrival of the members from Lindsay, and lasted until three o'clock this morning.

Guiding Star Encampment from Lindsay, Victoria Encampment from Port Hope, and Mount Hebron Encampent, Peterborough, were the guests of Hiawatha Encampment for the evening.

Adam Switzer, of Toronto, a cousin of W. C. Switzer, of Peterborough, is Grand High Priest, representing the Grand Encampment of Ontario, and was present, making the presentation of Past District Deputy jewels to Past District Deputies John E. Emmerson and Mark Kirn of Hiawatha Encampment.

Three degrees were conferred on five candidates, the conferring of the Patriarchal Degree by Lindsay Encampment and of the Golden Rule Degree by Hiawatha Encampment taking place before adjournment to the dining-room, where a sumptuous banquet was served by the ladies of the Golden Link Rebekah Lodge. The table was decorated tastefully and appropriately with tiny purple tents crossed with the golden triple link insignia of the Order.

Community singing was in charge of Alex. Dick, and E. H. Bartlett acted as Master of Ceremonies.

After the banquet, the conferring of the Royal Purple Degree was made by Port Hope Encampment.

A brief review of the minutes of the first meeting of Hiawatha Encampment, No. 66, when the formation of the encampment took place, on 27th January, 1888, shows that the procedure on that occasion was almost identical with last night's arrangements. Conferring of degrees took place in the same manner, and the meeting, which opened in the afternoon, broke up at four o'clock on the following morning. Among those present were John Sinclair of Petrolia, Grand Patriarch, R. J. Lee of Peterborough, Senior Warden, Thomas Workman of Peterborough, High Priest, M. D. Dawson of London, Scribe, J. D. Tully of Peterborough, Junior Warden, and James Long of Peterborough, Sentinel.

Thomas Workman will be remembered as an artist of local repute, who left behind him in many Peterborough homes examples of his careful portrait work. James Long is still a resident of the city.

The charter members who were elected to office at this meeting were the late Dr. R. W. Bell, who died several months ago in Toronto, Chief Patriarch, W. E. Matthews, now of Ottawa, Senior Warden; James Hendry, High Priest; E. E. Henderson, Scribe; W. J. Minore, Junior Warden; and G. J. Early, Treasurer, now of Cannington.

A complete list of the original officers included also: M. Mowry, still resident in Peterborough, as Guide; the late R. M. Roy, 1st Watch; W. F. Green, a veteran member of the Order in the city, 2nd Watch; J. A. McGill, now of Hamilton, 3rd Watch; Rufus Stevenson, now living in the United States, 4th Watch; Thomas Armstrong of Toronto, 1st G. of T.; and R. Calvert, 2nd G. of T.; Alex. Rutherford, Inside Sentinel, and Wm. Springer, of Belleville, Outside Sentinel.

At a special meeting on 31st January, 1888, degrees were conferred on W. F. Green, Alex. Rutherford, M. Mowry, R. M. Roy, J. A. McGill, R. Calvert, Thomas Armstrong, W. Springer, H. O. Fisk, and W. M. Munro.

Of this list, Patriarch W. F. Green, who was District Deputy Grand Patriarch of this district in the year 1892, was the only member present at the thirty-sixth anniversary meeting last night.

C.P., G. East; S.W., W. H. Morton; H.P., H. Robertson; J.W., H. Strickland; Rec. Scribe, E. H. Bartlett, P.C.P.; Financial Scribe, John Lush, P.C.P.; Treasurer, R. R. Ford, P.C.P.

Last evening's ceremonies were carried through in a manner that proved very creditable to the three participating encampments, whose work evoked much applause from the members, assembled in numbers that filled the large hall to capacity.

CANADA CAN TAKE CARE NEW DEMAND

Widespread Interest in the New C. N. R. Loan

NEW YORK, January 24 (Canadian Press). — With reference to the flotation of the new Canadian National Railway's loan of $50,000,000 by a Canadian syndicate headed by Wood, Gundy & Co., of Toronto, the New York Times says:

"The highest American bid was a shade higher than the highest Canadian bid, but it was explained that the difference was not sufficient to offset the disadvantage in exchange rates had the business gone to this country.

"Interest in the offering was widespread.

"The opinion was expressed that Canada's financial strength was now sufficiently great to take care of the most of that country's new business.

"The change in Canada's financial situation has been pronounced in the last year. In that time Canada has taken care of 84 per cent. of her own new financing, the balance of 16 per cent. going to 'outside' markets. In the preceding year Canada was able to absorb only 40 per cent. of her new business, 60 per cent. going to other markets."

About a Girl Who Couldn't Stop Loving

She loved life, she loved love, and then she loved the Boy. And her love was big enough to dare all, to suffer all, to embrace all, never faltering, never weakening.

A Billion Dollars Worth of Humanity

In a picture as big as a woman's love—the great, enduring love that will not weaken, will not doubt—a story that leaves you with a warm glow in your heart—uplifting, and bringing sweet ecstacies—a story that brings a smile to your face, tender memories, hopes, a far richer outlook.

The Love Story of a Boy and a Girl

Alert and stinging with the high pounding pulse of real life. A story as big as a woman's love—and her fall. It makes you forget—forget yourself and the world. You forget the theatre and the screen—forget the pictured players. You live the story.

NICKOLAS LENINE GOT A SILVER TRIMMED CASKET

MOSCOW, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press). — Body of Nikolas Lenine and probably the greatest rebel of this or perhaps any other generation against system of society built up by ages, lies in a silver trimmed casket on a red draped dias in the great glistening hall of the House of Unions here.

Tens of thousands of persons marched silently past the bier to take a last look at the face of the man who led communist revolution which turned topsy-turvey, lives of more than one hundred and thirty million people. He is dressed in gray brown suit and his little sandy goatee and bald head look as natural as life.

Archibishop Evdokim, head of Holy Synod, issued call for a meeting of the Synod for the purpose of delaring Lenino a Christian and to propose celebration of masses in all churches of Russia for repose of his soul.

The election is announced to-day as president of the Engineering Institute of Canada, of Walter J. Francis, Montreal Consulting Engineer, at the annual meeting of the Institute in Ottawa. He was chief draughtsman on bridge construction for the Central Bridge and Engineering Company here from 1896 to 1897, and had charge of the reconstruction of the Hydro-Electric power station at Campbellford in 1909.

KINGSTON REPORTS A STRANGE PHENOMENON

KINGSTON, Jan. 24.—(Special) —After the big storm of yesterday, dozens of snowballs some of them as big as a man's head were noticed by citizens, they looked as if they had been left by snowballers, but it was found that the city had treated to a strange phenomenon, Prof. A. B. Klugh states that the snowballs were formed as a result of the soft damp snow being driven into lumps in the air by the strong wind and that they fell in this form. The wind then rolled the lumps along until they became balls. Photographs have been taken of the big snowballs.

EX-PROHIBITION LEADER TO BE SENTENCED TO-DAY

WINDSOR, Jan. 24. — Hughson Johnstone, former prohibition leader in this city, who was found guilty of theft by conversion last year, will be sentenced on two charges by County Judge J. J. Coughlin this afternoon at Sandwich. The County Judge held that Johnstone was guilty of stealing money that he received from a Walkerville workingman to purchase stock of the Essex Provision Company. The Walkerville man never received the stock, nor could he get a refund of his money. An appeal by Johnstone against the verdict failed.

Today's Quotations and Opinion and Reviews of the Ma kets.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—(British United Press.)—Business news over night was constructive, especially in regard to the oil, steel and some other industries. Crude oil production in the week ended Jan. 19 was 1,889,450 barrels daily, a falling off 6,850 daily from the preceding week.

Heavy inquiries for locomotives were reported in the steel market.

The result was that at the opening of the stock market to-day the whole industrial list maintained the strong tone which developed in Wednesday's last hour.

Corn products continued its spectacular advance, reaching another record high at 176, while further recoveries took place in Studebaker, Steel, American Can and other industrial leaders.

Stocks gave evidence in the first hour of a greatly improved technical condition as a result of the recent series of reactions in the general list. Increasing momentum was gathered on the recovery until the most uniform forward movement in more than ten days was in progress, toward 11 o'clock.

Amn. Can reached a new high on the current rebound at 109 1-4, Studebaker at 103 and other speculative leaders rallied proportionately United Fruit spurted to 187 3-4, against Wednesday's low of 185 1-2 responding to the 1923 report which showed a balance of $23.09 a share earned on the stock last year, compared with $18.85 a share in 1922.

Close observers of the stock market situation say there is nothing unusual in the strength of the market in the face of what might be called disturbed Washington conditions. The stock market it was held is simply discounting an improvement in business and industry will continue to expand for the next several months and this applies to the Copper, Oil, Steel and other branches. What is more, the country will continue to have easy money. There is a big reserve buying power.

A SOCIETY WOMAN GOES TO BUSINESS.

Exclusive Shops in New York's "Upper Fifties" Managed By Members of the Social Four Hundred.

By MARIAN HALE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—The social register and the classified business directory no longer have separate clienteles so far as feminine entries are concerned. The society girl and the working girl no longer revolve in different spheres.

There is a class of business women today who call their motors and go to work in sables or silver foxes, if they feel like it, just as there is another class that sponges up the blue serge suit and saves out the nickel for car fare.

It's fashionable, among the 400 of New York, to have your own business and to conduct it for profit just as father does. The society girl of today is more apt to be found at her office or shop during the day than she is at the Ritz or Sherry's in the evening.

And it is being demonstrated daily that society women develop into excellent business women.

Interior Decorators.

There was a time when it was considered revolutionary for Elsie De Wolfe, the actress, to open an interior decorating shop—so long as she didn't need to. But today there are more than a score of social register women in this business.

Mrs. Emott Buel, for instance, who has an indisputed social position, has a decorating shop and she ransacks the art collections of this country and Europe to find unique treasures for it. She has also done stage settings for a number of Broadway successes.

Two debs who can plan your home from cellar to garret, as well as dance and serve tea at Palm Beach and Southampton, are Marion Hall and Diane Tate.

Shortly after the former Mrs. Gouverneur Morris opened her beauty shop in the exclusive Fifties, where she serves regular hours daily, Mrs. Charles de Loosey Oelrichs opened a perfume business close by, and she is if anything more devoted to her shop than to society.

Society Last.

Mary A. King, another society girl, after completing service as a nurse in France, went to Scotland and learned all about wool. Today she has an importing business of her own in New York.

Mrs. Hiram E. Dewing has time to run a smart shop for sport clothing and be a decorator, as well as play the social game.

And there are many others.

DRINK TRAFFIC STILL ON WANE

TORONTO, January 24. — Canadian Press. — Declaring that British industry was beginning to realize that there would have to be a restriction of the drink traffic in the old land if Britain was to compete with the United States industry, Sir George E. Foster, in addressing a public meeting marking the 75th anniversary of the Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance here last night controverted the claim that prohibition sentiment was on the wane on this continent. He maintained that prohibition would never be discarded in the United States, for the reason that the business world had learned that the drink traffic was an enemy of economic efficiency.

Sir George startled his audience when he said that he had recently been in conversation with a Scottish manufacturer, who had spent three months investigating conditions in his trade in the United States, and had gone back to Scotland with the conviction that Great Britain could not expect to compete successfully with the United States unless there was some change in sobriety of the British workmen.

Speculation

Now, Sir, it is my conviction that where there is no speculation, there can be no luck. As well might a man with his hands in his pockets expect a guinea to drop into them. People who, perhaps, have been born with a silver spoon in their mouths, or had enough to purchase them a hot joint every day, thrust upon them by accident, will tell you in speaking of any particular subject, "Oh, I will have nothing to do with it—it is only a speculation." Now, Sir, but for some speculation that had been entered into before they were, the one would have neither had the silver spoon in his teeth, nor the other the hot joint. Without speculation commerce could not exist.

Speculation is the soul of business.
It is the mainspring of improvement.
It is essential to prosperity.

ALCOHOL CARGO ALLEGED TAKEN IN SEA BATTLE

Two Men Wounded By Revolver Shots In Encounter Off Boston Harbor — Skipper Pleads Offense Unknown to Law.

IS AN AMERICAN.

HALIFAX, N.S., Jan. 25.—In the Supreme Court yesterday Mr. Justice McKenzie granted a summons returnable Tuesday next in the case of Captain Andrew Cavreau, who is held at Yarmouth, N.S., for trial on a charge of piracy on the high seas, to show cause why writs of habeas corpus should not be issued.

Captain Gauvreau is charged with having piratically taken from the Weymouth schooner Lucille B., $50,000 worth of alcohol while the latter schooner was lying off Boston harbor last August.

Captain Gauvreau commanded the schooner Douglas B. Conrad at the time .Two men were wounded by revolver shots in the alleged encounter.

The Attorney-General of Nova Scotia will represent the crown at the hearing.

W. P. Potter, of Lunenburg, counsel for the accused, has already moved for the discharge of his client on grounds that the magistrate committing him for trial had no justification, that the alleged offense is unknown to law, and that the defendant is a naturalized citizen of the United Stiaes and not amenable to Canadian jurisdiction in the matter.

CARSON PROTEST WAS WITHDRAWN

But O. H. A. Executive Heard Statement and Declared Amateur Standing Not Affected.

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—(Canadian Press).—The protest entered by the Beaver Hockey Club of Hamilton, questioning the amateur status of Dr. Wm. Carson, of the Grimsby Hockey Club, was withdrawn prior to the opening of the meeting of the Executive of the Ontario Hockey Association, held here yesterday.

However, Dr. Carson was called, and after hearing his statement as to the offer made to him by St. Patrick's Hockey Club of Toronto, the Executive decided that his amateur standing has not been affected.

The Executive also dealt with a protest by the Frontenac Hockey Club of Kingston on the game with Belleville played in Kingston on Friday, January 18.

Frontenacs claimed a goal which was not allowed by the referee, and also protested that the game was not finished. They had no redress in the matter of the disallowed goal, as the referee's decision in such a case is final, but as to the full 60 minutes not being played as required by the rules, the protest failed, the evidence showing that the Frontenacs refused to accede to the referee's request to continue the game.

PREPARE REPORT ON CAPE BRETON MINES.

Royal Commission Has Completed Investigation of Industrial Conditions

OTTAWA, January 25 (Canadian Press). — The Royal Commission appointed to investigate the industrial conditions in the mining and steel industries of Cape Breton is expected to submit its report during the early part of next week.

The Commission is meeting in Ottawa at present to draft its findings. It is composed of Dr. J. W. Robertson, chairman, J. J. Johnston, Charlottetown, representing the company, and Fred Bancroit of Toronto, for the men.

Exhaustive inquiries were conducted in Cape Breton and relative conditions in other places where similar industries were carried on were closely observed.

The report of the Commission will be received with added interest because of the strike of coal miners in Cape Breton, which is in progress at the present time.

No Development In Sydney Strike

SYDNEY, N.S., January 25 (Canadian Press). — So far as the general public may know, the Nova Scotia coal miners' strike was no nearer settlement yesterday than when it commenced more than a week ago, since the joint wage conference rose in the afternoon with no statement of agreement having been issued.

All that was made public after Thursday's session was that the miners' officials had asked for an adjournment until Monday next, but that this was opposed by the corporation representatives on the committee, who agreed to an adjournment until this afternoon at 2.30.

No developments in the situation were reported from any of the widely scattered coal mining districts on the mainland or on Cape Breton Island, and the shortage of coal for domestic use continues to be the chief hardship of the strike, next to the enforced idleness of the men and the consequent pecuniary loss to those concerned.

TRY YOUTH FOR WOMAN'S MURDER

Was Seen Coming From House in East St. John, N.B., Where Body Was Found With Head Crushed.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Jan. 25.—Practically all available space in the police court room was filled yesterday afternoon by the audience present to hear the evidence in the continued preliminary hearing of the state in which Stewart Godwin, the 16-year-old mentally deficient Little River youth, is charged with the murder of Mrs. Clara Whiteside whose body was found in her home at East St. John on Chistmas evening. The accused boy on entering the court room did not appear to be in any manner embarrassed and smiled at his father as he was being placed in the prisoner's dock. He also recognized other acquaintances and smiled at them.

Godwin kept his eyes closely on the witnesses and appeared to take in every word delivered. When the piece of iron pipe with which it is alleged the woman was killed, was produced, Godwin glanced at it and then turned his head away. During the time the pipe was in the hands of Dr. Abramson, Provincial Pathologist, the accused glanced at it now and then.

A. P. Bates, an engineer at the drydock told of seeing Godwin coming from the Whiteside house on Christmas afternoon. Mrs. Agnes Baxter and Miss Edith Magee told of last seeing Mrs. Whiteside alive on Dec. 17, W. G. Frizzle saw the woman last alive on the night of Dec 16; Frank Dunham saw Godwin on the Whiteside premises on the afternoon of Dec. 22 and Dr. N. L. Abramson testified as to making a post-mortem examination in which he fouind the skull had been fractured in four places.

Dr. Abramson said that he found no blood on the pipe but found hair on one end. If the piece of pipe was used in delivering the blows, witness said he should judge that it should have had blood on it. He had nothing to say as to the pipe, having been the actual instrument used.

EVERY CITIZEN A PUBLICITY AGENT.

Western Lumber Men Are Urged to Tell Friends of Individual Successes.

WINNIPEG, January 25 (Canadian Press). — Urging Western Canada lumbermen to become propagandists for the Dominion, E. W. Stacey, of Medicine Hat, Alta., made a strong plea for increased immigration at yesterday morning's session of the Western Canada Lumbermen's Association convention.

"The best way to fight the emigration to the United States, of which we hear so much, is with immigration of the best type," Mr. Stacey said. Good settlers could be drawn by individual propaganda, an he urged lumber men to become publicity agents for Western Canada. In every letter, he said, the lumbermen should tell their friends in other lands of some individual success made in their own district. This was far better than thousands of Government pamphlets.

DOME MINE IS SCENE MURDER BY FOREIGNER

Polack Mucker Attacked Companion With Shovel --Struck His Boss With Steel Bar and Thought Injury Fatal.

MAY BE INSANE

NORTH BAY, January 25 (Canadian Press). — In the shadowy caverns of the Dome Mine, near South Porcupine, six hundred feet below the earth's surface, John Primak, a Polack mucker, on Tuesday night killed Mike Barney with a shovel, and probably fatally injured Pete Egnatinn, his mucker boss, with a steel bar, in what is believed to have been a fit of insanity.

Egnatinn is now in the Dome Hospital, and his recovery is regarded as very doubtful, while Primak is under arrest, and is being held in jail at North Bay, where he was brought to-day.

A few minutes after starting work on Tuesday night, Primak obtained a steel bar and attacked Egnatinn with terrific fury as the latter was leaving his crew in the drift. He battered his boss on the head and shoulders, felling him to the ground, and then fled.

The danger signal clanged out and after rendering first-aid to Egnatinn, two members of the crew, George Petloff and Mike Barney, went down the drift in search of Primak.

Seeing them approach, Primak sprang from his hiding place in the shadows into the circle of light, grabbed a shovel, and struck Barney a terrific blow on the head, killing him almost instantly.

Immediately he had felled Barney, he retreated into the shadows, and disappeared down the drift.

The miners were assembled, and in a short time Primak was located in a recess.

He still grasped the shovel and offered resistance, but he was soon overpowered and handed over to Chief of Police McInnes.

Primak, wo is believed to be mentally unbalanced, will stand trial on a murder charge at the next Assizes at Cochrane.

NEW YORK, January 25 (Canadian Press). — Louis Schumer, 127 East 117th Street, former window cleaner, was awarded a verdict of $75,000 yesterday by a jury, before Supreme Court Justice Gavgne for injuries he received in July, 1922, when he fractured his right arm and his right leg.

The verdict was directed against Joseph Caplin, owner of the building, who was charged with negligence in having failed to comply with the statute requiring him to furnish safety devices.

Physicians who testified for Schumer, said he would be a cripple for life. He is 28, married, and has two children.

MANY KNOCKERS CHECK SUCCESS OF WHEAT POOL

Convention Favors Central Pool For Prairie Provinces, But Saskatchewan Has Only One-Third Its Acreage Signed Up For This Year.

HUDSON BAY LINE.

MOOSE JAW, Jan. 25.— Unanimous endorsation was given yesterday afternoon by the convention of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' to the proposed Provincial Co-operative contract wheat pool with one central selling agency for the three western provinces.

With less than one-third of the required acreage signed up, the delgates were told by H. H. Milliken, of Saskatoon, chief wheat pool organizer for the northern half of the province, that there was no certainty that Saskatchewan would have any pool this year. There were contracts in Regina he said, for 1,700,000 acres and about 6,100,000 acres must be signed up if the pool were to operate with fifty per cent. of the acreage.

Hammers Too Busy.

"Unless some of you fellows quit knocking and go home and get busy there never will be any wheat pool," said Mr. Milliken.

The convention passed unanimously after three hours' debate a resolution which asked the Saskatchewan Government to take up consideration of the Hudson's Bay Railway, "not only to press it upon the attention of the Federal Government but to interest the Governments of Manitoba and Alberta to ascertain whether a united effort can be made to get the project moving towards completion as a western undertaking."

Hon. George Langley moved the resolution after a debate in which everyone was agreed upon the importance of completing and opening the railway but in which there were differences of opinion as to the best means of getting this accomplished.

Want Lines Built.

The Federal Government was urged to have built with the least possible delay the western branch railway lines whose construction was provided for in a bill which the Senate rejected last session.

Last night the convention was addressed by R. A. Hoey, MP., for Springfield, Man.

MONTREAL, Jan. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Struck on the head by a large icicle which fell a distance of nearly forty feet, Ferrier Charrette, aged 17, is lying in the General Hospital here and is not expected to live. The accident occurred in Cadieux Street yesterday. Sam George, proprietor of the house where the accident occurred was later arrested pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the city by-law regarding the cleaning of snow and ice from house roofs and was fined $25 and costs.

PROCEED WITH CHURCH UNION

Representatives of Three Constituent Churches Confer With Leaders of Government and Opposition On Private Bill.

OTTAWA, Jan. 24. — (Canadian Press.)—Rev. Dr .Alfred Gandier of the Presbyterian church, Rev. Dr. Gunn of the Congregtional church and Rev. Dr. Chown of the Methodist church, had conference yesterday with Premier King, Hon. Ernest Lapointe ,Acting Minister of Justice ,and Right Hon. Arthur Meighen in regard to the Church Union bill which it is proposed to submit to Parliament during the coming session.

What those favorable to union desire is a federal act incorporating the United Church of Canada. The question will be introduced in the form of a private bill .Considerable opposition to the project has develed of late, among Presbyterians and it is expected that the measure will give rise to an interesting discussion in the House.

Discussing their mission to Ottawa the three clergymen said they had explained the actions and attitude of the three separate churches toward the proposed act and had taken up with the Premier, Mr. Lapointe and Mr. Meighen several of the provisions included in the measure.

"The gentlemen interviewed," said the church heads, "expressed pleasure with the explanations made and the deputation is satisfied that the measure will receive full consideration and fair treatment at their hands."

"There is no thought of withdrawthe bill in view of the opposition which has developed in some quarters?" the church representatives were asked.

"No, it will be submitted," was the answer.

OTTAWA DENIES BULPITT DEATH FEDERAL AFFAIR

Any Further Investigation Would Be Trespassing Upon Ontario's Rights in Criminal Law Matters — Resolution From Winnipeg Society.

REACT IN ENGLAND.

OTTAWA, Jan. 25. — (Canadian Press.)—Any investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death of Charles Bulpitt, sixteen year old boy who hanged himself on a farm near Goderich because he disliked Canadian farm life and complained that he had been thrashed by his employer, must be made by Ontario provincial authorities, Hon. T. J. McMurray, Solicitor-General stated yesterday in commenting upon the demand of the St. George's Society of Winnipeg for such an investigation.

The Ontario Provincial Secretary, Hon. Lincoln Goldie, yesterday disclaimed any responsibility in the affair, which culminated in a coroner's jury exonerating the boy's employer from blame but suggesting a closer supervision of the placing and maintenance of immigrant boys from British foundling homes on Canadian farms.

Ontario Administration.

Mr. McMurray, however, points out that if the Federal Government took any action towards investigating the circumstances surrounding the boy's death, or, in the words of the Winnipeg resolution, towards "the punishment of anyone whose conduct may have contributed to his death," it would be trespassing upon the rights of the Ontario Government to deal with all matters pertaining to criminal law.

Adverse Publicity.

That the Bulpitt case in Western Ontario will receive wide publicity in England and is bound to cause wrong impressions, was the opinion expressed yesterday by Commissioner C. B. Lamb of the Salvation Army immigration service.

The commission had just concluded a conference with Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Immigration and was asked for his impression of the Bulpitt affair.

"It is most unfortunate," said he. "It is the kind of incident which lends itself to that section of the English press which is none too friendly toward Canada and her immigration activities.

"It is quite apparent that Bulpitt was not fitted to farm work. The Salvation Army endeavors to secure boys who want to work upon farms and who have had some experience in Old Country farm work."

MONTREAL, January 25, Special. —Special cable says the suicide of a British farm hand near Goderich, has roused the British press, and may dam immigration.

Ottawa Revoked Lashing of Ryan

OTTAWA, January 25 (Canadian Press). — Hon. E. J. McMurray, Solicitor-General, revealed the fact that the Kingston Penitentiary authorities were notified the day after Judge Coatsworth's sentence that no corporal punishment should be inflicted upon the bandit who was recaptured in Minnesota recently after a long chase over the continent.

Mr. McMurray takes the stand that a life sentence is in itself sufficiently severe a punishment without the addition of the lash.

Ryan escaped while under a long sentence of imprisonment, and a number of lashes were to have been administered during his term.

When he was brought back from the United States under guard, the sentence of life imprisonment was passed upon him, the trial judge found that the original sentence of corporal punishment must stand.

This has now been remitted by the Clemency Branch of the Department of Justice.

GIVE SHAW CHANCE TO SETTLE STRIKE

If Bromley Fails to Make Honorable Settlement. Says George Lansbury

LONDON, Jan. 25.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—Writing in the New Leader, a weekly organ of Labor opinion, George Lansbury, Labor M.P., says that if J. Bromley, secretary of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers, fails to make an honorable settlement of the present railway strike then it will be the duty of all concerned to give Thomas Shaw, the new Minister of Labor, a chance to settle it.

"To read the daily diatribes of labor leaders denouncing one another would cause the angels to weep tears of shame," he writes. "If the workers cannot unite in organizing those engaged in the same industry and find men among their own ranks whom they can trust, how can we ever hope to re-organize and rebuild society on Socialistic lines?"

BURNING INTEREST IN POLICE INQUIRY

Revelations Expected Concerning the Bootlegging Industry.

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—(Canadian Press).—There is a burning interest in the Ontario Provincial Police and among the officers of the law in this city and throughout the Province as to what Hon. W. F. Nickle, K.C., Attorney-General, will have to say on his return from Kingston regarding his inquiry into the O.T.A. law enforcement, and which brought the resignation of Staff Inspector A. T. Paxton.

The Globe to-day says: There is the Hamilton end to the inquiry which is expected to bring revelations respecting the bootlegging industry in the Province.

The Globe last night endeavored to get some confirmation of the report in circulation that the present inquiry will go into "export" shipments of liquor, including the arrival of a boat at Ashbridge's Bay, which resulted in the Gogo shooting.

NEW DELORME TRIAL OPENS FEBRUARY 12.

Will Probably Be Shorter Than Last Summer's — Several Witnesses Not Required.

MONTREAL, January 25 (Canadian Press). — The opening of the third trial of Rev. Adelard Delorme, charged with the murder of his half-brother Raoul, will take place on 17th February next, it is officially announced by R. L. Calder, K.C., Crown prosecutor.

It had been intended that the trial should commence on 6th February, but at the request of the defence the date was set back six days.

Mr Calder said yesterday that the trial would be much shorter than it was last summer, as several witnesses called then will not be required at the coming trial.

FRENCH BUDGET TOTALS THIRTY BILLION FRANCS

Pensions and Interest on Reparations Bulk Large In General Budget — Taxes and Economies Expected to Provide Six Billions.

Radicals May Oppose.

PARIS, Jan. 25.— M. Bokanowski's report on the budget of 1924 is divided into two parts. The first deals with the general budget, in which the estimates are: Expenditure 23,596,000,000 francs; revenue 23,590,000,000. (The franc yesterday was quoted at 4.50.)

In this budget is included the interest on loans for the reparation account contracted prior to 1922. The interest on those loans contracted after after 1922 are included, together with the cost of pensions, in the second or special budget, in which the expenditure is estimated at 6,063,000,000 to be defrayed by measures introduced by the government increasing taxes and effecting economies, which, it is estimated, will yield 6,234,000,000 francs. This would leave a surplus of 171,000,000 francs, which could be applied to cover the proposed revised scale of pensions.

The two budgets show a total expenditure estimated at 29,659,000,000 and revenue 29,835,000, leaving a surplus of 176,000,000.

Radical Opposition.

Some of the groups in both the Chamber of Deputies and Senate have indicated they will not vote the government's financial projects unconditionally. The radicals will oppose the suppression of the match monopoly when the discussion comes up in the Chamber to-day, and the important "Entente Republicaine" has passed a resolution to the effect, that while inclined to support the government's efforts to balance the budget including the expenditures recoverable from Germany, it will insist upon consideration of the proposed economies first.

Playing Politics.

The radicals say they will also oppose giving the government authority to effect economies in the administration and to prohibit the importation products by simple decree. There are strong indications that the radicals as well as the socialists intend to make a political issue out of the situation, manoeuvring in such a way that they can go before the voters in the coming elections and tell them that Premier Poincare with a majority composed mostly of the Bloc National behind him, imposed impossible burdens on the people.

The moderates and Conservatives who are expected to furnish the necessary majority to put the bills through will do so, it is said in political circles, only because they deem it their duty. Some of them declare frankly that it may be their political undoing.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

RIDDLE LAND

"How d' do, children? I hope you're both well."

"My, my but I'm glad to see you!" cried the Fairy Queen as she gave each of the Twins a good hug and kiss. "I haven't seen you for ages. What's happened? Where have you been?"

"We couldn't find any way to get here!" said Nick. "We wanted to come but couldn't."

"Why, I told Twinkle Pen to tell Nimble Toes to tell Silver Wing to take the magic green shoes to you so you could find your way to Fairyland whenever you wished to come," said her majesty in surprise. "I wonder why he didn't obey me!"

"He did! He did obey you," said Nancy. "But he left the shoes on our lawn and it snowed on them an we didn't see them until the snow melted. We put them on and wished ourselves here as quickly as we could. My, but it's nice and warm! And the flowers are in bloom—like summer."

"It's always warm in Fairyland," said the Fairy Queen, giving Nancy another little squeeze. "I'm particularly glad you happened in today, though, kiddies, for I've had a letter from one of my best friends. And you know her! Guess!"

"Mother Goose?" guessed Nancy.

"No, I'll tell you who it is. It's the Riddle Lady! The Riddle Lady who lives in Riddle Land!"

"Why, we were in Riddle Land not long ago!" cried Nancy.

"Well, that's why she wants you again. She says that her subjects have lost all their thinking caps and can't find them. And so, of course,a they can't guess a single answer to her riddles. She wants you two children to meet Humpty Dumpty down by the garden wall today at noon and go back to Riddle Town with him. She has invited the Mother Goose people to Riddle Town too, because they all love riddles."

Nimble Toes took them to the door and bowed them out, and the first person they laid their eyes on was Humpty Dumpty waiting patiently. "I wouldn't come in because I don't like stone steps," he explained. "How d' do, children. I hope you're both well."

"Just fine, Mister Humpty," said Nancy. "And how are you?"

"A little stiff!" he remarked. "But that's to be expected. As mayor of Riddle Town, I don't have much time to think of my own troubles. But we can talk after we get there and time's flying. The Riddle Lady has a new riddle to ask. Come!"

And taking each Twin by an arm, away they went through the air to Riddle Land.

CHAMBER COMMERCE MEETING

A meting of the Executive Council of the Chamber of Commerce convened under happy auspices in the Empress Hotel Wednesday evening, as guests of the President, Mr. Jos. J. Duffus, at dinner.

The Secretary made a report on his trip to Ottawa relative to the Sales Tax refunds, and also to New York in the interests of the Trent Waterway Development Association, attending the Trent Waterway Exhibit placed at the National Motor Boat Show.

Examples of the various classes of communications received by the Chamber from outside sources were reviewed and included requests for local products; agencies for manufacturing concerns; immigrants desirous of settling in Canada requiring information as to possibilities of engaging in business in Peterborough with fair capital; maps of district and statistics of Peterborough.

Commeications

Mr. G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., forwarded a copy of letter from Sir Henry W. Thornton of the Canadian National Railways, advising that the matter of the establishment of a convenient automobile service from Cobourg to Rochester was actively in hand, and that it was hoped that a practicable solution would soon be reached.

The British Imperial Council of Commerce advised that the Tenth Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire would be held in London, England, July 1st, 2nd and 3rd, 1924.

The London, England, Chamber of Commerce advised that a branch office of that Chamber would be established at the British Empire Exhibition for the convenience of overseas members during the period of the Exhibition, April to October.

The Sault Ste. Marie Board of Trade requested the support of the Chamber in petitioning the Dominion Government to amend the Bankruptcy Act so as to establish in the Province of Ontario a Bankruptcy Division for each of the thirteen judicial districts. This subject was turned over for consideration to a special committee comprised of W. R. Morris, Geo. A. Macdonald and J. W. Fraser.

New Business

Mr. R. C. Braund suggested in writing that Peterborough should consider the publication of a small pamphlet similar to one he submitted from Victoria, B. C., putting forward the summer resort and manufacturing possibilities in and around the city.

The Secretary was instructed to prepare a pamphlet of this nature and submit it to the next meeting.

Considerable attention having been devoted by the public press to the desirability of restricting the cutting of young trees for the Christmas festivities, not only for home consumption, but for export, it was decided that this subject should undergo a thorough investigation and a resolution submitted at the next general meeting recommending that reasonable action be taken by the various governments to control the loss of what proves to be in later years commercial timber.

New Members

The following citizens were welcomed to the membership of the Chamber, having been duly elected at previous meetings of the Executive:

Dr. C. H. Fulford, Fulford & Buchanan, Dentists; N. Routley, merchant; J. R. Marshall, Sales Manager, Canadian Nashua Paper Co.; R. C. Braund, Merchant; C. Chowen, Traveller, McColl Bros. Ltd.

Future Meetings

On the suggestion of Mr. Westbye, it was decided to hold the next general meeting on Friday, February 8th, at which Mr. C. Howard Smith, President of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association would address the Chamber on trade conditions in Canada. Mr. Smith has just returned from Europe and is in a position to discuss trade conditions from the international standpoint. The meeting will be open to all citizens.

The nominating committee will also be elected at this meeting.

The Annual Election will be held on Tuesday, March 4th, and the Annual Meeting on Tuesday, March 11th.

The Secretary of the Motor League has been advised that the 1924 automobile licenses will be issued as during the past two years from the Motor League offices at the Chamber of Commerce.

Licenses will commence to be issued on February 1st, and to facilitate the issuing of them all owners are requested to fill out the applications in full so as to avoid delay in securing the markers.

All license fees will be the same as during the past year, with the exception of commercial vehicles having a combined weight and carrying capacity of over eight tons.

Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., in securing this appointment for the issuing of the 1924 licenses in the city and district, believes that the services rendered by the Motor League in the past have been satisfactory to the motoring public, and he would be pleased to receive any complaints on the services rendered.

He desires to point out that the twenty-five cents commission on each license issued for services does not include the filling out of application forms, but is an act of courtesy on the part of the issuer that should be extended to those who are unable to write or understand the form.

O DECISION REACHED ON LAKEFIELD BRIDGE

After Two Days' Discussion the County Council Arrives Back Where It Was In April Last — Deputation 32 Strong From Exhibition Board.

SCHOOL REPORTS.

"Peterborough Industrial Exhibition stands for the progress of the whole county. We are not out to do Norwood or Keene or Lakefield any harm."

With the above statement Roland Denne, President of the Exhibition Board opened his appeal to the County Council yesterday for a grant of $1,500 for the construction of a new barn.

"There were 302 head of cattle last year, over 50 head of which were tied to fences for lack of barn accomodation. You gentlemen know the value of improving stock in this county and it is your duty to give us the assistance. We will do the building if you give us the $1,500 to buy the material."

J. T. O'Connell expressed the thanks of the Exhibition Board for past favors "although small." The Board is composed of hard workers, he said, who are trying to bring the Exhibition to the highest possible standard.

"We will see that cattle exhibits get here from Ottawa,' Mr. O'Connel said, "and we will feel mean if we must ask the exhibitors to tie their stock to fences."

T. D. Young said the Board wishes to work for the good of the county as a whole. "The representatives from the east of the county may not see eye to eye with us, but we feel our fair will grow steadily as representative of the whole county."

T. Mc Indoo remarked that the new directors on the board are finding the business much more complicated than they had thought. "Our splendid president who is there because he cant' get off, is looking toward agricultural development. We are not looking for money for selfish purposes, since the ultimate aim is the advancement of the county as a whole."

Casting Vote Needed.

Reeve Rye proposed, seconded by Reeve Corkery, that the grant be set at $1,000.

Reeves Pakenham and Breckenbridge moved to refer the application to the finance committee.

Votes on the two questions stood 8 to 8 and Warden Coughlin cast his vote in favor of the amendment.

John Scott said the hearing of this deputation was not fair to east Peterboro which was not represented. He would like to see the question left over until next session.

Mr. Denne replied that there were several east Peterboro men on the delegation. "We want the co-operation of all the county" he said.

School Report.

The report on the schools of the western part of the county presented by Roscoe F. Downey, Inspector of Public Schools, showed that none of the teachers in Ennismore, Galway and Cavendish, Harvey and Smith were rated as first class. In Ennismore there was one second class; in Galway and Cavendish one second class and three third class in Harvey five second class and three third class and in Smith twelve second class.

The attendance for the year was:

	On Roll	Aver.	Pct.
Ennismore	13	11.6	89.4
Gal. & Cavendish	78	39.7	51.
Harvey	206	129.8	63.
Smith	440	282.8	64.3

Some educational value might be gained from a thoughtful discussion of the following points, the Inspector suggested.

(1) The frequent change of teachers, especially in the rural schools; (2) The small school with an attendance varying from 2 to 10 pupils; (3) Medical and dental inspection in the schools—the school nurse; (4) The value of an education survey of the county; (5) The school lunch; (6) The linking up of school life and community life; (7) Advanced work in the public schools beyond the entrance examinations:

The Inspector's report read:

I have visited all the schools of the Inspectorate once, and some of them have received the second visit.

All of the schools in West Peterboro have been in operation during the fall term, under fully qualified teachers, who in the main, are enthusiastic and eager to succeed in their work. In too many cases, however, the teachers are handicapped in their work because of a lack of modern equipment. Trustees would be well advised to see that their schools are thoroughly up-to-date, not only in equipment, but, also in every other respect. Good black boards, suitable single desks, modern maps, a good library etc. are essential if successful work is to be accomplished. There are liberal grants provided by the Education Department and the County Council to assit trustees in bringing their schools up to a high standard of efficiency.

From the standpoint of Health and Sanitation a small start seems to have been made, but much still remains to be done. A growing interest seems to be developing in some parts of the Inspectorate to safeguard the health of the children. This is very commendable. Better school buildings, better heating, lighting and ventilation, larger playgrounds, better out-buildings, and an abundant supply of pure water near at hand, should be the aim of all enterprising boards of trustees. Health first should be the slogan.

The School Attendance Act has been on the statute books for a few years. Its enforcement, in some localities, falls very far short of what one would desire. The Law requires the Council of every Municipality to appoint an attendance officer. This mater should receive the attention of every municipal council and the Inspector of Schools should be notified of the appointment as soon as it has been made. No one should be appointed to this important office who has not sufficient interest in the cause of education to see that the Act is sympathetically enforced. The Inspector needs the help and co-operation of the Attendance Officer in the performance of his duties in the Inspectorate. It is the duty to those in authority to see that every boy and girl has an opportunity to become well equipped for the battle of life.

Eastern Peterborough.

There were in operation during the year 69 rural schools with 73 teachers and 4 urban schools with 22 teachers, making a total of 95 teachers. One school, No. 12, Otonabee, was not open at all during the year. The few children of school age residing in the section attended school in adjoining sections.

All the teachers employed in the urban schools held second class certificates. Of the others, 3 held first class certificates, 43 second, 15 third class and 10 district certificates. One had a temporary certificate and one had none at all. As compared with the previous year, there are two more first class certificates, two fewer second class, six more thirds, and six fewer with temporary certificates. There was only one teachers employed last fall who had no professional training, while for the same period of the previous year there were eight.

There was little difficulty in securing qualified teachers at midsummer last, and indications are that the supply of trained teachers will, for the future, be ample to meet all requirements, as it is understood the number at present in training at the Normal sschools is greatly in excess of what it has been in former years.

This satisfactory state of affairs is probably the combined effect of a variety of causes, but whatever circumstances may have brought it about, there can be no doubt but that one of the most potent has been the higher salaries induced by the increased grants of the past few years and the mode of their distribution. This scheme has been somewhat severely criticised in some quarters. It was introduced, in the first place with the avowed purpose of encouraging and making possible the payment of higher salaries, with a view to securing an adequate supply of fully qualified teachers. That object it has attained, whatever may be its defects, or whatever objections it may otherwise be open to. It has also by its graded scale, made it possible for the poorer sections to meet the increased cost of maintaining their schools and to secure teachers reasonably qualified for the work. Announcement has just been made that for 1924 the same scheme of distribution will be continued, but that for 1925, there will be a revision, particulars of which are promised in June.

Amount of Grants.

In view of these facts, it may be of interest to have a complete statement of all the grants paid during last year. I have, therefore, prepared the following summary, giving the totals paid to each school:

Asphodel—1, $289.90; 2, $85.60; 5, $238.90; 6, $230.25; 7, $340.60; 9, $339.90; 12, $302.60. Total, $1,847.75.

Belmont and Methuen—1, $417.70; 2, $721; 3, $713.60; 4, $553.20; 5, $630.65; 6, $477.50; 7, $678.85; 8, $473.70; 9, $673.50; 10, $742.65; 11, $577.50; 12, $1,207.14; 13, $435.70; 14, $561.90. Total, $8,864.59.

Chandos—1, $580.50; 2, $512.70; 3, $476; 4, $658.15; 5, $658.95; 6, $558.70; 7, $405.60; 8, $420.70. Total, $4,271.30.

Douro— 1, $380.60; 3, $375.70; 4, $315.40; 5, $347.50; 6, $444.50; 7, $379.40; 8, $296.60; 9, $255.20; 11, $374.10; 12, $347.50; 14, $449.65. Total, $3,966.15.

Dummer—1, $136.70; 2, $344.92; 3 $522.40; 4, $345.15; 5, $465.70; 6, $268.90; 9, $459.50; 11, $558.10. Total, $3,101.37.

Otonabee—1, $265.70; 2, $344.50; 3, $303.10; 4, $334.90; 5, $298.50; 7, $297.50; 8, $421.95; 10, $147.70; 11, $483.70; 13, $284.10; 14, $303; 16, $363.30; 17, $308.25. Total, $4,156.20.

Havelock, $1,725.65; Lakefield, $937.90; Norwood, $1,133.65. Grand total, $35,543.39. Of this total, the sum of $832.10 was paid by the county ,the rest was made up of the various legislative grants. A small grant received by some of the schools on account of household science, and of which I received no official notice, is not included in the above.

The question of irregular attendance continues to be a serious problem in some sections. It is difficult to say what the School Attendance Act has done to improve matters, but that it has had a good effect in many cases cannot be doubted.

Teachers are now required to keep, in the registers, a record of the possible attendance as well as the actual attendance of pupils. The proportion of the actual to the possible for the different municipalities for last year was as follows: Asphodel, 83 per cent; Belmont and Methuen, 74.4 per cent.; Burleigh and Anstruther, 71 per cent.; Chandos, 66.4 per cent.; Douro, 80.7 per cent.; Dummer, 79 per cent.; N. Monaghan, 84 per cent.; Otonabee, 85.5 per cent.; Havelock, 87.5 per cent.; Lakefield, 88.6 per cent.; and Norwood, 86.6 per cent.

Special Work.

At both Keene and Lang, a second teacher was employed at midsummer and fifth form work undertaken. In both cases the principal teacher has charge of the fifth form and also the fourth form. At Keene there are 14 pupils and at Lang 12 who are taking the advanced work. The atendance has been good, the classes are making satisfactory progress, and the plan gives promise of being a complete success. It is rather a surprising fact that all the students in attendance except two or three belong to these two school sections. The great drawback at the present time is lack of proper accommodation. If, however, the work grows, as I have no doubt it will, that defect will in all probability be remedied in the near future.

No new building was undertaken during the year but some improvements were made in a number of the buildings. The most extensive were at No. 2 Dummer and No. 1 Belmont, but a number of others did something and are contemplating work of this kind for next summer.

In conclusion, I think I am not astray in saying that, taking into consideration all the schools of the inspectorate, the efficiency of the teachers and the character of the work being done is better at the present time than it has ever been since I have been connected with the schools of the county. It is not implied by this that there is not room for further progress. There are still weak places in the teaching staff, and much can be done to improve the equipment and accommodations, as well as to safeguard the health of the children, but in the real work of the schools I found less to annoy and discourage at my last visit than ever before. If trustees, school officials, and parents will put forth a combined effort to secure still more satisfactory conditions, I think that I can assure them, in most cases at least, of the hearty co-operation of the teachers. It has been said that education is the most important business of a commonwealth. It is now costing this province a considerable sum in money and surely it is worth every effort that can be put forth to make it as thorough, effective and widespread as possible.

Trustee Convention.

The Warden and Councillors Anderson and Wilson were delegated to attend the school trustee convention.

School Inspector R. Lees said it is important that representatives of the County Council attend the convention. "Men come from all over the province, and an immense of information is to be garnered," he said. "Anyone who has a chance to attend and doesn't do so is standing in his own light. This is one of the most influential organizations in the country."

Mr. Lees' statement was called forth by the report that none of those delegated by the council had ever attended these conventions.

Lakefield Affiliation.

On suggestion of Mr. Lees and motion Messrs Hawthorne and Strickland the high school examination centres at Hall's Bridge, Buckhorn, Apsley, Ennismore and May's school, will be affiliated with Lakefield high school board instead of Norwood, as hitherto. Keene, Warsaw and Havelock remain affiliated with Norwood.

This, he said is the only school outside Peterboro Collegiate where fifth form work is taught. There are 18 pupils taking the course.

Reeve Strickland asked $500 as a grant towards the replacing of the boiler which exploded in Lakefield High School. This will cost $1695 to replace.

Reeve Rye proposed grants of $400 to each of the schools, but on motion of Messrs Scott and Curtis, the decision as to the Norwood grant was withheld until the June session of the council.

Mr. Strickland pressed for the grant to Lakefield, and seconded the motion of Reeve Rye, granting $400 which carried.

Messrs. Lillioc and Anderson proposed that the treasurer be authoriezd to pay the fees of children from the country who attend High School in Peterboro city, saying this would be only fair in view of the fact that other portions of the county are now getting this privilege, in Norwood and Lakefield High Schools.

On motion of Messrs. Strickland and Corkery, the committee named Messrs. Lillico, Middleton and Anderson to investigate the matter and report in June.

Chemong Bridge.

W. Brown, A. Wilson, R. T. Lillico, W. A. Anderson, E. Corkery and B. Middleton, were appointed a committee to wait on G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., to arrange a representation to Ottawa, regarding the Chemong Bridge.

Lakefield Bridge.

The problem of the rebuilding of the Lakefield bridge, was opened by Reeve Strickland with renewed vigor following the failure of council to arrive at a decision the previous day. Reeve Strickland pointed out that a resolution passed in November calls definitely for rebuilding the bridge, and read from the minutes of the County Council of April 6, 1923: — "Moved by J. C. Strickland, seconded by W. Brown, that the county proceed to rebuild the Lakefield bridge, the same to be built with concrete.—CARRIED."

Reeve Strickland repeated his proposal of Wednesday, that the lowest tender be accepted. "You can not use the bridge," he said, "as a lever to force us into the county roads system, after having passed the order for its construction." He suggested the county council might take over the oiling of the connecting link through Lakefield, on which condition the vilage would enter the system. "We cannot afford to maintain our own streets and pay into the country roads system too. We ask for a bylaw that will carry from one council to another and protect the village for future years."

In closing his argument for the day Reeve Strickland warned the council that there is a drop of 50 feet from the bridge to the level of the water which is only two feet deep. "An accident means certain death," he concluded.

Reeve Rye said the bridge has been condemned by the county engineer, and that places the onus on the county. "In case of an accident we would have no defence," he said. "The county is committed to build the bridge and concessions from Lakefield are a secondary consideration."

The Council adjourned without reaching a decision.

THIS LADY SAYS

There's Nothing to Equal "Dr. Wood's" Norway Pine Syrup For Coughs and Colds

Mrs. David Thompson, West River St., Paris, Ont., writes:—"I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

For myself and children I use nothing else.

My little girl, five years old, has had bronchial trouble ever since she had the "flu" a few years ago, and, now, whenever she gets a slight cold she develops a very nasty cough, but all I have to do is to give her a few doses of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Also for myself, and the other children, I can find nothing to equal it, in fact, it was only a short time ago that I gave it to my ten months old baby, and could immediately see the difference it made in her. Now, I always keep Norway Pine Syrup in the house, as I feel there is nothing to equal it."

LONG RECORD IN COUNTY COUNCIL

COBOURG, Jan. 25.—The Council of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham is assured of a good lobby at its every session and two outstanding features impress the visitors from out of town. One of these is the large membership, 40 in all, and the other is the dignity and decorum with which the proceedings are conducted. Parliamentary ethics are strictly observed and a term in the Counties Council here is an invaluable experience to any man who aspires to fit himself for a public career.

Fifty-nine Years in Office.

Members may come and members may go—and they certainly do year after year—but Clerk Neil F. MacNachtan goes on forever. He has been clerk-treasurer for the past 32 years, but he has been associated with that office for the past 59 years, serving as assistant to his father, the late Edmund Alexander MacNachtan, for 27 years before his appointment to his present position. The father was appointed clerk in 1867 and was also made treasurer when the two counties were united in 1873.

It is only natural, perhaps, that with his long experience, Clerk MacNachtan should be perfectly familiar with every detail of his duties. He has kept himself well abreast of the times and is an expert in parliamentary law. His long and brilliant military career has made him a stickler for discipline and for decorous procedure. He has proved himself the guide, philosopher and friend to several hundred members of the Council, every one of whom holds him in the highest esteem. He is a busy man, but is never too busy to lack time to post new members in their duties and save them from the mistakes they would otherwise make at their first session.

His Military Career.

Col. MacNachtan for such is his title—has had 44 years' military experience. He was with the Cobourg Heavy Battery for 33 years, 10 years as commander. In 101 he was transferred to the Field Battery and three years later his unit won the Governor-General's Cup, offered to the best battery in Canada. In 1911 he went to England as commander of the Canadain artillery team, which unit won honours for itself and for the Dominion, when in competition with the best troops in the Empire. In December, 1912, Canadas' noted military leader was retired with the full rank of Colonel. His figure is still erect, his eye is not dimmed nor is the vigor of his step abated. He looks good yet for many years of usefulness.

In 1911 Col. MacNachtan was made Commander of the Royal Victoria Order, an honour that has been conferred on only six Canadians. The Duke of Connaught brought the ensignia from England and personally conferred it upon the Colonel at Ottawa.

Like Father, Like Son.

Associated with Col. MacNachtan in his office is his son, Edmund Lawder MacNachtan, commander of the 14th Field Battery, with the rank of Major. The latter served for five strenuous years in the Great War. When the war broke out he went to Valcartier with his battery. All the officers' positions had been filled, but the young man, who at that time held the rank of lieutenant, sent his officer's uniform back home and enlisted as a gunner. He was promoted to a lieutenancy on the field and was afterwards transferred to an anti-aircraft battery. In 1919 he returned from Bonn, Germany, with the rank of captain.

The United Counties are among the financial municipal Gibraltars of Canada and for this the Council gives credit at its every session to the business ability of the man who has been entrusted all these years with the management of affairs.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache Often Means You Have Not Been Drinking Enough Water.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys gets sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, can not injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

SPOTS ON IVORY.

Spots on ivory ornaments or picture frames may be removed if they are rubbed with fine sandpaper or emery.

STEAM CHOPS.

Put chops in a steamer on the stove over boiling water and let them steam for an hour before dipping in egg and crumbs and frying in the usual manner.

NEWS OMEMEE AND DISTRICT

OMEMEE, Jan. 25.—A spirit of unity prevailed at the social evening given by the Young People's League of the Methodist Church on Monday evening, when they entertained the Anglican Young People's Association and the Guild of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Zero weather reigned without, but within there was a warmth not only in the temperature of the room but in the reception by the young people of their sister associations.

Miss Lila Parsons, President of the Y.P.L., presided, and in a few words welcomed the visitors, stating, however, that the real address of welcome would follow. The following interesting programme was then given, to which each society contributed two numbers, the numerous encores speaking in no uncertain terms of the keen enjoyment of those who were privileged to be present:

Hymn—"Onward, Christian Soldiers."

Lord's Prayer, in Unison.

Address of welcome—Rev. E. W. Rowland.

Greetings from the Presbyterian Guild, by Rev. J. Black and F. Brockley, 1st Vice-President.

Baritone solo—"Bells of the Sea Ring Out" (encore, "Calling Me Back To You"), by Wilbert Clemett.

Greetings from the A.Y.P.A., by Mr. Jack Bent, President.

Song — "Beautiful Rose," Miss Genevieve Sandy.

Recitation—"The Cattle Thief," Miss Jean Sandy.

Instrumental—Miss Margaret Parsons.

Humorous recitation—Mr. Horace Hill (encore).

Following this spicy programme groups of a captain and ten others were formed and a contest which was answered by letters of the alphabet was put on. All stupidity had been left outside and the result was six winning groups. The captains were called forward and drew cuts for the prize, which fell to the lot of the group under Rev. E. W. Rowland. This contest was followed by a novel potato race in which the contestants held a teaspoon between their teeth on which reposed a good-sized potato, and commencing at one end of the basement were to place four potatoes in a basket at the other end. Then followed refreshments, which were amply served and enjoyed by all. Following short addresses from Miss E. Curry and Mr. F. G. Sandy, the National Anthem was heartily rendered.

In Memory of Husband.

A beautifully bound Bible was placed on the pulpit in the Anglican Church on Sunday last by Mrs. Charles Bent in memory of her late husband, who departed from this life just one year ago.

During the evening service the pastor, Rev. Mr. Weir, expressed the appreciation of the congregation to the giver, as did also the wardens.

A bouquet of white carnations was also placed on the altar in memory of the deceased.

Personal.

Among those who attended the hockey match in Lindsay on Tuesday evening were: Messrs. W. Mitchell, W. Morton, G. Morton, W. McAughey, W. Irwin, Harold Bradley, M. Black, W. Eagleson, N. Clemett, A. Eagleson, Albert McConnell, H. Cunningham, C. Mackey, P. Parsons and sons.

Mr. Storey of Lindsay, Provincial police, was in town on business Wednesday.

GOING OUT OF POLITICS.

The Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association is beginning to realize, judging from the report of its central board, that business and politics do not mix very well.

The board has recommended that political action be dropped for the present, pointing out that from political reasons many farmers have refused to join the association.

That was the experience of the United Farmers of Ontario, and such a condition is almost certain to arise under similar circumstances.

Men bind themselves together in an organization for the development of their own business and are satisfied to co-operate and work in harmony so long as that object alone is kept in mind.

It is a very different affair when such an organization projects itself into politics—for the elements of division enter simultaneously with the advent into the political arena.

Men who have been consistent supporters all their lives of one or other of the political parties cannot all be expected to throw their opinions overboard at a moment's notice.

Sooner or later the organization would have to go out of politics—or out of business.

SHOULD BE INVESTIGATED.

The city of Peterborough is vitally interested in the question which brought a deputation before the County Council on Wednesday, asking that all grants be stopped until an independent engineer had investigated the Norwood road scheme advocated by the Suburban Road Commission.

Peterborough has to provide 30 per cent. of the money and the Council should be sure that the best and most economical policy has been adopted.

In view of the statements made by Mr. Armstrong, the spokesman of Wednesday's deputation, who is to be congratulated upon the manner in which he presented his case, there has been doubt enough cast upon the commission's plan to warrant an independent investigation.

Mr. Armstrong claimed that after spending $9,000 in re-building a mile of road last year the commission had left the grades steeper than before they started, and that the road favoured by the commission traverses more than twenty hills, some of which grade over 12 per cent., while the county road regulations call for a grade of 8 per cent. or lower.

He presented a very strong case in favour of the south road, as opposed to the commission's plan, certainly strong enough to justify a delay until the whole proposition has been thoroughly investigated by an engineer.

Mayor Turner put the city's side of the case in a few words, when he said:

"The city is vitally interested, paying 30 per cent. of the amount expended, and we have no money to waste."

DOES NOT GO FAR ENOUGH.

Immigration officials deny any responsibility in the case of the English home boy who hanged himself on a farm near Goderich, offering as a defence the explanation that the farmer who employed him had given every indication of being a model employer.

That explanation does not go far enough.

It ignores the fact that the Goderich case has revealed a lack of any systematic inspection of the homes in which these children from British charitable institutions are placed.

Apparently, so far as the Immigration Department is concerned, its scrutiny stops with the first investigation.

He may get along splendidly as many of such boys have done—or he may be driven to take a rope out to the barn and hang himself as the unfortunate Bulpitt did a short time ago.

What is needed is a system of regular inspection that keeps a contact with these boys and girls so that it is known how they are succeeding or failing, as the case may be.

The Children's Aid Society has the machinery necessary for such an inspection, and in the light of the Goderich case and in view of an official explanation that, although intended for another purpose, only accentuates the inadequate nature of the present system, the Examiner believes that some effort should be made to utilize the best means available.

If a systematic inspection of the condition of these waifs is maintained such tragedies will be avoided, and in the words of the Goderich coroner, "This boy will not have died in vain."

THE CIVIL SERVICE ARMY.

In confirmation of the Examiner contention that the Civil Service offers a good field in which the Federal Government might practice some much-needed economy figures in regard to the growth during recent years of the number of Government employees may be offered.

They are almost astounding in the evidence they offer of an ever-growing army of officials of all kinds, the maintenance of which costs the people of this country a staggering sum each year.

Fiscal Year.	Employees.	Salaries.
1913-14	8,709	$ 8,163,361
1915-16	10,267	11,113,596
1918-19	12,742	13,366,691
1921-22	14,739	23,149,511

A return tabled in Parliament last session, however, showed that the total number of Government employees in both outside and inside Civil Services in 1923 was $39,204, and their salaries amounted to over fifty million dollars.

Canadians will get an idea of what that means when they realize that if all these Government employees were to be mobilized at one point there would be many more of them than there were soldiers assembled at the first Great War camp at Valcartier when Canada's immortal First Division was brought together in 1914.

Canada's population has increased 22 per cent. in ten years; in the same period her Civil Service has increased over 85 per cent., and its cost has jumped 200 per cent.

There is no use blaming it all on the war or on war conditions.

Great Britain has been able to reduce her service personnel to within ten per cent. of what it was before the war.

In Canada our Civil Service is almost twice as big as it was in 1914, but even worse than that, it is greater by 2,000 since peace was declared, and is costing the people almost ten millions more than then.

It seems to be up to our politicians of all parties to consider whether we are drifting on the sea of expenditure and to get down to business on a programme of real economy.

The Canadian people are caring less and less about worn-out political slogans and rallying cries; on the other hand, they are developing a tendency to think for themselves and to insist upon results.

Just now the demand is for economy, and it cannot be satisfied with a Civil Service costing over fifty million dollar sa year.

A COLOSSAL TASK.

Its task of governing is colossal, says the Ottawa Journal, speaking of the new Labour Government. Strikes, unemployment, under-employment and industrial depression at home; wars and rumors of wars and germs of wars abroad—these are among its problems that overpowered the genius of a Lloyd George and brought the Conservative Party down; and they become more imperative and acute as times goes on. Mr. MacDonald, with the brave hopes of the idealist, declares that he will cure domestic ills and place a broad foot and a hard heel upon the conflagrations of Europe; but his disillusionment will come. He will find that there is no royal road to peace and prosperity and contentment. He will find that there is no short cut to Utopia, that evils and wrongs and injustices and strife are in the very bones and marrow of this old world, and that these will not vanish before the incantations of a Socialistic doctrine.

Yet the disillusionment will do him good, and it will do good to England. It will broaden knowledge of difficulties, inculcate sober thought where reflection is most required, and thus make it easier for the other parties to govern.

The Empire will wish Ramsay MacDonald well—for his sake and for its own. But a glance over Europe today compels the thought that what MacDonald needs today is not congratulations, but prayers.

CRAFTSMANSHIP AND WORKMANSHIP.

Tut-ankh-Amen's tomb has yielded evidence to prove that 3,500 years ago there were workmen who loafed or scamped on the job. The decorators of the pile misplaced their designs and the carpenters left ugly chisel marks all over the place. Mr. Kipling's resurrected ancient Egyptian, who found nothing very novel about modern London methods in laying on the 'ot and the cold, might also have taught his Cockney successor something about ca' canny and the art of lending an air of verisimilitude to an otherwise bald and unconvincing bit of workmanship. After all, ancient Egypt furnishes us with the first notable example of jerry-building, in the matter of making bricks without straw.

The popular notion that everywhere before our own machine age the workman created perfection in the joy of his heart is like the premature news of Mark Twain's death. Ancient and medieval craftsmen were probably not so blithe over their tasks as we imagine, though no doubt they were happier than the average factory hand in Lawrence, Mass., or Paterson, N. J. That the medieval craftsmen were not always singing in the fullness of their hearts is pretty well attested by the apprentice riots which were a regular feature of guild life in the Middle Ages. Still less is it true that the product of medieval craftsmanship was always 100 per cent. utility and beauty, while the product of the modern machine is shoddy. As a matter of fact the arts and crafts movement in Great Britain, centreing about the name of William Morris, was in part a protest against the "mechanical perfection" of the machine product.

Plenty of poor work was done in the Middle Ages by the singing craftsmen, probably in moments when they were not in the singing mood. Scholars who have to do with medieval manuscripts owe a great part of their troubles to tired or indifferent scribes who skipped paragraphs or repeated them or inserted them in the wrong place. Funck-Brentano, writing of the miniature illuminators of the Middle Ages, tells us that after the second half of the fourteenth century a great number of mediocre productions appear by the side of works of great merit. The reason was that formerly sovereign princes and other exalted personages were the only customers. Later the manufacture of parchment were cheapened and colors lost their quality, as the result of an appeal to "more modest purses." Industrial historians tell us that it is fairly difficult to find in the museums a really well-matched pair of medieval shoes.

Trades in medieval times were "mysteries" and apprenticeship to such mysteries lasted from four to eight years. In part this was idealism, in part it was humbug. An eight-year apprenticeship 400 years ago probably had much the same purpose as an A. F. of L. apprenticeship has today, namely, restriction of competition. At any rate, it is yet to be proved that the Woolworth Building, allowing for the difference in material, is more carelessly built than the average medieval Gothic church or the average palace of the Rococo. To work well when the foreman is on the job, and to go a bit easy when the foreman is looking elsewhere—in the days of old Rameses craftsmen were probably acquainted with this here thesis.—New York Times.

CHICAGO, January 25 (Canadian Press). — All deliveries of corn and oats went to a new high price record for the season yesterday, and helped to strengthen wheat. Human Sympathy on a Scientific Basis

SENSATIONAL cases of tragedy and distress receive publicity in the newspapers, and from their outstanding appeal are made the beneficiaries of charitable funds and public subscription lists. But how little does charity avail! How pitifully inadequate unorganized public sympathy almost invariably proves. A few hundred dollars, perhaps, and then—forgotten!

Mutual Life Insurance is organized human sympathy. Each Mutualist protects his own loved ones by combining to protect the loved ones of others. Mutualists are not exploited for the profit of outsiders, nor do they attempt to make profit out of one another.

MALTESE SAILOR SLAYS IN FRENZY

Stabbed Two of Crew to Death and Injured Three Others In Vancouver Harbor.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Jan. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Running amuck armed with two double-edged knives, Lyman Ben Baba, a Maltese sailor on the Spanish steamer Pillar d Larringa at anchor in the harbo here, killed Chief Officer Alexander James and Antonio Armo, seaman and wounded three othe before he was shot was down by a posse of city detectives yesterday.

Armo died within a few minutes but James lived until he had been brought ashore.

Thursday forenoon the man suddenly became demented, a shriek was the first warning his ship mates had of his intention and before they could flee the forecastle he was among them with eyes blazing, mouth frothing and two long-bladed knives in his hands. He struck at those nearest him, plunging a knife into Armo's body. Hearing the cries, Chief Officer James ran forward to stop the man. Baba sank knife to the hilt in the officer's lungs.

WILL RECOGNIZE SOVIET RUSSIA

James O'Grady, Labor Member, Reported to Have Accepted Post As British Representative at Moscow.

LONDON, Jan. 25. — The new Labor Government will institute diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia.

James O'Grady, Labor member, of Southeast Leeds, has accepted offer of the ambassadorship to Russia.

Proof that recognition of the Russian government will come early was afforded last night when the secretary of the South Leeds Labor party anounced that he had received news that Mr. O'Grady, who represents the constituency in parliament had agreed to take the ambassadorship.

This appointment naturally cannot be officially announced before the necessary formalities are observed in connection with the recognition and securing the Soviets' approval to the appointment of Mr. O'Grady.

It will however become known Mr. O'Grady resigning his parliamentary seat, which vacancy will provide a seat for one of the new ministers not a member at the present time.

Despatches from Leeds say that the communication to the Secretary of the South Leeds Labor Party respecting the acceptance of the ambassadorship was from Mr. O'Grady himself.

MILLIONAIRE MADE BRAVE RESCUE DOG

DETROIT, Jan. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Dr. R. Adlington Newman, multi-millionaire, and Detroit physician, risked his life yesterday along the ice floes of the Detroit River to save a nondescript mongrel pup which he saw floating down with the current 150 yards from the shore.

With a rope around his waist and the other end in the hands of two Bucky policemen, Dr. Newman managed a good imitation of Eliza crossing the ice, and brought the canine safely to shore.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, Jan. 23.—The Bay of Quinte Winter School held many interesting sessions but none more so than the one held in the church on Friday evening, when Rev. J. T. Wardle Stafford, B.D., B.C.L., pastor of the Metropolitan church, Toronto, addressed the delegates and their friends who assembled in larget numbers. Rev. E. Harston, Presiden. of the School, presided.

Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, B.A., B.D., Brighton, presented the report of the executive committee and explained the changes in the constitution of the young People's League. Before presenting the names of the officers elected to carry on for another year he said that Capt. Harston, who has been president of the School since its inception and who was largely responsible for its organization, asked that he be not nominated zgain this year. Mr. Wilson said there was, however, a strong feeling on the part of the executive that Mr. Harston should not give up, and especially in view of the coming union of the churches. Mr. Harston, the speaker said, had been responsible more than any one else for the success of the School the past three years. At this transitory period the executive felt that it could not dispense with his services, and so he had been pressed into service for another year. Mr. Wilson presented the list of officers elected to the convention as follows:

Hon. Presidents—President of Bay of Quinte Conference and pastor of the Convention Church; President, Rev. E. Harston, Woodville; Sec.-Rev. H. A. Bunt, Canton; Business Manager and Treasurer, Rev. F. J. Horwood, Camborne; Registrar, Miss Alice Scarpe, Cobourg; Asst. Registrar, Miss Hazel Cannom, Cobourg; Book Steward, Rev. A. McLaughlin, Keene; Historian and Reporter, Rev. Dewey Stinson, Wilfred; Song Leader, Rev. Roy Rickard, Northport; Musical Director, Rev. F. J. Horwood, Camborne; Executive Committee, President of Bay Quinte Young People's League and Chairman of Committee on Religious Education, with Miss Joy Nichols, Cobourg, Miss Florence Hall, Colborne, and Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, Brighton.

The chairmen called upon Rev. R. F. Stillman to introduce the speaker of the evening. Rev. Dr. Stafford, pastor of the Metropolitan church, Toronto, a pleasant duty which was ably performed. Mr. Stillman said the Old Country had given us a number of great men including Rev. Morley Punston and others, and now Dr. Stafford. Dr. Stafford had won distinction in the Old Land and he had come here to serve in the Canadian Methodist church. Among other gifts which the Winter School has brought us, said Mr. Stillman, it has given us Dr. Stafford to speak here in Cobourg.

Dr. Stafford said it was a privilege to be present. He had attended some of the sessions of the School and had learned something of its spirit, with which he could not but be impressed. He hoped that among the students there were some young men of gifts and graces who would offer for the ministry. As he felt that it would fit in with the spirit and aim of the School he had decided to take for his subject "Robert Moffatt," and in his treatment of the life and work of this great missionary he gave his hearers a graphic illuminating and inspiring address of which the following are a few gems of rich thought:

Gems From Dr. Stafford's Lecture

Any man may become a Moffatt if he will place his all upon the altar and consecrate the gift.

The man who will reach the hearts of men must get his strength from the Almighty.

Robert Moffatt's mother belonged to the fast-diminishing number of sensible mothers. To knit and sew and perform similar useful occupations are going out of fashion. May God save England from a race like that.

Homes lit up by the loving rule of the Father in Heaven make a nation, great and strong.

Spurgeon once said the silver spoon was going to choke young England; pray that it may never choke young Canada.

Methodism was the nursery in which the great African missionary was prepared for his life work. If Methodism has done no more than give Robert Moffatt to the world, it has done a good work.

Speaking of Robert Moffatt's marriage, Dr. Stafford said it might sometimes be a good plan to pack othe parents off to heaven for a fortnight's holidays, while the young people managed their own affairs.

Lay a good foundation, have patience. God will do His own work in His own way. Robert Moffatt labored for ten years laying the foundation of his great work in Africa.

Have patience. Do not sow the seed one day and dig it up the next to see if it is growing.

There is no genuine improvement unless you improve the soul.

God's plan is to take the Gospel to men and then change their circumstances—Christianity first—then civilization.

Rev. F. J. Horwood gave a most enjoyable organ recital from 7.15 to 8 o'clock, extemporizing with rare and pleasing ability. A choir from the Winter School with Mr. Horwood as accompanist and director, led the service of praise and song and anthem, "Praise Ye the Father" (Gounod). Mr. Albert Jewell played a cornet solo.

COBOURG, Jan. 23.—Among the interesting series of addresses given every day at the Bay of Quinte Winter School here were those on Home Missions, given by Rev. E. Harstone, President of the School. Beginning with pioneer days, when the heroes of the saddle boys began first their work in Canada he traced its development down to the present time. He spoke of the work of Tuffey, a commisary of the 44th Regiment stationed at Quebec in 1780, who stirred by the religious destitution of the people, began preaching. Also of the work of Major George Neal, upon the Niagara frontier. He came to Canada via Kingston in 1786, and took an officer's grant of land. He was successful in winning souls. Also of the work of Lyons, a Methodist Episcopalian exhortor who came from the United States to teach school at Adolphastom, and of his work among the Bay of Quinte settlers. McCarty, an Irishman, came via Kingston from the United States in 1788 and conducted services in homes of the Methodists at Ernestown. Large numbers were attracted as he manifested the spirit of Whitfield, under whose ministry he had been converted

The Palatine emigrants, identified with the first Methodist Society in New York which Barbara Heck had been instrumental in starting, settled along the St. Lawrence, formed a class among themselves of which a son of Philip Embury became leader. He told of the work of Wm. Lossee in the Bay of Quinte district, who was sent from the United States by Bishop Asbury, to form a circuit. These early ministers adapted themselves to the habits and life of the people. Services were informal. They were conducted in cabins, barns or under trees, sometimes taking the form of a debate.

Capt. Hanton dealt also with pioneer days in Newfoundland and the beginning of the work there by Lawrence Coughlin, a warm-hearted Irishman, converted to God in his native land, and received as an itinerant by Wesley in 1755. Then John Stretton of Harbor Grace, an Irishman from Limerick, Ireland, whose parents were among Wesley's early friends, removed to Waterford and engaged in the Newfoundland trade. Seeing the need in that country he prayed and exhorted for the edification of the faithful and the conversion of sinners. Capt. Harston went on to take up pioneer Missionary work in the Maritime Provinces and its development under Wm. Black, Mr. Garretson and others.

He then went on to tell of the Missionary work among the Indians and the place that Indian Missions have since occupied in the work of the Church. The work of a missionary on an Indian reserve is full of variety. He faces not only every religious problem met with in the white work but a difficult problem in social service. He has to contend with pagan superstition which dies hard, with ignorance regarding the laws of physical, moral and spiritual life, with natural perversity and primitive minds, but there are good results.

Golden Wedding Anniversary

Rev. Alfred Barner tells that on a reserve in Alberta there was celebrated in 1923 the golden wedding anniversary of Chief Lewis Bull and his wife. After a bountiful supper the aged chief spoke. He believed he had lived to enjoy fifty years of married life because he had always taken God as his guide and helper. He admonished the young men to do the same.

City Missions to Canadians

Few perhaps present at the Quinte School realized just how much missionary work is being accomplished in the Methodist church in Canada before hearing Capt. Harston's comprehensive treatment of his big theme. He told of the City missions to new Canadians, and among the tens of thousands of foreigners who live in our industrial centres, many in fifth-rate boarding houses and leading a hard and toil-filled life. He told of what is being done at Fort William, at Winnipeg, of the Boys' Clubs, Girl's Clubs, Kindergartens, Mother's meetings, athletics, and of deaconess work.

He spoke also of the rural missions to new Canadians, with their pastoral educational, social and medical work. Further, of the nursing-out hospital centres.

99 Years At It

The 99th year of Methodist response to the missionary needs of Canada has just ended. Methodism was founded and built up by missionaries. It was missionary from its beginning. At the first session of the first conference in Canada in 1824, Henry Ryan was designated to begin missionary work at Chippeway and Grand River Falls. The missionary Society was organized at this conference. In one hundred years conditions have greatly changed. He spoke of the co-operation now existing between the Presbyterian-Methodist and Congregational churches, whereby one of these three churches now undertakes to carry on the work within a certain area.

Summing up, Capt. Harston spoke of the Church as the recruiting agent and issued a call to young Canadians to prepare for its task. He showed the need for the friendly land. He spoke of the work of the rural teachers, of the builders in lonely places, of the dangers of ignorance to national life, of the community spirit.

In addition to the ministry of teaching and that of healing—the work of doctors and nurses—there is needed a third ministry, the Gospel. It is embodied in the person of the man or woman who, with the Bible as a source of inspiration and light, goes into every corner of our land with the message of Divine love and freedom. It is a glorious service. To this task the Church must call the best of her sons and daughters, and for it she must make adequate provision. It has become increasingly clear to each one of us, said Capt. Harston, that every man must find a way to relate himself to the present world situation and therefore to help solve the present world problems.

WON THOUSANDS ON THE PONIES ENDED IN DEBT

Montreal Clerk Ran His Ten-Dollar Shoe-String Into Glorious Wad, Then Luck Turned On Him and Swept It All Away.

COURT HEARS TALE.

MONTREAL, Jan. 25.—How on an original capital of $10, Armand Achim, clerk in the employ of a local bond dealing firm, won horse racing bets sometimes as high as $10,000 during 1922, and part of 1923, was told in court here yesterday in the charge against Frank Knight, bartender, in the employ of a local cafe, of receiving, recording and registering bets, and assisting in betting and gambling.

The complainant is Herbert Blurton Gadsden superintendent of the Toronto branch of the United States Fidelity and Guarantee Company.

Achim swore he was guided in all his operations by Knight, who marked all his winners for him in a publication called the "Sportsman," and "who helped me to place bets all the time."

The case was committed for trial, voluntary statement being set for January 31.

Luck Took Wings

Achim said his losses were nominal until the end of September, 1923, when his lucky streak went completely to the dogs and left him stranded, a loser to the extent of $21,000.

In all, he told the court, he had paid out more than $75,000, all his bets being recorded and paid to Knight. The latter paid Achim when he won, and he paid the accused when the luck turned, in some cases with Canadian Government bonds the last payment being one of $6,240, on January 3, 1924. Achim said he was in receipt of a salary of $35 a week.

Big Winnings

Achims first bet was for ten dollars and this netted him $100. As his capital increased he wagered larger sums, and in this manner won $10,000 on "Pampas," in August last. Counsel for the prosecution read out a long list of winners such as "Tick fish," on which horse the witness bet $500, and won between $5,000 and $6,000; "St. Donard," on which he won $8,000; and "In Memoriam," "Resting Time," and "Chiva," each if which won him thousands of dollars. In the losses column, however, there was "Smarty," which lost by a neck and cost him $8,000, while a bet on "Setting Sun" failed to the extent of between $9,000 and $10,000.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Auxiliary Started Thirty-Four Years Ago—The Wardenship of United Counties.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 23.—The annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of St. Thomas' church was held at the rectory on Monday afternoon, the stormy weather and severe cold causing the attendance to be smaller than usual but lessening not at all the interest and enthusiasm of the occasion.

About thirty-four years ago this Auxiliary was first organized through the efforts of Miss Alice Turner, eldest daughter of the late Dr. Henry Turner, and now of Vancouver, B.C., whose missionary enthusiasm is well known. Miss Turner was a persoal friend of Mrs. Williamson, of Toronto, who had the honor of being the first president of Anglican W. A. work in Canada, and who came to Millbrook and assisted in starting an Auxiliary in connection with St. Thomas church. Mrs. A. Wood was the first president and Miss A. Turner the first secretary. Mrs. Wood held office for five or six years and was succeeded by Mrs. (Canon) Allen, who for at least thirty successive years has been re-elect d to the position, fulfilling its duties most capably. Necessarily there are times of difficulty and discouragement in connection with such an organization, demanding self-sacrificing effort and wise judgment on the part of the president, and to these demands Mrs. Allen has always cheerfully and tactfully responded.

The officers for 1924 are: President, Mrs. (Canon) Allen; vice-president, Mrs. H. Mulligan; Secretary, Mrs. E. Whyte; Treasurer, Mrs. C. McNeil; Supt. "Little Helpers," Miss Margaret White; Dorcas Sec'y., Miss Annie Armstrong; Leaflet Sec'y., Mrs. Henry Mulligan.

Mrs. Allen is also president of the Auxiliary at Trinity church (the Marsh), which will hold its annual meeting this month.

Considerable correspondence of importance was dealt with at Monday's gathering, and arrangements were completed for holding a work meeting once a week when the outfit, when it is sent annually to the Blackfoot Home in British Columbia for the Indian girl whom the Auxiliary supports, will be made, and also the warm quilts which are included in the bale. The letter is sent in April. The usual fortnightly meetings of the missionary reading circle, which were discontinued through the holiday season, will be taken up again next month.

Mrs. Allen served delicious refreshments at the close and a pleasant social hour was spent before the guests left for home.

Off To Cobourg

Reeves W. T. Wood, Millbrook, A. Anderson, South Monaghan, H. Lawson, Hope, and J. L. McCamus, Cavan, and deputy reeves D. Robinson, Cavan, M. Wilson, Hope, left on Tuesday for Cobourg to attend the inaugural meeting of the Counties' Council. Councillor H. A. Elson, of Cavan, who headed the polls in the recent election, also went to the county town for the event.

As the election of Warden is the first business on the slate it may be interesting to note that the first warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham was appointed by warrant. The list up to 1878 was:

Walter Boswell, 1842-3-4-5, Cobourg.
G. S. Boulton, 1846, Cobourg.
Henry S. Reid, 1847-8-9 and 1850, Darlington Township.
Asa A. Burnham, 1851, Cobourg.
John M. Grover, 1852, Gramahe Township.
Sidney Smith, 1853, Cobourg.
James Smith, 1854-6, Port Hope.
Henry J. Ruttan, 1856, Cobourg.
Township.
J. M. Peters, 1858, Bowmanville.
John D. Armour, 1859, Cobourg.
A. McNaughton, 1860-61, Newcastle.
E. S. Barnum, 1862, Haldimand.
Henry Squire, 1863, Brightonville.
John Fisher, 1864, Haldimand.
John McLeod, 1855-6, Bowmanville
John Fisher, 1867-8, Haldimand.
Joseph L. Tucker, 1869, Clarke.
C. M. Gould, 1870, Cramahe.
Samuel Wilmot, 1871, Clarke.
James M. Ferris, 1872, Seymour.
William Thompson, 1873, Bowmanville.
James F. Fowlds, 1874, Percy.
William F. Allen, 1875, Clarke.
John Clarke, 1876, Seymour.
W. H. Snowdon, 1877, Cavan.
J. G. Hagerman, 1878, Hamilton.

Plays Postponed

Owing to the unfavorable weather and the drifted state of the roads the two plays, "Whiskers," and "Miss Buzby's Boarders," which the young people of St. Thomas church were to have given in Cavan Community Hall on Tuesday evening, had to be postponed. The date for the entertainment will probably be Friday, February 1st, unless the Hall has already been engaged for that evening.

The annual installation of officers for "Golden Sheaf" Rebekah Lodge, No. 176, which was to have taken place on Tuesday evening was withdrawn for the same reason. Arrangements will have to be made with the district president, Mrs. E. Hartley, Peterboro, before a definite date can be decided upon for the ceremony.

The rural mail-carriers, G. Sanderson, S. Sloan and J. Eastcott, all succeeded in making their rounds on Monday despite the below zero temperature and high wind which prevailed all day, but on Tuesday the drifted state of the roads, especially north and south, prevented all but No. 1 (G. Sanderson) from completing his circuit.

The entertainment given by the "Aeolian Players" in the Town Hall on Thursday, January 24, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church, promises to be a treat, particularly as concerts of this class have been sadly lacking in Millbrook since the Chatauqua series was discontinued two years ago. The talent on Thursday includes Agnes Adie, soprano; Eileen Law, contralto; W. Baker, tenor; Rupert Lucas, baritone; Dorothy Ryan, reader, and Bertram Brown, pianist. The artists, while in town, will be guests of Mrs. (Rev.) S. T. Tucker, Mrs. I. E. Needham, Mrs. E. S. Burnham and Mrs. P. Stinson.

The special meeting of the literary society of the Continuation School which will be held on Friday afternoon and for which a small charge is being made, is to provide funds for the purchase of tennis equipment for the coming season. The programme will be an interesting one, and is open to the public.

GOOD home-made bread has always been the chief food of the earth's sturdiest races. None of the breakfast foods or health foods can equal bread in nourishment. Good bread is the most digestible food as well as the cheapest.

MOSCOW CROWDS FILE PAST BIER ALL NIGHT LONG

Russian Synod Declares Lenine, the Supreme Materialist, a Christian —Church Bells in the Capital of Bolshevism Have Not Yet Tolled.

FUNERAL SUNDAY.

MOSCOW, January 25. — Late tonight the announcement was made that the funeral of Nicolai Lenine had been postponed from Saturday until Sunday.

It was also announced that Petrograd had been re-named Leninegrad.

The great procession before the bier of Lenine in the House of Unions continued yesterday. From five o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when the doors of the columned hall were opened until after midnight, the wide square on which the building fronts was a constantly swelling mass of humanity outlined against the snow, with which all Moscow is covered.

Several Injured.

In the early hours of the morning the crowd dwindled, but it was still deep enough to keep the soldiers and the police actively engaged in marshalling the line entering the hall and early yesterday morning it has again swelled to its former proportions. Excellent order was maintained and the guards were able to direct the people with only whispered words but at one time on Wednesday night the crush was so great that several persons were reported to have been injured.

Among the mourners there were thousands of children from the schools and other institutions, some of them so tiny that they had to stand on tiptoe to view the waxen face of the dead premier when they reached the catafalque.

Proclaimed Christian.

No church bells have tolled as yet in Lenine's memory, but they will probably ring out on the day of the funeral, as the Holy Synod has formally adopted Archbishop Evdokin's suggestion that Lenine be declared a Christian. The Synod sent a letter to President Kalinin of the All-Russian Central Executive Committee, expressing sympathy in the death of "the Great Liberator," the tribute concluding: "Eternal memory and eternal peace to your long-suffering, good and Christian soul."

Immigration Agent Accepted $300 Bribe.

ST. PAUL, Minn., January 25 (Canadian Press). — Taken from a train by Federal immigration officials while they were en route to St. Joseph, La., from Winnipeg, seventeen persons, ten of whom are children, are being held here in connection with charges of conspiracy to violate the Immigration Act.

The charges also involved the alleged acceptance of a bribe by an immigration agent at Winnipeg and the connivance of a land settlement agent for large holdings in Louisiana.

According to the story related yesterday by two elders who are in custody, they were told by the land settlement agent that he could get them across the international border for $300.00. This amount, they declare, was paid, and they came through without difficulty.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

In some states it is poor economy to try to save a lawyer's fee in making a will.

Reports of fees charged for handling large estates give a wrong impression as to the probable cost of legal advice in amaking a will. The cost is determined by the amount of the estate involved, and may be as low as fifteen dollars.

Do not think that because you have ample ability to earn money, you also have the knowledge to plan the work your money is to do after your death. You may know what you want done, but it is not likely you know exactly how to put into legal form the necessary phrases to make sure your wishes are carried out.

The lawyer's training enables him to foresee emergencies, to know inheritance laws and probate court rulings, and he will help you.

A small sum spent in drawing up a good will is likely to be real economy in the long run.

In some states the will cannot waive bond, so the above picture illustrating this article would not hold true.

XLII (Continued)

"Oh, Mary! You don't know! You don't know! You, who've had all the men you ever wanted. Who, they say, have a young man now. The nights of horror I've passed. I've never slept a wink the nights our girls married. I could have killed them. I could have killed every man I've met for asking nothing of me. It seems to me that I've thought of nothing else for twenty years. When I've been teaching, counselling good thoughts, virtue, good conduct, to those girls down there, it's been in the background of my mind every minute like a terrible obsession. I wonder I haven't gone mad. Some of us old maids do go mad. And no one knew until they raved what was the matter with them. When Hannah de Lacey lost her mind three years ago I heard one of the doctors telling Peter Vane that her talk was the most libidinous he had ever listened to. And she was the most forbidding old maid in New York. I know if I lose my mind it will be the same, and that alone is enough to drive any decent woman mad. . . I thought I'd get over it in time—I used to pray—and fight with my will—but when the time came when I should have been released I was afraid I would, and then I deliberately did everything I could to keep it alive. I couldn't lose my right—— It was my right. I couldn't tell you all the things I've—— Oh, I tell you that unless I can be young again and have some man—any man—I don't care whether he'll marry me or not—I'll go mad—mad!"

Her voice had risen to a shriek. She would be in hysterics in another moment. Mary, who was on the point of nausea, went hastily into her dressing-room and poured out a dose of sal-volatile. "Here!" she said peremptorily. "Drink this. I'll not listen to another word. And I don't wish to be obliged to call an ambulance."

Miss Trevor gulped it down, and then permitted herself to be led to a sofa, where she lay sprawled, her immaculate hat on one side, giving her the look of a debauched gerontic virgin. She lay panting for a few moments, while Madame Zattiany paced up and down the room.

She turned as she heard a groan. Miss Trevor was sitting up, straightening her hat. "Feel better?" she asked unsympathetically.

"And then she picked up a vase and hurled it to the floor."

"Oh, yes—my nerves feel better! But what I have said? What must you think of me? I never expected to give way like that when I came. I thought I could put it to you in a few delicate hints, knowing that you would understand. What have I said? I can hardly remember."

"Better not try! I'll promise to forget it myself." She sat down beside the sofa. "Now, listen to me. It would not be wise for you to go to Vienna. They would suspect, if not at once, then certainly when you returned. It can be done here. The rejuvenescence is so gradual that it would hardly be noticed. Fully a year. You do not have to go into a hospital, nor even to bed. You are not spied on, so no one would suspect that you were taking the treatment. At your age success is practically assured. Take it, and don't be a fool. If you don't it's only a question of time when that superb self-control you have practised for so many years will go again. And, too possibly, in the wrong place. . . . It is quite likely that you will never be suspected, because women often bloom out in their forties, take on a new lease of life. Begin to put on a little make-up——"

Miss Trevor interrupted with a horrified exclamation.

"It would be judicious. If they criticize you, remember that nothing they can say will be as bad—from your point of view—as their finding out the truth. They will lay it to that, and to the fact that you have grown a little stouter. And let me tell you, you won't care in the least, even if conservatism attacks you in solid battalions, for your mental attitude to life will be entirely changed. Remember that you will be young again, and too gay and happy to mind what people think of you. Now, promise me that you will take my advice, and then go home and to bed."

Miss Trevor got up and went to the mirror. "Yes, I'll do it." And then she said, no doubt for the first time in her life: "And I'll not give a damn, no matter what happens."

When she had left Mary Zattiany stood for a few moments striking her hands together, her face distorted. A wave of nausea overwhelmed her. She felt as if there had been an earthquake in her own soul and its muck were riding the surface. She loathed herself and all women and all men. She knew that the violence of the revulsion must be temporary, but for the moment it was beyond her control. She went to the telephone and called up Clavering and told him that she had a severe headache and was going to bed. And she cut short both his protests and his expression of sympathy by hanging up the receiver. And then she picked up a vase and hurled it to the floor and smashed it.

XLIII

Clavering stood on his high balcony and looked down upon Madison Square. Spring had come. The Square looked like an oasis in a rocky gorge. The trees were covered with the tender greens of the new birth, and even President Arthur and Roscoe Conkling, less green than in winter, looked reconciled to their lot. A few people were sunning themselves on the benches, many more were on top of the busses over on Fifth avenue, and even the hurrying throngs, preoccupied with crass business, seemed to walk with a lighter step, their heads up, instead of sullenly defying winds and sleet. The eight streets that surrounded or debouched into the Square poured forth continuous streams of figures, constantly augmented by throngs rising out of the earth itself. There was a vivid color running like ribbons through the crowds, for it was nearly nine o'clock and the doors of offices and shops and business houses were open to woman as to men. Overhead a yellow sun shone in a pale filmy sky and the air was both warm and sharp. The doves were circling and settling.

The prize-fighters had taken their prowess elsewhere, and a circus had come to Madison Square Garden. Clavering had heard the roar of lions in the night. A far different crowd would stand under the arcade in a few hours, but the peanut venders would ply their trade, and a little booth for candies and innocuous juices had been erected in an alcove in the front wall, presided over by a plump blonde. She alternated "jollying" and selling with quiet intervals of beading a bag, undisturbed either by ogling or the hideous noises of Twenty-sixth street.

In spite of his disappointment two nights before he found it impossible to feel depressed in that gay spring sunshine. He did not believe in the headache, but she had written him a charming note and he supposed that a man must get accustomed to the caprices of women if he intended to live with one. And a month from now they would be in the Dolomites, and she would be his. Let her have her caprices. He had his own. There were times when he didn't want to see her.

Moreover, he was still too jubilant over his play to feel depressed for long over anything the warm and constantly manifested enthusiasm of his friends had kept his spirits from suffering any natural reaction. Their demand for his companionship was almost peremptory, and his thoughts turned to them as he stood on his balcony looking down on the waning throngs; the great stone buildings were humming like hives, and figures were passing busily to and fro behind the open windows. It astonished him a little. True, it was his first play and he was very popular But he had a vague uneasy idea they were overdoing it. They talked of nothing else; his play, his brilliant future, his sure place in the crack regiment "if he hung on"; and they insisted that he must also express himself at least once through the medium of the novel. The great New York novel had yet to be written. They fairly dinned his gifts into his ears, until he was almost sick of them, and wondered if Mary were not also.

HERE IS THE REASON WHY CANADA HAS SO MANY HEALTHY WOMEN!

Toronto, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can be relied upon as a woman's medicine. I found it so very beneficial that I do not hesitate to recommend it to others who suffer. I had suffered with a severe nervous breakdown, caused thru my having feminine weakness. I had no control whatever over my nerves, could not sleep and I suffered with backaches and pains extending down into my limbs. I also had severe bearing-down pains. I was a physical and nervous wreck when I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It put me right on my feet and removed all the trouble. My nerves became strong and I did not suffer any more with any of the above ailments."—Mrs. Lizzie Almas, No. 235 Ontario Street.

BANDIT BETRAYED BY STOLEN WATCH.

Suspect Arrested in Montana Thought to Have Been in Crow's Nest Holdup.

EDMONTON, January 25 (Canadian Press). — A man, thought to be Alec. Auloff, sole survivor of a gang of three train bandits who held up and robbed a Canadian Pacific Railway train at Crow's Nest Pass in August, 1920, has been arrested at Butte, Montana.

The hold-up and subsequent gun fight in a Bellevue restaurant, where two policemen and one of the bandits were shot and killed, and from which Basoff, the third bandit, escaped wounded, only to be caught three days afterwards and later hanged, maintained its grip on public interest until after the hanging of Basoff, and until Auloff had apparently made good his escape.

STRENGTH AND NERVE POWER ARE CREATED BY RED BLOOD

To Build Up Vitality We Must Enrich the Blood Which is the Driving Force of Life.

What gives the athlete his strength? Red blood. What drives the worker, and the business man, also, up the steep hill of success? Red blood. What makes the glowing, vital beauty of woman? Red blood.

Rich, red blood is the supreme driving force of life. If our bodies no longer respond to Nature's processes that should rebuild strength and vitality, then we should look to our blood. We should enrich it, nourish it. Red blood feeds the body tissues, stimulates the nerves, makes our systems tingle with the pulsing of life.

If we lack strength and nerve power we should always think first of our blood. Discouraged or exhausted men and women should get from their druggists to-day a generous size bottle of Wincarnis. Start this home treatment at once. It costs less than ten cents a day. In twelve days see the improvement Wincarnis, the blood builder, brings. No need to worry. Wincarnis will give you new strength, vitality, nerve force.

FAVOR BOYCOTT OF UNIVERSITY

Dr. Shields Takes Nearly Three Hours to Explain His Positson.

TORONTO, Jan. 25.— (Canadian Press.) — Advocacy of a financial boycott of McMaster University by every Baptist church in the Ontario Conference until such time as the senate of that bdoy is delivered out of control of the element directing its educational policies, formed one of several climaxes of Dr. T. T. Shield's reply to the McMaster senate's criticism of him which he delivered in Jarvis street Baptist church last night.

Before an audience partly sympathetic and partly critical, Dr. Shields began reading of prepared manuscript at 8.30 o'clock. Not until 11.10 did he reach the end, with a sweeping suggestion that every Baptist church should, by resolution, condemn McMaster's policy and withhold from it financial support until the group which was "riding roughshod" over denominational faith was driven out of power.

Address was advertised as a reply to McMaster's criticism of his action in condemning the continuing of [illegible]

VANCOUVER KEEPS BINS FOR FARMERS.

Would Make the Grain Growers Independent of Company Elevators at the Port.

VANCOUVER, Jan. 24—Arrangements are being made to reserve some bins in elevators here for farmers to ship directly to, instead of through company elevators, according to R. E. Beattie, of the Harbor Board.

"Until the farmer can get his wheat into Vancouver on the same basis as to other ports in Canada and can make draft against his bills of lading, thus getting money to operate on, this port will not be functioning is it should and it is the intention of the harbor commissioners to try to get the farmer on an independent footing as far as port is concerned," said Mr. Beattie.

GREEKS DEBATE KING'S PASSING

No Longer Need Dynasty, Venizelos Declared — Propose Indemnity to Royal Family But Confiscate Property.

ATHENS, Jan. 25.—The measure introduced in the National Assembly by the Republican leader declaring the Glucksburg Dynasty forfeited continued yesterday to cause stormy scenes at the Assembly session.

The measure forfeits the rights of King George II to the throne, abolishes the rights of his heirs, prohibits the sojourn in Greece of King George or the other members of the family and confiscates all the Glucksburg property. It proposes that the Assembly shall indemnify the royal family.

The presentation of the measure Wednesday night followed a declaration by Premier Venizelos, which was wildly applauded, that the Greek people had ceased believing in the necessity for a dynasty and also that no foreign obstacle existed to the creation of a republic.

ONE MAN DEAD AS A RESULT OF ASSAULT

John Primak Under Arrest on a Charge of Murder.

SOUTH PORCUPINE, Jan. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Mike Barney is dead, Pete Egnatinn is thought to be dying, and John Primak is under arrest here as the result of an unexplained affair on the 600-foot level of the Dome Mines.

According to the police, Primak is believed to have attacked the other men, using a steel bar and shovel for the purpose, but the motive for the assault is not known.

Barney was killed instantly, and Egnatinn, with his head badly battered, was rushed to the hospital at the mine, but his recovery is doubtful.

Primak was arrested by Chief McGinnis, and has been committed for trial on the charge of murder, following a verdict returned at an inquest held here yesterday.

LAUDED HYDRO AT A POWER MEETING

Looks For Early Development of Power in the East.

TORONTO, Jan. 25, Canadian Press. — Of the hundreds of municipalities in the province who own and operate their own electrical utilities, not one of them has ever defaulted a dollar of their obligations," declared Hon. J. R. Cooke, Minister without portfolio, and Hydro Electric Power Commissioner, addressing several hundred delegates to a convention of association of municipal electrical utilities of Ontario assembled at dinner here last evening.

As a conclusive reply to opponents who labelled Chippawa and the Nipigon projects as financial failures, Adam Beck, he said, had a short time ago announced that the last unit of power had been brought into use at Nipigon, and that that plant was now on a paying basis.

"No one can patiently wait much longer for development of our eastern power," declared the speaker. In the St. Lawrence and Ottawa there were large potential power possibilities to make for happiness and prosperity among both urban and rural dwellers in the vast district which it would serve.

WHEELS JUSTICE MOVE TOO RAPID

Judiciary in the Province May Be Re-organized

TORONTO, Jan. 25. — Premier Ferguson's observance of the surprising celerity with which justice is dispensed in outside portions of the Province has led to governmental consideration of the plan to reorganize the whole judiciary system, the main object of which is to free more judges for work outside of Toronto.

The Premier does not believe that a big docket of a score or more cases can be disposed off rightly by any judge in a matter of a few days, as is said to have been done lately at some outside points, and his investigations have led him to the conclusion that the hearings of cases have been necessarily hurried, due to so few judges being free to leave Osgoode Hall.

BUILDING OF RIDEAU CANAL NOW RECALLED

OTTAWA, Jan. 25. — Describing the building of the Rideau Canal, a century ago, as the greatest engineering feat in Canada to that date, and the forerunner of large engineering projects, H. P. Hill, M.L.A., gave an interesting address before the Engineering Institute of Canada here this afternoon. He described at length the difficulties experienced by Col. John By, R.E., in building the Canal from the Ottawa River to Kingston.

Owing to the expense incurred in building the canal, Col. By was disgraced on his return to England in 1832, and died unrewarded for his great work. Mr. Hill expressed his pleasure that the engineering institute was considering honoring the memory of a member of the profession who performed the greatest engineering feat in Canada in his day.

MACDONALD MADE CHANGE SMOOTHLY

"Like Expert Motorist Changing Gear of Car," Was Comment of a Department Employee.

LONDON, January 25 (Canadian Press Cable). — "Really, I think I shall be very comfortable here," remarked Premier MacDonald on entering the room in the Foreign Office so long occupied by Lord Curzon.

Whitehall woke up yesterday morning to find the elaborate and usually prolonged process of changing the Government accomplished in record time.

The old faces were gone and the new faces indicated that the work of the Labour Government had already begun.

The celerity with which the change was made doubtless was due in large part to the Labour Party's preparation for its advent to power and to Premier MacDonald's anxiety to lose no time in getting the Labour programme going.

"There's an expert hand in all this," said an old stager in one of the Government departments. "This change has been made with the speed and smoothness and efficiency of an expert motorist changing the gear of his car."

RURAL CARRIERS FACE THE STORM

BRIDGENORTH, aJn. 25.—The stage line between Lakehurst and Peterboro has been operated on a delayed schedule this week. The rural mail routes have also been disorganized, owing to a raging blizzard which has been blowing Monday and Tuesday of this week. The Lakehurst stage spent one and a half hours going two miles on Wednesday while making his trip to Peterboro.

The Hay Market

Mr. Gratton Telford has been buying a quantity of hay during the past month having purchased a quantity from a farmer just east of the village, also eleven tons from H. Flood in Ennismore. It was all first class hay which has been well cured. The price is rather low indeed considering the high wages the farmers have paid during the past season and by the time the hay is put into the mow and then reloaded and marketed at the present price the farmer will not make much money.

A Cold Reception.

Mr. Eli Burston received a telegram from his nephew Jack Burston who sailed from England on December 11 on the C.P.R. Steamer Mt. Lawrie informing him that he landed safely at St. Johns and would arrive in Peterboro at 6 o'clock Monday morning.

Mr. Burston who lives just west of the park ventured out Monday morning at 4.30 in order to meet his nephew in Peterboro a severe storm was raging at this time with the mercury 15 below. Upon making inquiry from the young man as to how he liked this country remarked its not bad, but beastly cold.

Social Evening.

School section No. 9, Smith township, held a social evening in the school house one evening last week. A good programme was provided by the children and refreshments were served. During the evening, the teacher, Mr. Kenneth Madill was presented with a gold watch by the scholars and parents who fully appreciate the special efforts put forth to encourage the children in their studies and also in music which Mr. Madill takes a great interest in. Mr. Gordon Nicholls occupied the chair and Mr. Gilbert McIlmoyle made the presentation. The singing by the scholars and the chairman's address were some special features of the evening's entertainment. A new piano has been installed by the trustees.

Food for Foxes.

A man while driving into the city the other day met another man leading a horse and to be sociable turned out apd gave him half the road. On his return from the city he met the same man with the halter minus the horse and being curious enough to ask questions enquired if he had sold it he was very courteous and replied that he sold it at the fox farm, where it would be slaughtered to feed to the foxes as they are now giving them fresh meat.

Cutting Wood.

Mr. Jack Paul who is engaged with Vince Murphy in Ennismore cutting wood had the misfortune to cut his foot last week. He was off duty for a few days but is able to go to work again.

Trucks On Road.

Mr. James Beatty brought his truck out from Peterboro on Friday with the aid of a team which gave him a pull through the big drift. He succeeded in making the trip without any difficulty.

Skating on Lake

The rain last week melted the loose snow on the lake and the zero weather has put the ice in good condition for skating, the young people making good use of it.

The service in the Methodist church here was held in the basement on Sunday evening. Rev. P. H. Neville being absent members of the league conducted the service.

Mr. C. H. Mann, an old Bridgenorth boy who lives at Hamilton was in Bridgenorth on Thursday attending the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Peter Nicholls, deceased.

Mr. Jack LaDrew of Brantford was in the village this week.

The village school has been closed this week, as the teacher did not return on Monday morning as usual from his home in Stirling where he spent Sunday.

A BETTER BRIDGE FOR TRENT RIVER

County Council Spent Two Hours Discussing Matter at Cobourg.

COBOURG, Jan. 25.—The Counties Council committee on roads and bridges spent nearly two hours Thursday afternoon discussing the question of a better bridge across the Trent River at Campbellford, a matter that was before the Council at the various sessions last year. No definite action was taken but a delegation was appointed to wait on Premier Ferguson and the Minister of Highways to ask for a grant this to be applied to the construction of a new bridge.

The committee listened to an address by A. W. Connor, engineer of Toronto, who is also engineer for Peterborough County and who inspected the Campbellford bridge last year.

Mr. Connor said that it would cost in his opinion $19,500 to build a new bridge. The present abutments are perfectly safe so that a new superstructure only would be required. To repair the bridge so as to have it equal to the strain of heavy traffic would cost approximately $10,000. The concrete floor now in use is the second that has been put in since the bridge was built 20 years ago. There is so much vibration that concrete cannot be made to last. If it was decided to repair the bridge he suggested that blocks be used for flooring but Deputy Reeve Dorie of Campbellford objected to this material as long since out of date.

A Question of a Grant

Mr. O'Connor said that as the bridge is the connecting link in the highway system he believed that the Ontario Government would be willing to stand 40 per cent of the cost of a new structure. No grant, however, would be allowed for repair If the bridge were the link in a provincial highway the government allowance would be 60 per cent of the cost.

Members of the committee at this stage raised the point that a delegation had gone to Toronto last year to ask for a grant and had been refused. To settle this matter County Superintendent Greer, who was a member of the delegation was sent for. He told the committee that the Minister of Highways had told the deputation that as the Campbellford bridge connected a county provincial highway on one side with a county road on the other, no government assistance could be given. Grants are made for new bridges only when they link up a provincial highway. Special legislation, however, it was thought, might be secured to meet the Campbellford case.

Warden Fowlds, Reeve Hartt of Murray who is general chairman of the committee on roads and bridges and Superintendent Greer will go to Toronto for an interview with the Premier and the Minister of Highways. They will at the same time attend a meeting of the Superintendents and engineers of highways on February 25th and 26th and of the Good Roads Association on the following days. Campbellford Council will also be invited to send one or more representatives.

ExReeve Anderson of Campbellford was a member of the deputation last summer and on his return he reported to the Town Council the failure to secure any assistance from the Department.

Uniform Traffic Regulations.

The committee concurred in the request of the Department of Highways that the traffic by-laws be submitted to the Department for approval before becoming effective. The object, it was stated, is to have uniform traffic rules throughout the province.

Cost of Provincial Roads.

A communication was received from the Warden of Oxford County, asking every county council in the province to appoint a committee to urge Premier Ferguson to amend the Act so that the entire cost of provincial highways be borne by the government. Warden Fowlds telegraphed last evening concurrence in this request and asked that an attempt be made to hold a meeting in Toronto while the Good Roads Association is in session in that city.

Thursday Night Session.

At the session Thursday night, ex-Warden Milton E. Maybee, M.P., and ex-Warden George A. Smith occupied seats on the Warden's platform and both made brief addresses.

The citizens of Hastings invited every member of the Council to attend a banquet which they will tender Warden Fowlds on Monday evening in honor of his election. The Warden heartily seconded the invitation and on motion of Reeve Davidson, of Campbellford, and Deputy-Reeve Nelson of Percy it was decided to attend in a body.

The draft of an agreement between the council and the Department for the reforesting of the 1,000 acres that has been purchased for that purpose was received and it will be signed by the Warden and Clerk.

The usual grant of $40 was made for brushing ice roads on Rice Lake.

The county property committee, of which Reeve McCamus, of Cavan, is chairman, reported in favour of a typewriter for the office fo County Magistrate Floyd and for an electric heater in the office of Sheriff Nesbitt. As no other committees were ready to report the Council adjourned until 10 a.m. Friday.

George O'Sullivan has been reappointed by the committee council member of the Campbellford Board of Education. He had no opposition. Mr. Sullivan has already served 12 years in that office. He is a Separate school supporter and the only representative now on the board.

BOY SUICIDED AT OMEMEE YESTERDAY

Took Paris Green and Died Several Hours Later

OMEMEE, Jan. 25—Johnny Page a Barnardo boy, aged fifteen, who has been residing for the last four years with a farmer in this vicinity, William Fee, of South Emily, died here at midnight last night, as the result of taking Paris green.

The boy who was well liked and well spoken of throughout the community, was sick all day yesterday. About three o'clock his condition became serious, and upon examination traces of Paris green were found on his clothes. The Omemee physician, Dr. G. N. Earle, was out of town. Telephone calls were sent to Lindsay, Millbrook and Peterboro, for a doctor, but whether the family was trying to procure one particular physician in each place, or could not get the services of a doctor, is not known. The boy was brought into Omemee at five o'clock.

Dr. Earle who had returned home, by that time, immediately did everything in his power to help him, but the boy died at midnight in the doctor's office.

Coroner Anderson of Lindsay was expected in Omemee on the noon train.

MYSTERY MAN WAS WEALTHY

He Told Toronto Man With Whom He Claimed Relationship—Thought Impostor.

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—(Canadian Press.) —Claiming relationship with the family of Joseph Feaver, an east end resident man, who is said to resemble Ambros J. Small, the missing theatrical magnate, remained as a guest in the family for a day and a night. The stranger, who claimed that he possessed "untold wealth," is believed to be the man who recently visited a North Toronto man and making similar claims of relationship, was entertained for some days. News of the latest visit of the mystery man transpired today when Mr. Feaver declared in an interview that he believed the man to be an imposter. Although he resembled Small, Mr. Feaver did not think the stranger was the missing millionaire.

According to Mr. Feaver the man stated that he had just sold a claim on a Quebec asbestos field for $50,000 and intended selling a portion of a nickel claim for $65,000.

CROP REPORTS

The following is a summary of returns made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

In a few countries there is at present but little demand for farm labo, but a majority of the representatives report some applications coming in from farmers for help. A number of the requests are for new comers from the Old Country. The wages offered for men with partial experience is from $200 to $300 a year, with board, etc. First-class farm laborers would command considerably more. The Peel Representative says he is placing experienced men weekly at $15 to $20 a month for winter; $350 to $375 for year.

Elgin.—Cattle are not in the good condition they generally are at this time of year. Owing to the mild fal weather they were left out longer than usual, and had not gained in flesh as yet, few going to market. There was a fairly heavy run of hogs last week with a large percentage of light ones as the price was falling.

Lambton.—Some farmers have taken in cattle to feed at rates of about $5 per month for two-year-olds, having the use of straw stack and feeding clover hay.

Bruce.—Hogs which have been kept over the holiday season for an advanced price are still being held owing to the weak undertone of the market during the latter part of the week. Consequently when they are shipped a number will be graded in the heavy class which otherwise would probably have graded selects had the market remained steady. The farmer not realising that he is making a mistake in holding pigs after they are ready for the market under the present grading system.

Oxford.—There has been a good demand for good dairy cattle since October. Good, straight, strong cattle, either new milkers or in calf to purebred bull have been in ready demand. A majority of cattle going to outside points are being bought subject to T.B. test. The milk supply has passed the point of minimum production and now is well on the increase.

Dufferin.—Lambs are practically all sold this week. Cattle not being shipped so freely.

Wentworth.—There is an over supply of milk. The dairies are shutting off some of the farmers because of low test.

Lambton.—Report from local creamery are that 20,000 more pounds butter manufactured in December, 1923, than corresponding period of 1922; and 1000 lbs. more cream supplied in same period.

Peterboro.—Milk supply is increasing slightly as more cows are freshening all the time. Shippers of whole milk are receiving $2 per cwt., while those who are selling cream are receiving 43c. a lb. butter fat at the present time.

Manitoulin.—The number of live stock was greatly reduced last fall due to scarcity of feed. A great many herds went into winter quarters in thin condition. The long open fall which we experienced meant a great deal to farmers in saving feed. Nevertheless, many men are going to be scarce of feed and cattle are likely to suffer before spring.

Oxford.—Egg production now considerably on the increase. It would appear as though our demonstration in winter feeding is giving results.

Dufferin.—A few auction sales have been held, but bidding has been slow with prices rather dull.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Hamilton, Ont.,
Jan. 21, 1924.

To The Editor:

Dear Sir,—Sir Henry Thornton's after dinner speeches at Brockville, and sundry other places, seem to me to indicate, quite a serious misunderstanding between the people, the C. N. Ry administration and the Government.

He seems to feel instructed to manage the C. N. Rys. so the annual deficits will disappear, and be replaced at an early date by a surplus, and while succeeding nicely, he feels unable to reduce rates and continue that success, but if his employer, the Government, direct him to reduce rates in the face of his advice to the contrary, their wishes should be carried out. The people have the matter in their own hands, and the right to say.

I believe a great majority of the people of Canada want the rates on Alberta and Nova Scotia coal to Ontario reduced, and should make their wishes definitely known to the Government at once, asking that instructions to do so, be passed on to Sir Henry.

I differ with Sir Henry as to reduced rates in all cases resulting in a reduced net income.

I believe a rate of $4.00 per ton on Alberta coal in train load lots during slack seasons, would result in such an increased volume of business, that the net receipts would be increased, as demonstrated by the Laurier-Mulock Penny Postage, and a more nearly parallel comparison is the Glasgow St. Ry., endeavoring to eat up their surplus by reducing rates from 3c, 4c and 5c to 2c, which induced such increased traffic that it greatly increased the surplus.

The rate on Nova Scotia coal from Montreal to Hamilton, 372 miles, is $3.00 per ton, and the rate on U. S. coal from Detroit to Montreal, 563 miles, is only $2.90, or 10c less for 190 miles (50%) greater distance, which is most illogical. Many other similar cases should be corrected.

People! Make your wants in these respects known to the Government at once and get results.

Yours truly,
W. O. SEALEY,
61 Hunter St. West.

A critic is a most undesirable affix to any man's name when such criticism is made for self-parading or the embarrassment of another. A reference to street conditions at certain times will, I sincerely trust, be accepted in the same spirit as any business proposition. I refer to the icy condition of the sidewalks at certain times. All citizens approve of the sanding of the main parts or business section for business hours and the same can be done in regular working hours. Throughout the city the people that keep the wheels of industry revolving must get to their place of employment at an earlier hour or at least they must get to where a street car is available.

The Street Car Company sometimes keep a clearing car going all night in order to be in a position to take care of the employees of the various industries at the proper time in the morning. The railways do the same in order to move produce, freight and passengers thereby saving thousands of dollars to the country at large.

At the time of the year when ice is an impediment to such traffic the usual employees of the City are not busy and no doubt would welcome such emergency employment as probably from one to a dozen mornings during the winter months turn out at four o'clock in the morning and sand those streets, sidewalks that converge unto the street car lines and places of industry. The snow-plow men are required to do it and having a sand pit owned by the City and several suitable horses that are a credit to the City and their drivers, the additional expense would be nominal. The School Board take particular care to provide for sanitary surroundings for the children but if the water they drink was left in a dangerous state for lack of filtration, then all other provisions would be more or less neutralized.

The members of the City Council, who have already given evidence of loyalty to the City and the Mayor by relinquishing any position of chairmanship of Committee when a vacancy was threatened and "Runners Up" scarce, will no doubt come to the assistance of the Mayor and the Chairman who has those matters to deal with and have provision made in order to avert not only damages but protect limb and possibly life of those who are as stated compelled to get out early in order to keep the City industries humming, a condition of affairs for which we are all justly proud.

MYSTERIES OF MURDER TRIAL

Once More Ancient Superstition is Pitted Against Modern Science in a Poison Murder Mystery.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 24.—Black magic and sorcery are again to figure in a Cleveland murder trial.

And hundreds of superstitious believers in sorcery are eagerly waiting to see if Emma Colavito is again enabled to stand trial for murder and go scot free.

Her "black magic," they insist, resulted in the woman escaping conviction in the death of Dan Kaber, wealthy Cleveland publisher. And the same powers, they intimate, will bring her safely through trial on charge of poisoning Marino Costanza—if it doesn't prevent her arrest.

"Black magic"—which the authorities contend was a virulent poison—caused the death of Costanza, police say. They charge his wife, Mrs. Fannie Costanza, hired the Covalito woman to rid herself of Costanza, paying her $300 from the dead man's insurance policy. Charged with murder, the wife is held in jail, while police seek Mrs. Colavito.

A story weird is revealed by the atavistic spell possessed by Mrs. Covalito over hundreds of people. Mrs. Costanza, who sought her aid, is an Italian woman in poor circumstances. But Mrs. Dan Kaber, who is serving a life sentence in connection with her wealthy husband's murder, was equally firm in belief in this woman's "black magic."

Emma Colavito was tried, charged with having given Dan Kaber poison in his soup, and then, the poison not being swift enough to suit Mrs. Kaber, hiring two assassins who entered the house at night and drove an ice pick again and again into the sick man, while Kaber's own stepdaughter played the piano to drown the agonized cries.

Mrs. Calavito said she gave Kaber only harmless ingredients. The law contended she furnished poison. The "sorceress" went free.

Instead of destroying her fellowbeing, this served but to increase implicit faith of those who sought her advice.

In this twentieth century, greater and greater grew her business in "love potions," such as were sold in the middle ages. Her practice as a healer of the sick through the medium of the evil spirits also grew.

The law is searching for Mrs. Colavito.

And, should she be found, the battle between legal jurisprudence and dark age sorcery promises to attract even greater attention than the celebrated Kaber case.

CARPENTERS' UNION HELD EUCHRE PARTY

The prize winners were, Mr. E. Robinson, first prize; Mrs. A. Kircaldy first prize for ladies; Mr. William Guerin, second prize for gentlemen.

Mrs. E. Robinson second prize for ladies, and the consolation prize was won by Miss Kathleen Hennessey.

It is the intention of this Union to continue these euchre parties throughout the winter. As these parties are free it is hoped that the carpeners will take advantage of them and become better acquainted with each other.

R. W. WARD BRINGS INSTRUCTORS' CUP TO PETERBORO.

Peterboro County Wins Prizes in the Cheese Exhibition at Kingston.

Last spring an act came into force providing that no cheese or butter could be shipped out of Canada without first being graded.

At a convention in Kingston the chief Government grader presented his report on how the results of the new legislation work out.

The report showed that Leeds County made the most cheese of any other county, followed by Dundas, Prescott and Hastings. Northumberland county was twelfth, with Peterborough county fifteenth.

In the matter of quality Hastings county made the best cheese, 90 p.c. of its cheese grading 1st and specials. Lanark, Carlton and Glengarry counties followed very closely, each scoring from 88 to 90 p.c. first and specials. Peterborough, Stormont and Russell were in the third group, each grading from 8 8to 90 p.c. first and specials.

Central Ontario, including Peterborough county, made the best cheese in Canaad, scoring 85.6 p.c. first and specials. Eastern Ontario was second with 83.2 p.c. and Western Ontaroi was third with 82.7 p.c. first and specials.

At the convention there was an exhibition of cheese at which a prize was offered to the dairy instructor whose group of factories won the most prizes. This beautiful cup was won by R. W. Ward, dairy instructor of Peterborough, for the second time.

Peterobrough carried off ten prizes, not including a number of specials and the instructor's cup. The Peterborough County factories that won prizes were: Selwyn, Buckhorn, Fleetwood and Shearer.

Mr. Malroy of the Selwyn factory, exhibited in three classes and carried off three prizes. This is a very unusual record.

Mr. Ward virtually won the same cup he won two years ago, but lost it on a technicality. The cup has been won by a number of other counties before, but this is the first time it has been brought to Peterborough.

THE ENGINEERS' MEETING WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Thomas H. Fenner of Toronto Gave a Striking Address and Illustrated Lecture on Steam Boilers.

MANY PRESENT

Last evening the local engineers held a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. J. A. G. Goulet presiding.

The speaker of the evening was Mr. Thomas H. Fenner, Chief Engineer of the General Accident Assurance Company, Toronto Mr. Fenner had for his subject "Steam Boilers."

He stated that the boiler of to-day is far different and much improved than the boiler of 30 years ago.

He said that the first boiler to come into use was the shape of a kettle without any spout.

The next boiler was a plain cylinder boiler. There are still two of these boilers being used in New Brunswick. They are made of small plates, about three feet wide, fastened together with single rivets.

The next step was the cylindrical boiler with a long flue through the inside of the shell.

A further development was the Lancashire boiler, which had two flues instead of one. The only fault with this boiler was that the water underneath the tube would never get into circulation.

Mr. Fenner said that the height from the shell to the boiler should be from 40 to 60 inches according to the size of the boiler, while on the old type the space was only about 27 inches. This wasted much coal and caused a dense black smoke, which was full of unburned gases. The double lap joint which was used on these boilers failed many times, and it is now prohibited by the A. S. M. E. Boiler Code, on any boilers.

The dry back Scotch Marine boiler used years ago for marine practice, was later done away with, and a wet back boiler came into use.

The marine boiler of to-day is very efficient, and there are many of them in use. Some of these are about 16 feet in diameter, by 12 feet long, with four furnaces and about 1000 horse power.

They are being used in 90 per cent. of the merchant marine to-day, while the ordinary locomotive boiler is being used a great deal in submarines.

In England the fire box of this type of boiler is made of copper, but this is very expensive.

The vertical boiler was also very satisfactory and are mostly set up in the open air. The gases in this boiler are carried off by a cone shaped head at the top.

If these furnaces are not kept clean they are liable to crack around the fire box, and cause much damage.

The Sterling water tube boiler has a very small water content compared with the size of the furnace.

In the old furnaces the gases used to be inside the tube with the water outside, but the up-todate furnace is just the opposite; the water is inside the tube and the gases on the outside.

These boilers are not very likely to explode on account of the drums being so small and not being exposed to the heat.

The speaker said that the vertical watertube boiler, using wicks, is also very useful where there is plenty of space. There is one of these boilers used with success in Port Hope.

Mr. Fenner said that for very small places he thought the vertical watertube boiler to be the best that can be had. He said that there are quite a number of cast iron boilers in use at the present time, but there should be none, as they are so expensive to keep up and they are always giving out.

For any pressure up to 500 horse power the horizontal boiler is the best, but after that the water tube boiler is more satisfactory.

If your boiler is 500 horse power or less, there is no use of having a mechanical stoker installed, because it will not pay. There are quite a number of mechanical stokers in use, but they are mostly on boilers of over 500 horse power, where they should save both money and labor.

He stated that the chain stoker was also used a great deal on large boilers of around two thousand horse power. Good results have been obtained from the chain grate stoker. They enable the furnace to burn the lowest grade of coal. There are also a number of other kinds of feeders, such as the Murphy Automatic furnace and the Jones underfeed furnace. These furnaces are fitted with a first class ignition arch which is very important and saves much coal.

PILGRIMS INJURED GOING TO LOURDES

PARIS, Jan. 25.—(British United Press).—Fifteen Pilgrims to the reputedly miraculous shrine of the Virgin at Lourdes, whither thousands of believers come each year to be healed, were badly injured in a collision and derailment of street cars there Thursday.

It was first reported nine had been killed and 26 injured but later it was said that his report was exaggerated. Several similar accidents have marked Pilgrimages to Lourdes. One time a motor bus carried 23 pilgrims over a cliff to death; at another time a trolley car ran away down a steep incline nd thirty persons were killed.

AMBASSADOR TO RUSSIA DECIDED

LONDON, Jan. 25.—(British United Press, by Lloyd Allen, Staff Correspondent.)—Recognition of Russia by the new Labor Government probably will not be effected immediately it was learned authoritatively today. But the step has been decided upon and James O'Grady, of South Leeds, has agreed to accept the post of ambassador.

The new government was expected to take a hand in the more pressing and domestic problem—the rails strike—to-day. Tom Shaw, Minister of Labor, and Harry F. Gosling, Minister of Transportation, examined the situation and were to report to the cabinet whether the government intervention at the moment would be opportune.

It is estimated that a quarter of a million workers besides the engineers and firemen are now idle as a result of the strike. This number includes for example, more than 100,000 South Wales coal miners.

By-Election Needed.

James O'Grady's appointment as Ambassador to Russia, if confirmed, necessitates a by-election in Southeast Leeds, where either Arthur Henderson, Secretary for Home Affairs, or Henry Slesser, Solicitor General, probably will be labor candidates. It is likely that there will be a Liberal and Conservative candidate in the field as well.

AVOIDING INFLUENZA

According to latest reports no epidemic of influenza is so far scheduled for appearance this winter.

This acute infectious disease in practically all cases involves the respiratory tract, gastro-intestinal canal and in many persons the nervous system, together with a weakened heart and reduced circulation. It is also met with endemically (in certain localities or peculiar to some classes of people). One must constantly be on guard to stall off influenza during the germ season (winter and early spring).

To escape its devitalizing attack one should always avoid getting a chill, especially if one is not robust with strong powers of endurance. Any undue exposure during severe weather, or going for hours without food.

The gastro-intestinal tract must be carefully attended to to avoid any chance of intestinal poisoning. If the digestive tract is kept in a healthy condition by sensible diet and plenty of good drinking water, thus avoiding attacks of constipation, one may be fairly immune. Swollen and inflamed tonsils and adenoid tissue, or poisons from pus infection at the roots of teeth, may also weaken the system by poisoning the life stream.

Your condition of resistence should be constantly kept in mind to avoid influenza. Worry and nervous trouble lower your vital powers and weaken the endocrine system.

Beware of the least appearance of sore throat or a beginning dull headache. Don't let any such condition go for even an hour if you can possibly prevent it.

Be sure you get the full required time of sleep. Don't overwork your heart.

The weakened heart spells nervous ailments. These may seriously affect the kidneys and cause depression of the glandular system.

O.H.A. THREW OUT FIRST JUNIOR GAME BECAUSE LINDSAY MAN OVER AGE

Both Teams on Even Terms In Lindsay To-Night—O.H.A. Discovered Disqualification of Player Whose Certificate Was Altered.

PROTEST L. LEBARR.

Lindsay junior's advantage of one goal over the younger Petes was wiped out by the O.H.A. executive last night by annulling the first game in which Lindsay used a player named Hamilton who was over the junior age limit.

This action was taken by the O.H.A. on their own initiative, and followed the discovery that Hamilton's certificate had been altered. The local management, Messrs. LeBarr and Jackson did not enter a protest although everybody knew the Lindsay man was ineligible as he himself admitted by jumping to the intermediates.

The two teams will therefore start again on even terms in Lindsay to-night, the Scugogville lead of one goal having been pushed into the discard. It was reported here last night that Hamilton was charged with tampering his certificate himself and in that case it was felt that the O.H.A. would have helped the cause of common honesty in hockey by severely disciplining Hamilton.

On top of the news of the cancellation of the first game came a telephone message from Percy Bond who was attending the meeting that Lindsay had entered a protest against Lou Le Barr junior, alleging that he was over age and playing on the certificate of his brother Jack. Mr. Bond was informed that the junior certificates are all in order together with birth certificates, that certificates were properly issued by the O.H.A. to both the LeBarr brothers, and that the junior management are unconcerned, not to say disgusted, by Lindsay's manoeuvre.

From the foregoing the juniors will likely find a warm reception ahead of them in Lindsay tonight. Not they have given any cause for a razz rush. They were actually letting Lindsay get away with their one goal lead if Lindsay, in the circumstances, wished to accept it. They will go out tonight to pile up as many goals as they can against the return game here next week, but the LeBarr-Jackson invaders hope to have their own share of goals to bring home Saturday morning.

AMERICAN TEAM HAS GRIEVANCE

Demand Extra Badge For Professional Bicycle Rider to Act as Trainer.

CHAMONIX, France, January 25 (Canadian Press). — Serious differences have arisen in the Olympic skating competitions, involving the United States team, who, as the situation appeared last night, may not take part in the speed events on Saturday.

There is a dispute over the granting of an extra trainer's badge for use by Clarence Carman, United States professional bicycle rider, whom William Taylor, the United States manager, insists shall be permitted to act as a trainer during the games.

The French Olympic Committee has refused such permission, and the question remained unsettled last evening.

If the deadlock continues between Mr. Taylor and the French Olympic Committee, the participation of the United States speed skaters is considered extremely doubtful unless some eleventh hour formula is found to reconcile the opposing positions.

OFFERS TWO BOUTS TO MIKE M'TIGUE

Total of $100,000 For Matches With Carpentier and Young Stribling.

NEW YORK, January 24. — An offer of $100,000 for matches with Young Stribling, Georgia schoolboy boxer, and Georges Carpentier, of France, was made to-day to Mike McTigue, the world's light heavyweight champion, by the National Sportsmen's Club, of Newark N.J.

McTigue countered with a demand for $150,000 for the two bouts at a conference with Barry Blaufuss, representing the Newark Club, and it was indicated that an attempt to reach an agreement would be made within a few days.

The Newark promoters propose to stage a McTigue-Stribling match at the First Regiment Armory in March, and book the light heavyweight champion, if he conquers the Georgian, for a fight with Carpentier in an outdoor arena in June.

Stribling, who fought McTigue to a draw in a riotous bout at Columbus, Ga., last October, already has agreed to the match, acording to Blaufuss, while terms have been cabled Carpentier.

The boom in bidding for McTigue's services followed the formal severance of relations between the boxer and his manager, Joe Jacobs. Differences between the boxer and his manager have widened since the Stribling bout in Georgia, when they split over financial matters, and resulted in blocking several matches.

To-day, however, McTigue settled obligations with Jacobs by the payment of $6500 to the latter, who in turn tore up a managerial contract which did not expire until next August.

Tex Rickard played a part in ending the McTigue-Jacobs controversy and now plans to seek a title match between the Irish-American and Gene Tunney, holder of the American 175-pound title.

This match was originally scheduled for December at Madison Square Garden, but was cancelled on acount of McTigue's tilt with Jacobs.

Recently McTigue said that he would return to Ireland where he won his title from Battling Siki almost a year ago, but now has indefinitely abandoned this plan, inasmuch as he is free to manage his own fistic affairs.

MAKES MANY CHANGES

Elmer Smith, who started with Cleveland, went to Washington back to Cleveland, next to the Boston Red Sox, and finally to New York, is due for another change of scenery, this time to the minors, going to Louisville.

TOO MUCH SPEED.

Babe Ruth continues to be arrested for speeding. It happened twice in one week between Boston and Sudbury, Mass., where his farm is located, proving the Babe hasn't entirely reformed.

SCHOOL TEAMS IN ROUGH GAME

Collegiate Defeated St. Peter's By 1-0—Penalties Were Numerous and Good Hockey Conspicuously Lacking.

The Collegiate team got away to a good start yesterday afternoon when they defeated St. Peter's aggregation by the score of 1 goal to 0 after two periods of rather rough hockey in which very little combination was used. The both teams fought hard but there was hardly any time in the game that there was not somebody in the penalty box for tripping, slashing or bodying. The game was very good considering that this was the first time out for either team.

The St. Peter's boys received 8 penalties of which the greater part of these was received by V. Rishea, who was out for the Collegiate's scalps and not out to score goals. Risheo was chased five times, once for a sentence of five minutes for butt-ending Gilchrist in the last period. The P.C.I. boys also received 5 penalties, while both teams got off lucky in the penalty line as they both went at it hammer and tongs. The only thing that didn't happen in the game was a free-for-all fight.

The first period opened up at a slow pace but it soon got livened up a little. After several penalties both teams settled down and played more steady hockey. Milloy the St. Peter's centre man was the best for the yellow and reds while Holland also played a good clean game.

Woods and Ash were the pick of the Collegiate aggregation. Both goal tenders turned in a good game and were the cause of the small score.

Most of the rushes were the one man style with everybody trying to score goals.

The second period opened up at a fast clip with both teams trying to score the one goal that was needed to decide the game. The Collegiate team had a little the better of the play in this period but the St. Pete's boys also broke away occasionally, and their jaunts down the ice were always dangerous.

Ken Anderson handled the bell very satisfactorily.

The teams line up as follows:
St. Peter's—Goal, J. LeBarr; defence, L .Rishea and V. Rishea; centre, Milloy; right wing, J. Holland; left wing, T. LeBarr; subs, O'Brien and Carl.

First Period.

No score.

Second Period.

—Collegiate—Gilchrist, assisted by Pogue, 19 minutes.

In the second period Ash made a nice rush but failed to pass to Outram who went up with him. T. Lebarr tested Chambers with a long shot after a neat rush. L. Rishea shot wild after a combination rush with O'rien. V. Rishea was hurt when he went head first into the boards.

Woods made the nicest rush of the game but was tripped in front of the nets by VV. Richea when it looked like a sure goal. Lebarr made a clever save from a scrimmage in front of the nets. Milloy was benched for tripping Ash.

V. Richie made a clever rush.

V. Rishea broke aay for a nice rush and outskating the forwards got through the defence, but Chambers came out and met him and saved the game. A minute later Ash was benched for tripping T. Lebarr.

V. Rishea was chased for five minutes for butt-ending Gilchrist. Woods followed him for tripping Milloy.

L. Rishea broke aay and passed to Milloy who had nothing to do but push it past Chambers in the nets, but he failed, Chambers blocking clevery. Ash failed to pass after a long rush, thus robbing the Collegiate of another sure goal.

Milloy and Carl broke away for a nice rush but the latter missed the nets by feet. Rishea was then benched for slashing Ash.

Pogue broke away for a rink-end rush and when right in on top of the nets he passed to Gilchirst who let drive a bullet like shot in the corner of the net for the only counter of the game.

Gilchrist broke away for a nice lone rush but his shot was high. L. Rishea was benched for bodying Pogue just as the final gong was sounded.

CANOE CLUB LOST TO VARSITY THIRD

Students Won Seventh Consecutive Game in Junior O.H.A.—9 Goals to 3.

TORONTO, Jan. 25. Canadian Press. — Varsity III proved that they were well stocked with good substitutes at the Arena last night, defeating the Toronto Canoe Club by a score of 9 to 3, while playing minus the services of three regulars.

The regular defence trio, Dickenson in goal, and Porter and King in front of him, were the absentees.

Porter was also on the side lines, but did not play as he will be used in Varsity I and Hamilton game tonight.

BOWLING

EXAMINER LEAGUE.

Wednesday night the Examiner Five Pin Intershop League was in action at Solomon's Alleys.

Some great scores were rolled by both teams and bowlers.

Sweet essence of limburger, what a game the Caster outfit rolled. They knocked the pins flying in all direction and smashed every known record on Solomon's Alleys when the rolled 814 for a four man team. This is some rolling, and it gives each man and average of about 204 for that game. It was a pip all right.

Now let's get back and see what the different teams did. In the first games the Jobbers took two from the Casters. Next in line were the Directors and the Proofers, and the former took two out of three. Then came the league's most consistent team, the Inters and they dropped their thirty-third straight loss when the lost three to the Operators. To finish it up the Comps took two out of three from the Linos, the first half winners.

Now we'll pick out the stars for the evening. Well the high three games went to Rollie Glover, who rolled a beautiful score of 620, and besides having the high three for the evening copped the high three for the season. After a short lay off from stardom Max Swanston again bobs up in prominence with the high single of 240.

There were lots of 500 bowlers, at least ten making well over 500 and about as many right close unto it.

A peculiar thing happened to three of the different teams. The Caster and Jobbers in their games rolled the same number of pins for the three games each having 1940. The Directors in their three games with the Proofers also bowled 1940. The Linos were just five pins behind these three teams in their three games they having 1935. It is very odd for three teams to bowl the same score in one night and also to have ainother team within 5 pins of it.

Following are the scores:

REBEKAH LEAGUE.

Wednesday evening in the Rebekah Ladies League at Solomon's Alleys the Pinks took three straight from the Greens. And if you think some good scores weren't rolled just take a glance at the figures. The fair maidens sure were hitting them nice and some great bowling was witnessed.

Miss L. Freeman had the high three games of the evening when she rolled 405. She also had the high single of 198. She not only got the record high single for the alleys but she set up a score that will take some beating. Rolling 198 after only just learning to bowl in the past few weeks is no easy feat.

The Rebekah ladies are beginning to roll some dandy games now and practically every one of them had a good game and five out of eight of them went well over 300.

Miss F. Freeman and Mrs. E. Johnson of the losers rolled 356 and 352 respectively. Following are the scores:

MERCANTILE LEAGUE.

Last night at Solomon's Alleys the Merchants Press took three straight from the Bell Telephone in the Five Pin Mercantile League.

The Bell Telephone crew had about as much chance of winning last night as a small boy would have of breaking a window in a skyscraper with a pea shooter. The Merchants' Press gang were on, three of them bowling over 500 and the other two only a few pins away.

Elliott was high man for the evening, having 628 for his three games. He also had the high single of 253 and on the whole turned in a nice score. Alex Miller had 568, Herbison 558, and O'Connor 564 for their three games. Following are the scores:

BRINTON CARPET LEAGUE.

Last night at Solomon's Alley, in the Brinton Carpet League, the Windsors took two out of three from the Ardebils.

Some great scores were rolled and Shaughnessey and Martin shone up particularly, the former rolling 626 for his three games and the latter 616. Shaughnessy also had the high single of 280, which is no mean score. These two bowlers were hitting 'em perfect and were in great form. Some other good scores were turned in.

NEWS TRENT RIVER AND THE DISTRICT.

CANADIANS WIN WIDE SYMPATHY

Hockey Team at Olympic Sports Not Allowed to Practice.

CHAMONIX, France, January 25. —Canadian Press Cable. — Considerable sympathy in favor of the Canadian hockey and skating representatives, who are here to take part in the Olympic winter sports, has been aroused by the action of the Norwegians, Swedes and Finlanders, in protesting this morning at the Canadians trying the ice.

The Canadians had obtained permission to practice, for the first time in three weeks, but after they had been on the ice for three minutes they were summarily pulled off as the result of strenuous objections raised by representatives of Norway and Finland.

As the other competitors had had practices recently the sympathies of practically everybody at Chamonix, is now with the Canucks.

The team is in fine shape despite the lack of practice during the past three weeks.

Curling News

The local curlers had a big night of it last night. All the ices were taken up and eleven scheduled games were run off with several good finishes. One of the largest scores made this season was made last evening by R. Sturgeon who made a score of 22 and defeated his opponent W. Montgomery by 17 shots. The greatest surprise of the evening happened in one of the first games when R. F. Downey won from J. S. Skinner by one shot after a very close game' Alex. Kay after his return home from New York got away to a good start once again when he won from R. P. Best by 8 to 6. R. M. Hamiltons Quartette curled a nice game, but they could not win from G. B. NIAGARA FALLS IS NOW MERE TRICKLE

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Jan. 25 (Canadian Press).—The American Falls were practically dry yesterday only a trickle of water going over. Ice floes in the upper river became fast and formed a dam that held back the water, exposing the bed of the river from above. From Goat Island to the brink of the American Fall and rendering a great cataract practically dry.

STAR PLAYERS ON TORONTO TEAM

St. Mary's Will Give Petes Acid Test in Tonight's Game.

The St. Mary's senior team of Toronto, who clash with the Petes here to-night, consists of some of the most promising young players in the ranks of the Senior O.H.A. series, backed by several veterans whose record is well known. They have given every team that they have bumped into this season a determined battle and the Petes will have to show their very best brand of hockey to earn a decision. Brophy, the Collingwood boy who plays centre for the visitors, was a sensation in the junior series, and he has been in the limelight all season, in his first year as a senior. Frank Sullivan's shooting won more than one game for 'Varsity, and he is having a great year with St. Mary's, while Burke, one of the stars of last year's junior semi-finalists, is also developing fast Kitchen, one of the defence men used to be with Aura Lee, and played against the Petes here last season with the Leaside team. Teaming up with him is Glen Sullivan, a veteran defence player, who is a tower of strength to the team. The goaler, Kells, needs no introduction. He was a wizard as a junior, and is considered one of the most promising net guardians in the game.

The game wil start at 8.30 o'clock sharp, and with a good sheet of ice assured, it should be a memorable exhibition. It is hoped to have Aura Lee or 'Varsity down here next week.

Billy Evans Says

(By BILLY EVANS)

Near the close of last season the Detroit club secured a young southpaw from the Southern League by the name of Whitehill. This young man, by the way, just about made it possible for the Tygers to finish in second place. Incidentally Detroit seems to have picked up one of the most likely left handers that has broken into the American League in years.

Whitehill got his first chance to start a game against the world champions of 1923, the New York Yankees. Knowing the Yanks didn't care any too much for southpaws, Cobb started the youngster in one of the three final games between the two clubs. The Tygers won two of the three games. Whitehill figuring in one of the victories. Since Detroit finished second with only a half game to spare, it is easy to figure what a prominent part Whitehill's win played in the final standing of the clubs.

A few days later, after George Dauss had gotten away to a bad start against Cleveland, Whitehill was substituted. He retired the side without any runs being scored and blanked the Indians the rest of the way, allowing only two hits. That victory also helped the Tygers considerable.

In the game against New York Whitehill worked only six innings, being removed for a pinch hitter in the seventh. In those six innings New York made only one hit, a home run by Bob Meusel, but that was enough to keep the Yankees in front as the Tygers failed to score while Whitehill was on the mound. Detroit later tied up the game and won out.

Whitehill came to the Tygers reputed to have a world of courage. He sure showed it in his very first start. The incident that proved Whitehill had plenty of "guts," baseball slang for courage, had Babe Ruth as its central figure. When Ruth first came to the plate Whitehill paid no particular attention to him, worked on him as if he was a bush leaguer.

The first pitch was a curve that Ruth fouled. The next was a called ball, the third a called strike, making the count two strikes and a ball. At this stage of the game Whitehill pulled the prize bit of dramatics or comedy as you will have it. Walking toward the plate he called to Johnny Bassler, who was catching him:

"Don't forget to tell me when Ruth comes up."

Ruth turned around and looked at Bassler, a half grin on his face, which in a second turned to a look of scorn as if to say, you fresh busher.

Walking back to the box, Whitehill curved one over that Umpire Brick Owens called a strike. The busher had whiffed Ruth the first time he faced him.

Ruth, who a moment before was ready to cuss Whitehill for his freshness, immediately centered his attention on Brick in an effort to convince him that he had missed one. However, Whitehill had made an impression on the big fellow, for after the game he remarked:

"Cobb doesn't need to worry about that busher, he's going to get along. He sure is fresh, but he rather makes you like it. His line of talk is good and his pitching even better."

WHY THE MYSTERY?

More Behind Star Sprinter's Threat to Quit Than a Concert Singer's Job

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. — Track and field enthusiasts here are puzzled by the announcement that Bob McAllister, "The Flying Cop," is to quit the cinder path for a concert career.

BOB McALLISTER

A week or so ago McAllister appeared at local headquarters of the Amateur Athletic Union and asked that his name be removed from the roster. "I'm going to be a singer," McAlister explained, and without further comment walked from the office.

The air is rife with reports that MsAllister has no serious intentions of going into concert work, and the feeling exists that he has some other reason for retiring.

Some time ago McAllister was suspended for six months following a verbal altercation with A. A. U. officials. It is believed this still rankles in his chest.

McAllister, who has always thought pretty well of himself, may feel that he has slipped to such an extent that he can no longer hold his own with the stars of the sprinting world. Strengthening this thought is the fact that McAlister refused to compete in a recent event here when he learned that he would have to face Loren Murchison. McAllister agreed to run, but when Murchison was enrolled as an added starter he withdrew.

McAllister was a sensation in 1922, beating some of the country's greatest stars in both indoor and outdoor sprints. That year he won the national senior and junior 100-yard titles outdoors. A year ago he created a new American indoor record for 150 yards, covering the distance in 14 3-5 seconds.

THE REFEREE

GONE.

Days when railroad coaches were lighted by candles, days when conductors had to carry lanterns at night to see the tickets—these are recalled by William F. Sullivan. He's a conductor on the Boston & Albany. Will retire soon, after 52 years of service.

In all those years, Sullivan says, the only change he has noticed in people is their clothes. Styles come and go. So do people. Human nature rolls along, unchanged. The plot of life is eternal, repeating generation after generation, the same old thing. Actors, scenery and stage "props" change, but the show never.

GOULD.

In the early days of the telephone, an old-timer reminisces in the Wall Street Journal, the Western Union installed phones in business offices for demonstration purposes.

Jay Gould tried the new invention, then ordered it removed. He predicted it never would be of commercial value, never get beyond the toy stage. It reminds you of old man Vanderbilt who ridiculed the elevated railroad when it was first proposed.

Only within the last 15 years has it become relatively easy to get a new idea across—to induce people to adopt new devices without years of education and pleading.

BABY.

A nine-months-old baby crosses the Atlantic Ocean alone. His name, Ferdinand Gluck. He was ill and couldn't be brought with his mother when she returned from a tourist trip to Germany a month before. People on the ship took such good care of Ferdy that he even gained weight on the way across.

It strikes us as one of the finest tributes to civilization's wonders, that a baby less than a year old can travel a couple of thousand miles without its mother. A baby, you know, is the only subject on which everybody agrees.

BURIED.

In Kansas they discovered a great engineering job by primitive men—an irrigation system, including a canal from a huge dam that stored up the waters of Four Mile Creek. You picture those ancients, digging with bone and stone shovels, carrying away the earth in rawhide sacks.

A modern steam shovel would duplicate the job in a matter of days. Yet our greatest engineering achievements may seem as crude and primitive to people 2,000 years from now, as the work of the primitive Kansans seems to us today. Progress is slow, but certain.

DEVILS.

Quite a task, introducing movies to China. The Chinese were afraid of dark theatres, fearful of attacks by enemies and devils. So a wise Yank perfected a screen on which movies could be shown without darkening the theatre.

This invention will soon take the place of the stock ticker, Wall Street believes. On a screen above the quotation-board, the movie machine will flash prices in letters eight inches high, all in broad daylight. A boon to the chair-warming brigade.

STEEL.

Railroads this year will spend about a billion dollars for new equipment, according to estimates by Railway Age. Good news for the steel industry, barometer of general business conditions, for nearly a third of all steel produced in American mills relies on the railroads for its market.

More steel ingots were produced in 1923 than in any previous year except 1917—which, however, led 1923 by only a very small fraction. Forty-three tons of steel ingots were made last year, for every 30 tons in 1913.

Grover Cleveland Alexander, 36 years old, of the Chicago Cubs, is outlasting other veterans, despite his twelve years of constant work in the box. He has won more games than Babe Adams, Walter Johnson, Urban Faber, Marquard, Quinn, and others who soon must retire from the game.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

"THE WHITE ROSE"

"The White Rose" the big feature picture which is the attraction at the Grand for the last three days of the week is the latest production of D. W. Griffith which means that it occupies a niche by itself. A wonderful love story set amid scenes that show the mastery of Griffith's art "The White Rose" gripped everyone who saw it at the Grand last night. None of the master producer's most skilful touches have been omitted from his latest pictures. It is the painstaking attention to detail, the little bit of realism and effectively employed that make Griffith pictures stand out from the common run and his last release proves unmistakably that he has lost none of his genius. There are no big dramatic moments. No spectacular feature like the ride of the Ku Klux Klan in "The Birth of a Nation" or the "blizzard and the ice jam in "Way Down East" but the story carries a punch nevertheless and it is so logically developed its characters are so true to life and the beauty of most of its setting is so outstanding that "The White Rose" will be remembered by as one of Griffith's greatest successes.

Briefly it is the story of an orphan girl who secures a position in a hotel and under the influence of her fellow employees is taught to dress daringly to powder and paint and angle men, and still innocent as a child at heart, she bears all the outward signs of a woman beyond sense of shame. A young man about to enter the ministry arrives is fascinated by the supposedly sinful girl, there is a brief season of love making and he hurries away, heart-broken with remorse to his church and the sweet heart of is boyhood, leaving the girl to bear the shame alone. The story of how both the man and the woman have to pay and how they are brought together at least is a enthralling one as it develops under the wizardy of Griffih's art.

The cast leaves nothing to be desired. Mae Marsh scores a triumph as "the girl who couldn't stop loving and Carol Dempster has a part that gives her plenty of scope while Neil Hamilton as the young clergyman does some memorable acting. The minor characters are skilfully portrayed while the photography throughout is wonderful.

The effect is greatly enhanced by a beautiful orchestra score very successfully interpreted by an augmented orchestra while the singing of "Don't You Remember Sweet Alice Ben Bolt" by Mrs. J. H. Renwick is an artistic touch that adds to the charm of the picture.

The feature is preceeded by an intensely interesting film showing the establishment of a Mounted Police Post in the Arctic.

"The White Rose" will be the feature again to-night and to-morrow at the Grand.

AT THE ROYAL.

ANOTHER EXCELLENT VAUDEVILLE BILL AT THE ROYAL

Without a doubt the best dancing act to appear locally in many moons is now playing at the Royal under the name of Johnson and Hardy. What these boys cannot do with their feet is not worth doing. They received more hearty applause last night than we have heard any act receive since the Royal added vaudeville to its picture programme. The other two acts are also very good. Dale and Reed who call themselves the two nuts are just that. Their line of talk is clever and manner of presentation up to the minute. Le Roy and Lawrence have a novelty entitled "Reel Nonsense" their talk mostly based on the moving picture industry with special songs written for the act. It all pleased a large audience last night and should play to capacity for the balance of the week.

WANDERING DAUGHTERS COMING

Delightfully blending the emotions of two girls of contrasting natures in search of romance, "Wandering Daughters," James Young's First National picture version of an original story by Dana Burnet comes to the Royal Theatre on Monday for a three day showing.

Devoid of the dry sentiments of so many pictures dealing with timely topics, "Wandering Daughters" is said to be pleasingly different and highly entertaining drama, appealing to the most discriminating critics of the screen.

Revealing the adventures of two debutantes enamored of a male vamp and their activities in his company. "Wandering Daughters" develops many unusual angles and numerous surprising situations as it runs its length, according to its critics, and the entrance of two respective fathers into the social affairs of their inexperienced daughters is reported both amusing and highly dramatic.

Marjorie Daw and Marguerite de Motte are cast as the two principal "wandering daughters," and William V. Mong, Noah Beery and Allen Forrest are assigned the leading male roles.

GAVE SHOWER TO MANVERS BRIDE

Life's Purpose Discussed in Paper at the Young People's League Meeting—Should Be Vision of Service.

MARMORA, Jan. 24.—Two sleighloads of High School students and other young people of the town, accompanied the junior hockey team to Madoc on Wednesday evening. Miss Sauve, one of the High School teachers, acted as chaperon.

The Young People's League of the United Church was held on Wednesday evening at 87.30.

The citizenship department gave the programme. An excellent paper entitled "Living a Life is More Than Making a Living," was read by Miss Myrtle Kennedy. A few thought were:

While we have to make a living in order to live we should wish to live in such a way that the world would be the better of our sojourn here

The great tendency is to place too much importance on "making a living"—to have the chief aim of life "to get rich quick."

People who have a struggle to make ends meet, and yet keep their confidence in God's goodness and justice, are the salt of the earth and the backbone of the country because of their victory over self.

These are the people who, if their circumstances improve, know how to help the needy. Kindliness and brotherly love bring Heaven near to earth.

Some believe making a living is adding ciphers to their income. How much nobler they would be if they were making the world brighter for others to live in.

If making a living were the main end of life our real selves—our spiritual life—would be starved.

What matters if a man dies with little estate if he has done what he could in following in His Master's footsteps—if he has shown men

Also, in our work we should live a true life by always giving full value and always trying to do better.

The life should be a vision of service. to God and humanity.

This was followed by a contest entitled a "Floral Love Story."

The citizenship department won both the contest and the highest points for attendance.

At this point, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Robeson, a bride and groom of the New Year, were called to the front, where they were presented with a miscellaneous "shower" of kitchen linen, glassware and china.

After the gifts had been opened and the accompanying verses read, the League joined in singing "For they are Jolly Good Fellows."

Mrs. Robeson, who was Miss Riddle, an ex-teacher in Marmora, replied by a few well-chosen words, followed by Mr. Robeson.

The League closed by singing "Home Sweet Home."

AT THE CAPITOL.

'SCARAMOCUCHE' IS COMING

Rex Ingram Photoplay Pictures Sabatini Novel of French Revolution

The latest Rex Ingram production for Metro, "Scaramouche," a picturization of Rafael Sabatini's novel of that name, will come to the Capitol Theatre at an early date. The cast is headed by Alice Terry, Lewis Stone and Ramon Novarro.

"Scaramouche," according to advance reports from the larger cities, where it has been played as two dollar attraction, is one of the greatest pictures in screen history.

The story is laid in the time of the French Revolution and deals with the adventures of a young noble who takes the side of the people. Willis Goldbeck made the screen adaptation and the photography was by John F. Seitz.

Situations which are distinctly novel abound in the picture "TheIsle of Lost Ships," featured at the Capitol Theatre this week, and screened from Crittenden Marriott's famous drama of the sea. Modern characters are transferred bodily an an isle where lost ships dream amidst shrouding sea weed, where a marooned lost colony of some fifty men men live under weird conditions. The Sargasso Sea, where motionless waters and clinging weeds hold the crumbling skeletons of mighty ocean liners, is pictured in an entertaining production.

Milton Sills is the hero, the veteran, lean screen actor, whose work is always so satisfactory. As a condemned murderer on his way to the electric chair, he is guarded by Detective Jackson of the New York police force, a part played in fine style by Frank Campeau. Their ship is rammed by a derelect during a storm, and drifts helplessly into the kelp-strewn waters of the Sargasso Sea, and on to the Isl of Lost Ships, deserted by all but Frank Howard his guard, and the girl, played by Anna Q. Nilsson.

The oddity of the picture is borne out by the ensuing scenes, placed in the peculiar setting of the little colony. As often happens, an almost perfect setting is marred by the conventional pose of the main feminine actor. Miss Nillson persists in looking absolutely up-to-date and New Yorkese, her marcelled head absolutely unruffled, in situations where the other actors blend with their half savage environment.

Walter Long is as powerful and brutal as ever in a strong characterization of the Capt. Forbes of the lost colony. He and Howard fight manfully for the girl, who, according to the rule of the place, must choose a mate in 24 hours, and the vanquished captain marries them himself later with scant ceremony.

One of the most interesting sections is the escape of a small group in a submarine, with the plucky detective making his way through the torpedo tube to cut away the enshrouding weeds. To this picture is acorded the spontaneous response seldom received from a movie audience—that of applause at a thrilling moment. The art of the three main masculine characters in the cast makes it realistic and human, and one of the most thrilling pictures in a long series of good productions.

Anyone who likes thrills and unusual situations and realistic acting, with the element of danger in one form or another lurking constantly in the offing, a picture where a man's fight against almost overpowering odds is delineated by one of the best actors of the silver sheet, will want to see "The Isle of Lost Ships."

Larry Semon in one of his inimitable comedies, "Horseshoes," rounds out an excellent programme.

The music which accompanies the feature picture, adds to its attraction, and is well rendered by the orchestra, under Miss Gladman's skilful leadership.

BUSY SESSION KIWANIS CLUB

Many Speakers on Ninth Anniversary of Kiwanis —Several Visitors To-day.

The ninth anniversary of the founding of Kiwanis was fittingly observed by the Peterboro Club at the noon luncheon to-day. President John R. Marshall was in the chair and by skillful handling managed to run through an extended program within a reasonable time limit. The speaker of the day was Douglas E. MacVannel, a charter member of the downtown Kiwanis Club in Toronto Mr. MacVannel described himself as one of the oldest Kiwanians in Canada. Nine years ago said Mr. MacVannel, a group of earnest men met in Detroit hotel for the express purpose of accomplishing something. As a result of that meeting Kiwanis has emerged as one of the great organizations of the world. The organization stands behind the little people and helps them along life's great highway. It draws to itself men of the finest ideals irrespective or creed or craft. The future rests with us, said the speaker, who expressed the hope that the day would come when war would be unnecessary and that Kiwanis would be a moving spirit in the effort to make this possible. Continuing Mr. MacVannel said that the nine years of Kiwanis history was a record of accomplishment.
Mayor J. J. Turner who was a guest of the club said he recognized the fact that Kiwanis was well up in the field of endeavor and for that reason he had no special message to offer. He submitted, however, a series of resolutions which he said were not unseasonable even though the new year is well under way. We can make good resolutions every day, said the Mayor whose resolutions included an observance of the civic by laws, to refrain from the criticizing the Council for the sake of knocking and last but by no means least to be a booster for the home town.
Mr. Leon Fraser, representing the Chamber of Commerce, in the unavoidable absence of President J. J. Duffus, and Vice-President W. H. Bradburn, gave an interesting address on the subject of co-operation and enumerated many cases where Kiwanis Clubs and Chambers of Commerce are co-operating for the good of the community. Luncheon Clubs, said Mr. Fraser, do not conflict with the work of the Chamber of Commerce, and while some might be inclined to the view that the business man of to-day is organized out of existence, each organization is created by the business man to fulfill certain purposes for which it was created.

Other Speakers.
Mr. Roland Dene.., President of the Peterborough Exhibition Board, said the organization which he represented as president was trying to do something for the community. The Fair Board started with a pasture field and now have an exhibition plant valued at $43,000. It was a means of improving the quality of cattle, hogs and chickens. The latter said Mr. Denne, represent more money to-day than the wheat produced. The speaker thanked Mr. G. N. Gordon, M.P, Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., and others who had worked to bring the Peterboro fair to the present stage of its existence.
Mr. V. J. McElderry, president of the Peterboro Rotary Club, assured the Kiwanians that their efforts were appreciated by Rotary. He referred to the good fellowship that Kiwanis and Rotary promoted, and jocularly remarked that this fellowship was only marred when Kiwanian Joe Wearing appeared in solo work in Grand Opera House.. Friendship, said Mr. McElderry should not stop at where a man comes from or what he is. It should have a broader application.
Rev. Dr. C. W. Rose, pastor of the Murray street Baptist church, representing the Ministerial Association of the city, said the ministers of Peterboro live in choice fellowship While the Christian world in other countries might reveal a rift in the lute this condition does not prevail in Canada
The Booster to-day was Harry Boyle, who proceeded to tell of his experiences in the retail grocery business. Kiwanian Boyle's remarks were listened to with interest. The prize winners were Bob Mackey, W. Lacey and Billy Williams.
Visitors to-day included Miss E. MacVannel of this city, John Copeland of Toronto, T. Donaldson, Bruce Fowler, both of this city.
The soloists were Miss Lillian Eastwood and Dr. S. J. Graham Miss Eastwood was presented with a bouquet of flowers and the appreciation of the club to those who contributed to the programme in speech and song was moved by Kiwanian G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P, who expressed the hope that Mayor Turner's resolutions would be accepted in their entirety and seconded by Kiwanian Charlie Cook

ROBBERY THOUGHT MOTIVE OF MURDER

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—(Canadian Press.)— Mrs Martha Crooks, aged 52, widow, was found dead in her home at 184 Jameson avenue, this afternoon, with her skull crushed in by some heavy instrument. Bureau drawers and other receptacles throughout the house had been ransacked and it is thought that the motive of the assault was robbery.
The body was found by Miss Dulmage, teacher of Parkdale Collegiate, when she returned to Mrs. Crook's boarding house for lunch. Mrs. Crooks came from Dundas, Ont., last June, after twenty years' residence in that town, and took over the residence on Jameson avenue as a rooming and boarding house. She had only women boarders at present. One man who had been lodging there left the house last week.
Miss Gladys Fowler, niece of Mrs. Crooks, said that she was talking over the telephone to her aunt at 9.30. Later another niece called up the residence and could get no answer.
Mrs. Crooks' husband, who conducted a hotel in Dundas, died about two years ago.

Today's Quotations and Opinion and Reviews of the Ma kets.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 25. — (British United Press). — Stocks were stimulated in the early dealings on the stock exchange to-day by a number of constructive developments overnight. The federal reserve ratios kept up their extraordinary improvement, the ratio for the system as a whole showing a further gain on top of the sharp advances of the two previous weeks reaching 80.4 per cent against 8.1 a week ago and 76.4 a year ago.
The domestic oils were strengthened by another 25 cent advance in Pennsylvania crude oil.
Bethlehem went into new high ground on the move at 55 3-4, responding to the unexpectedly unfavorable character of the 1923 earnings statement and the declaration of the regular dividend on the common stock regarding which some misgivings had been entertained.
Stocks moved ahead vigorously through the first hour under the leadership of steel common which went into new high ground on the movement at 102 1-4, the highest level since spring.
Republic and Bethlehem scored further gains and American Can achieved another record high at 112.
Public interest in the market appeared to be increasing. Many commission houses declare that participation in stocks from the interior is larger than it has been since the early part of September. One broker, who keeps in close touch with the situation, says if the public interest continues to increase, transactions before many weeks will be running around 1,500,000 shares daily.
American hide and leather reached its best price on the current upswing. The preferred sold at 57 3-8 against last week's low of 50 7-8. There has been a great deal of conjecture as to whether two factions are trying to buy control of American hide and leather. Investigation shows that the buying of the preferred has been concentrated in a few houses for eight months, whereas buying of the comomn has been scattered. During the last two weeks, according to brokers, a good as buying of the common has been taken out of the street. There seems to be no doubt that the so-called Hopkins group is strongly entrenched and that it will insist on controlling the new board which is to be elected next month.

No? Then don't put it off another day. These short, dark days necessitate the greater use of artificial lights. Your Eyes are then put to more strain. Neglect now may mean poor vision in later years. We are always ready to give accurate advice.

Speculation

Now, Sir, it is my conviction that where there is no speculation, there can be no luck. As well might a man with his hands in his pockets expect a guinea to drop into them. People who, perhaps, have been born with a silver spoon in their mouths, or had enough to purchase them a hot joint every day, thrust upon them by accident, will tell you in speaking of any particular subject, "Oh, I will have nothing to do with it—it is only a speculation." Now, Sir, but for some speculation that had been entered into before they were, the one would have neither had the silver spoon in his teeth, nor the other the hot joint. Without speculation commerce could not exist.

Speculation is the soul of business.
It is the mainspring of improvement.
It is essential to prosperity.

PREMIER DISCARDS SECRET DIPLOMACY IN FOREIGN RELATIONS

BRITISH PUBLIC TO KNOW POLICY OF GOVERNMENT

Ramsay MacDonald Announces That Statements Will Be Given the Press of Foreign Negotiations If Circumstances Permit --Meets Diplomatic Corps

BARRICADES DOWN.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press).—Secret diplomacy will have no place in the dealings of Great Britain's new Premier, Ramsay MacDonald, with foreign countries.

Mr. MacDonald intends that the public shall be informed of foreign negotiations whenever the circumstances warrant. He also has decided that the discussions within the Cabinet shall not be kept "drum-tight," as it is claimed in some quarters was the case in the Baldwin-Curzon administration, but that the newspapers shall be given a communique after each session, summarizing the subjects discussed or decisions taken.

In conversation with the newspapermen yesterday, Mr. MacDonald said he always would be glad to receive them when public interests demanded or the time permitted. The premier's policy of acquainting the public with what the Government was doing was apparent Friday at the Press Bureau of the Foreign Office, where it was indicated that Mr. MacDonald might arrange to receive the newspapermen periodically, the same as is done by the President of the United States. In this respect Mr. MacDonald would revive the war time practice of David Lloyd George.

Desires Press Support

The Premier is represented as being anxious at the commencement of his administration to have the support and good will of the newspapers, as well as of the public. The old Press Bureau staff at the Foreign Office will be retained because of the experience of the personnel and its knowledge of pending government matters but Mr. MacDonald probably will add to it one or two men from the ranks of Labor on account of their special familiarity with the Party's policy.

'In order to get better acquainted with the foreign representatives accredited to Great Britain, Mr. MacDonald yesterday afternoon held an official reception at the Foreign Office or the Diplomatic Corps. Most of the ambasadors never had met the new Premier. They were presented to him in Lord Curzon's old office by Under-Secretary Crowe. Mr. MacDonald chatted in friendly fashion with the diplomats,: but did not touch upon the subject of official questions pending with foreign countries.

Barricade Removed

One of the first acts of the MacDonald Government has been the decision to remove the barriers erected to protect Downing Street, where the official home of the premier is situated, during the unemployed demonstrations which occurred under the coalition government. To this end the Home Office yesterday issued the following statement:

"The Government have decided that the wooden barriers in Downing Street and King Charles Street, which were erected to meet a special emergency, need not be retained, and steps will at once be taken for their removal."

Premier MacDonald has decided that Lord Parmoor, Lord President of the Council, shall be the British delegate on the Council of the League of Nations, in succession to Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, formerly Lord Robert Cecil. Lord Parmoor is to have a room at the Foreign Office. This will bring the Foreign Office and the League of Nations into closer relations than were possible during Premier Baldwin's administration, when Viscount Cecil was the representative on the League Council, but had no location in the Foreign Office.

Thirty Men Entombed By Illinois Mine Explosion

Reported By Telephone No Immediate Cause For Worry—Twenty Others Rescued Uninjured and Three Severely Burned at Johnson City.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ills, Jan. 26. — (Canadian Press).—A terrific explosion occurred in the McClintock Mine, operated by the Crerar Clinch Coal Company at Johnson City, Ills., in which 450 miners were employed, Friday afternoon. Three hundred and ninety of the miners operating on the 250-foot level were not affected. At the time of the explosion sixty men were entombed. Five of these were brought to the surface, three of whom were severely burned.

All the injured men were brought to the surface by the rescue crews. Thirty of the men are dead, six seriously injured, while eight others suffered burns about the head and body.

FASCISTI SEEK PUBLIC APPROVAL OF PROGRAM

Address to King Anticipating Elections in April Reviews Government's Policy and Work and Invites Nation's Clean Judgment.

ROME, Jan. 26.—An address to the King outlining the government policy accompanied the decree dissolving the Italian Parliament. The address declares that the end of the world war found Italy a prey of parliamentary groups, but that the country was freed of its embarrassments with confidence through the Fascisti movement.

The Fascist Government was a minority government, but it was accorded parliamentary support. In the enthusiasm prevailing at that time, elections might have been held, but the Government preferred to wait for the calm and conscious judgment of the nation. In the new elections, which will probably take place on April 6, the country will be able to pass judgment on the work accomplished and on the fascist programme, the address said.

State Retains Power.

The Fascist conception of the state involved no change in the fundamental principles of the constitution, it continued. While retaining its full juridicial sovereignty, the State was obliged to reduce to a minimum its functions of an economic order with a view to giving scope for the greatest development of individual initiative without prejudicing the collective interests.

The address explains that after relief was afforded the Government in accordance with this conception, a progarmme was adopted for the reconstruction of the nation materially and spiritually, and aiming to re-establish the legitimate authority of the State against all usurpations, as well as to improve the financial situation.

Nation's Dignity.

The Government had shown that it would keep faith with its treaties and was resolved to pursue a dignified safe foreign policy, maintaining a vigilant sense of its responsibilities. On the continuation and development of this oplicy, the address stated, the Government invited the clear judgment of the nation.

The new legislature ought to secure the participation of all the nation's forces, including the employment of youthful energy and the gradual collaboration of women in public life. If the people approved of this policy, it should result in insuring prosperity for the nation, the address declared.

The date of the parliamentary elections was definitely set for April 6, in a public decree yesterday.

The Magistrate said he would recommend to the Minister of Justice that the lash be added to the possible penalties under the Act.

Previous Trouble in Nova Scotia Mines Re-echoes At Convention of United States Mine Workers In Indianapolis.

UNION'S DEFENCE.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 26.—Miners of Nova Scotia were heard in defense of their deposed secretary-treasurer, James McLachlan, in the United Mine Workers' convention Friday afternoon, and proposed to continue their attempt to vindicate him when their deposed vice-president, Alex. S. McIntyre, took the rostrum to-day to answer charges made yesterday by former International President John P. White.

Strategy of the insurgent element failed them. It was planned in one of their caucuses to force consideration of the Alexander Howatt case Friday, and immediately afterward demand rehearsing of the Nova Scotia case.

Forestalling this plan, Vice-President Phillip Murray announced there was a misunderstanding concerning the Nova Scotia ruling of Thursday, and that it would be reconsidered. A motion was made that Alex. McIntyre, deposed vice-president, be given privilege to speak, and accordingly Mr. Murray called him to the platform.

Instead of making his speech, McIntyre said he had not his proofs with him, to clear McLachlan, but would have them to-day. He asked that the matter be deferred till then and something else considered. Mr. Murray advised the assembly that McIntyres' papers were somewhere in town, and that he should go get them, while other Nova Scotia miners and administration supporters continued the debate.

McIntyre left early in the afternoon and did not reappear until ten minutes before adjournment. Meanwhile, James Smith of Sydney Mines, Nova Scotia, told that McLachlan is in the penitentiary for the good work he did in Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, and charged that it was John P. White and not McLachlan who caused the reduction of wages in Nova Scotia.

Another Nova Scotia delegate repeated the charge and expressed the threat that "perhaps Canada will break away from the union because of this treatment of McLachlan. Maybe he did break the laws of the union, but he did not break the laws of humanity."

Joseph Nearing, of Reserve Mines, Nova Scotia, made another speech and when questioned by President Lewis admitted that the strike in Nova Scotia was called "in spite of the law."

"We must use force against force," Nearing said, "and not keep on sending resolutions." He said the

PRESERVE BODY OF RED LEADER UNTIL CREMATED

Moscow Health Official Would Provide Hygienic Example For People In the Final Dissolution of Lenine—Contrary to the Workers' Wishes.

WOULD BE FIRST.

MOSCOW, Jan. 26.— Work has begun, with the aid of dynamite, to break the frozen ground, on a temporary mausoleum in Red Square, in which the body of Lenine will be placed after the funeral ceremonies Sunday. The mausoleum will be deep-cellared, especially built to provide a uniform temperature, will be lighted by eelctricity, and by means of a mirrored ceiling the casket will be seen at all times.

Again yesterday there was a continuous march of people through the House of Unions to view the body of the Soviet Premier, and up to last night the number of those who passed through the chamber was placed at almost half a million.

Peasants and workers continue to arrive in the capital from distant points to swell the long lines awaiting entrance to the House of Unions.

Advocates Cremation.

Two diverging viewpoints have appeared concerning the ultimate disposition of the body of Lenine. The workmen in several factories have sent a petition to the Government that the body never be placed beneath the ground and suggest some arrangement whereby it would always be visible. Health Commissar Semashko is adovotaing temporary preservation having in view cremation at a later time, when a special crematory is constructed in Moscow, as an hygienic example to the people. Cremation is treated by the Russian people generally as heretical ,as is shown by the fact that not a single cremation has taken place in Moscow.

The Living Church has named a delegation of priests to attend the funeral. The Most Reverend Doctor Tikhon announced yesterday that Lenine, unlike Tolstoi, was never expelled from the church, and that therefore it is permissible to hold services for him.

"I consider him a good, real Christian soul," he said.

Will Remain Away.

Out of respect to the wife and family of Lenine, Doctor Tikhon thinks it best not to participate in the funeral procession, inasmuch as the premier never expressed such a wish.

At the hour of the funeral every train throughout Russia will be halted for five minutes. The sale of wines and beers ceased everywhere in Moscow yesterday, until after Sunday's ceremonies are concluded.

The action ranges around the manufacture and sale of a stubble burner.

Ontario's Minister of Forests Believes Increase In Output of Industry Should Be Watched — Many Applications From New Companies.

HEAVY FOREST LOSS.

MONTREAL, January 26 (Canadian Press). — Last year the Province of Ontario spent $1,100,000 on forest fire prevention, a sum representing over one-third of the total revenue from forest products derived by the Province within the same period.

Despite this expenditure, Ontario suffered the greatest loss of its history through forest fires, over two million acres being burned, 30 per cent. of which was high-class timber, 35 per cent. undergrowth, and 25 per cent. grassy or barren lands.

This was the declaration of the Hon. James Lyons, Minister of Mines and Forests for Ontario, in an address before the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association in convention here yesterday.

Will Make Survey.

Improved methods of cutting operations; a better system of fire prevention, and better disposal of the slash wood, were considered advisable by Mr. Lyons.

He also thought that the industry should be protected by careful watch on the addition of output when the market did not justify it. He stated that Ontario now has applications waiting for 12 or 14 pulp and paper industries, and he believed that before approval should be granted for their operation thorough investigation should take place in order that the industry might be protected. He added that the Province of Ontario proposes to have a survey to determine the amount of forest material in the Province, the amount of water power available, and the best measures required to secure a future supply of wood for the industry.

Advocates Embargo.

Asserting that no country ever became great by exporting its raw materials, C. Howard Smith, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association urged that every effort should be put forth to manufacture Canada's pulp and wood products at home.

The association adopted a report of the committee which had been investigating co-operative research, recommending an annual appropriation of $20,000 for use in developing and broadening out the work of the forests products laboratories of Montreal.

The sum of $2,000 was voted to the United States Forest Products Laboratories at Madison, Wis., for furthering investigation looking to

No liquor, except the bona fide property of members, may be kept on the premises, and this must be placed in separate lockers for each member.

SYDNEY STRIKE PARLEY SECRET

No Statement From Conference Room But Miners Believed to Be Holding Out For 1921 Wage Scale.

SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 26. — The wage conference of the joint committee of miners and operators rose Friday afternoon without giving any statement to the public. It is not officially known what trend the discussions are taking nor what progress, if any, is being made, but the general belief among the miners is that their representatives are holding out for full restoration of 1921 rates of pay.

The following statement was issued yesterday with regard to reports of the negotiations which have been circulated locally:

"Items have appeared in the local newspapers purporting to give information regarding the proceedings of the sub-committee engaged in considering the question of wages. These sttaements are entirely unauthorized and incorrect. It is understood among those constituting the sub-committee that no information is to be given out ,any statements which may appear in the newspapers in connection with the work of the sub-committee are authorized and should be disregarded by the public.

ATHLONE OPENS PARLIAMENT OF SOUTH AFRICA

New Governor - General Was Centre of Brilliant Scene—Streets Crowded — Imperial Conference Referred To.

EMPLOYMENT BETTER

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Jan. 26. — Canadian Press Cable, via Reuters. — Brilliant scenes marked the opening of the Union parliament yesterday by the new Governor-General, the Earl of Athlone.

Accompanied by Princess Alice the Governor-General headed a procession along crowded streets which were lined with troops to the Parliament House. The events attending the opening were followed with enthusiasm by the populace.

The speech form the throne referred to anxiety caused by unsettled business conditions generally and stated that all the papers in reference to the imperial and economic conferences held last October in London would be laid before Parliament. Mention was made of the conference resolutions which if put into operation would open wider markets for many South African products.

Help Farmers.

The speech continued that while conditions generally were improving, farmers over a considerable area were suffering as a result of the long continued drought and the invasions of locusts on a scale previously unknown in recent times. The government, in order to assist the farmers, had encouraged the institution of local co-operative societies to which advances might be made by the land banks on the ointt credit of the society members, the societies supervising the individual loans to the farmers.

Unemployment was happily diminishing, continued the speech. The state of the wine industry in the Cape province was causing the government much concern and proposals dealing with the matter would be submitted. Details would also be laid before the house pertaining to railway construction proposals, including the electrification of certain lines in Natal and Cape provinces and also the building of a line in North Zululand. The latter it was stated, was urgently needed for the opening of a large tract of country where cotton growing was already successfully established.

Fares Reduced.

The speech concluded by announcing that in consequence of the improved railway traffic the government proposed to reduce the passenger fares and the freight rates, especially on agricultural produce and food commodities. These reductions were expected to materially affect the cost of living.

The Government owned railways in South Africa totalled 9539 miles at the end of March, 1921, nearly half of this mileage being in the Cape Province.

CONCESSION TO STEEL COMPANY WAS DISCUSSED

Witness in St. John's, Newfoundland, Enquiry Alleged That Ex-Premier Squires Had Sought Campaign Fund.

MET IN MONTREAL.

ST. JOHN, Nfld., Jan. 26.— The chief evidence taken Friday at the Commission of Inquiry into the alleged misdeeds of Sir Richard Squires when Premier of Newfoundland ,was that of John T. Meaney, former liquor controller, who gave testimony in corroboration of the statement of James J. Miller regarding their stated joint efforts of obtaining sums of money for Sir Richard from the Dominion Iron & Steel Co. in return for modification of that company's contract with the Government of Newfoundland.

Mr. Meaneys' testimony was interrupted Thursday by a demand from Mr .Lewis, counsel for Sir Richard Squires, that it should be barred because of irrelevancy to the main topic of the investigation. The Commissioner ruled to the contrary and when yesterday morning's session opened C. E. Hunt, Government counsel recommenced examination of the witness.

Campaign Fund.

Mr. Massey stated that in December, 1921, he obtained leave of absence from the Colonial Secretary and went to Montreal where he met Sir Richard Squires and conversed with him regarding labor troubles at Bell Island where the mines were then closed down. They had also discussed the possibility of obtaining $100,000 from the British Empire Steel Coropration. Sir Richard told him he desired to obtain campaign funds and said he thought he could do so through D. H. McDougall, the contribution to come from the British Empire Steel Corporation. Sir Richard named the amount. Mr. Meaney had undertaken to bring the proposition to the attention of Mr. McDougall. He had seen Mr. McDougall at his office in Montreal the day following his conversation with Sir Richard. He first discussed the Bell Island labor troubles with Mr. McDougall and then told him of Sir Richard's demand; the amount and the prospects of altering the contract between the government and the company as a quid pro quo.

Exorbitant Sum.

Mr. McDougall, he said, had asked him if the $100,000 were to be additional to the $51,000 already given Sir Richard. He thought the amount of the demand exorbitant, said he would have to refer the matter to the Directors and expressed the opinion that they would scarcely stand for the payment of more than $15,000 to $20,000. Mr. Meaney said he reported the result of the interview to Sir Richard who had remarked thta the mater might be allowed to stand for the present. Mr. McDougall stated to him subsequently he testified, that if the amendments asked were made he would recommend the payment to Sir Richard Squires. The amendments asked for were the cancellation of clauses calling for expenditure of $3,500,000 in Newfoundland in a specified period.

S. J. Jenks, counsel for the British Empire Steel Corporation, stated that Mr. McDougall would like to be here for the proceedings. He is now in Vancouver, but would come if needed.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE EXAMINER:

Women are the most beautiful things on God's creation and the men are supposed to look after them. If women lost their charm and their beauty it is the men's fault and not the women's. Religion is the knowledge (education) to look after everything on God's creation. If a man has no religion (no education) he don't know how to look after women and children. A man has six days to use his hands and on the seventh he should use his reason and educate himself. If a preacher says that it is far harder to go the right way in other words, to do the right thing, he don't know what he is talking about. Because it is easier to hit the nail on the head than to hit your own finger nail. If a man has a good religion (education) his wife don't need to go to church to get it If a man has a good religion he knows how to raise perfect children and he should know how to make a government that don't blow down every time an election hits it.

If a man makes money talk it is all right, but if money makes a man talk it is all wrong.

Religion is the A B C to success, to prosperity, to good health and science is nothing compared to it. That is the reason that all men should go to church if religion is taught there.

I remain a distant relative to

GAVE ADDRESS LAST EVENING

The Surrender of the German Navy Was a Stirring Event.

The Rev. Maurice R. Kingsford gave a lecture last night, illustrated with interesting slides, in St. John's school house, the subject being "The Surrender of the German Navy." The slides included photographs of the greater German battleships proceeding under their own steam between two long lines of His Majesty's ships of the Royal Navy. The diminutive cruiser Cardiff led the way and indicated to the German monsters where they were to follow. They were also shown photographs of the smaller German craft, submarines, destroyers and light cruisers. Other photographs of the raider Emden showed how she was eventually driven ashore on the Cocos Islans by the Cruiser Sydney.

Two of Admiral Beatty's signals are well worth remembering. The first one to the German fleet, "The German flag will be hauled down at sunset and will not be hoisted again without permission." The other signal was a message to the British Empire, "The surrender of the German fleet has secured the freedom of the seas for such as pass thereon upon their lawful occasions, and is a testimony to the value of sea power which the people of the British Empire will forget at their peril." We in Canada should ponder over and act upon these memorable words. At least some of us are alive to our responsibilities. The Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, in a speech the other day at Drummondville, Quebec, said: "I ask you if you think we can stand within the Empire and not play an honorable part. Better far be out than not play an honourable part. Then we could hold our heads up. But if we step out, let us not forget the territory into which we step."

Mr. Meighen declared that Canadian defences on the water were a joke and on land scarcely sufficient to maintain order in Canada. Coast defence cost $1.11c. per head, against 14 1-2 in the United States. If independent, Canada would be subject tto all the perils to which the United States was subject. "When we talk about imaginary isolation, let us reflect," he said, "what that isolation would entail."

What was said in Quebec is even more applicable to Ontario. For Ontario, by its traditions, by its wealth, by its industry, by its geographical position and by its own intention must always lead Canadian public opinion. If we are born into a vast Empire we have equally great responsibilities. Let us have a vision as wide and expansive as our Empire. What was it that made the German navy, one of the most powerful in history, surrender without a shot? It was owing to the prestige and the traditions of the Royal Navy. Founded by Alfred the Great it has turned out a succession of great admirals who fight hard and keep their powder dry. Drake, who singed the beard of the King of Spain; Blake, who was a whip for Van Tromp, Lord Howard, of Effingham, who defeated the Spanish Armada; Admiral Sir George Rooke, who took Gibraltar; Sir Richard Grenville, immortalized by Tennyson; Rodney at the Saints, Hawke at Guiberon Bay, and last and greatest of all, Nelson at Trafalgar, have handed down a tradition enough to make any man consider, so the Germans thought, and of this their surrender at Scapa is a meek reminder. We Canadians can claim all this tradition as our own. Our heritage is a goodly one and let us not throw it away. At this moment our commerce is beginning to find its way over the seven seas. Our Pacific commerce has increased of late more than four-fold. Already the volume of our exports is reckoned among the first half dozen countries of the world. On the other hand, the last time I saw our flagship, the Niobe, she was covered with barnacles, her funnels were hanging over the side and her decks were being used for colthes lines. Let Canada awake to her responsibilities and develop her share of our Empire fleet. Let us support the Navy League and all healthy national institutions of a similar kind, and let us not be provincial, indifferent or hostile. If we are a thousand miles from the sea, let us remind ourselves that the Empire covers a quarter of the globe. If we are afraid of our burden we may rouse ourselves in the spirit of the poet and not permit our heritage to slip, "through craven fears of being great."

If a dog barks at night in Japan the owner is arrested and sentenced to work for a fixed time for the neighbor whose slumbers may have been disturbed.

CHURCH UNION BILL OPPOSED

Petition to the Manitoba Legislature to Incorporate United Church of Canada Encounters Objection.

WINNIPEG, January 26 (Canadian Press). — Declaring that the Presbyterian Church had no power to authorise Rev. Dr. Gandier, the Moderator, to sign the petition, H. A. Robson, K.C., on behalf of the Anti-Unionists, objected to the regularity of the petition for a Bill to incorporate the United Church of Canada, when it came before the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature yesterday.

It was decided by the committee to allow the petition to go forward with a note that certain objections had been made, and the question of regularity would then be determined, when representations would be heard from the objecting parties.

The Bill introduced into the Legislature by A. McGregor, the member for Gladstone, will come up for second reading in a few days.

The speaker on Thursday ruled that inasmuch as the Presbyterian Church was not an incorporated body in Manitoba, the petition from that body could not be considered as the application of the Church, but only as the personal request of the Moderator, and would so appear in the records of the House.

This decision may have a very important effect when the Bill reaches the committee stage, as the Anti-Unionists will strongly oppose the Bill, and will urge that the Moderator has authority to sign any petition which would bind the Presbyterian Church.

RECEPTION FOR WARDEN FOWLDS

Band at the Station Last Evening-- The Citizens Turned Out in a Body

HASTINGS, Jan. 26. —A large and representative gathering from the town turned out last evening to welcome W. M. Fowlds, the newly elected Warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham. The Highland Band, led by Bandmaster Neil Scriven, was at the depot and escorted the procession to the Opera House where a gathering had been arranged in honor of the new appointee. Mr. Alex. Wilson who has been clerk of the municipality for the past 35 years acted as chairman.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Wilson congratulated the new Warden remarking that during its fifty years of incorporation, Hastings had never yet been honored with the Wardenship.

Warden Fowlds thanked the rate payers for electing him by acclamation for 1924, and referred to the desire of his father who had served on the Council 25 yars before, that his son should be Warden. In the year 1874, his uncle was warden of the United Counties.

He also thanked Reeve C. Davidson of Campbellford and Deputy Reeve Nelson of Percy for the influence used by them in helping him to the wardenship.

Rev. C. S. Bretherton, Dr. J. H. Hess, who has been Reeve Fowlds' opponent for the past six years,dropping out this year to give the position to the latter by acclamation, H. Nelson, deputy reeve of Percy township, Rev. D. A. Thomson, Dr. W.E. Wilson, ex-Councillod R. C. Doxsee, Councilor S. Hatherley, and former Councillor C. P. Plant, followed in turn, with short speeches, congratulating Warden Fowlds, and wishing him well in his work.

Warden Fowlds, in a few well-chosen words, expressed his appreciation of the many good wishes extended him, and thanked Dr. Hess particularly for standing back this year and helping him to be elected Reeve by acclamation.

A violin solo was given during the evening by Mr. Shand. and a vocal solo by Mr. McDonald, Miss C. Doxsee acting as accompanist.

CAMPBELLFORD GETS ANOTHER

Defeated Keene in a Good Game of Hockey Last Evening--Story of Game

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 26. — The fans who passed up the hockey game last night missed a good hour's entertainment, when Campbellford kids tacked on an 8 to 2 defeat on Keene in a Trent Valley League fixture.

The Keene boys have improved wonderfully and will be hard to beat for the rest of the schedule. They are learning to play their positions and check back good, but lacked the finish around the nets. Their methods of stopping the puck carrier are rather crude and although penalized frequently they got away with a lot of stuff they should have served time for. Jack Archer and Lefty White were on the sick list and Howard Wood was pressed into service at left wing. He worked in fine with Ayrhart and Bulford, the three of them pulling off some nice combinations.

Bulford opened the scoring when he took a pass from Cowell, after Jack carried the rubber down to the defence. Bulford also bagged the next when he took a pass from Ayrhart right in front of the net. Cowell took a lone jaunt down the ice, but was tripped just as he was going to shoot .He came back again a minute later and passed to Bulford, but he hit the end of the rink. Ayrhart following in fast, secured the rubber and slammed it past Renwick for number three .

Keene were having their share of the puck in mid ice, but could not break through for many close shots. Bowie finally landed one from a scrimmage in front of the Campbellford net.

Ayrhart carried down the side and passed to Brown in centre, who skated right in on top of Renwick to score, making the score 4 to 1 at the end of the first period.

In their previous games Keene have failed in the second period, but they upset the dope last night and played their best hockey of the night.

Fletcher, who played nice hockey all night, broke away alone and made no mistake when he got close in, picking out the corner of the net. Wood's shoulder was badly hurt when he crashed into the boards, and Campbellford finished the game with six men.

Ayrhart and Brown combined again for Campbellford's only score in this period.

Both goalies handled a number of shots in this period, but both were on their best behaviour, and the sharpshooters had to be content with 1 goal each, making the score 5 to 2 at the breather.

Both teams gave their last ounce in the final period, and battled on even terms till half-way through, when Bulford secured at centre, carried down to the defence, and passed to Cowell right in front of the Keene net. Bulford and Brown went down again and bulged the twine, but were called back for offside.

Cowell went all the way through alone, only to be tripped again. He came right back with Ayrhart, and just missed the net by inches, but grabbed the rebound off the boards and slipped it in before Renwick got set for another shot.

Keene made numerous rushes, but were checked pretty close, and what shots they had Saunders handled in fine style.

The Line-ups.

Referee, W. Wellman, Hastings.

OTTAWA, January 26 (Canadian Press). — Canada imported more than twenty million dollars' worth of alcoholic beverages during 1923, and exported thirteen million dollars' worth. Figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics yesterday show a decrease of one million dollars in alcoholic drinks imported last year, as compared with 1922, and a decrease of seventeen millions imported in 1921.

Of whisky, Canada imported fourteen and a half million dollars' worth and exported eight and a half million dollars' worth.

The total imports in alcoholics was $20,607,338.

Knew the Purpose Behind His Altar

An amusing story is told of Tim Sullivan who yesterday interviewed the County Council relative to purchasing a strip of land which has been separated from the bulk of his property by a forced road.

Some years ago the late Rev. Father Keilty, who was changed from the pastorate of Ennismore to Douro purchased a new altar for the Douro Church. Very proud of his bargain, the Reverend Father while showing Mr. Sullivan the altar explained that he had saved several hundred dollars on the price by going personally to Montreal.

Mr. Sullivan forgetting where he was, and to whom he was speaking exclaimed: "Don't that beat the devil?"

"Yes", replied Father Keilty, "that's what the altar is for!"

TEAM STOOD WITH ITS DEAD DRIVER

COBOURG, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press).— With their driver, Roderick Meckenzie, of Centreton, dead on the roadside a team of horses attached to a farm sleigh stood in a snow blocked road for three days near Baltimore. They were discovered on Thursday held in leash by the reins which were wound around the whiffle trees.

The remains of Mr. MacKenzie were brought to McArthur's undertaking rooms. On Thursday morning the body was found surrounded by deep snow drifts. On Monday afternoon he was in Baltimore with the team to be shod and left village about 5 o'clock. The sideline where he was driving was drifted in and it is supposed that the sleigh upset and the rack in sliding off struck him on the side of the head. He was considerably bruised.

CLOSING SESSION COBOURG COUNCIL WAS HELD FRIDAY

Committee Reports Took Up Most of the Time—Officers Appointed.

COBOURG, January 26. — The closing session of the Counties Council on Friday morning, was devoted to dealing with the reports of the various committees.

The Committee on Schools, of which Reeve Holdaway of Port Hope is the chairman, recommended that 200 copies of the school inspector's report be printed for circulation among the various sections.

Reeve Holdaway will represent the Council at the annatl meeting of the O.E.A. in Toronto at Easter.

Finance Committee.

Deputy Reeve W. F. Elliott of Murray, chairman of the Finance Committee, reported in favor of grants of $750 in each case to the hospitals at Cobourg, Port Hope and Bowmanville. The request for a contribution of $100 for the celebration of the W.E.I. to be held in Belleville next summer, was denied.

The sum of $70,000 will be expended on the county roads in each county during 1924.

In case the counties are required to pay their share, 20 per cent., of the cost of the provincial highway this year, it is recommended that no work be done on the road between Port Hope and Welcome. This would reduce the total estimate of $398,320 by $75,000, and would lessen the counties' share of the outlay by $15,000.

Officials Appointed.

Reeve W. T. Wood of Millbrook, and Col. F. D. Boggs, Mayor of Cobourg, were appointed auditors of the council's Justice accounts.

Walter N. Wilson of Hope, and Jas. Webb of Roseneath will act as municipal auditors.

Deputy Reeve Beial of Brighton township and Reeve Staples of Manvers, were appointed to the Board of Management of the House of Refuge.

Grant was Refused.

For the second time the council refused a grant of $400 to Lewis Osland of Hope township, whose traction engine was ruined when it broke through a bridge. The claim, turned down last year, was ably pressed at this session by Reeve Lawson of Hope. The vote stood 27 to 8.

Snow Fence Bylaws.

One of the new bylaws passed was one giving effect within the counties to the statute which confers upon municipal councils the right through their road superintendent to remove all fences that cause drifts on the county roads. In case an owner refuses after being notified to take away his fence, the road officials can do so, in which case the question of compensation is to be settled by arbitration.

The municipalities will pay atleast a portion of the cost of replacing the old fences with wire structures.

The council then adjourned subject to the call of Warden Fowlds.

BANDITS BEATEN BY A COOL WOMAN

Calmly Telephoned to Police While Robbers Held Gun on Her Husband.

HAMILTON, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press). — Looking through the partly open dining room door, Mrs. Hugh McGoldrick saw her husband a grocer, being backed into the corner of the front store by two armed thugs late yesterday.

As one of the bandits leaped the counter and made a dash for the cash till Mrs. McGoldrick coolly took the receiver from the telephone behind the door and speaking in audible tones informed police.

Both bandits heard her. The one who was covering McGoldrick with an automatic made a threatening move. The other bandit, being unable to open the till, jumped back over the counter and both men fled. They got nothing.

LOOK FOR BABY FEW WEEKS OLD

WOODSTOCK, January 25 (Canadian Press). — Proceedings were taken to-day to seize practically all the property and effects of Peter Robinson, of Blandford Township, arrested with his wife yesterday and brought to jail here, charged with assaulting an officer in the discharge of his duties.

The farm has already been posted for sale for arrears of taxes.

In all, the farm is involved for about $7,000

When the application was being made yesterday for permits to make Robinson's children wards of the Children's Aid Society, Magistrate Bell said that he understood that there was a baby two or three weeks old, as he had been informed that a child was born to Mrs Robinson about that time.

However, the police who took part in the raid said there was no sign of any baby there yesterday, and that only seven children had been found.

The matter is to-day being investigated.

STOP IMMIGRATION IS LABOR'S ADVICE

TORONTO, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press).—That everything should be done to counteract the immigration campaign of the Ontario Government in Great Britain is the advice of organized labor of this city to Ramsay Macdonald, the British Premier, contained in a communication which is being sent to him by the District Trades and Labor Council and by the unemployed of Toronto, and to members of the British House of Commons.

DISTURBED WINTER SLUMBERS OF BEAR

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 26. — (Canadian Press). — When Robert Brown and his son, Donald, of Milford Haven, were cutting logs yesterday on their farm, one of the trees fell across the winter den of a huge bear. This was unknown to them until after two logs had been sawed off from the tree. The bear then crawled out beside them and ambled off into the swamp. Securing guns, they followed him, and finally shot him about a couple of miles from where he started.

the industrial use of decayed wood.

Industry Healthy.

In his annual address the retiring president, H. F. E. Kent, said that the industry had come through the preceding twelve months satisfactorily, and that it is to-day in a reasonably healthy condition. He declared, however, that the industry was suffering from excessive taxation, which was in the last analysis responsible for higher production costs. He charged that the tariff changes made by the Dominion Government had not helped the industry much, but had on the contrary opened the doors to increased imports of British paper.

Mr. Kent said the executive council of the association had laid before the Royal Commission now considering the subject the extreme desirability of husbanding Canada's pulpwood resources.

If exportation of pulpwood were to be permitted to go on as at present, a fair exchange would be the granting of free entry into the United States market of Canadian paper boards, wrapping and book papers.

The council has commended this suggestion to the Government.

STREET CAR CONDUCTORS OPEN THE FARE BOXES

TORONTO, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press). — Sensational disclosures have been made of irregularities on the part of some conductors in the employ of the Toronto Transportation Commission. About twenty men are involved, most of whom are operators of one-man cars. The Commission intended, in the first instance, to prosecute the conductors in question, but it was stated last night that the matter would not be taken to the courts. An arbitration has been suggested to fix the amount of losses and to arrange for restitution by the offenders.

The sudden dismissal of these conductors was the first indication they had that the rifling of fare boxes had been discovered.

CUTTING ICE.

The Provincial Board of Health has forbidden the cutting of ice from the Otonabee River between the waterworks' dam and Hale's Bridge.

The order not only prevents the harvesting of ice to be used in cooling beverages, but it also bars the cutting of ice for general refrigeration purposes, even if it is difficult to conjure up any reason why there should be any particular danger in such a practice.

Without going into the question at all of the necessity of this precaution, it is obvious that the board has not shown much consideration for the individuals and firms affected by its orders.

Unless the water has all at once become violently dangerous—and there is no evidence from any quarter in support of that suggestion—it is difficult to see why the board should have waited until the ice harvest was under way before discharging its bombshell.

The conditions were known to the authorities. It would have been only common courtesy to have intimated well in advance of the ice season that the section of water in question was to come under the ban, thus giving an opportunity for other arrangements to be made.

THE BURNS ANNIVERSARY.

"O Scotia, my dear, my native soil,
For whom my warmest wish to Heaven is sent.
Long may thy hardy sons of rustic toil
Be blessed with health and peace and sweet content."

Bobby Burns wrote those words away back in 1790, and the great love of the man for his beloved Scotland breathing forth from every line explains to some extent the reason why Scotsmen the world over gather on the anniversary of his birthday and honour the memory of the great poet.

His love for Scotland and his love for humanity—therein lies the secret of the worshipful affection every Scot has for the memory of Burns, in his grave this one hundred and twenty-eight years.

In common with brother Scots everywhere, Peterborough's Caledonians right royally celebrated the 163rd annivessary last night, with the skirling of the pipes, due honour to the haggis and a programme of speeches, Scottish songs and stories.

It was a happy affair, and it served to show that the poet's good wish that Scotland's sons "be blessed with health and peace and sweet content" has been fulfilled so far as Peterborough's Scots are concerned.

NO EMPLOYMENT DOLES.

Unemployed in Toronto want the Government to furnish them with work, or failing that to supply them with financial assistance sufficient to carry them over the unemployment period.

Probably the hope that animates many of the workless is that unemployment doles "as they have them in England" will be established.

They should be disabused of that idea as soon as possible.

It is difficult to estimate the harm that has been done in Britain by the payment of money by the state to the unemployed.

The demoralizing influence of this form of getting something for nothing has been most pronounced; it has so affected some recipients that they have lost all ambition, all incentive to work.

There is no reason to hope that anything better would follow the establishment of a doles system in Canada, and the unemployed in Toronto who are waiting around for the Government to turn on the tap should be given to understand that there is no hope of what they ask being granted.

The Federal, Provincial and municipal Governments should do what they can to provide work, if that course is possible, but beyond that they should be very careful as to what they do.

The impression must not be allowed to develop that Canada proposes to provide a living for men who are unwilling to work or who will work only at an occupation selected by themselves.

SEVERING WITH FRANCE.

Professor George M. Wrong of Toronto University, in a lecture given in Convocation Hall last week on conditions in Europe, gave it as his conviction, after most serious consideration of all the issues, that the time had come when Great Britain should make a definite break with France. It ought to be said that this announcement of opinion was made in a very noticeable tone of regret. It might be said, also, that it did not call forth any great enthusiasm from Professor Wrong's large audience.

It is undoubtedly true that France's attitude toward Germany has seemed to the average Britisher an altogether impossible one, says the Christian Guardian, and her persistence in it has caused him no little uneasiness and very much regret. But we do not think that that same average Britisher has yet reached the position where he could think of a break with France either as a wise or even a possible proposition. Maintaining the entente may be a somewhat difficult, or even at times a very exasperating, task, but it is not at all evident what would be gained, for the peace and welfare of the world, by breaking it.

The average Canadian, at least, finds his sympathy with France persisting, even in the face of conduct that he can hardly understand, and certainly cannot condone. Perhaps one reason for this is, that he has a feeling that, perhaps, he cannot quite understand all the reasons and impulses that help to produce the French state of mind. He finds it somewhat easy to be generous in his judgment of the Frenchman, because he has a very vivid recollection still of what the Frenchman has suffered, and he knows that suffering often has some strange aftermaths. And he finds it easy to be patient with the Frenchman, too, because he is hoping and expecting that a change of mind may come to him at some day not too far distant. Whether he has any foundation for that hope time alone may tell. But, meanwhile, he finds any thought of the breaking of the entente a very objectionable one.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S MESSAGE.

The message which President Coolidge recently gave to the American Congress is one that Canadians could heartily wish to have delivered in the Ottawa Parliament.

Substitute "Parliament" for "Congress" and see how well the words apply to Canadian conditions.

"For seven years the people have borne with uncomplaining courage the tremendous burden of national and local taxation.

"These taxes must both be reduced.

"The taxes of the nation must be reduced now as much as prudence will permit, and expenditures must be reduced accordingly.

"High taxes reach everywhere and burden everybody. They bear most heavily upon the poor. They diminish industry and commerce. They make agriculture unprofitable. They increase the rates on transportation. They are a charge on every necessity of life.

"Of all services which the Congress can render to the country, I have no hesitation in declaring this one to be paramount.

"To neglect it, to postpone it, to obstruct it by unsound proposals, is to become unworthy of public confidence and untrue to public trust.

"The country wants this measure to have right-of-way over all others."

Canada's need is exactly what President Coolidge promises for the United States, but to an even greater degree.

Taxes must be reduced and expenditures must be cut down.

To be more correct, expenditures must be cut down so that taxes can be reduced.

There is no other service that Parliament can render to the Canadian people that approaches this in importance, and Canadians in all sections of the country, of all shades of politics and in all walks of life are awake to that fact.

They are demanding real economy, a slashing of expenditures, a check on reckless spending, a stoppage of the drains upon the treasury, and when the people make up their minds they want something they're going to get it.

That is a thought that all members of Parliament should keep firmly in their minds as they prepare for the new session.

BRITAIN'S FOREIGN POLICY.

Ramsay MacDonald in assuming the British Premiership becomes heritor of many serious and complex problems. To a large extent these questions overlap and interlock and every movement towards the settlement of one of them must have its reflex action on the other. During the recent election campaign Mr. Baldwin emphasized this correlation when he declared that there was constant interplay of forces and resultant effects between domestic unemployment and the solution of the question of reparations payments. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald himself has shown how fully he realizes the dovetailing of the questions of the "dole" and the "Ruhr" by electing to fill the post of Foreign Secretary himself.

It is obvious that Mr. MacDonald would not have saddled himself with such a grave responsibility as the direction of foreign affairs at a time when his utmost energies are needed to cope with the problem of guiding a somewhat heterogeneous political party, whose members are just feeling the exhilaration and the responsibility of their newly won power, if he had not been fully seized of the basic importance of reaching some settlement in Europe. By assuming direction of the details of administration of foreign affairs he is running a grave political risk. He will be unable to give that personal direction tothe leadership of his party in the House of Commons which means so much to his political future and that of his own party.

Mr. MacDonald assumes control at a time when British prestige abroad is at a lower ebb than it has been at any time for nearly two centuries. Britain is no longer the greatest power in the embassies of Europe, nations no longer fear her displeasure, or fawn for her favors. The weaker people who look for some pillar which may be their support in days of distress are turning their eyes in other directions than towards Downing Street.

Speaking at the great mass-meeting in Albert Hall, which Labor convened to celebrate their victory at the polls, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald said that it would be his aim "to stamp out the embers of war with a broad foot and a big heel." To the phrase lover the words may sound inspiring and possibly comforting, but it is difficult to see how exactly they can be translated into policy.

Europe is today in the throes of a new conflict and the situation changes with perplexing frequency. Czecho-Slovakia has assumed the leadership of the Little Entente and within the last few weeks has concluded an agreement with France that alters the whole Balkan outlook. Poland is manacled to France by an even stronger agreement than this treaty, which is largely commercial. France and Poland are linked on a military basis and France is promising to lend money to Rumania and Jugo-Slavia on the sole condition and for the single purpose of enabling the latter two countries to purchase munitions in France. Events in the Palatinate of four weeks ago prove that France favors and aids the separatist movement. France, who took the initiative of a broad and independent policy when she entered the Ruhr just a year ago, is spreading out in all directions and even Germany is making her peace secretly through her commercial magnates, since she finds no other friend to help in time of trouble. Democracy has slipped back since the world rang with the altruism of the World League. Soviet Russia is under a dictatorship and the Fascista Government of Italy and Spain are but little different. New threads are being picked up and new overtures are being made, and through the momentous changes of the last twelve months Britain seems to have shillyshallied and to have blown both hot and cold until her prestige has been damaged and her influence weakened.—Montreal Star.

PRESENTATION TO A JANUARY BRIDE

Miss Mary Waddell Honored by Friends at Party

HASTINGS, Jan. 25.—A large number of friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Waddel on the Cobourg Road, on Monday evening and honoured their daughter, Mary, who was married in Toronto on January 23, 1924.

The chairman, Mr. Sam Beamish, called the gathering to the dining room and an address and presentation was made to the bride elect.

Miss Jessie Whitred presented Mis Waddel with a well-filled purse, and the following address was read by Mrs. Roy King:

DEAR MARY:

We your friends of this community have met here this evening to congratulate you on the approach of your new life which we anticipate you are about to launch into.

We have gathered here to spend one more social hour before your departure and we hope as you journey through the future you may be blessed with happiness and prosperity.

Although you have been in Toronto for the past few years we have seen you often. We remember you, dear Mary, since a child and we feel the loss of you here will be the gain for someone elsewhere.

Please accept this purse as a token of our love and appreciation and may it serve as a moment of many happy times we have been together.

Signed on behalf of the community,
DON BEAMISH,
ROY KING,
HARRY PETERS.

Miss Waddel made a suitable reply thanking all for the kindness shown her. After the singing of Auld Lang Syne, dainty refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening spent in dancing and music.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Jan. 26.— Trading has been very slow this week in the cattle market at the union stock yards, but with a fair run on the market Monday's trade should be strong. The market was cleaned up nicely at the closing session and prices held steady with the decline on Monday last, when 3,700 cattle were offered for sale, of 15 cents to 25 cents for all classes. The first day's offering was large, but the run in succeeding days, when the weather was severe and it was difficult for the farmers to get the cattle to the cars, was small and this is responsible for the market closing at a strong tone in spite of the dull trading.

The other markets were well cleaned up. Receipts of calves, sheep and lambs were light and a strong demand was noted for choice. All varieties of sheep and lambs sold stronger, choice, lightweight lambs selling at 14 cents to 15 cents.

The calf trade weakened slightly toward the end, the bulk of the offering selling for 9 to 12 cents with an odd top bringing 14 cents. Average choice were 1 cent lower yesterday than earlier in the week.

The run of hogs was light and the packers were bidding only $8.00 to $8.25 at the close, on the fed and watered basis.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, Jan. 25. — The market for fresh is firm due to the colder weather having checked receipts to some extent.

Cold storage stocks are also firm, and in some cases higher.

Toronto, firm, fresh specials 63c; extras 50; firsts 55; storage extras 42; firsts 36; seconds 30; some United States storage here on consignment selling 33½ to 34.

Montreal steady, fresh extras 59 to 60; firsts 48 to 50; seconds 38 to 40; local storage extras 38 to 40; firsts 35; seconds 28 to 30.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan markets unchanged.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Jan. 25. — Egg quotations to-day: Extras 40c; firsts 35; seconds 28 to 30.

Butter, No. 1 pasteurized, 43 to 43 1-2; No. 1 creamery 42 to 42 1-2.

STERLING RATES.

Demand, 4.3400.
Cables, 4.3438.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25. — Heavy profit taking sales on future delivery contracts here and reports of increased rural offerings in various sections of the country gave the corn market to-day something of a set back. The result was that corn wheat and oats all closed unsettled; corn 3-8 to 3-4 and 7-8 lower; May 80 to 80 1-8, with wheat quarter to half down; May 1.09 and July 1.07 3-8 and oats varying from 5-8 decline to 3-8 advance.

Provisions finished unchanged to 17c down.

The stubborness with which the corn market absorbed profit taking sales led to a conclusion in some quarters that a broader buying demand was apparent than had been generally supposed. On the other hand for the first time in quite a while the primary receipts of corn were larger than was the case a year ago, and there was much interest shown in the fact that a leading trader here who has been talking bullish for weeks went over to-day to the boar side. He predicted more than a temporary recession of values. Other authorities however expressed the opinion that the reaction was transient and was to have been expected in view of numerous upturns of late.

NEW MUSIC NOTES FOR ENGLISH BLIND

LONDON, England, Jan. 26.—A revised system of Braille for the use of blind musicians and composers, which is asserted to be superior to the present Braille method of musical notation, is announced by the National Insitute for the Blind. The system is the accomplishment of a special commitee of Braille music experts which has published a textbook on the new method of music reading for the blind.

It is claimed for the new system that anything possible to be imagined in the realm of musical sound can definitely and adequately be committed to Braille for the first time, giving both students and composers a perfect system of notation.

Women now comprise the majority of all employes in the vast textile industry of England.

Mother's Advice

NO mother ever taught her children a more valuable lesson than the necessity of keeping the bowels regular.

Health, happiness and success are more dependent on this simple rule than most of us ever realize.

This mother advises the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills because she has found this medicine to be absolutely dependable as a regulator of the liver, kidneys and bowels.

Physicians have estimated that nine-tenths of all human ills have their beginnings in the sluggish action of these eliminating organs and the consequent poisoning of the system.

Not only such ills as indigestion, constipation and biliousness but also appendicitis, Bright's disease, diabetes and high blood pressure arise from this cause.

Prevention is so much easier than relief after the disease has become settled that the value of mother's lesson is at once apparent.

In many homes the rule is one pill at the week-end as a regulator and preventative and more frequent doses when required.

The strong points for Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are their dependability to produce the desired results and their direct and combined action on liver, kidneys and bowels.

It is worth remembering that colds and other contagious diseases are quickly checked by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to rid the system of the accumulating poisons.

You will notice that while the price of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills has been increased to 35 cents, the box now contains 35 pills instead of 25 as formerly.

Likewise Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is 60 cents a box of 60 pills, instead of 50 cents a box for 50 pills. Edmanson Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

MONARCHY STRONG IN THE BRITISH EMPIRE

Not Affected by Labor's Rise to Power—Voters Satisfied.

By CHARLES M. McCANN.

LONDON, Jan. 26. — (British United Press).—As the smoke of political battle fades and Premier MacDonald's Labor Ministry begins to function, one fact stands out clearly among estimates of results of Labor's rise to control of the British Government.

King George retains his firm position in the British state. Labor is in Downing Street where it probably dreams of sweeping changes in British policy. But these changes will not involve the throne. Intellectuals among Labor Party men, some of them as prominent in the party councils as they are in print, occasionally waive the republican flag, accompanied by cheers from Scottish Laborites.

But among the biggest leaders of the Labor Party and among the people who vote Labor's ticket there is no sign of hostility to the monarchy.

Republican talk and other wild talk here is based entirely on a series of hypothesis which assumes that the Conservatives, the Liberals, bankers, manufacturers, publishers and even the King, himself a constitutional monarch acting always by advice of whatever Ministers are in power, will unite to suppress Labor.

Some Radical Laborites urge that if such an attempt at suppression is made Labor should move for the proclamation of a republic.

In assaying the value of republican talk there are three factors to be considered.

1. The Labor Party has 192 of the 615 seats in Commons. At the election it polled 4,500,000 out of more than 14 million votes.

2. The great preponderance of voters are satisfied with the present situation. Apart from the undoubted popularity of the royal family, they realize that a British republic would mean the break up not only of the British Empire, but of the British Isles.

The King is the tie that binds. It is not believed that countries like Canada, New Zealand, South Africa and Australia, not to mention India, would listen to suggestions of a republican British Government. A republic would mean the eventual breaking away of Scotland and Ireland, particularly Ulster, which is intensely monarchal.

3. The propoption of the Labor vote that is republican is not large. To say that even half the Labor vote is in favor of a republic would be an exaggeration. But even if it were it would be less than one-sixth of the total vote of the nation.

As regards Labor leaders who advocate a republic it is probable that Labor's rise to power will tend to make them more conservative. Twenty years ago few would have been surprised to see David Lloyd George's name coupled with most of the republican outbursts which occurred here after the election.

Labor in the years to come may do much to alter political policies of Britain. But Labor's decrees will still be signed by His Majesty the King, head of the House of Windsor, address Buckingham Palace.

KIWANIS REVUE IS GOOD SHOW

The First Act Has Been Changed—Tuneful Music.

The Kiwanis Revue includes an entirely new one act extravaganza in the presentation at the Opera House next Thursday and Friday. This first act is known as "The Hermit of Hawaii" and will rival or surpass the tuneful second part in its charm and appeal. The following is a synopsis of "The Hermit of Hawaii" and cast:

Canapoi, Prince of Hilo—D. F. Melton.

Princess Kilani, his daughter — Miss Ernestine McMannus.

Toto and Tata, her attendants—Mrs. Walter Byers, Miss Jean Herbison.

Napoopoo and Konobopo, Hawiian nobles—Harold Snelgrove and J. A. McKone.

Lieutenant Paul C. Green—Mr. C. E. Clark.

Bostun Bill—Mr. Alex. Dick.

Takaapila, the oldest inhabitant—Mr. Vern. Morphet.

Mi Vi, a fisherman—Mr. Joseph Wearing.

I. Act.

On the beach of Noiono. Two Hawiian nobles, Napoopoo and Konobopo, anxious to marry the Princess, Kilani, whose father, Prince Kanopy, is an eccentric and autocratic old humbug. He is the author and promulgator and administrator of absurd and obscure laws that are in the main simply made to suit his own purposes and immediate ends. One of these edicts has just been issued when the opera begins. It forbids any of his subjects to fall in love with anybody for a period of a year on pain of instant death or immediate marriage. The offenders may make their choice. This, of course, arouses various emotions in the breasts of the people which is made effective use in the opera.

BUILD BRIDGE AT LAKEFIELD SAYS COUNCIL

Three Days' Debate Concludes in Decision to Accept Lowest Tender—Reeve Strickland's Proposals Rejected.

ROAD RATE NAMED.

Lakefield will have its bridge built this year without trimmings or obligation to come into the county roads system, it was decided by the County Council on Friday following three days of persistent effort by Reeve J. C. Strickland.

Reeve Strickland first proposed that the county pave a strip twenty feet wide through the main street of Lakefield as a connecting link between the county roads, in consideration of which the village would enter the county roads system.

Had this plan been followed, Mr. Strickland claimed, the bridge would have become part of the county roads system and would have thus come under the Government grant of 40 per cent. at a saving to the county of $8,373. The roadway being paid for by the village through its contribution to the county roads system of nearly $1,000 a year, which would have met the 20-year debentures covering its construction, would not cost the county one cent, Mr. Strickland pointed out.

Failing in putting across this proposition, Reeve Strickland lowered his terms to only a part of the original request, finally professing himself satisfied to enter the system if the County Council would undertake the oiling of Lakefield streets.

This suggestion did not meet with approval, some of the Councillors saying that while it might be a money-saving proposition it would be a difficult problem for the Council to persuade the constituents that money was saved by building a bridge and paving streets both in Lakefield.

The subject was discussed on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and no other objections were taken. Reeve Strickland finally introduced a motion to accept the lowest tender, was seconded by R. Scott, and it was resolved that the contract will be let to J. McNab at a cost of $20,933. Thirteen voted in favor of building the bridge.

Tag the Court House.

A stone slab inscribed with the record of the building of the Court House in 1839 and its restoration in 1869 fell out at the time of the fire in 1916. The stone was not replaced in 1917 when the Court House was rebuilt and now lies in the Court House yard.

A committee was appointed to interview Mr. Finney regarding its restoration with the record of the fire added.

Lockie's Bridge.

Reeve Rye brought up the question of Lockie's bridge in North Monaghan, which, he said, is too narrow and has been reported dangerous.

A committee was appointed to investigate the requirements at this point.

Reduce Mileage.

The County Roads Committee, under Chairman Reeve Rye, and the village representatives will meet on February 8 to consider a revising bylaw to have the mileage where deemed excessive in the townships reduced and have the villages included in the system.

Suburban Roads.

Messrs. Middleton and Lillico proposed that the county provide $8,000 to be expended on suburban roads.

Messrs. Anderson and Lillico proposed that the committee recommend to the Finance Committee to strike a 3 mill rate for highway purposes for 1924.

M'LACHLAN HAD

strike was in protest against presence of provincial troops.

Former President John P. White answered the charge against him. He gave a detailed account of affairs in Nova Scotia where he went at the request of a former Nova Scotia district president, Robert Baxter, and under instructions from President Lewis, he said. He said the deposed Nova Scotia Executive Board did all the bargaining with operators and James McLachlan was the one who proposed acceptance of the great wage reduction.

"Instead of signing the agreement themselves, like men willing to stand behind the thing they had agreed to," White charged, "the Board members did not appear at the meeting with the operators, but authorized Robert Baxter to sign for them, so they might hold it against him."

Sam Caddy, of the Washington District, international representative in Nova Scotia, corroborated what Mr. White had said, and charged McLachlan with meeting and bargaining with the Communists and representatives of the Red International.

Just before the adjournment Secretary William Green read a telegram from Alabama that a jury had convicted and sentenced a soldier to 18 years in prison for the killing of William A. Baird, a striker, who was taken from jail in Walker county in January, 1921, and shot to death. The United Mine Workers had financed the prosecution.

SUGAR FIRMER LOCAL STORES

Few Price Changes During the Week—From Peterboro to Japan.

Prices in local stores show little change within the last fortnight. Staple groceries remain at practically the same prices, with prospects, however, of advance in some lines. Wholesalers report a decided firmness in sugars, with a recent sharp advance in raws, owing principally to large export shipments, one recent order from Europe covering a gross amount of 75,000 tons, or 150 million pounds of sugar. A slight advance in refined sugars is looked for.

Dried fruits are firmer, also, with the exception of currants, which come in from Greece principally. Lard is down slightly in wholesale prices. Canned goods are strong, notably in tomatoes and corn, the available supply lying mainly in the hands of wholesalers and retailers. Corn products are advancing. Different manufacturers of corn flakes have already, since the beginning of the year, made two advances in prices. There is a small advance in flour quotations, and cereals show a tendency to the high side.

In the wholesale fruit and vegetable line, there is a scarcity of potatoes, carrots, turnips and parsnips. Cabbages are coming in from Texas, and onions. Oranges continue to be plentiful. Some of the difficulties of the orange-grower may be guaged by the various contrivances used in the groves to prevent damage from insects and there are many methods for combating the frost evil, which includes vast oil-burning furnaces places in the groves, some consuming as much as 80 gallons of oil per hour, and ingenius breeze-producing machines to keep the frost from the fruit.

Collections are reported as somewhat slow, but the volume of business is encouraging.

In the fruit stores, mushrooms at $1.25 a pound are the most aristocratic, from point of view of price, of the late arrivals. There are also bunches of rhubarb from local hothouses, big delicious apples from the Coast, spinach from Louisinia, and new cabbage from Louisiana and Texas.

Fish is a popular commodity, in many varieties. There are flat, parched-looking plaice and Italian bloaters, already cooked, at 5 cents apiece.

In the wholesale and retail establishments alike is well illustrated the ever-increasing tendency to draw from the markets of the world the ordinary, every-day staples that serve the table of the rich and poor alike. From the sunny lands of Spain and Persia and Smyrna the figs and dates; from Australia and Mexico, in times when oranges are scarce, this fruit is available, and few people realize that the ancient land of Egypt has other uses than producing antiques and Tut-ankamen 'bobs', for the odoriferous Egyptian onion makes its way to many a Canadian table unaware.

Peterboro, also, has its place in the sun of Oriental trade. A recent order placed here from Japan called for a large quantity of flour, to fill the needs of Japanese who are becoming increasingly large users of white flour, and another concession to Japanese trade manufacture by a local factory of a type of oatmeal ball that fills the chopstick breakfast of many a Nipponese table.

Jordan Brothers are showing a novelty in the plant line, in flowering orchid blooms here on exhibition from Bramptom greenhouses. Fifty dollars a plant is asked for the fragile things, with their ethereal mauve tins and pure white flowers. Large single flowers and smaller cluster blossoms trained on trellises are shown.

THE LONDON LIFE SETS A NEW MARK

Had a Good Year and Larger Volume of Business.

The forty-ninth annual report of the London Life Insurance Company, just issued, shows the results of an unusually good year's operations.

The volume of new business written during 1923 sets a new high mark in London Life history, being almost $45,000,000, and bringing the total insurance in force up to $151,780,810.

Consistent with the company's long record of conservative management the surplus was increased to $918,966, taking the company's own stringent basis of computing liabilities. Were these latter calculated according to the less exacting Government standard the London Life's surplus would be over $3,750,000.

The London Life has its own high standard of security and sets aside annually larger reserves for the protection of policyholders than are provided for any similar class of business in America. In its provision for liabilities all profits accruing, although not due for years to come, are included, and suspended mortality. Investment reserve and other emergency funds are constantly maintained as provision against even remote contingencies.

The liberal scale of dividends to policyholders was maintained and they are today from 50 per cent. to 100 per cent. greater than original estimates.

The company's mortality rate for the year was only 37.2 in the ordinary branch and the expense rate showed an appreciable reduction.

To mark its "fifty years of public service," the company is issuing a new "jubilee" policy, which is pronounced to be the most advantageous to policyholders ever issued, and one which it is confidently expected will materially assist in reaching a new high record for new business written by the end of 1924.

REV. H. T. LEWIS FUNERAL HERE

Deceased Was Widely Known Throughout the Methodist Ministry.

OSHAWA, Jan. 26.—(Special).—A memorial service for the late Rev. Henry T. Lewis, a former pastor of Simcoe Street Methodist Church here, but of late a member of the Saskatchewan Conference, was held here last evening when remains of the deceased rested in an open casket amidst a beautiful bank of flowers. The pastor of the church, Rev. J. H. McBain, was in charge of the service and was assisted by Rev. A. M. Irwin of the King Street Methodist Church, Oshawa, he being one of the ordination class at Bridge Street Church, Belleville, in 1899, Rev. C. Moore of Bowmanville, Rev. A. J. Terrill of Napanee and F. H. Howard of Whitby. The late Rev. Harry T. Lewis was born in Peterborough County and spent his boyhood days in Norwood. As a young man he taught school in his native county, and later graduated from Victoria University. He was ordained in 1899, and in the following February he married Miss Elha Drew of Oshawa. Mr. Lewis' first appointment as a minister was in Scugog, and during his active ministerial life held pastorates in Prince Edward County, Cobourg, Oshawa, Regina, Saskatoon and Moose Jaw, and later, owing to ill-health, at a smaller church in Oxbow, Sask., in 1922.

Mr. Lewis was elected President of the Saskatchewan Conference and appointed to the general conference in Toronto. In declining health, he came to Oshawa last June and his condition gradually grew worse until his death.

The deceased minister is survived by one son, Mr. Hartley Lewis, of Toronto University; one daughter, Miss Mary Lewis, Normal School, Toronto; two sisters, Miss Kate Lewis, Regina, and Miss Margaret Lewis, and one brother, Rev. J. G. Lewis, Vancouver. His wife and young daughter, Alice, met their death by accident last year in Oshawa.

The body of the late Mr. Lewis was shipped this morning for interment at Little Lake Cemetery, Peterborough.

Among those present from a distance at the funeral were: Miss Kate M. Lewis, Regina; Miss Mary E. Lewis, Toronto; Mr. Hartley Lewis, Toronto; Mr. Geo. L. Robinson, a cousin, Toronto; Mrs. B. Lewis, a sister-in-law, Peterborough; Mr. R. R. Dewart, a cousin, Peterborough; Mr. John Hill, Toronto, and Mr. W. H. Hoope, Cobourg.

Telegrams of sympathy were received and read by Rev. Mr. McBain from Rev. Benner, President of the Saskatchewan Conference; from the minister and Officials Board of the Metropolitan Church, Regina, and from Rev. C. M. Brown of Saskatoon.

WOMAN CLAIMS TO BE PRINCESS OLGA

Tells Plausible Story of Escape From Russia Into Germany.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 26. — (British United Press).—The arrival of a woman who says she is the Princess Olga, daughter of the late Czar of Russia, is arousing interest throughout Brazil.

The woman bears a strong resemblance to photographs of the Princess—long believed dead—and tells a plausible story.

She says she escaped into Germany with the aid of a few faithful Cossacks, after being wonded by the Bolsheviki, and finally made her way to Holland where she supported herself by dancing.

The woman exhibits deep scars on her breast, which, she says, were inflicted by the Bolsheviki.

"I worked in Holland for some time," she said, "but was forced to disguise myself when I learned that Bolsheviki agents had learned my whereabouts.

"Finally I managed to get aboard the steamer Antonio Delfino and made my way to Santos, the big coffee port of Brazil, and then worked for some time in Sao Paulo before coming to Rio De Janeiro." The woman is able to tell a convincing story of life in the Russian court, details of the influence of Rasputin and his death and other incidents which have led newspapers here to accept her story.

A former member of the Russian diplomatic service who once met the Princess Olga says the woman here bears a strong resemblance to the daughter of the Romanoffs.

The story of the alleged Princess has been circulating in the Russian colony here for some time, and finally leaked into newspaper offices.

The woman at first refused to discuss her case, but told her story when she was visited by the Russian diplomat.

"I have tried to keep my identity a secret," she said, "and do not wish to profit by it. All I want now is a chance to work and forget the past."

Cobourg and District

COBOURG, Jan. 25.—Cobourg has been privileged of late by the number of eminent and scholarly men who have been here to give much appreciated addresses. Last week Rev. T. Wardle Stafford, Toronto, was here and on Monday evening Rev. Canon Cody lectured in the Opera House, under auspices of the Daughters of the Empire, the proceeds being for the Memorial fund. Major Boggs occupied the chair and the lecture was preceded by a splendid musical program. Canon Cody is one of the most fluent and cultured speakers in Canada, and he was listened to with deep interest. His subject was Greater Ontario, and he dealt with it with a beauty of language imagery and description that could scarce be surpassed.

Canon Cody accompanied the Premier and his party on their trip through the northern country, and so from firsthand observation was able to describe the country, its resources, condition and possibilities in a most graphic and interesting way. At the close, in brief remarks, Mayor Boggs expressed the thanks of the audience to the eminent lecturer for his kindness and courtesy in coming to Cobourg.

Death of Mrs. Thomas O'Brien

The funeral took place on Monday at Grafton of Mrs. O'Brien, widow of the late Thomas O'Brien, who passed away after a comparatively short illness, although she had not been feeling well for some little time. Mrs. O'Brien, before her marriage, was Miss Mary Boyle. Her husband died about three years ago. She is survived by a family of five sons and daughters.

Miss Charlotte Bush

The death took place on Sunday at the Cobourg Hospital of Miss Charlotte Bush, after a long illness. She is survived by one brother and two sisters, Mrs. Cochrane and Miss Mary A. Bush, both residing here. The funeral took place on Tuesday Rev. W. A. Bremner, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, conducted the services.

Bequest to Methodism

Ezra Osterhout, of Murray township, East Northumberland, left $15,000 to Methodism. Leaving an estate valued at over $80,000, the testator gave amounts, it is stated, up to $5,000 each to relatives and legacies of $5,000 in cash to each of the following: Methodist Missionary Society, Methodist Educational Society and Methodist Superannuation Fund. Three brothers, two of whom are ministers, living in Vancouver, are the executors.

Death at Orland

Mrs. Mary Sharp died suddenly at Orland last week. She leaves six children: Frank Tachabury, of Codrington; Clarence Tachabury, of New York State; Mrs. Arthur Jones, of Castleton; Mr. Alex. Tachabury, of Hilton; Miss Jessie Sharp, of Orland, Mrs. A. Dingman, Dundonald.

Ministerial Association

The Northumberland and Durham Central Ministerial Association met on Monday last at the home of Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Bremner, by whom they were most hospitably entertained. The address was given by Rev. J. N. Norton, B.A., who ably reviewed John R. Mott's recent book, "Confronting Young Men with the Living Christ." His address was very greatly enjoyed.

War Memorial

Upon invitation from the Daughters of the Empire, Mayor Boggs and members of the Town Council met with the I.O.D.E. at the Cobourg Club to discuss the erection of a memorial here for the soldiers from Cobourg who paid the supreme sacrifice in the recent great war. After some discussion as to what form the memorial should take, the erection of a monument being largely favored, a committee was appointed consisting of Mayor Boggs, Couns Fullerton and Skitch and Mrs. A. R. Dundas, to act with the ladies in securing plans descriptions, prices, etc.

Will Be Held Here

The Bay of Quinte Winter School for next year, 1925, will again be held in Cobourg, it is confidently expected. It is expected also that Rev. W. Harold Young, of Peterborough, who gave such excellent service at the School just closed, Mr. Taylor Statten, Mis s Mary Allison, Toronto, Prof. Maine of Albert College, Belleville and Rev. T. Wardle Stafford, pastor of the Metropolitan church, Toronto, will be here to take part.

OPPOSE UNION OSGOODE HALL

TORONTO, January 25 (Canadian Press). — Representatives of the Presbyterians in Canada opposed to organic union of their Church with the other denominations, in a writ issued at Osgoode Hall to-day, seek a declaration that the defendants in the action, about 50 leaders of the Union party in the Church, are not lawfully authorised by the Presbyterian Church in Canada to take any action to bring the proposed Union into effect.

An injunction seeking to restrain the defendants from acting as the agents of the Church is also asked for.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT.

WEEHAWKEN, N.J., January 26 (Canadian Press). — Battling Siki, the Senegalese boxer, whose disappearance in New Orleans was reported yesterday, was scheduled to appear in the Weehawken Police Court yesterday morning to answer to a disorderly conduct charge made against him when he was arrested in West Shore ferry house here a few days before Christmas.

Siki failed to appear, and on request of his counsel the hearing was postponed indefinitely, the fifth postponement thus far entered.

In answer to reports that Siki was ill, William S. Stur, his attorney, declared that it was news to him, saying that the boxer had merely written several days ago requesting a postponement of the hearing.

He was arrested when he was found giving away dollar bills to persons in the ferry house.

DOLLAR DAY PROVIDED MANY GOOD ESTIMATES

Fifty Dollar Prize Went to F. J. Moncrief--Number Fell Off to 14,191--List of Prizewinners

Dollar Day lived up to its reputation in many ways. The day's business and bargain giving was all that could be expected, and the usual surprise in the number of tickets used was forthcoming, as it is almost every time. The stores reported an apathy on the buyers part about using the estimating blanks, and this made itself felt when the count revealed a falling off of over 2000 from total of last January. As usual, the great bulk of the estimates were in the 16,000 or 17,000 range, based on the results of a year ago, but this time the number had fallen to 14,191, and thousands of the estimates were of higher figures. However, there were enough shrewd students of conditions who figured on a slight decrease, to fill in their blanks with amounts that were exceedingly close. the winner of the grand $50.00 bonus hitting on the exact amount, with the field to himself. Of the sixteen awards not an estimate was farther from the mark than twelve.

The Examiner had a close shave from having to pay the winner an extra $10.00. They offer this if the first bonus is secured on a blank given with a payment made at the Examiner office. Two or three times this $10.00 has been claimed, but this time it was an Examiner blank that was used by the winner of second place, which lets them out.

Following is the list of awards:

AN "AT HOME"

The second annual "At Home" of the staff of the Bell Telephone Company, held last evening in the G.W.V.A. Hall, was a very successful affair, attended by over two hundred people. Roberts' orchesira provided excellent music for dancing, and catering was done by Messrs. T. H. Hooper and Sons. The programme included two novelty dances. Decorations were carried out in an exceptionally attractive fashion, the blue and white of the company's colors making a pretty setting. Twisted ropes of blue and white paper held large bells against the white curtains, and beneath the blue and white streamers that formed baskets about the electric lights were suspended the big blue emblems. A trellis of the same colors surmounted the orchestra stand and formed an arch in one corner. Tiny red and black imitation 'phones stood on the window-sills. Even the big moon suspended from the centre of the ceiling had its jolly face wreathed with blue and white. The northern entrance doorway and outside landing was transformed into a comfortable lounging room by the use of wicker chairs, a tall piano lamp and screens.

Patronesses for the dance were Mrs. J. M. McHardy, Mrs. A. A. Smith, Mrs. C. G. Graham, Mrs. A. W. McPherson, Mrs. J. A. Morgan, Mrs. J. K. Hughes, Mrs. D. R. Morrow and Mrs. A. Darling. STUBBORN COUGHS

Stop Quick With Home Made Cough Mixture.

Not until you make your own cough mixture—a half pint of it for a small sum—will you know how easy it is to stop any bad persistent cough as if by magic.

It's pleasant-tasting, but that don't stop it from knocking out a cough quicker than anything else in the world. Children love it.

Get from any drugist one ounce of Parmint (double strength)—to this add a little granulated sugar and enough water to make one half pint—that's all there is to it.

This loosens the phlegm, stops the irritation, allays the inflammation, cleans out clogged nostrils, makes breathing easier, and causes sore throat and hoarseness to disappear.

With speed almost beyond belief this home made cough mixture stops the toughest hang-on cough, and all because in it there is a substance (too costly for ordinary cough syrups) that immediately covers the membrane like a soothing healing poultice and blessed relief comes at once.

And it is always worth while to bear in mind that any remedy that overcomes catarrh, partially or wholly, is bound to be of benefit to those who are troubled with head noises and catarrhal deafness.

Get Parmint and get better.

EXHIBITION IS GRANTED $1000 BY THE COUNTY

Norwood Fair Gets $500 --Last Minute Attempt to Throw Out Lakefield Bridge Proposition Fails.

SESSION ENDED

An eleventh hour attempt to throw out the building of the Lakefield bridge failed in County Council on Saturday morning, when it was supported only by its mover and the seconder.

The bridge has caused some queer situations in the Council since its discussion came up, but the most peculiar was undoubtedly in the closing minutes of the January session when, after the passing of a resolution accepting the tender of J. McNab, the subject bobbed up again on Reeve John Scotts motion to await further advice and discussion. It was on Reeve John Scotts motion in the special meeting on 6th April last that the engineer was authorised to prepare plans and specifications for the bridge.

Seconded on Saturday by Reeve W. A. Anderson, Reeve Scott proposed that all action be halted until the advisability of repairing the bridge had been reported on and discussed.

The subject had been debated on three days, and on Friday was thought disposed of, when McNab's tender for $20.933 was accepted.

When the confirming by-law came before the Council to-day however, and had passed its second reading, Reeve Scott temporarily stalled the machinery of municipal government by declaring the repairs could be made for $4,000 and the money should not be spent on building a new bridge.

Reeve Strickland of Lakefield remarked that in his five years' experience in the County Council, he had never known a subject passed in debate and allowed to progress to its third reading before objection was raised. The tender had been accepted, and the finance report adopted, and these could not be stayed.

The Warden remarked that while he agreed with Councillors Scott and Anderson that further information should have been heard regarding the bridge, he thought the matter had progressed too far to withdraw.

Reeve Scott pointed out that on a visit of the whole Council to the bridge, none of the members saw anything wrong with the bridge, and came away with the opinion that it could be repaired for $300.00.

Reeve Strickland inquired whether Mr. Scott thought it safe to accept the judgment of the Council. "Why have we engineers?" he asked. The County Engineer reported the bridge was unsafe and not fit for ordinary traffic, the Lakefield representative reminded the Council, and the Highway Department has reported unfavourably on its condition.

On the defeat of the motion by an overwhelming majority, the bill passed its third reading.

Exhibition Gets $1,000.

The Finance Committee, which held a night session last night, considered the appeals made to it for grants, and allowed Peterborough Industrial Exhibition $1,000, Norwood Exhibition $500, Chandos, for repair of the road between Chandos and Hastings, on condition that Hastings give a like amount and the Government be asked to contribute $100 ;to Smith for maintenance of the roadway in front of the House of Refuge in lieu of taxes not paid by the institution, $50.00.

Dr. Sutton addressed the Council on a new system to get nurses established in the north country.

On the motion of Messrs. Scott ond D. Brown, the clerk was authorised to memorialise the Government as to the condition of the territory around Apsley regarding the lack of doctors and hospital accommodation, and to ask the Government to consider establishing a small hospital at Apsley.

The clerk was authorised to advertise for applications for the positions of superintendent and matron of the House of Refuge.

BROCKVILLE, Jan .26.—(Canadian Press.)—County Crown Attorney M. M. Brown acknowledged today receipt of instructions from Attorney General ordering an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the discovery of the body of an infant, evidently strangled at birth, in the drawer of a wardrobe in one of the nurse's rooms at the Ontario Hospital for the Insane and said that instructions merely coincided with the action which he had decided to take. The second sitting of the inquest in the case will be held on Wednesday evening. The body of the infant remains unburied until the close of the investigation and such is its condition that an internal post mortem examination is impossible.

A Clergyman's Wife, Relieved of Constipation, Tells Women the Benefits of Internal Bathing.

Many women write delightfully frank letters to Dr. Tyrell telling him of the new health and joy that Internal Bathing has given them. From sufferers of rheumatism and those plagued with constipation and insomnia comes the same tale of amazing success. Internal Bathing is a natural, simple way of cleaning the intestines. Warm water circulates through the colon, riedding it of the poisons that should not linger there. As 95 per cent. of our ills are caused by the escape of those poisons into the blood it is easy to see that this method of keeping the intestines clean and healthy is a common-sense way of securing health.

A Winnipeg clergyman writes: "My wife is naturally sensitive having her name appear in public print, yet is anxious that others should know what the J.B.L. Cascade has done for her. It has really given her a new lease of life. For years she had been doctoring for constipation, which became worse each year. Since using the J.B.L. Cascade, first about four years ago, she has not been sick a day, and has become robust and strong again. Should any person wish this letter confirmed, you are at liberty to give my name in private."

The J.B.L. Cascade is shown and explained at Warne Drug Company.

The J.B.L. Cascade is an invention perfected by Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York, and has done more during the past few years to restore health and lessen disease than all other means combined. Ask for booklet explaining all about Internal Bathing and what is has done for others. It is free, or write to Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute, 163 College Street, Toronto.

Canadian Stock Exchange And Mines — New York Stock Exchange and Curb Prices

Today's Quotations and Opinion and Reviews of the Ma kets.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(British United Press).—Fresh accleration of the feverish activity of the last two sessions took place at the week end in the stock market, the speculative enthusiasm spreading into railroad list on a scale, which made the session practically the broadest since the exciting markets of last February. With Industrial averages climbing into new high ground on the current rise, it was evident that the primary forward movement had been in a manner which suggested that the general list was in a bullish circles of indefinite duration.

Weekly trade reviews reported an improvement in business.

This applied to Steel, Copper, Rubber, Automoibls, Chain Stores, and mail order house and electrical companies Foundation is gradually being made for a big spring business in nearly all lines. Many bankers hold that the second quarter of 1924 will be more prosperous. Industrial companies will be making more money and wage payments throughout the country will reach a new peak before July. With gold in unprecedented supply and brokers loans showing small increase there is nothing to fear so far as spring is concerned.

Rails came into increasing prominence in the second hour under the lead of Pennsylvania which staged a remarkable display of strength in advancing two points to 46 1-4. Atcheson also went into new high ground for 1924 despite the week's deduction of the $1.50 dividend. Accumulation of the leading rails was based on the belief that the recent gains in industrial operations means increased railroad traffic over the next few months.

High priced industrials maintained a pronounced buoyancy, American Tobacco coming to the front with a four point jump to 154 7-8.

New York Central moved up into the front rank of the advance in the railroad list in the final dealings spurting to 103 3-4 up two points from Friday's low. Extraordinary activity continued in the industrial list, great strength developing in various sections of the oil group before the close. Standard Oil of California went into new high ground for the year at 68 3-8 and Pacific Oil at 53 3-8 while proportionate gains took place in other representative issues of the domestic class.

Developments of a nature predicated by the march of Industrial stocks this week into new high ground on the current upswing came to light in the weekly report of the Mercantile Agencies which spoke of improvement in the metal trades with steel leading and greater activity in coal and petroleum.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

GERM THEORY vs. DISEASE

MR. EDITOR:

Dear Sir,—A "Reader" in replying to my letter the other night asks some further information on one or two points which I brought out in my argument against the germ theory and inoculation. He asks: "How can the disease produce the germ?"

Reader will note I was writing of 'Bechamp's researches and their results as opposed to Pasteurs. Bechamp went much deeper and with more scientific precision into this study of bacteria than did Pasteur. And his conclusion was that in a natural or rather abnormal evolution in the human organism germs or microbes appear in a diseased condition of the body, showing their appearance to be due to a series of changes which he followed down to what he termed "Life's primal architects"—"The scintillating corpuscles" which he renamed "Microzymas." These, he claimed, were the living remnants of dead bodies, some of them ferments and organized in the sense of structure. That they cause in effete and morbid matter the change called putrefaction and under certain conditions evolve physiologically to engender other organisms and reconstitute other cells—Bechamp thus writes of them. We have followed the complete course of their natural history. We have seen the microzymas of animal cells associate, two by two, or in larger numbers, and extend themselves into "bacteria"—bacteria far from being the cause are the result of the malady. These bacteria resume their original corpuscular form upon the return of the body to a normal state of health.

Thus we see why germs suddenly disappear from a diseased organ after its restoration to health, something which Pasteur and many bacteriologists have not been able to explain with any satisfaction.

I had accepted "Bechamp's" conclusion as being the most reasonable inasmuch as we are shown that these microbes are due to certain physiological changes in our own bodies. It helps to blot out that vision of the communal serum or toxin laboratory with its half dozen or perhaps more professional inoculators waiting, in the future, for the men, women and children, who have been led to believe that certain material from calves or horses can hold as great an immunizing power as they themselves could generate.

"Reader" mentions that nature produces a toxin within the body which is often powerful enough to meet all assaults. I believe that all assaults can best be met by conscious and sub-conscious action of the mind. Nothing, in my estimation, taken from an animal can be fit to take its place in a human body, where the mind is strong enough to direct its force to the various organs.

Reader's views of the microbes in the air is, of course, the Pasteur theory, but really, if this had been true, the race would have been extinct long ago.

Most physicians will admit the cause of disease rests with or beyond the nervous organization and I cannot see why the examination of minute bodies under a microscope can shorten this process. We may state it thus: The function of the nerves, controlling a certain area of the body, goes wrong; the primal life force loses its full magnetic power. Immediate changes are the result—the resisting power of tissue weakened, the blood displays certain toxic poisons, germs or other bodies and then we have the microscope and the resulting cry of bacteria. It seems plain to me bacteria is merely a secondary cause of disease, not the primal factor.

There are other questions in "Reader's" letter which I would like to answer, but must embody my reply at a later date.

Yours faithfully,

JOSEPH GRIERSON.

STOCK MARKET IS STANDING STRAIN OF NEW GOVT.

Financiers Surprised When Ramsay MacDonald Wore a Top Hat on Visit to King.

LONDON, Jan. 26. — (By Lloyd Allen, British United Press Staff Correspondent). — Premier Ramsay Macdonald's Labor Government is winning the confidence of the nation.

Friends of the new order point out that the course of the British Stock Market since Tuesday, when Macdonald took office, is the best answer to those panic-mongers who thought the end of the country's prosperity would come with a Labor Government.

There has been a steady, general advance of prices along the whole list, especially in the industrials. The tone of the market has been firmer than for weeks past, and the public is showing an increasing tendency to invest.

The spirit of confidence in Macdonald and his Ministers is reflected in speeches of chairmen of the various banks at the annual meetings this week.

Financial circles are particularly impressed by Macdonald's business-like methods, as revealed in connection with foreign problems, particularly as regards Russia. It is known that the Labor Government proposes recognition of Russia and the fact that there has been no hasty or unconsidered action reacts greatly in Macdonald's favor.

In this connection, the Daily Express observes that the fact that Macdonald wore a top hat when he visited the King was an encouraging sign to the financiers.

The Labor Government has determined to amalgamate the activities of the League of Nations with ordinary diplomatic activities and has ordered an office prepared in the Foreign Office building for the British representative on the League Council.

The Morning Post to-day said it had learned that E. D. Morel was to be the British representative on the Council, instead of Lord Parmoore, who is badly needed as the Government leader in the House of Lords.

OWEN SOUND 13—ST. MARY'S 1.

OWEN SOUND, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press). — Toronto St. Mary's Juniors met real defeat at the hands of the local juniors here last night, getting only one of the 14 goals scored. The visitors were outclassed in all departments, and at no time were dangerous.

St. Mary's got their lone tally in the second session, and were lucky to get that.

Speculation

Now, Sir, it is my conviction that where there is no speculation, there can be no luck. As well might a man with his hands in his pockets expect a guinea to drop into them. People who, perhaps, have been born with a silver spoon in their mouths, or had enough to purchase them a hot joint every day, thrust upon them by accident, will tell you in speaking of any particular subject, "Oh, I will have nothing to do with it—it is only a speculation." Now, Sir, but for some speculation that had been entered into before they were, the one would have neither had the silver spoon in his teeth, nor the other the hot joint. Without speculation commerce could not exist.

Speculation is the soul of business.
It is the mainspring of improvement.
It is essential to prosperity.

IMMORTAL BURNS WAS HONORED LAST NIGHT BY PETERBORO SCOTS

Robert Burns' 163rd Anniversary Fittingly Celebrated in Speech and Song-Rev. Monseigneur McColl Was Principal Speaker.

SCOTIA'S GRANDEUR

"Wi' merry sang and freenl'y cracks,
I wat they didna weary."

Good will and good cheer were the keynotes of last night's celebration under the auspices of the Peterboro' Caledonian Club of the 163rd anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, patron poet of the sons of Scotland the world over. The celebration, which was well attended despite the blustry nature of the evening, was held in the Victoria Hall, prettily decorated for the evening with a portrait of the Bard of Ayr in a conspicuous place.

A feature of the occasion as usual was the playing in of the haggis by Piper A. Milne. Haggis bearers were Pipers Stroyan Leith and W. Petrie, and the "Address tae the Haggis" was given by A. Jackson, vice-president of the Caledonian Club. Mrs. Peter McArthur had the honor of preparing this year's haggis.

The chair was ably filled by Robert French, president of the Club, who introduced the speakers and paid a tribute to the marvellous insight of the Scottish poet. He read a telegram from John Moyes, father of the Peterboro' Caledonian Club, conveying his regrets at being absent.

Rev. Monseigneur McColl, replying to "The Immortal Memory," the toast of the evening, related incidents in his tour of the land of Burns, commencing at Tam O'Shanter's Inn and recalling the whispering of the Doon that inspired the poem "The Banks and Braes of Bonnie Doon." In happy style he sketched the birthplace of Burns and his early life and surroundings, and spoke of the influence on his genius of this home environment.

The speaker reminded the audience that contemporary with Burns were other great men such as Napoleon Bonaparte; the Duke of Wellington; Fox and Mozart. "But after casting in review all of these wonderful men I looked at the little humble cottage and said to myself, 'from these very humble surroundings has sprung a man who has left a greater impression on the hearts of the world, a sweeter memory in the hearts of mankind, than any of these other great names."

Burns' Life

Burns' father was an honest, hard-working man, the speaker said and his mother was a model wife. The early home surroundings of the poet were good; his father took an interest in Robert's education; and Burns himself was a prodigious seeker after learning. "Men of Character are men who make themselves. We may assist them and point out the way, but no man of character has become so except by his own individual effort."

Robert Burns was a domestic man, trained to that from his childhood. "I don't think he would admire modern women to any extent. While he did admire, and sometimes overadmire, the fair sex, he leaned to the domestic type."

Burns loved liberty. The kind of approval he gave the French revolution was not approval of the people's methods but of their battle for freedom.

"I am beginning to be of the opinion," declared the Reverend speaker, "that if these labor men in England are not so red or bolshevik as they are painted, it is the first real democratic government we have had in England in many generations. I think Burns approved of that democracy. Burns wanted liberty, and you remember that while he was lauded and feasted by all classes and received by the great as well as by the humble he never lost in the presence of the greatest his equanimity—he was no cringer. He despised the man who cringed to the noble and great, and this doubtless inspired his poem "A man's a man for a' that."

"Burns had a good philosophy of life. Most men have ideals, but I don't think any of us is as good as his ideal, we never just reach the height we would like to attain. I think Bobbie Burns had high ideals. I think his failings were incidents rather than characteristics. We must take into consideration the surroundings of a man when weighing him and exercise charity where he falls below his ideal."

Monseigneur McColl said he thought Burns' failings had been exaggerated. He excelled in poetry, prose and conversation. He was sociable, and shone in society.

His sociability no doubt was the cause of his going with his neighbours so frequently to the inn. "I don't believe he was a drunkard."

Songs Will Live

The songs of Burns are worldwide and will live as long as the Scottish race, and the reason is that Burns understood human nature, and knew how to touch all the chords of the human heart. He sympathized with all creation and knew the joys and sorrows of all mankind. He knew that to understand human nature he must make a thorough study of himself, and Burns knew his own heart and was able to write for all others.

"I think Burns idealized love, and he has written beautifully of love. I think he was a religious man. I believe he detested hypocrisy. His faults were all on the outside where everyone could see them. I think he died a good death."

"Scottish Bards"

The toast to "Scottish Bards" was replied to by J. Grierson, Worthy Chief, Sons of Scotland. "They say poets are born and not made," Mr. Grierson said, "and the birth rate for poets is high in Scotland."

Reid, Scott, Montgomery, Burns, Gray and Pringle were named by the speaker with quotations from their poems, and he concluded with an original composition commemorating this anniversary of Burns' birthday.

"Our City"

"Our City" was responded to by G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons, who said the Scottish people who had come to Peterboro' had helped materially in the city's advancement.

Mr. Gordon referred to the entrance of the Labor party in British Cabinet circles, and said he does not believe there is a socialistic trait in the new British Prime Ministers.

In Peterboro' people are looking forward to better times. There are encouraging reports from the Dominion as a whole, the increase of $80,000,000 in the exports of the country in nine months indicating that better times are coming. "You have come to one of the main industrial centres in the country," Mr. Gordon said, "and your citizenship here carries with it duties and privileges that are important." Outlining the privileges, such as schools, utilities and good living conditions, he said a principal duty was the maintenance of the institutions of the people unchanged unless the changes are warranted after mature thought and consideration.

"The City of Peterboro' will develop," he continued. "The power situation is clearing itself very well. This is the very centre of population in Canada and can develop to any extent by the advent of facilities for manufacturing. I believe this city will grow and improve and become one of the greatest industrial centres in the Dominion.

None have done more towards its success than those who came here from Scotland with every determination to succeed."

Other Toasts

R. M. Glover, replying to the toast to "The Press" sounded an optimistic note but warned that true happiness is gained only through hard work.

"Our Club" was responded to by James Brown, who spoke in glowing terms of the future of the Caledonian Club, and praised the ladies of the organization for their interest and work.

"The Lassies" gave Rev. M. C. Mackinnon a subject in which he excelled, paying tribute to the ladies in a very happy manner.

Alex. Dick carried the thoughts of the audience back to their boyhood companions in his response to "Absent Friends."

"Auld Scotia" was replied to by Alex. Clark, who referred to the poor housing accommodation of the Clyde district, but said that after all the hearts of all true Scotsmen were in the land of heather.

The chairman moved votes of thanks to the ladies' committee which attended to the preparation and serving of the supper, and to the artists who contributed to the success of the evening.

Excellent Programme

The toast list was interspersed with musical numbers which won the appreciation of the audience and proved so popular that the chairman was compelled to ask, in view of the late hour, that the last items be passed without encores.

Songs were rendered by Misses Trucie Pearson and Jessie Pattison, and Messrs. T. Stazicker and E. Humpage. William Thompson recited "Tam O'Shanter," and J. Grierson contributed a reading.

R. Dawson was the accompanist.

MISS M. ACKISON WRITES A LETTER

Gives Interesting Account of Her Work in Mission Field.

The following letter from Miss Maud Ackison, missionary of St. Paul's Church in Formosa to Rev. R. Pogue, pastor of St. Paul's Church, will be of interest to many citizens. The letter follows:

Dear Mr. Pogue,—

When did I write last? I fear it is almost a year. What have I been doing since the beginning of the year? I have been doing quite a number of things. My work, of course, is evangelistic, and I have been set aside for work among the Hakkas in Formosa. There are over 500,000 of these people. The Japanese call them Cantonese, though they are not the Cantonese as we speak of them. The word Hakka means stranger, and for a long time it was thought that they were not Chinese, but some tribe that came into China later. Now some authorities think they may have been the original inhabitants of China. However this may be, they have always been quite distinct from the other Chinese. The women have never bound their feet and work in the field even more than do the men. It naturally follows that they are not as fond of dress and jewellery as the other Chinese women, nor do they do the beautiful embroidery and fine needlework. They are, perhaps, less polished in their manner, but I think that is no advantage, at least to us foreigners. It seems to me, though perhaps I have not yet had enough experience to be a good judge, that they are more frank than the Holo speaking people. They dress their hair differently and their style of dress is different as well as many of their customs. It is reported that they do not cook as good feasts as the Holo Chinese. Personally I have had no opportunity so far to judge, but I do know that the Holo can cook some delicious things to eat.

Last January Council decided that before I should begin the study of the Hakka language I should spend six months visiting the churches in the Hakka district. We have eight churches and preaching places with Hakka preachers. These men come to our schools and studied in Holo, which nearly all the Christians speak. But the heathen, of course, cannot be reached except through their own language. Just think of the language difficulties we have here. The language of the public schools is all Japanese, the language in which our Bible and hymn books have been taught in the island so far has been Holo Chinese and the language of these people is Hakka. It is a very common thing to hear a young man who has no more than public school education speaking Japanese and Holo fluently, as well as his native tongue. And how keen the educated people are for English, Japanese and Formosia alike. We are always being pestered to teach it. If one wished to do so one could soon make quite a good sum of money teaching private pupils. But it has no attractions for me. It doesn't help in any way that I can see to lead people to Christ, and that is what we are here for.

I spent the six months going to the different Hakka churches, teaching the Christian women who already could read a little Holo, where there were any, and teaching reading to some who could not read, as well as doing considerable speaking to heathens through an interpreter. That is quite an experience by itself. It was difficult enough for me to speak Holo, but speaking it by interpretation was a new experience for both me and my interpreter. More than once in the beginning she started out just repeating the Holo after me.

This summer I had my first holiday out of the island, and, oh, how thankful I am for it. We are such a small company here and are so isolated from all other mission workers, that one doesn't have much variety in life. I didn't realize how much I needed to meet different people until I got to Wonsan Beach, Korea, and began to meet other missionaries. Unless one has been without it for years I don't think one can realize what it meant to go into the large auditorium on Sunday morning to find it crowded with English-speaking people, and hear the volume of music, as well as the special music, and to hear the splendid English sermons. It was such a treat to take in, or receive more help than one gives at a service. And how I enjoyed the sea bathing! I learned to swim a little and even got up courage to dive several times. If I had known that diving gave such a wonderful sensation I should have begun earlier in the season.

Every fine Sunday evening we had a song service on the shore just at sunset; frequently seals, attracted by the music, would hover round during the service.

During July I was very lazy and did nothing very strenuous, as I was getting rested. We had a very trying time in June. Dr. Gauld was ill for a long time and we knew for weeks he could not recover. Our jubilee celebrations was the first week in June, and Miss Elliott, our nurse, got an infected thumb while caring for a patient, which threatened to be serious for nearly three weeks. So we were all fairly well worn out with work and anxiety and sorrow.

By August I was fit as could be and went with a party of others, mostly Southern Pres. missionaries, for a trip to the beautiful Diamond mountains of Korea. It was a very happy trip and we all enjoyed the camping out. We had to carry our own food—or rather have coolies carry it—and do our own cooking. We did some fine mountain climbing, and also did a lot of walking.

The walk we boast of is the day we did 80 li, or 30 miles. It was a good walk, but we had to do it because the auto road was washed out and there was no stopping places between. Generally we did about ten miles a day, which we thought rather good considering that it was mountain climbing, at least when we were not going down hill the auto road was in a more level part.

After coming back from the Diamond mountains, I made a quick tour, visiting all our mission stations in Korea. What a wonderful work our church has there! They have tremendous difficulties to face with the spirit among the young people of the present day, but their church has such a solid foundation! They, the Korean elder and deacons and elders and pastors, of course, are not slip-shod in their methods of discipline. They do not hesitate to discipline a back-sliding or careless Christian if he needs it. And so their Christians generally are a credit to their church.

It was good to see the work being done there. I got to know the Macdonalds very well, too. They are both fine missionaries. He is a good strong character and seems to have good judgment. His wife has charge of a large girls' school, as well as teaching her own children part time.

Now I was going to tell you about where I am living and about studying the Hakka language, but I must not make this letter any longer. I shall write that in a letter to Mr. Cowan and then you can exchange if you have time to read any more. Please give my love to Mrs. Pogue. I hope all the boys, and your girls as well, are getting along well. My very heartiest Christmas greeting to you and your family and the people of St. Paul's.

Yours sincerely,
MAUD ACKISON.

DEAD AT TELEPHONE WHEN MAN RETURNED

OTTAWA, Jan. 26.— (Canadian Press.)— The crying of a child to the mouthpiece of an open telephone late yesterday afternoon brought F. A. Williams to his home, where he found his wife dead in a pool of blood. Death was due to a hemorrhage. The telephone operator had her attention drawn to the Williams telephone line by the length of time it remained open and heard the cry of a child in distress. Mrs. Williams had apparently been using the telephone when stricken. The operator got in touch with Williams and advised him to go home.

THE WHITE TEMPLE FOR CHURCH WORK

An Asylum From Painted Women and Lounge Lizards.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 26.—(British United Press) — As an escape from "painted women and lounge lizards" the Calvary Baptist Church of this city is soon to erect a twenty storey combination church and hotel for Christian way farers.

The building will cost approximately $5,000,000 and it is hoped to make it the center of "soul saving activities" of the city. Plans for the building are now being drawn and will be submitted to the vestry of the church within the next three weeks.

The building will contain a large auditorium which will seat 5,000. It will have a choir gallery seating 500 and two balconies for worshippers. It will be known as the white temple and will be on the ground floor. Above it will be three or four, floors devoted to church activities.

The hotel, which may be known as the Mizpah, or some other biblical name will be leased to an operating corporation under strict rules. Drinking, dancing, card playing and other forms of amusement under the ban of the Baptist church will be prohibited.

FEW BUYERS ON MARKET TODAY

The farmers' market was poorly patronized Saturday morning. On the open section, the carts were few and far between ,and the vendors shivered in the bleak wind. Several had provided rugs to stand on. Meat was the only commodity on view. The pigs 'heads and the big beef hearts and livers were frozen stiff. Pork, in stiff, frigid pieces, was 14 and 16 cents, beef ranged from 8 and 9 to 10 and 11 and a small quantity of mutton was 10 and 12 cents a pound. A few loads of wood were on the market, in good quality, the mixed variety selling for $10 a load. The auctioneer was selling second-hand Persian lamb gauntlets at $1 a pair. Most of the farmers' horses had been removed from the rigs, but one animal faced the north wind for a long, patient interval, head down against the icy blast. The fish man succumbed to the temperature and removed his frozen wares to the comparative warmth of the lower entrance.

Upstairs, the main portion of the crowd patronized the stoves. Baskets were scarce and there was little to buy, with the exception of chickens, which were fairly plentiful, prices ranging from 25 to 55 cents a pound. Butter and eggs were sold out at an early hour, the former having a general price of 45 to 48 cents a pound, eggs sellingsat 55 cents a dozen. Cream was 30 cents a pint. A few 5 lb. cans of mixed honey was priced at 50 cents.

New System of Fat Reduction

Here's a new way for all fat people to laugh together at that old bugaboo—Obesity. The saying that there is nothing new under the sun does not now apply to fat people any more. Here is something new for them—a new sensation, a new pleasure, a new and graceful figure, easily found by anyone who is passing beyond the limits of slimness. Everyone has heard of the Marmola Prescription; that harmless combination of fat-defying elements perfected by one of the foremost physicians. Now from the same high authority there comes another idea — the idea of condensing these same pure, harmless, ingredients into a pleasant little tablet. Taken after eating and at bedtime they help the stomach to dispose of all the fatty foods, converting them into compact, solid flesh, muscle and energy, without dieting or exercise. Marmola Prescription Tablets regulate the entire system— do for you what bodily exertion and self denial cannot do, and the fat, once routed, is gone for good. You can prove all this at a trifling cost. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists or sent postpaid by the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich. A box—sufficient to bring results—is but one dollar.

Record Production of Newsprint in America.

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—The production of newsprint paper in North America hung up a new record in 1923, the total for the United States and Canada surpassing by 218,000 tons, or nearly nine per cent. the previous high mark of 2,530,000 tons in 1922, according to the report made by R. S. Kellogg, Secretary, at the annual meeting of the Newsprint Service Bureau here to-day.

The United States mills, the report says, produced 1,485,000 tons of newsprint, or 37,000 tons more than in 1922 and also more than any previous year except 1920, when the total was 1,512,000 tons.

In Canada the output last year was 1,263,000 tons, or 181,000 tons more than in 1922. Over eighty per cent. of the Canadian output was marketed in the United States.

XLIII (Continued)

She had seen a good deal of the Sophisticates lately, and from what she had let drop he inferred that even when he had not been present they had talked of little else. They had by no means waited for his play to be finished and read to a select few. Hogarth and Scores had assured them long before it was finished that it would be a great play.

Once or twice there was a rustling in the back of his mind. They were not given to wild enthusiasms of this sort. They thought too highly of themselves. He realized how genuinely fond they were of him, but he had not hoped for more than critical appreciation, from the men, at least. Could it be possible . . .

But he was still in the first flush of his triumph, his brain hummed with pleasant memories of those hours at Gora Dwight's three nights ago. He had cleared the base of the pedestal on whose narrow and unaccommodating top he was soon to have his foothold, and it was not in human nature, at this stage of his progress, to suspect the sincerity of the adulation so generously poured at his feet.

And Mary, during this past fortnight (when he had been present, at least), had seemed to bask contentedly in reflected glory, and smiled sympathetically while they talked of the many Clavering first-nights they would attend in the sure anticipation of that class of entertainment up to which the Little Theatres and the Theatre Guild were striving to educate the public. They took it as a matter of course that he was to abide in the stimulating atmosphere of New York for the rest of his days. And they invariably insisted that "Madame Zattiany" must always sit in a stage box and be a part of the entertainment. They were too well bred (and too astute) to hint at the engagement they were positiv existed, but "hoped" she would be willing to add to the prestige of one who was now as much her friend as theirs. It was a curious position in which to place a woman like Mary Zattiany, but Sophisticate New York was not Diplomatic Europe, and he thought he saw her smile deepen into humor once or twice; no doubt she was reflecting that she had lived long enough to take people as she found them.

His reverie was interrupted by a buzzing at the end of his hall and he went to the door quickly, wondering who could have sent him a special delivery letter or a note at this hour. It proved to be a cablegram. He read it when he returned to his living room. It was dated Rome, Italy, and read:

"I'll have you yet. Janet."

Clavering swore, then laughed. He tore the message into strips and sat down to read his newspapers; he had merely glanced at the headlines and his column. His eye was arrested by the picture of a man at the top of the first page of his own newspaper. Although smooth-shaven and very regular of feature, with no pronounced racial characteristics, it was, nevertheless, a foreign face, although difficult to place. From its distinction it might be Austrian, but the name below, "Prince Hohenhauer," might as easily be German. Still, it was not a German face, and Clavering studied it for a moment before reading the news text, wondering faintly at his interest.

It was unmistakably the face of a statesman, and reminded him a little of a picture of Prince Schwarzenburg, prime minister when Franz Josef ascended the throne, he had seen lately in a history of Austria. There was the same broad placidity of brow, the long oval face, the thin long slightly curved nose, the heavy lids, the slim erectness, the same suave repose. But this man's large beautifully cut mouth was more firmly set, had a faintly satiric expression, and the eyes a powerful and penetrating gaze. It was the face of a man who was complete master of himself and accustomed to the mastery of men.

Clavering read the story under the headlines:

Prince Hohenhauer Arrives in New York

Goes at Once to Washington

"Prince Hohenhauer, a distinguished political factor under the old Austrian Empire, arrived yesterday morning on the Noordam. He refused to be interviewed, but it is understood he has a large amount of money invested in the United States and has come to New York at the request of his lawyers to attend to certain necessary formalities. He was, in fact, met at Quarantine by Judge Trent, one of the most distinguished members of the New York Bar since his retirement from the Bench, and they went at once to the Prince's stateroom and remained there until it was time to leave the ship. It is significant, however, that the Prince, after engaging a suite at the Ritz-Carlton, and lunching there with Judge Trent, took the afternoon train for Washington. As he recently left his estate in Switzerland to return to Vienna and accept a position in the Cabinet, and as it is well known that Austria desires the backing of the American Government to enable her to overcome the opposition of France to her alliance with Germany, or, it is whispered, with a kingdom farther south, it is not reasonable to infer that he has come to the United States on a special, if secret, mission.

"The Prince was the subject of lively interest on the boat and of much speculation, but he took his meals in his suite and walked the deck only in the company of his secretary.

"He is a man of striking appearance, quite six feet in height, with a spare erect figure, fine features, and hardly looks his sixty years, in spite of his white hair."

Then followed a brief biography, which illustrated the efficiency of the newspaper "morgue," for the statesman's reputation was, so far, wholly European:

"Prince Moritz Franz Erust Felix von Hohenhauer was born October 6th, 1862, on his ancestral estate in what was then known as Galicia. His mother was a princess of the House of Schwarzenberg. He has been the head of his own historic house for the last forty years, and has one son and two daughters. His wife, a member of the Kalnoky family, died several years ago. 'Hohenhauer' was one of those almost unbelievably vast estates of sixteen million acres possessed by a few of the Austrian noblemen under the old regime. In spite of the fact that Prince Hohenhauer was one of the greatest landlords in all Christendom he was a liberal in politics from the first and the author of several of the reform laws in behalf of the people which from time to time were forced upon the most conservative monarch in Europe. He was in sympathy with the revolution and offered his services at once to the new Government. They were declined, and he retired to Switzerland, where he has an estate near St. Mortiz, and, it is understood, considerable money invested. His vast estates in what is now Poland were confiscated, but he was one of the wealthiest men in the Empire and is said to have transferred immense sums to the United States before the war."

Liberal in politics. Immense sums invested in the United States. Judge Trent. There could be no possible doubt as to who the man was. The floor seemed unsteady for a moment.

And yet there was as little doubt that Mary Zattiany had long since ceased to care for him. That was over fifteen or sixteen years ago. They had known each other in later years, both equally indifferent to the other and to the past. . . . Yes . . . but she had then completely lost the beauty and the charm that had enthralled him, while he was still a man in his prime, who, with that appearance, no doubt had other young and beautiful women in his life.

He may or may not have heard of the metamorphosis. At all events they had been political allies. He would call on her as a matter of course. And possibly out of more than politeness: he may have brought her an important message. Or he might find it expedient to confer with her on his present mission. That he had come on an important mission did not admit of a doubt; but at least he had not gone to her at once. His interest in her, so far, was still impersonal.

Clavering had too much of the arrogance of youth and he was too sure of Mary Zattiany's love for himself, to be apprehensive of the charms of a man of sixty, but he was invaded by a nameless and almost sickening fear. He had very swift and often very sure intuitions, and he was shaken by a premonition that in some manner, which, in his ignorance of the facts he was unable to define, this man's presence in America boded no good to himself.

SO NERVOUS SHE COULD NOT SLEEP

A Quebec Woman Found Relief and Wants Others to Know.

Mrs. Donald M. McLeod, Springhill, Que., was a victim of great nervousness until she found the right remedy, and is now anxious that others profit by her experience. Mrs. McLeod says:—"Some years ago I became run down and grew so nervous that my life was a burden to myself and all around me. Every night I would wake up with a choking feeling, numb all over and my heart beating at an alarming rate. I would jump up and walk the floor and declare I was dying. Then I would have sinking spells, and all day long would be so dizzy that I would stagger like a drunken person. I was afraid to be left alone, and my condition was terrible. I was then taken to the Sherbrooke hospital, but the treatment there did me no good and I came back home so weak that I could hardly cross the floor. I could not take care of my children, and my mother did so. Everybody thought I was dying, and I was just waiitng and wondering when the end would come. At this stage my attention was directed to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got a supply at once. By the time I had used five boxes I felt much better, could eat beter, and sleep better, and felt almost like a new woman. I continued the pills for some time further, and am now a strong and healthy woman. I advise all run-down women to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as I am sure they will do for others what they have done for me."

The new sales tax will not increase the price of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as the company pays the tax. You can still obtain the pills through any medicine dealer at 50 cents a box, or by mail, post paid, at this price, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

There should be a distinct line drawn between money saved for spending and money saved for investment.

Many people used the word "save" in two different ways. They "save" money for investment, and they "save" money for an automobile or for a trip or a new hat. In this latter sense they really mean they save to spend.

Laying aside money for future spending has many advantages. First, it fosters the habit of taking something out of the income and putting it aside; second, it enables a person to accumulate cash for making a purchase; third, it gives time for thinking over a purchase while saving the cash so that one can be sure the desired article is worth having

However, saving for spending does not increase one's working capital, as saving for investment does.

The market price of anything to be offered competitively in a world market depends upon the demand and supply. Its price is not determined by the cost of production.

If the price of wheat should fall so low that it would not cover the normal cost of production to the farmer, what would be the matter?

The trouble would be too much wheat. Cost of production and market price are not closely related. Of course, cost of production influences future prices, because if the cost exceeds the price, wheat will be grown only by low cost producers. This would tend to lessen the supply, and consequently the price would rise.

Supply and demand will govern price as long as we have competitive world markets, regardless of the cost of production. It is the natural way of preventing us from growing too much what, or any other commodity.

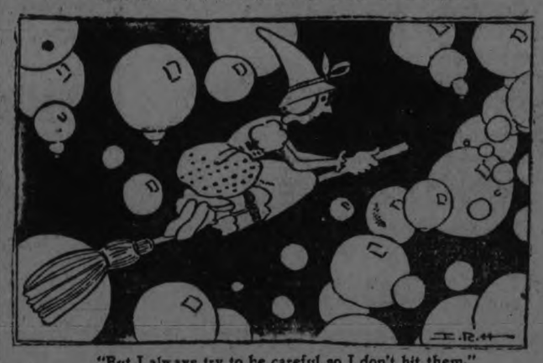
ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Clive Roberts Barton

MOTHER GOOSE GETS A PRIZE



"But I always try to be careful so I don't hit them."

The Riddle Lady was just as glad to see the Twins as the Fairy Queen had been.

And the Twins were just as glad as she was about it. Such a dear, funny place Riddle Town was—with its question mark chimneys and its dear, funny people!

In order to sharpen their wits and make them the smartest people in Fairyland, once a day the Riddle Lady asked them a riddle. But lately it seemed that nobody could guess a single thing!

"I don't know what's gone wrong with my subjects!" she remarked to Nancy and Nick. "But it does seem as though they brought dunce caps along instead of thinking caps. I have a riddle all ready now and I'm going to read it in a minute when everyone gets here. We'll see what happens today."

Pretty soon when all the Riddle Landers have arrived, the Riddle Lady began her riddle. This was it. See if you, too, can guess the answer.

"We're fat and round and jolly,
And clear as silver bells,
We gleam and glow with every hue
Of bud or flower what ever grew.
In magic fairy dells.

"We're light as birdie feathers,
Or breathlike thistledown,
We sail away to lands of air,
To see the things that happen there,
In castles of renown.

"Our birth was very lowly,
But we must tell the truth,
Our home was in a sudsy bowl.
Then someone blew us thro' a hole,
And we escaped forsooth.
"We're careful not to bump our heads,
On poles or roofs or wires
Or barns or apple-trees or such,
For at the very slightest touch,
Each one of us expires.

"We haven't any engine,
We never use a track,
We never carry passengers,
To be alone each one prefers,
For we're not coming back.

"We wave goodby and off we go,
Nid noddling to our friends,
To hunt for castles in the air,
Where princes live—and ladies fair,
And here our story ends."

Mother Goose had come over from Mother Goose Land, right next door, and she began to nod and grin. "I know what it is," she said. "When I ride around in the air on my broom, I meet hundreds of them. But I always try to be careful so I don't hit them for they go 'poof!' and disappear in a second."

"If you guess it, Mother Goose, you get a new broom," said the Riddle Lady, "for that's the prize."

I know of two or three or four people who were going to say the answer, but when they heard what the prize was, they kept quiet. Who, indeed, wanted a broom! It only meant work!

"Soap bubbles," said Mother Goose. "That's it, isn't it. And I'm glad I guessed for I do need a new broom."

Everybody else was glad about her good luck. Who could make better use of a broom?

A PETERBORO MAN DIED IN WINNIPEG.

Fred Kennedy Was Prominent in Musical Circles in the Western City.

The death occurred at Winnipeg on Saturday, Jan. 19, of Fred. Kennedy, a native of Peterboro, and known in the Western metropolis as a patron of music. Deceased was a son of the late Col. William Nassau Kennedy. He went to Winnipeg with his parents in the early days of the city's history. His father, who was Winnipeg's second Mayor, died in the eighties, after returning from the Egyptian expedition, sent to the relief of General Gordon in Khartoum—an expedition in which a number of Peterboro men took part. Col. Kennedy was in charge of the Nile voyageaurs picked from Red River men. He died in London, and was buried in Highgate Cemetery, where the British Government erected a handsome monument to his memory.

His son Fred, was prominent for 25 years in Winnipeg's musical circles. He was bandmaster in several military bands in the city. He organized and financed the Imperial Academy of Music, and was choir leader for a number of years. He had big interests in the city, and was reputed to be wealthy. A brother, General J. N. BOILING VEGETABLES.

Vegetables should not be overcooked. In boiling, use only enough water to cook them without burning. Overcooking results in an unnecessary loss of mineral salts and vitamins. It also injures the flavour and colour.

GLASS TOPS.

Glass tops save the wood of your dressing table from the possible injuries of spilled liquids, but this is rather expensive. A more economical measure is to keep a blotting pad under the dresser cover to protect the surface.

1923

The best year in the history of The London Life Insurance Company

Highest showing ever made in New Business written . .	$44,749,707
Income for year	6,569,819
Assets	23,074,169
Total Insurance in Force . .	151,780,810

Mortality Rate (Ordinary Branch) 37.2% Cost of doing business reduced.

Sound Assets

The Company holds no speculative securities. All investments made in Real Estate Mortgages and Government and Municipal Debentures. Rate of interest earned 6.84%. Overdue interest only one-tenth of one per cent of investments.

Ample Reserves

On the Company's own basis of valuation, larger reserves are set up for the security of policyholders than is the case with any similar class of business on this continent. Full provision is also included for all profits accruing, although not due for years to come. Large Contingency Funds maintained for emergencies.

Increased Surplus

The Surplus on the Company's stringent basis is $918,966 an increase in the year of 60%. Were liabilities computed according to the less stringent Government standard, the Surplus, in addition to the sum (approximately half million dollars) by which the market values of securities exceed the book values, would be $3,210,160.

Dividend Scale Maintained

The Scale of Dividends to Policyholders has always been noted for its liberality. This scale was actually increased in 1916 in the midst of war conditions. The Company's financial position was such as to enable it to continue this scale throughout and since the war and epidemic periods—an unparalleled record in North America.

Estimates and Actual Results

When present rates were adopted in 1900, estimates were issued which have since been greatly exceeded. The Company's dividends to-day are from 50% to 100% in excess of original estimates. It is doubtful if this record has been equalled in any part of the world during the past twenty years.

THIS LITTLE WORLD

(By MASON DIXON)

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 26.—Some weeks ago, when New Orleans found itself without a ghost, due to a gambler's confession that the Haunted House was only a gambling resort and that the sporting gentry had even hired "spirits" to groan and clank their chains, the young bloods of the city found a new hangout for ethereal citizens.

It was located in Gallatin street, a deserted little river-front thoroughfare once given over to hectic revels in the good old steamboat days. Now this little street, dark, narrow, lined with rickety, ancient, overhanging and sagging houses, is used by ragpickers and their ilk. For weeks society gallants have been taking their partners at Vieux Carre balls to hear the ghost of Gallatin street. This particular ghost made a roaring, hissing sound.

Finally some brave beau, who was not in on the secret, ventured to beard the ghost in his den. It turned out to be the pet alligator of Judge Jules Brunot, who had parked his pet there for the winter.

* * *

American history records that General Andrew Jackson won the battle of New Orleans. Nearly all historians admit his victory was largely due to reinforcements rushed him by the pirate, Jean Lafitte.

New New Orleans is considering erecting a monument, near that of General Jackson, to Pirate Lafitte.

* * *

For the first time since 1796 the dripping fountain at the Old Absinthe House has stopped. The marble slab under the faucet, worn almost through by the constant drip from the siphon, is dry.

No gentleman ever drank his absinthe mixed with a spoon. The absinthe had to be placed in a glass and then slowly dissolved by the drip from the fountain.

Recently New Orleans experienced its coldest weather in years. The bartenders at the Old Absinthe House, now politely called a soft drink emporium, forgot to protect the fountain. So it froze up and burst.

The price of turnip greens in New Orlans has soared to unheard of heights. Negro mammies who once sold them in the Old French Market for almost a song, have become the aristocrats of vegetable vendors. It's due to Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy.

When he was in Louisiana recently he remarked that Tom Marshall, former vice president of the United States, had said that what the nation needed was a good five-cent cigar.

"Mr. Marshall is wrong," said Mr. Daniels, "what America needs is more corn pone, hog jowl and turnip greens."

Immediately New Orleans commenced the rush on turnip greens.

Constant Headaches And Dizziness.

It is hard to struggle along with a head that aches and pains all the time, and in nine cases out of ten the persistent headaches are due to some derangement of the stomach, liver or bowels.

Undoubtedly the cause must be removed before permanent relief may be had.

Mrs. Peter Curran, 27 Morrison St., Sydney, N.S., writes:—"I have been troubled for the last five years with constant headaches and dizziness. After trying several remedies, which I found to be of no avail, Burdock Blood Bitters was recommended to me.

B.B.B. did me a world of good, and I cannot praise this remedy enough."

LITTLE LAKE ICE MUST NOT BE CUT

Order Issued Thursday by Provincial Board of Health Absolutely Prohibits Cutting for Any Purpose.

Interviewed by the Examiner today regarding the prohibition placed on ice-cutting on the Otonabee river, Dr. N. H. Sutton, District Officed of Health, said the order issued from Toronto and absolutely prohibits the cutting of ice for any purpose. "It is an absolute prohibition" he said.

Inquiries from interested persons and comment where men gathered to discuss the matter indicated that it is not understood why the Provincial Board of Health should prohibit the use of this ice or any ice for purely refrigerating purposes. Moreover, it was pointed out that at the last meeting of the City Board of Health Dr. T. W. H. Young, City Officer of Health, reported two samples of ice from Little Lake had been tested in the Provincial labratory in Toronto and found pure.

Dr. Sutton, asked regarding these points, admitted that the samples taken by him were quite sterile. "But", he added, "there might be many like that and one sample with impurities imbedded in it. That one impure piece would in all probability be the one some careless person would drop into a glass of water to drink.

Dr. Sutton told The Examiner the prohibitory notice followed reports which he sent to Toronto by request of the Provincial Health Officers. "The order is merely the first step in a general clean-up", he declared.

Dr. Sutton intimated that no ice must be cut on any of the waters covered by the prohibition, but he gave permission this morning to some who had already cut their ice to remove it.

Following up the statement that this is the first step in a general clean-up of the city, Dr. Sutton said the authorities in Toronto are watching the progress on the outfall sewer, and immediately it is completed the city will be required to comemnce operations on the sewage disposal plant.

Other Views.

J. F. Allin, of the Allin Ice Company was naturally perturbed by this order which it is understood virtually destroys his business.

Mr. Allin told The Examiner he could haul 32 loads of ice from Little Lake to his store-house every day. The next nearest available harvest ground is Chemong Lake, and the road there is practically impassable. At the most, he could only haul two loads a day.

Mr. Allin professed surprise that the Provincial Board of Health should issue this order in the face of the report made on ice stored in his warehouse, which the Provincial Labratory found "pure."

The order having fallen so quickly and unexpectedly, without the Provincial Board having given the dealers an opportunity to make their representations or preparations, Mr. Allin was not prepared to make a statement regarding his plans.

A Doctor's Statement.

A medical man in the city who has had a great deal of experience in labratory work and has been interested in the question of ice purity told The Examiner that tests have shown all bacteria destroyed in frozen water in three months. Bacteria, he said, was introduced into water which was afterwards frozen. Tests made on thin ice from time to time showed that after three months no trace of the bacteria remained in the ice.

ONTARIO GETS SHARE LATEST COLD WAVE

TORONTO, Jan. 26. — (Canadian Press).—King Winter is swooping again over Ontario from his northern fastnesses, and his zero breath is expected to prevail to-day over the lakes and the Georgian Bay district. In Northern Ontario there was a heavy fall of snow ready for harvesting into drifts that are impeding drain movements, and are even stopping the progress of snowplows. Cold weather prevails all over the West, and on the wings of the wind Ontario is to be brought another sample of real winter.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get 16 ounces—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

LOVE HOLDS WIFE TO WICKED HUBBY

Who is Charged With the Murder of Their Week-Old Son.

FT. WORTH, Tex., Jan. 26.—Love of husband—

For the wife it diminishes—yea, fades away, say the sages, for a newer love, when baby comes.

But for Mrs. Thelma Vancil here, death of her first-born by suffocation and stab wound through is tiny heart, has served only to forge anew the love links of courtship and honeymoon days just ended.

In an anomaly of tragedy, the girl bride and mother, over the corpse of her infant son, is pledged to undying faith and increased devotion to Ralph G. Vancil, 23, the husband and father, held for first degree murder in county jail, charged with his offspring's death.

Wife Remains Steadfas

Thus has she given refutation to the theories of skeptical misogynists, who hold that matrimony's romance ends when perambulators and midnight sentry duty in the nursery are added to domestic burdens.

As for Vancil, the husband, he paces back and forth in his lone cell, refusing all consolation and crying aloud protests of rage, against accusations of infanticide, police have leveled against him.

Just at sunup a few weeks ago he led the sheriff's deputies to a crude grave adjoining a country road.

And there was found the body of his baby, Ralph G. Vancil jr., one week old, still warm but with life extinct, under the pile of debris which, the coroner at the autopsy said, had been heaped upon the child even before death came.

"Tells Conflicting Stories."

Suffocation was the verdict. But the stab would through the heart, from which trickled a tiny rivulet of blood, would have been sufficient to kill, physicians held.

Vancil denied his guilt and told a number of conflicting stories, according to police, following arrest.

One was that he had paida negro $25 to administer chloroform to the baby to put it to sleep.

The couple had been married only a month before the child was born.

Vancil explained that he wanted the infant quieted to prevent if from crying when he and his wife met a number of their college friends who had planned a celebration for them and were unaware of the baby's birth.

But police say he has not satisfactorily explained away the bloody infant garments found in his possession by officers, who claim they caught Vancil trying to burnthe telltale evidence before an open fire.

Love Burns High

No charge has been placed against the wife. She has returned to her parents.

But before leaving she visited her accused mate.

"I will help you," she promised. "You are all the world to me. Nothing can ever kill my love. Nothing."

In lingering embrace they parted. Good cheer and hope marked the demeanor of each.

"Love of husband is greater than any love," says the girl wife who's but 18.

"I love my baby, too—as much as any mother can. But he—e is my husband. And, oh—don't you know what I mean.

"A love such as ours can never die. Can never be diminished. Nothing can destroy it.

"I don't believe him guilty. But even if he is, I would love him still."

A LINDSAY MAN KILLED IN WEST.

Employee Killed R. C. Hadley Following a Wage Dispute.

LINDSAY, Jan. 25.—Word was received here of the murder at Styal Alberta, of R. C. Hadley, a former resident of Gooderham, Haliburton County, and who has a sister, and daughter residing in Lindsay.

On January 2nd, Hadley who had a French Canadian named Burnette in his employ paid him off. The latter, it appears, was dissatisfied with settlement and shortly afterwards drew his revolver; fired two shots at Hadley, the second shot entering his head and killing him instantly. Burnette made his escape, and the police were notified of the tragedy. The next morning a posse of men tracked Burnette in the snow, and discovered where he had accidently or deliberately shot himself. After tracking him for some distance further, they finally located him dead in the corner of an old tie camp.

The late Mr. Hadly was 54 years of age. He is survived by his wife and a grown up family, besides his relatives in Lindsay, two brothers reside at Gooderham and a sister at Fenelon Falls.

NINETY SECONDS GAVE ST. MARY'S THREE GOALS

Toronto Team Handed the Petes Their First Trimming of the Season In Exhibition Game—Blueshirts Started Too Late.

The Petes hit their stride a good deal too late in last night's exhibition game with St. Mary's of Toronto, waiting until the last period before they looked anything like themselves and by that time the visitors were 4 to 0 in front. Although the home crew were all over St. Mary's that final session two counters represented their scoring efforts and the final figures showed them 4 to 2 behind.

Even though the Toronto gang scored the only marker in the first period the Petes did not seem to be taking the game seriously, showing little of their usual pep and fight and the exhibition eased along at that clip well into the second period. Then taking advantage of a penalty and some decidedly slow clearing around the Peterboro nets the visitors ran in three goals in ninety seconds and had a comfortable lead of four counters. The Petes came to life then and dominated the game for the last twenty minutes but their far from accurate marksmanship combined with clever goal keeping by Clark the visiting net guardian held them to two tallies and they skated off the ice beaten for the first time this season.

The reverse should do the team good if it has taught them that no opposition is to be underestimated and that team work provides goals.

Not Regular Team.

St. Mary's sent down a mixed team of senior and junior players, the line up including Clark, Bailey and Burke of St. Mary's seniors, Findlay of United Colleges, Clayton the good centre man of Toronto Canoe Club juniors, and Hunt, Heintzman and Callaghan of St. Mary's juniors. A young aggregation, they were fast and clever and they worked their heads off to win a clean cut victory. They broke fast, showed excellent combination and their checking was consistently close all the way. Bailey was the speed merchant of the outfit and his stickhandling was on a par with his skating ability. He is one of the best youngsters that has performed in the Brock Street Arena in many a moon. Burke was always prominent, Findlay was a tower of strength on the defence and Callaghan, Heintzman and Hunt were always useful. Clark, the goalie, made a host of phenomenal stops. He starred all through and in the last twenty minutes his work prevented the Petes from pulling the game out of the fire.

Both defensively and offensively the Petes are capable of much better hockey than they showed last night. Their passing and shooting were both for the most part inaccurate, and they have seldom checked so half-heartedly or with so little success as in the first two periods last night. Possibly the fact that so many subs were used and there were such frequent changes did something to do with the lack of system shown but at all events the team work slipped a cog somewhere and until the final period they were clearly outplayed. No one was particularly to blame and incidentally no one stood out in particular except Burgess who worked his head off and got away frequently for dangerous jaunts down the boards.

Listless Hockey.

It was pretty listless hockey in the first period, with neither teams dangerous very often and the goalkeepers smothering everything that was hurled straight. The period was half over when the visitors got the only counter of the first session. Burke got the marker, but the bulk of the credit goes to Bailey, who broke fast, outskated the Petes' forwards and eluded the defence to go close in for a shot which Dwyer blocked, only to have Burke close in fast from the wing and tap the rebound into the twine.

The second period started off at a faster clip. The Petes were combining better and only clever goalkeeping by Clark kept them off the scoring sheet. Then, just as the crowd were expecting to see the score tied, came the deluge. McPherson was ruled off for an accidental body check and with the numerical advantage in their favour, the visiting crew suddenly launched an offensive that made the Petes look for the next two minutes as if they were suffering from sleeping sickness. Callaghan and Hunt combined for the first counter, Callaghan taking the pass close in and registering.

They came right back with a three man combination for another. Dwyer stopped the first attack, but the defence failed to clear and Hunt slammed the rebound into the nets.

Right after that another combination dash took the visitors inside, and although Dwyer saved once, he was slow in clearing and Hunt was allowed to step in and hammer the rubber into the nets.

4 to 0 for the visitors and the game more than half over was the situation then, and the Petes took a much needed brace.

Clarke, however, was too good for them for the rest of the period and the visitors were still four to the good at the second breathing spell.

The last period saw the Petes attacking almost continuously, but their shooting was none too good, and Clark nailed the drives that did go straight. The minutes dragged along without a score until finally Rose recovered the rubber behind St. Mary's nets and bringing it round in front, scooped one past Clark.

Halpin came back with a nice rush and his shot from the side carromed into the net off Clark's leg, giving the homesters another marker.

With a chance to win out in sight they came on in great style then and St. Mary's were hard pressed, falling back on shooting the rubber down the ice to relieve the pressure. The nets were continuously menaced, but nothing more got by Clark and the visitors had won.

The teams:

St. Mary's—Goal, Clark; defence, Burke, Findlay; centre, Clayton; right wing, Bailey; left wing, Callaghan. Subs, Hunt, Heintzman, West, McClure.

Referee —T. Deforge, Peterborough.

2 St. Mary's—Hunt, 10.30 mins.
3 St. Mary's—Hunt, 30 secs.
4 St. Mary's, Callaghan, 45 secs.

The visitors opened up fairly strong in the first period getting two goals to Marmora's one. Play was mostly the individual style In the second, the home players began to get their combination working and closed the session with the score in their favor by 4-3.

Weir of Norwood tied it up in the third session, and the game picked up speed as both teams struggled for the deciding goal. In the first five minutes overtime, Phoney Shannon scored for Marmora, and made victory certain by duplicating the flat in the second five minutes, getting boh goals from a pass.

GALT TERRIERS LOST SIXTH STRAIGHT GAME

KITCHENER, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press).—Galt Terriers lost their sixth straight game here last night, the locals being victorious 5 to 4. The Kitchener team had a very fair margin of the play, and with two minutes to go, the count was 5 to 2, but the Terriers, aided by some lax back-checking and some good shooting, ran in two goals to make the contest close.

It was a nice game of hockey, with the locals in particular displaying good combination, and every one of their goals was of the combination variety.

POLICE ASKED TO SEARCH FOR SIKI

Negro Boxer Is Wanted By Match-Makers Interested In Scheduled Bouts.

NEW ORLEANS, La., January 25 (Canadian Press). — Police here were searching for Battling Siki, who disappeared yesterday.

Match-makers who are interested in future bouts in which the Senegalese is scheduled to appear wired the local authorities to locate and hold the elusive boxer.

It was learned that Siki is registered at the Chicago Hotel, a negro hostelry here, where he has had accommodation since his fight with Battling Owens on Monday night.

DISAPPEARANCE ASSURANCE.

CHICAGO, January 25 (Canadian Press). — An insurance policy for $5,000 against any further disappearance of Battling Siki ,the Senegalese boxer, has been taken out here.

The "disappearance insurance" was taken out, Tommy Walsh, match-maker, announced, to ensure the presence of Siki in Minneapolis on 31st January, when he will meet Joe Lohman, of Toledo.

Siki is expected to come on to Chicago from New Orleans to spend the intervening time before the Minneapolis match, and while here the insurance company, it is said, will have two men keep track of his movements.

SARAZEN THREE UP ON HAVERS

Carries Lead Into Second Half of 72-Hole Match—Played In Pouring Rain

SAN FRANCISCO, January 26 (Canadian Press). — Gene Sarazen, American professional golf champion, was leading three up in the first half of his 72-hole match with Arthur G. Havers, holder of the British open title, played yesterday on the Lake Merced Golf and Country Club links.

The total cards for the 36 holes were: Sarazen 151, Havers 153.

Sarazen will carry his lead to the second half of the match, which will be played at the Hillcrest Country Club, at Los Angeles, on Saturday.

The United States champion was much steadier throughout the day's play than the British champion.

Rain fell throughout the day, and in the evening several of the greens were puddles of water.

Havers outdrove Sarazen in the afternoon round, but was unable to negotiate the pond-like greens.

Sarazen, however, was steady in the vicinity of the cup, and got most of his lead in this way.

Par for the eighteen holes is 71, and the distance 6,720 yards.

BROKE TIE TO GIVE HAMILTON A VICTORY

TORONTO, Jan. 26. — (Canadian Press). — With the score tied and two minutes to go in the final period Johnie Brackenborough, Tigers' great little centre player, poked in a goal which gave the Hamilton team a 3 to 2 victory over Varsity in their Senior O.H.A. tilt at the Arena last night. The winning score came after the V. of T., by throwing everything they had into the game had overcome the Tigers' two-goal lead, and it all happened so suddenly that the fans, who had settled back into their seats, satisfied that overtime would be necessary, could hardly realize that the puck was in the net.

Dixie Ring Champ Gave Leonard His Start Now Another Dixie Star May Dethrone Him

BY JOE WILLIAMS.

You never can tell about Fate—Nine years ago, for example, Joe Mandot, a Frenchman, bearing the title of champion lightweight of the south, invaded the east to do battle against Benny Leonard, then an unknown.

Mandot was highly esteemed in fistic circles and the experts predicted he would be the next world's champion in the division.

Leonard knocked him out in seven rounds, became famous overnight as a result, and two years later came into possession of the title Mandot seemed headed for.

Now the souht has another lightweight champion, and, singularly enough, he also hails from New Orleans. Pal Moran is his name. At present Moran is the outstanding candidate for the crown which Leonard still wears.

It would be somewhat of a coincidence if the present southern lightweight champion were to upset Leonard in much the same surprising manner as Leonard, years back, upset the former southern champion.

And, to repeat, you never can tell about Fate.

Moran Now a Star.

Moran seems finally to have arrived as a first-rate fighting man. A year ago he was just one of the mob, a spear carrier in the moving Queensbury drama. Now he's a celebrated lead. A year ago fellows like Jack Bernstein and Joe Tiplitz were beating him. Now he has moved far out beyond the second-raters.

Renewed health and the gradual improvement that comes with experience account for the change in Moran as a fighter. From a sickly, anemeic youth he has developed into a rugged battler, replete with stamina and strength. Punches don't hurt him like they used to, and, what is more important, his punches do hurt.

LEFT TO RIGHT—PAL MORAN, JOE MANDOT

Uppercut Best Punch.

Moran is the lightweight sensation of the winter season. He shocked Charley White in a thrilling battle some weeks ago. More recently he scored a notable knockout victory against Johnny Shugrue, crack Waterbury boy. Moran looked even better against Shugrue than against White. There was a finished touch to his work and an unlooked for ferocity in his punching.

Moran's best punch appears to be a right uppercut. It was this punch that started White on his way to oblivion, and it was the same wallop that crumpled Shugrue in a heap, like a wounded stag. Moran shoots the punch at short range and with blinding speed. We aren't so sure that Leonard himself can escape it.

And Pal Moran—real name Paola Mirano—is a natural lightweight; he weighed 133 two days before the Shugrue fight.

JUNIORS LOST LINDSAY GAME AFTER BATTLE

STORY OF GAME

The Peterborough Juniors and the Scugogville boys put up one of the fastest games of junior hockey seen on the Lindsay ice in many years. The Lindsay boys had the big end of a 5 to 3 score at the end of the game, but the Petes outplayed them in the first and second periods. In the final period the onrush of the Greybirds was too much for the Petes, and it was in this period the Petes lost the game. The Petes played a very fast game and every man passed unselfishly. On the other hand the Lindsay boys did not show as much combination as the Petes, but their back-checking was a feature and when their forward line came down the ice abreast, the Petes found it very difficult to stop them.

The losers set a fast pace from the start that gave their rooters lots of confidence. Before the first period was over they had notched two counters and would have had more if it had not been for hard luck and good goal-keeping by Lehane, who showed up well throughout the game. The Petes bored in on the nets in the first and second periods more than in any other start this season and the many beautiful combination rushes made by them was a feature. No member of the Peterborough line-up tried to hog the puck and they were a far different looking aggregation than they were when they battled with the Midgets in the last game on the Brock street rink. Lindsay were much improved and with several alterations in their line-up they are stronger than ever. They back-checked like fiends and showed some neat stick-handling and combination in flashes.

When their big defence men broke away, which was quite frequently, they were very dangerous when they got in shooting distance, as they both pack a healthy shot. Every man on the ice played a nice game, while Piercy seemed to be the hardest and most effective worker of the Lindsay line-up. He was the hardest man to watch ,as he was all over the ice at once and his ability to check bothered the Petes greatly.

From gong to gong it was nothing but rush after rush, with a nice display of checking on the parts of both teams. The first period was the one in which the Petes outplayed their opponents. They rushed cleverly and worked in the nicest combination. They were no doubt at their best in the first two periods, and if they play as well in the next game they should have no trouble in downing the Lindsay aggregation.

The First Period.

The first period opened up at a fast pace with the Petes getting a little better of the play in this period .Both teams showed plenty of speed but the Petes showed more combination than their opponents. The puck was carried from end to end and both goalies had plenty to do. The Petes were robbed of several good chances of scoring by the dogged checking of Piercy, who was a hornet in the Petes' territory, and was always an obstacle in the Petes way. He broke up many of the Peterborough rushes and also started many for Lindsay. After several fruitless attempts to score the Petes pushed the rubber passed Lehane twice in succession. When the period ended the Petes were two goals to the good an dit looked as if they had won then.

Second Period.

Th second period started with both teams playing fast and clean hockey, but it wasn't long before several penalties were handed out to both teams for different offences, mostly minor ones. The Petes had the best of the play in the earlier stages of this round, but after the Greybirds had registered twice and tied up the score, both the crowd and the players went wild and they put their last ounce of weight in every shot to break the tie, but it was impossible to do so.

The Petes tallied once more in this period and when the period ended the score stood Peterboro 3, Lindsay 2.

With the crowd now yelling their heads off Lindsay who were now one goal down and going strong bothered the Petes some. Both teams went at it with hammer and tongs with the Greybirds getting a litle the better of the play. The puck was carried from one end to the other and both goalies saved beautifully. Both teams now worked in close for their shots and finaly Anderson received a rebound of Martin's shot and batted it in for the tieing counter. The teams worked hard for the next several minutes until 12 minutes later Martin scored from close in, tapping the puck trough Lebarr's legs.

One minute later Anderson scored a fluky goal on a long shot from outside the defence that dropped in the corner of the net.

Final score Lindsay 5, Peterboro 3

The teams lined up as follows:

Referee, H. Jacobi of Toronto, handled the bell in first class style and there was no kick coming from either side.

TO INVESTIGATE CASE OMEMEE YOUTH'S DEATH

Farmer's Wife Claims Boy Called Her a Liar and She Slapped Him Lightly on the Face.

OMEMEE, Jan. 26. (Special.) — Provincial Constable H. Storey, of the Provincial Police, arrived here from Lindsay this morning, with orders from Crown Attorney Anderson to make a thorough investigation into the death of John Page, the 15-year-old Barnardo boy, who ended his life by drinking Paris Green.

Inspector John Stanners is also here from the Barnardo Home, Toronto, investigating the case.

Mrs. Wiliam Fee, wife of the farmer at South Emily, with whom the lad was placed by the Home authorities, told the Examiner of a slight altercation which occurred at the breakfast table on Thursday morning, a few hours before the lad took poison.

Some potato peelings had been placed in a pail which Mrs. Fee usually used for washing purposes.

Mrs. Fee was perturbed, because she had repeatedly ordered that this should not be done.

"Did you do it?" she asked John.

"No;" he replied.

"You must have," insisted Mrs. Fee.

"You're a liar," answered John with considerable heat, according to Mrs. Fee.

This reply angered the farmer's wife, and reaching across the table she slapped him lightly on the face.

"It was not a hard blow, just a slap," said Mrs. Fee, and the boy did not seem to resent it a few minutes afterwards.

After breakfast John had helped Mrs. Fee wash out a tub of clothes, At 10:30, while the work was still uncompleted, he suddenly went out. He did not take his hat and coat, and she thought he had merely gone to the back kitchen for a drink of water. When Mr. Fee came in (about half an hour afterwards) she asked if he had seen the boy, but he had not.

They became a bit uneasy then and made enquiries at some of the neighbors, but the boy could not be located. Then Mr. Fee entered the barn and heard somebody scrambling up in the hay mow. He went up and found John in the hay, apparently suffering from cramps. He returned to the house with Mr. Fee and was there given hot milk and liniment, as they thought it was only a case of indigestion.

Finally, after repeated enquiries had been made, at about 2 o'clock he admitted that he had taken Paris green. They then noticed a little patch of the green substance on his coat.

Then realizing the seriousness of the situation they immediately called doctors at Peterboro, and Lindsay and Omemee, but none of them would come.

Dr. Turner, after directing what should be done, advised that the boy be taken to Omemee at once, where Doctor Earle, who was out on a case was expected back at 4 o'clock. This was done.

Dr. Earle was soon on the scene and did everything possible to save the boy's life, but the poison had already gathered too much headway. At ten o'clock John passed away, after having been unconscious an hour. The doctor and Rev. Mr. Weir, an Anglican clergyman, were present at his death. Both aver that the boy persistently refused to answer their questions as to why he took the poison.

"He shut up like a clam whenever we broached the subject," was the way the doctor put it.

The Goderich tragedy, in which Charles Bulpitt, an English lad, recently hanged himself, was undoubtedly a factor in the death of Page, according to Inspector Stanners. "I've been told by those who know," he said to-day, "that the boy took a very keen interest in the press reports of the Goderich affair. I am reasonably certain that this unfortunate incident made a deep impression on his mind, and so had a direct bearing on his decision to end it all by suicide when the necessary provocation arose."

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

"THE WHITE ROSE."

There was a good crowd at the Grand Opera House last evening for the presentation of the big feature, "The White Rose." The story of the young minister and the orphan girl who "couldn't stop loving" is beautifully told in the manner which places Griffith's work so far above that of the ordinary producer.

The pastoral beauty of the scenes filmed in the Sunny South make a memorable background for a story of love and passion, of sin that brings suffering and finally redemption. The inimitable art of the Griffith touch in the little, unexpected minor details gives realism to a story of pathetic charm.

Mrs. J. H. Renwick appeared twice last evening, singing the old favourite. "Don't You Remember Sweet Alice, Ben Bolt," in attractive fashion.

"SWEET LAVENDER" TO BE SEEN AT THE GRAND.

Arthur Pinero's serio comedy classic, "Sweet Lavender," which was the most popular of the author's earlier works, will be presented by Anthony Gordon and an all-English company of distinguished artists at the Grand Opera House on Monday and Tuesday. The play, of course, is thoroughly English, and the characters are drawn with Sir Arthur's skill, and are effective, varied and interesting studies. And although the story is mainly in a humorous vein, through it all runs an undercurrent of seriousness. Dick Phenyl, an almost down-and-out barrister addicted to drinking, has lodgings with Clement Hale, a young fellow studying for the bar, who sees the good qualities of his companion despite his love of spirits. Hale becomes infatuated with Ruth, the daughter of their housekeeper, and while declaring his love, is caught in the act by his aristocratic aunt, Mrs. Gilfillan and his cousin Minnie. Dick has objected to the match, also, and there is an attempt to break it off. The train of circumstances causes the mother of Ruth to side with the elders and she goes away with the girl to avoid the issue. Financial disasters spring up enveloping Mr. Wedderman, who adopted young Hale; Mrs. Gilfillan and Dick, the latter having fallen heir to a fortune. But reduced finances changes the natures of some of the characters and the play ends upon a scene of general happiness for young as well as old, with Dick the hero because of an act of unusual generosity.

Mr. Gordon assumes the difficult role of the bibulous barrister, Phenyl; Miss Viva Burkett plays the part of the betrayed mother, Miss Dorothy Fletcher is the winsome little heroine, "Lavender"; Miss Alice Moffatt portrays the "peculiar" English girl, Minnie; Joseph Beil, H. Tyrrell Davis, Ambrose Manning, Leslie Styles, Sydney Paxton, and Edgar Payne are others in the cast.

AT THE CAPITOL.

HOT-BLOODED MEN OF COLD REGIONS IN MIX'S LATEST.

The hardy, grim-featured toilers of the North find express interpretation in "North of Hudson Bay", the William Fox special starring Tom Mix, which opens at the Capital Theatre next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

It is a thrilling story of far-reaching adventure across vast stretches of ice-bound wilderness; of tight-lipped, great-hearted men; of suave, easy-spoken men; of toil and suffering that tried the souls of the strongest men and broke the bodies of the weaker ones; of bitter conflicts and eastern encounters; of bloodstained snow and lean, starving wolves thirsting for human nourishment.

The characters in the story are hot-blooded men with cool heads. Michael Dane is inflamed by love and incensed by murder of his brother. Angus Mackensie is inflamed by treachery; Cameron MacDonald by lust for gold; Jeffrey Clough, the same; Armond Lemoir by the basest passions.

Tom Mix, as Michael Dane, strides manfully through scenes of great squalor and great splendor. The squalor is found at the trading posts of the Hudson Bay Trading Company. No city tenement district is out-squallored by the latter. The posts, as seen in "North of Hudson Bay" are quarrelsome places, with almost as many private feuds as a Columbian romance by John Fox, Jr. They are ill-kept, shoddy, and inhabitated by evil-visaged squaws and half-breeds. And this ugliness is put in striking juxtaposition to the elevating beauty of the natural scenery of the Hudson Bay region.

REMARKABLE COURT DANCE

It is Shown with Great Effect in "The Spanish Dancer"

Dancing in a stationary skirt! In a court scene which was filmed for Pola Negri's new star picture, "The Spanish Dancer," produced for Paramount by Herbert Brenon, twenty girls perform a ballet without a single movement of the skit being visible. The entire ballet was done with motions from the waist up. Their feet remained motionless.

The girls appear in costumes of black velvet. The skirts are spread outward from the hips with the enormous panniers popular in the early part of the seventeenth century. Across the front of the velvet skirt run two broad bands of silver. These bands are waved and as the girls stand hip to hip with swaying shoulders, the silver bands appear to flow like running water. The ballet dance is part of elaborately costumed court scenes, which take place in the throne room in the royal palace in Madrid.

"The Spanish Dancer," which comes to the Capitol theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday is one of the most dramatic stories ever filmed. It is the first costume-picture in which Pola Negri has starred since she came to America. Featured opposite Pola Negri is Antonio Moreno with Wallace Beery, Kathlyn Williams, Gareth Hughes, Adolphe Menjou and Robert Agnew heading a strong cast.

AT THE REGENT.

PAULINE STARKE, VERSATILE ACTRESS.

Pauline Starke, who plays the leading feminine role in "The Kingdom Within," which comes to the Regent Theatre on Monday, is an actress of considerable ability. Unlike many players who have come direct from the speaking stage, Miss Starke has always been identified with motion pictures. She was born and educated in Joplin, Missouri. Among some of the pictures she has appeared in are "Soldiers of Fortune," "Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," and "The Courage of Marge O'Doone."

Many critics, however, are of the opinion that the finest work of her career has been achieved in "The Kingdom Within." It is a part that calls for a high order of emotional and dramatic ability. Miss Starke's portrayal of Emily Preston is one which shows she has a tremendous gift for playing on the heart-strings. Emily has been ostracized by the village folk on account of her brother who has been sent to jail for robbery. Life is made very unpleasant for her, until Amos, the crippled son of Caleb Deming, the blacksmith, comes into her life.

Although Amos does not possess the love of his own father, nevertheless, he is endowed with a wonderful capacity for love and unselfish devotion. It is the exercise of this remarkable quality that eventually changes the whole life of Emily. Just how this remarkable change is effected is one of the features of the picture.

AT THE ROYAL.

ROYAL GETS "WANDERING DAUGHTERS."

"Wandering Daughters," by Dana Burnet, the initial James Young production for First National which is coming to the Royal Theatre next Monday, is replete with ultra-modern humor as well as tense dramatic situations. Not only may satire that would do credit to that prophet of jazz, F. Scott Fitzgerald, be found in such remarks as "the father of a modern girl ought to be a night watchman"—but there are characterizations that reveal the amusing contrasts between the past and present generations.

The Bowdens, who belong to yesterday, find their pleasure in sociable and the home orchestra, but their daughter who represents the age of jazz finds her in the ridiculous revels of the sensation-seeking set at the country club. It is a toss up as to which is the funniest, the trick orchestra that makes life a home miserable for the up-to-date Bessie Bowden, or the silly parties in which the younger set indulge.

Last, but not least, there's the servant in the house who gets the craze for jazz. The milkman who serves the Bowdens thinks that the daughter of the house is running a contest with the maid to see who can get home the earliest. Alice Howell, the inimitable comedienne, takes her fling in drama in the role of the slavey. Her attempts to keep up the pace set by the example of her employer's daughter are as ludicrous as the satire of the story.

R-O-Y-A-L

A truly extraordinary story of present day girls--of wandering daughters and wondering parents.

LEON TROTSKY WILL ATTEND THE FUNERAL

MOSCOW, Jan. 26. — (By John Graudenz British United Press Staff Correspondent)—Leon Trotsky was expected to arrive in Moscow this afternoon by airplane from Tiflis, to attend the funeral of Nikolai Lenine.

The dead Premier is to be buried to-morrow in the "Red Square" in a temporary Mausoleum, the coffin under a glass casing where thousands may pass and gaze upon it. There was much talk, too, of cremating Lenine's remains as an example of hygeine, to the country.

Children between the age of ten and twelve took turns as guards of honor around the coffin in the great hall of the Noble's Club during the night. Among the wreaths that by this time are heaped high in the hall is one from the cab drivers of Moscow.

The Afghan representative, expressed to Foreign Minister Tchitcherin his condolences and declared that the Afghans more than all other Orientals loved Lenine. Tchitcherin replied that the Soviet Government would continue Lenine's Oriental policy.

Society

The birthday party held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles McClelland, 31 Boswell avenue, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's church, was very successful, socially and financially. A large number of ladies attended during the afternoon, and a nice sum was realized for the fund in aid of the new Sunday school building. Mrs. Charles Banks, convenor, managed arrangements in excellent fashion, and Mrs. Gerald McClelland provided an attractive musical programme. Vocal solos were given by Mrs. Ford Turner and Miss Dorothy Engel, followed by community singing, led by Mrs. Gerald McClelland and accompanied by Mrs. B. D. Henry. Mr. John Crane acted as accompanist for the vocal numbers. The guests were received by Mrs. C. S. McClelland and Mrs. F. L. Robinson, president of the Ladies' Aid Society. Mrs. W. Martin poured tea and Mrs. J. I. Allen cut the ices. Assistants in the tea room were Mrs. E. B. Wayte, Mrs. J. Gillespie, Mrs. A. Wood and Miss Dorothy Engel. Decorations were carried out in pink and white tulips.

Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Huycke have returned from their honeymoon and have taken a flat on Charles street.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

The many friends of Mr. Peter Smith, of the firm of Wallace and Smith, will regret to learn that he was compelled to undergo an operation for appendicitis on Wednesday of this week.

A very successful and well-attended tea was held yesterday afternoon and evening at the Manse of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. The guests were received by Mrs. R. Pogue and Mrs. C. H. Moore, president of the society. Mrs. R. W. Davidson was in charge of the musical programme, and Mrs. R. W. Cormack and Mrs. T. C. Elliott were convenors, pouring tea at the pretty table, decorated with tulips and sweet peas. Tea-room assistants were Mesdames H. C. Sherwood, W. Burrell, D. Jordan, J. Cameron, J. Savigny, J. P. Pulkinghorn, C. White, Gillespie, M. McNab, T. Taylor, F. Clayton and Miss Best. The musical programme included vocal solos by Mrs. Walter Byers, Miss Greta LeBar, A. Barton, H. M. Niven and Jack Clayton, pianoforte selections by Mrs. P. P. Westbye, Miss Isabel Donnelly, 'cello numbers by M. Chenhall, junior, and readings by Miss Irene Breckenridge. Accompanists during the afternoon and evening were Mrs. F. Clayton, Miss Jean Herbison, M. B. Chenhall and F. Chenhall.

An enjoyable recital by two of the vocal pupils of Mr. George H. King, Mrs. Ernest Kitney and Mrs. H. F. Doig, both of whom were graduates last June of the Canadian Academy of Music, Toronto, was given last evening in the Reid street hall, and attended by about one hundred invited guests. The two ladies were assisted by Miss Marion B. Adams, instrumental soloist, a pupil also of the Academy of Music.

At the conclusion of the programme, refreshments were served, and a social hour spent. The ladies were the recipients of numerous beautiful floral tributes.

Both singers showed to the best advantage in a delightful programme of vocal music. Mrs. Ernest Kitney possesses an attractive, rich, strong contralto voice, and Mrs. H. F. Doig has a powerful soprano, with a clear, high range. A charming number on the programme was the appearance of the two ladies in duet, the two fine voices blending beautifully in two lovely numbers, "Carmena" and the Barcarolle from "The Tales of Hoffman."

Mrs. Kitney sang in fine voice, "Creation's Hymn," by Beethoven, and "The Scarecrow." Her numbers included also "A Brown Bird Singing," "O Thou That Tellest" from "The Messiah," "Nightingale in June" and "Tiptoe."

Mrs. H. F. Doig's most popular group included the pretty "Birthday" song, "A Spirit Flower," and "An Open Secret." "Spring's Awakening," "O Robin, Little Robin," and Handel's "O, Had I Jubal's Lyre," were well rendered selections.

Miss Marion B. Adams proved to be a pianiste of ability, with a sound technical foundation and a pleasing, melodious tone. Her interpretation of a varied instrumental programme was very creditable, and her music was rendered in sincere, unaffected style. Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 6" was splendidly executed, and a very pretty number was the soft "Berceause," by Kinsky. The "Juba Dance" called for technical skill, and was well done, and another charming selection was "Murmuring Breezes."

Mr. George H. King acted as accompanist for the vocal numbers.

Owing to illness Dr. E. V. Frederick, of Toronto, has been unable to make his weekly professional visits to Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Walker, who entertain annually for the staff of the Normal School, gave a dinner for the staff yesterday attended by about twenty-five guests. The occasion being the anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, a Scottish piper, Strawan Leith, opened the function with a rendition, in full cameron tartan, of many Scotch reels, jigs and strathspeys, commencing his hour of music with the "Lass o' Gowrie" and "Corn Rigs."

Mrs. Margaret Telford, of 658 Armour Road, has returned home after spending two months visiting her son in Windsor.

Miss Margaret Telford, of Toronto, has returned home after spending a week visiting her mother and sister in the city.

Mrs. M. D. McCrimmon, St. Thomas, is visiting Mrs. Dickson Davidson, Reid Street.

BURIAL AT WARSAW OF WILLIAM COOPER

Under Auspices of the Orangemen — Dummer Township Roads Impassable In Stretches.

WARSAW, Jan. 23.—On Thursday afternoon last the remains of the late William Cooper were interred in Warsaw cemetery. It was an Orange funeral, and a large number of Orangemen turned out. Rev. F. G. Weir conducted the service at the house. The Orangemen sent a wreath, so did his uncles, brothers, wife and son. There were also several sprays. The bearers were four brothers-in-law—George Everett, Percy and John Moore, and two cousins, Carl and Elmer Cooper.

Mr. Cooper had been ill for about a year and confined to bed for five months. During his long illness he was always patient and thoughtful.

About seven years ago he married Charlotte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moore. She and her three children, the eldest four years, and the youngest nine months of age, are left. There is also one brother, Albert, and his mother. His father died about six years ago.

Sunday Services

Mr. Cox conducted service in St. Mark's church Sunday afternoon. The other churches held their regular services The Methodist and Presbyterian union service will be held on the second, instead of the first, Sunday of the month. Every quarter the Methodists hold their Communion service on the first Sunday and three times yearly the Presbyterians hold theirs. Both services come on the first Sabbath in February this time.

The Presbyterian Ladies' Aid held a special meeting last Tuesday afternoon. The Presbyterian congregation hold their annual meeting this Thursday.

Miss Olive Cullen returned home on Friday.

Miss Lulu Bell was in the village Sunday.

Miss Florence Tedford went to Lakefield on Thursday morning and remained over the week-end. Hiram Anderson went up Monday morning and Miss Lena Miller Tuesday.

Very few outside the village were in the churches Sunday evening, but three young people came from Cottesloe.

Roads Blocked

The storms have blocked the roads, more than ever. The boundary is open only a short distance, little more than where Thos. Crowe's farm borders the road. General traffic enters David Miller's gate and is not on a public highway until it reaches the village. It is a frequent occurrence for people wishing to go North from the Dummer Road to turn north at the foot of the hill, go around Mr. Watt's hill and have to turn and go all the way around through the village.

MARMORA WANTS LOWER RATES ON ITS INSURANCE

Fire Department Proved Its Efficiency in Confining Recent Blaze to One Building—Girl Student Wounded By Compass.

MARMORA, Jan. 25.—The efficiency of Marmora's fire protection was proved beyond all doubt last Sunday night during the fire that destroyed Mr. J. D. Norrie's boot and shoe establishment.

The building is of frame construction and an old, dry and very inflammable frame house is joined to it in the rear. It is also very close to a large brick store which nevertheless had a great deal of frame parts exposed to the flame. Yet in spite of this, all the buildings surrounding the blaze were saved and the building which was destroyed did not burn to the ground on account of the good work of the two lines of hose and chemical engines.

This may not appear extraordinary at first, but when one remembers that less than ten years ago to mention the name "Marmora," made one almost shudder at the many large fires here. Indeed, the insurance companies were not at all eager about insuring local buildings except at a high rate.

Citizens of the village are hoping that a better rate of insurance will be possible now that the fire protection of the village has proved to be equal to that in any town its size.

Fire Was Averted

A very serious conflagration was narrowly averted Thursday afternoon when the teachers of the Separate School discovered that the furnace door had been left open with a hot fire going. The furnace room was filled with smoke and it was lucky that it was discovered in time.

Telephone Service

It is stated that some alterations and improvements are to be made in the telephone service in town including the numerous wires on the east side of Forsythe street, for a single cable as is already in use on the west side.

Stabbed in Arm

Miss Marjorie Colster sustained a very painful wound in the arm on Thursday morning. One of the boy students accidentally stabbed her in the arm with a compass used in mathematics.

The treasurer's statement showed that the finances are in a good condition. It was decided to hold a card party on January 31st, subject to change if arrangements cannot be made.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church entertained the choir on Thursday evening in the basement of the church. A good programme was rendered followed by dainty refreshments, and a social hour was spent very pleasantly.

An exciting encounter between the ferocious Wildcats and Tigers, in an undesignated series of juvenile hockey games, took place last evening at the Mark street rink, resulting in the Wildcats defeating their feline brethren by a walk over score of 5—0.

The news of the victory was conveyed to the Examiner by representatives of the winning team, who reported a snappy and fast brand of hockey indulged in by both sides. The captain of the victors, Bud Westbrook, suffered a casualty when he allowed his hand inadvertently placed on the ice to come in contact with the skate of one of the opposing players, otherwise the game was unmarred by incidents.

The line-up for Westbrook's Wildcats includes Bud Westbrook, goal; Dick Martin and George Weir, defence; George Alison, centre; Clarence Morgan, wing, and "Toad" Westbrook, wing.

ARCTIC WINTER SNAPPED WIRES BY CONTRACTION

Three Towns in Ontario's Hinterland Vie With White River in Week-End Registration--Trains Delayed to Thaw Tanks--Plows Busy.

PARRY SOUND CENTRE

SUDBURY, January 28 (Canadian Press). — White River and Doucet may scrap over the honour of being Canada's coldest spot, but another place entered the lists on Saturday night when Byng Inlet reported 56 below.

White River registered only 50 below zero at 8 o'clock on Saturday morning, but private advices from there report mercury was below 60, the lowest that the thermometers would register.

Chapleau, Cartier, Sudbury, Soo, and North Bay were all in what the weatherman classes as "very cold."

Trains Hold Own.

It registered 30 below on the street in Sudbury at midnight, and 42 below at six a.m., another thermometer registering 49 below at 5 a.m..

Markstay reported 48 below, and Horne Payne 50 on Saturday night.

C.P.R. train 27 local from Toronto was six hours late here Saturday morning.

C.P.R. train 17 had to be held at North Bay nearly two hours yesterday morning to thaw out the tanks, toilet traps, etc.

Most other Canadian Pacific trains are holding their own on the Sudbury Division.

Charles Murphy, Western general manager, was on No. 2 for Montreal last night, leaving here about an hour late; but despatches predict it will make Chalk River on time.

Canadian Pacific offices state that the weather has been the most severe known in Northern Ontario in over thirty years.

The worst of the storm seems to have centred around Parry Sound. For ten miles south and twenty miles north of that station, snow is 7 feet deep, and two ploughs were busy all night keeping the tracks open, for the snow drifted badly.

Sunday Sunny.

The weather on Sunday was sunny and clear, but the temperature did not rise above zero at any time, and at 7 o'clock last night it was 11 below in Sudbury and 22 below in Cartier, but the weatherman predicts some relief to-day.

The wire service all over the north was poor last night on account of the cold. Cold weather contracts and breaks the wires, and almost half were out of commission last night.

Four Dead in Fire And Four Injured

FARRELL, Pa., Jan. 28.—Four persons were burned to death and four others seriously injured in a fire which destroyed four houses here Saturday.

The dead: Wade Poling, Mr. and Mrs. John Cioco, and David Orz.

A series of explosions preceded the fire and the police expressed the belief that they were caused by a broken gas main which served the houses.

LONDON COMMENT ON BOYS' DEATHS

Evening News Displayed Report of Bulpitt Inquest — Sent to "Up-to-Date" Home.

LONDON, Jan. 27.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—Little or no comment has appeared in the London newspapers regarding the suicide of Barnardo home boys in Ontario. The Evening News gave prominence to the inquest on the Bulpitt boy at Goderich along with an interview with Miss Birt at whose Liverpool sheltering home the boy stayed when en route to Canada. Miss Birt says the inquest revelations were inexplicable to her adding that the farmer to whom Bulpitt was sent was "one of the most up-to-date in Canada."

The News adds a note from the Canadian immigration department which says that the system of inspecting homes in Canada is more rigid in the case of pauper children than in other cases and that the department could not be blamed for isolated cases even if it could be proved that Bulpitt had been placed in an unsuitable home.

The Southampton Board of Guardians will discuss the case on Tuesday. The Weekly Dispatch says inquiries are being made in London regarding the system of inspecting homes in Canada to which boy emigrants are sent.

PREMIER TRAVELS AS STRAPHANGER

Practice of Being Early at the Foreign Office Compels Him to Travel on Crowded Trains.

LONDON, Jan. 28.— (Canadian Press.) — Ramsay MacDonald can lay claim to being Great Britain's first strap-hanging Prime Minister. Since he succeeded Stanley Baldwin he has come to London as usual each day on the underground railway from Hampstead, as he has done for years Owing to his practice of appearing at the foreign office shortly after breakfast, he has made his trips in crowded trains as a strap-hanger

CURLING AT BROCK ST. RINK FIRST OF WEEK

Local Curlers' Bonspeil Will Occupy Both Rinks.

Owing to the Curling Club using the rink for their big bonspiel, there will be no skating at Brock street rink until Thursday next. Monday will be used to make curling ice, Tuesday, all day, and evening, the curlers will be out in full force, and on Wednesday evening, Lindsay Juniors will play their return game.

THE WEATHER.

While Saturday was a cold day, it was a poor second compared with Sunday. The lowest point for Sunday was 28 below zero early in the morning, and the highest point that was reached was just zero. Most of the day it ranged from ten to fifteen below. The lowest last night was 15 below, while at daylight this morning it marked 3 below. Sunday's low point of 28 below does not constitute a record, as the following figures for previous years will indicate: On Feb. 5, 1918, we had it 29 below; on Jan. 13, 1914, 32 below; on Feb. 5, 1912, 30 below; on Jan. 19, 1904, 30 below; on Feb. 27, 1900, 29 below; on Feb. 17, 1896, 38 below; and on Feb. 18, 1882, 34 below.—W.P.

FRAUD CHARGED BY EX-OFFICERS IN LAND SCHEME

Lure of Fox-Ranching on Prince Edward Island With Government Support Related in London Police Court — Money Missing.

FALSE PRETENCES.

LONDON, Jan. 28.— (Canadian Press Cable).—Andrew Fraser Mitchell, the former Prince Edward Island Immigration officer charged with obtaining money from ex-officers of the Indian army by false pretenses, reappeared in Bow Street Court Saturday, the case having been adjourned from December 29.

The prosecuting counsel said the defendent had taken offices in the Haymarket and on note paper finer than an ambassador would use and arms of Prince Edward Island he advertised a scheme for settling officers on land for foxbreeding.. The letter said the lands belonged to the government of Prince Edward Island and that he had been authorized to sell it. Several ex-officers believing it was a government scheme and that their money would be perfectly safe, parted with large sums to Mitchell for land. In addition to Captain R. B. Quin, two other officers were defrauded. One of them went to Prince Edward Island and gave evidence before a goverment commission which had been appointed to investigate the scheme. He had also interviewed the Premier of the Island, said the prosecuting counsel, and as a result had returned to England and was now available as a witness.

Money To Canada.

Replying to the magistrate who asked what had been done with the money, counsel for the defense said a large part of it had been sent to Canada to certain public men there for the purpose of the schem, and they have it.'

Captain Quin in his evidence, said, he had paid £432 for land and a bungalow and had received a receipt signed by Mitchell "For the Government of Prince Edward Island." If he had known that Mitchell was running the schem, as a private individual he would not, he said, have put a sixpence into it.

Premier Interested.

Cross-examined, the witness said, Mitchell had told him that the Prime Minister of the Island was interested in the scheme. Something was said also about Hon. John Sinclair a member of the Dominion cabinet being interested. The witness took that as natural since the scheme was said to be a government affair. Nothing had been said about Sinclair providing land. He was quite sure however, that Mitchell said it was government land he was selling. The witness added that he had received neither land, foxes nor bungalow and had also failed to get back any money. The hearing was adjournend till Saturday next.

MAN, 72, SAYS WIDOW, 68, RUNS HIM RAGGED TO WED

HAZLETON, Pa., Jan. 28.—Summoned before Mayor Harvey on a charge of annoying a widow with persistent proposals of marriage, Michael Fetchko, seventy-two, a widower, declared he is a victim of the widow's wiles.

She is sixty-eight years old, Fetchko says, and has followed him everywhere with invitations to wed. The Mayor dismissed the case, saying that as this is leap year it is the privilege of any woman to pop the question.

MACDONALD CONCEDED LONGER OFFICE TERM BY POLITICAL CRITICS

Apprehension Allayed By the Premier's Choice of Ministers — Foreign Affairs and Balancing of Budget Will Be Chief Problems to Test New Labor Government.

Working Long Hours.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—(Canadian Press).—How long the new Government will last is now the predominant question in England, when it is recalled how recently, as during the general elections, both the Conservatives and the Liberals voiced intense alarm lest Labor should come into power, it is surprising how calmly the new Government has been received.

Still more remarkable has been the unanimity of the press in acknowledging what is characterized the skill and the sagacity Ramsay MacDonald, the new premier, displayed in choosing his first ministers, not only in carefully dovetailing the trade union and intellectual wings of his party into a composed whole, but also in selecting outsiders whose names are calculated to allay any apprehension in the country that revolutionary legislation will be attempted.

Opinion Revised.

This initial success on the part of the new premier has led to some revision of the ideas about the duration of his administration. The general belief is that Mr. MacDonald has been actuated by two principal motives: First, to take a safe line, calculated to secure much-needed administrative experience; and, second, to improve the prospects of his party at the next general election, whenever that may come.

If Mr. MacDonald secures the fair play to which the bulk of the press acknowledges he is entitled, it is the opinion in political circles that his administration may last a year or two. The belief prevails that the touchstones will be finances and foreign affairs. Without going outside the proposals of former Premier Baldwin's administration, it is considered that in the speech from the throne, Mr. MacDonald can find an ample programme of social reforms concerning unemployment, housing and the like, to which the Opposition in the House of Commons could take no exception, for two years at least.

Finance will hardly trouble the new premier at the present, because his government is practically under the necessity of adopting the budget prepared by its predecessor. Foreign affairs, especially relations with France, and the reparation problem are expected to prove the first pitfall for the MacDonald Government..

In Liberal Hands.

The life of the Labour Government to a great extent is in the hand of Herbert H. Asquith and the Liberals. When Mr. Asquith gave expression to the opinion that the King was not called upon to dissolve Parliament at the request of the outgoing premier, he is considered by political leaders undoubtedly to have had in mind the belief that the Labor Government would be of short duration Mr. Asquiths idea is thought to have been that King George should refuse to grant dissolution and call upon the Liberals to form a government in the event that Mr. MacDonnald's Government is defeated. Mr. Asquith publicly has claimed that his party holds the balance of power in Parliament, and it is supposed he counted upon benevolent support from the Conservatives to give him a fair lease of ower if he is to succeed the MacDonald Government.

Mr. Asquith's view of the King's prerogative on the dissolution question has been very largely disputed, and it is now believed that he is disposed to give the Labor Government support during a longer period than was contemplated, provided, as it is generally reported, Mr. MacDonald intends to devote himself to a legislative programme within the lines of the speech from the throne.

Mr. MacDonalds assiduous devotion and study to foreign affairs, over which he has been working for long hours, early and late, at the Foreign Office is considered an indication that he realizes where the test of his administration will come.

Newspaper Woman Was Ordained as Minister.

LONDON, Jan. 28.— (Canadian Press.)— Miss Mary Gabrielle Collins was ordained as minister of North Bow Congregational church in East London on Saturday night. She is the first woman ordained to have sole charge of a congregational church in Great Britain.

Before she took up her theological studies she was a newspaper woman.

False Telegram Deceived Chief

VANCOUVER, Jan. 28.—Police are seeking the person who sent a forged telegram to Chief David Ritchie of Calgary, virtually assuring him of his appointment as chief of the Vancouver police force and asking him to come to the coast to be "personally interviewed" by the Police Commissioners. The message was signed "Mayor Owen." As a result Chief Ritchie obtained leave from his duties to come to Vancouver. It has been learned that the wire was sent from Vancouver, and efforts are being made to trace the sender.

Inspector Walter H. Long, of the local force, has been appointed chief of police, it was announced Saturday.

AUSTRALIA BIDS FOR HEBRIDEANS

Government Representative Addressed Several Meetings on Island — Immigrants Are Well Pleased.

LONDON, Jan. 27.— (Canadian Press Cable.)— Mr. Stillman, the Australian government's representative, since his arrival at Stornoway last Monday, has been engaged in interviewing Hebrideans who are applicants for passage to the Commonwealth. He has also addressed a number of meetings held in various parts of the island.

It is stated that the success of those who sailed for Australia last August has created a good deal of interest and it is certain that more will go out to Australia this spring. The group which settled in West Australia was especially pleased with the cordial reception tendered them on their arrival and the expeditious way in which they were aided in getting settled. Already Mr. Stillman has applicants of a class whom he considers are highly suited for farming work in Australia and other applications are coming in freely.

SUSPECT ARRESTED IN HAMMER MURDER

Charged With Attempting Murder of May Duncan, Man Is Suspected in Mrs. Crooks' Case.

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—(Canadian Press.)—With the arrest yesterday at noon of Harold Godard, single, aged 25, at his home in Ridley Gardens, the police believe they are on the trail of the man responsible for the death of Mrs. Martha Crooks, Jameson avenue, and they are positive that they have the criminal who struck Miss May Duncan over the head with a lead-filled iron pipe in her apartments, Ridout avenue, on the morning of January 18 last. Miss Duncan is still in bed suffering from a bad wound in the the head.

The arrest of Godard was made by Detective Sergeants Nicholls and Hazlewood, who were placed on the case last Saturday morning. Following his arrest, Godard was taken to the bedside of Miss Duncan, who positively identified him as the man who had called on her at 10 o'clock on the morning of the 18th, ostensibly to look through a room she had advertised for rent and suddenly assaulted her with a blunt instrument Godard was locked up on a charge of attempted murder.

It is the similarity of the Duncan attack and the Crooks' murder, coupled with the fact that Godard is a convicted housebreaker and burglar, which led the police to Godard's abode. Godard lives with his stepfather and mother.

BRITAIN BOUGHT SEVEN GALLONS CANADIAN BEER

Canada Imported Seventeen Million Dollars' Worth of Intoxicants From Mother Country—Settlers' Effects $645,896 —Statistics For Year.

Metal Export Higher.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 28. Canadian Press. — Canada exported seven gallons of beer to the United Kingdom during 1923, while during 1922 it sent 3037 gallons there.

This is one of the facts revealed in the statement of Canada's trade with the United Kingdom issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics on Saturday.

Of Canada's exports in alcoholics last year worth $14,398,727, Britain took $821,728.

More than seventeen million dollars worth of intoxicants were imported from Britain last year out of a total of twenty millions odd imported into Canada.

Settlers' Effects.

Canada imported a little over a million dollars worth of settlers' effects last year from the United Kingdom and exported to those countries $845,828.

Canada sent last year to the United Kinglom grain and grain products to the value of $225,377,576, a decrease of nearly 17,000,000 compared with 1922. Fish worth $5,237,326 was exported to Britain. Of this $3,063,079 was canned salmon. Britain took 1,494,546 barrels of Canadian apples at a home market value of $6,531,116. Total value of fruit exported to Britain was $7,247,175.

Metals Exported.

The value of all metals exported to Britain in 1923 was $10,322,972, an increase over 1922 of two millions. Of this more than eleven millions represented iron products; aluminum, $155,599; and nickel $2,611,367.

There was a considerable falling off in the exports of Canadian sugar to Britain. In 1923 Canada sent 77,891,200 pounds to Britain compared with 231,506,053 pounds in 1922. Britain spent $12,405,103 in Canada last year on lumber products in addition to five million dollars on pulp.

Great Britain Now Has Woman Representative.

LONDON, Jan. 28. — (Canadian Press Cable).—Commenting on the appointment of Margaret Bondfield as the first woman representative of Great Britain on the governing body of the International Body of International Labour Office and the League of Nations, the International Labour Office News says this constitutes the first official contact of the British Labour Ministry with other countries. The News adds that Miss Bondfield has a woman predecessor on the governing body in the person of Mrs. Carruthers, the Canadian government delegate. The British Empire can thus claim the credit of being the only members of the International Labour organization to have entrusted these duties to women.

Forty Killed in Mine Disaster

SHANKTON, Pa., Jan. 28.—Forty men lost their lives in the explosion which late Saturday wrecked the Lancashire Mine of the Burns and Tucker Coal Company here, according to the best estimates obtainable late Sunday. Seventeen bodies have been brought out and nine miners, who were saved by the prompt efforts of another miner, are in hospitals recovering from the effects of shock and gas.

SNOW BLOCKED ROAD TO CITY

Highways Are Drifted and Autos Blocked — White River Beaten Over the Week-end.

In spite of the continued drop in temperature over the week-end and the strong winds which drove the snow into deep drifts, railway traffic was continued in this section with very little delay. Great havoc was played with trains in the north and east, and those which failed to arrive here on time were held up by delays in making connections.

Drifts along the highways leading to the city were in very bad shape, and motorists from outside points had much trouble in getting into the city yesterday and this morning. One man said he walked from three miles outside the boundary rather than take a chance on stalling in some of the drifts which covered the fences.

A rise in temperature is promised by the weatherman, and after its week-end of chilly weather Peterboro will be glad to bask in above zero air for a few days.

WHTIE RIVER BEATEN.

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—(Canadian Press).—With rapidly rising temperatures in Northern Georgian Bay and lower lakes regions, Old Man Ontario is to-day thawing out after an extremely cold week-end that prevailed throughout the Province. The eastern portion of the Province is still in the grip of the Frost King, as are Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, but some relief is expected in those quarters to-morrow. Doucet, Que., almost midway between Cochrane and Quebec City, slipped down to 56 below the zero mark on Sunday, beating out, for the day at least, Ontario's best performer, White River, which could do no better than 50 below. After experiencing its first defeat of the winter, White River's mercury made a right about face and commenced climbing. The coldest there during the past 24 hours was two above, while at 8 o'clock this morning it had reached 16 above, or just two degrees below Toronto and two above Sault Ste. Marie. Western Canada is enjoying mild weather. The absence of any report from Doucet this morning gives Quebec City, with 20 below, the honor of reporting the lowest temperature today to the Observatory here. Ottawa reported 18 below at 8 o'clock, Montreal 12 below, St. John 14 below, while Halifax just squeezed under the cipher with 2 below.

NORTH ROADS BLOCKED.

LINDSAY, January 28—(Special) —As a result of the very severe storm conditions which prevailed in this section during the past few days, the northern section of Victoria County, as well as Haliburton County, has been completely isolated from the outside world.

The C. N. R. Haliburton and Coboconk lines have been completely blocked since Friday, and no trains have been running over these lines since the storm broke out. On Friday afternoon the north train attempted to push its way through to Haliburton village. It did not even reach Fenelon Falls, and backed into the station here at 6.30 o'clock in the evening. An engine and plow was immediately despatched over the line in order to permit the 6 p.m. train, which had reached Fenelon Falls, to complete her run to Lindsay. The train reached the local station at 8 p.m. Traffic was suspended on this line Saturday, and at noon a wing plough and engine left Lindsay for the northland. When about a mile out the plow and engine left the track and took to the ditch. The auxiliary and crew worked all afternoon in order to place them on the track. In the meantime some sixty passengers for northern points were stalled in Lindsay until 11 a.m. Sunday, when a train pulled out for Haliburton.

The drifts on the Coboconk line were ten feet high, and the light engines could not plough through them. A plough was sent out over the line on Saturday morning, but it was stalled all day and all night in a drift. Sunday afternoon, at 1.30 o'clock, a passenger train left here for Coboconk with quite a quota of passengers. This is the worst blockade on this division in six years.

EUROPE NEEDS MORE HARMONY SAYS PREMIER

Interesting Interview With Premier Venizelos of Greece on Europcan Situation.

RESTORE NORMALCY

ATHENS, Jan. 28.—(By Edward J. Bing, United Press Staff Correspondent.)— There is no reason why Lenine's death, or establishment of a Labor Government in England should cause considerable changes in Russia and England or deter a solution of reparations, which is of paramount importance for the restoration of the world's economics, Premier Venizelos said in an interview with the United Press today.

"The proposed recognition of the Russian Government by world powers likewise will contribute greatly to stabilization of international relations. In view of the close economic link between Greece and Russia, it is most necessary that we recognize the Soviet Government, but being a small nation, Greece cannot take the lead in this respect. However, we intend to recognize Russia immediately after the Great Powers.

"Regarding the European situation as some politicians predict, if the nations of Europe rally to two hostile French and British camps, it would mean the greatest misfortune for the entire world.

In this case Greece's most vital interest lies in fostering equally friendly relations with both camps.

Much as Europe needs America's cooperation, nobody would dictate to America by suggesting how and why that cooperation should be carried out.

"However, President Coolidge's intention to participate in the world court must be warmly welcomed. Indeed, it entirely confirms the American tradition of settling international conflicts by arbitration. At the same time I believe the European nations will derive the greatest benefit from the League of Nations."

"What Europe needs to-day is the elimination of international controversies, wherefore the recent accord reached by Italy and our ally Jugo-Slavia must be welcomed.

"As for the Little Entente, we do not intend to take the initiative in seeking to join, but probably would be ready to join when invited after Checho-Slovakia drops her present objections.

"Regarding domestic relations in an effort to stabilize the situation, I have the assurance of foreign nations that they will not interfere in the forthcoming decision to be reached by the Green nation as to whether we shall be a republic or a monarchy.

"Certain political groups in Greece propose that the future form of our state should be decided by the National Assembly, and then submitted to a plebiscite for confirmation. However I insist it should be submitted directly and entirely to a plebiscite, which alone is entitled to decide. This plebiscite probably wil be held in April.

..."Personally I am a Republican, because I believe the Greek dynasty violated the principles of democracy, but I do not desire to force my view upon anybody.

"The question of Republic or Monarchy should no be made a party question. Every Greek should vote as an individual, following merely his own conscience.

"I consider that my principal task is to restore normalcy in Greece."

Bird Life by Jack Miner

Jack Miner, Canada's greatest bird man, whose place at Kingsville has been proclaimed a sanctuary for migrating birds by the Dominion Government, and who will be remembered by many local people as a visitor and lecturer here on bird life, has just published a very attractive little volume, entitled "Jack Miner and the Birds, by Jack Miner Himself." Profusely illustrated, with a full-page frontispiece photograph of the author and the lordly Canada goose riding the inside cover, it tells the story of Miner's years of friendship with his feathered friends, and gives many a hint with regard to their care and comfort, gleaned from the vast storehouse of wisdom accumulated in the years when Jack Miner turned from a killer of wild life to a guardian and preserver of the wild things of the air.

The book has a paper cover, on which appears in sepia, beneath an inset cut of the author, a reproduction of a very fine photograph of the south pond and some of Miner's numerous goose family, taken by F. L. Roy on a visit to the sanctuary. Another of Mr. Roy's photogranhs has a full-page reproduction farther on, "Children with Bird-Houses, Peterboro, Ontario," showing a group of local children with birdhouses, following a visit here some years ago by Jack Miner, who started a campaign among the children for building the little houses for their pets. The late Robert Neill, who sponsored the movement, is standing in the background.

The book, an autographed copy of which was presented to F. L. Roy by the author, abounds in bits of homely wisdom and quaint quips. Written in Miner's own friendly phraseology, it reproduces the kindly soul of the man and his great love for the birds of which he writes, in its briefly-worded, interesting chapters.

The preface, by J. Earle Jenner, M.D., gives a glimpse of some of the heroic, life-saving exploits of the author during his long career as a woodsman and nature-lover.

Jack Miner loved so much his gun and its use that he took, as a lad, his mother's treasured pewter spoon to melt into seven small bullets that brought down his first deer. He spent much of his earlier life in killing the wild fowl of the air, and then turned to the task of their preservation. From his sanctuary have gone out many "missionary" birds, the ducks and geese tagged with Scripture verses that have brought him responses from thousands of miles away.

Tales of martins and bluebirds, of robins and swans and ducks and wild geese are recounted in the little volume, but it is evident that the wild goose, the Canada goose, "one of the most intelligent, self-sacrificing creatures on earth," is the favorite of the author. Their intelligence and loyalty, their faithfulness to mates and family, have aroused Miner's deepest enthusiasms. Here is the tale of David, the crippled gander, and Jonathan, who gave up his yearly migration to remain with is broken-pinioned brother. Here is old Tom Johnson, the gander that arbitrated with the two American eagles and prevented a slaughter in the goose pond, and here is the old father of eight goslings, standing guard over his family and mate while his broken leg painfully healed beneath him. Here, too, is the pathetic yet whimsical story of Jack Johnson and the cow.

Jack Johnson's mate was dying, and her owner carried her into the cowshed, where she shortly breathed her last. Her mate fastened the blame for his trouble on the cow, and for two and one-half years kept constant guard over her, never going three rods away from her head. "He paid no attention whatever to any other goose, not even his own family. His sad honking, however, became so dreadfully mournful to one and all that I finally got rid of him." "Faithful after death" is the caption that heads the illustration showing "Jack" standing at the cow-stable door watching the unfortunate cow, "two years and three months after the death of his sweetheart."

Jack Miner, in a characteristic introduction, says: "My reason, dear reader, for writing this book, I will assure you, is not to expose my A B C education, but simply because my many friends have requested me to put into book form at least a portion of my interesting experiences," and in an equally characteristic finale: "I can sympathize with all classes, especially him who thinks himself down and out, for I have black and blue proof that a good, swift kick in the right time and place will give a barefoot boy a good lift in the end."

An Appreciative Audience Greeted Musical Event In Town Hall—Personals

MILLBROOK, Jan. 26.—An appreciative audience, which filled the town hall comfrotably, greeted the "Aeolian Six," for their entertainment on Thursday evening, given under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of the Methodist church. The quartette, consisting of Agnes Adie, soprano, William M. Baker, tenor, Eileen Law, contralto, and Rupert Lucas, baritone, presented a fine programme of choral numbers including the well-known but always popular, "Hail, Smiling Morn," and the quartette from "Rigoletto." Solos by Miss Adie, whose voice, while very strong, is also remarkably sweet, and by Miss Law, with duets, particularly the "Merry Vagabondss," by Messrs. Baker and Lucas, and "Miserere" from "Il Trovators," by Miss Adie and Mr. Baker, gave all music lovers in the audience a treat of which they were not slow in expressing their appreciation.

The selections by the assisting artists, Miss Dorothy Ryan, reader, and Bertram Broon, violinist, were also received with warm approval. The standard of excellence maintained throughout the programme assures the company a full house should they fill a return engagement here at some future date.

Held a Meeting

The "Wide Awakes" group of Canadian Girls in Training held their first meeting with the new officers in charge on Wednesday evening at the parsonage. The president, Marjorie Sayles, took the chair and the minutes were read by the secretary, Jean Burnham. Following the business and devotional periods a study of the life of Louisa M. Alcott was taken up. An impersonation sketch of the four characters in her ever-popular books, "Little Women" and "Little Wives," will be the programme of a literary evening in the near future.

The installation service for the newly-elected officers will be conducted at the meeting next Wednesday. The usual "sing-song' and recreation period brought the evening to a close.

Misses Agnes Adie and Dorothy Ryan were guests of Mrs. E. S. Burnham, Miss Eileen Law, of Mrs. I. E. Needham; Messrs. Bertram Brown and Rupert Lucas, of Rev. S. T. and Mrs. Tucker, and W. M. Baker of Mr. and Mrs. P. Stinson, during their stay in town in connection with the entertainment on Thursday evening.

The two plays, "Whiskets," and "Miss Buzby's Boarders," which were to have been given by the young people of St. Thomas church in Cavan community hall on Tuesday evening but were postponed on account of the storm, will be presented on Tuesday, January 29th, at Cavanville. The weather being favorable quite a number expect to drive over for the entertainment.

Mrs. E. Kenyon, of Peterboro, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. G. W. Sayles, for a brief visit on Wednesday.

Mrs. W. Wilkinson has returned home after a pleasant visit with her sister, Mrs. Gillespie, of Peterboro.

Mrs. (kev.) M. G. B. Williams is visiting her parents in Toronto this week, expecting to return by Saturday.

The annual meeting of the East Durham Liberal-Conservative Association which was to have been held on Wednesday at 1.30 p.m. was postponed on account of the bad roads which made it impossible for those living at any distance to reach the village for the occasion. The date for the meeting has not yet been announced but will probably be during the next week.

The annual meeting of the Cavan and South Monaghan Ploughmen's Association will be held in the Council Chamber on Saturday, February 2, at 2.30 p.m. A full attendance is requested. L. H. Winslow is president, and L. McNeil, secretary-treasurer.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For the Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

His Reminiscences on Press When Death Came

OTTAWA, Jan. 28. — (Canadian Press).—There was a dramatic touch in the sudden passing of Luciphe Richard, one of the oldest French-Canadian residents of the capital, which took place on Saturday shortly after ten o'clock, when he dropped dead from syncope of the heart, in the store of I. Houle, St. Patrick Street, after a visit which he had paid to the offices of Le Droit, the local French daily.

He had been to the newspaper to see the proofs of some reminiscences of the early days of Bytown and Ottawa, which had been woven about his life in a story, which had not yet reached the streets from the presses when the news of his sudden passing was announced.

Mr. Richard, who was born at Deschambault, in the County of Port Neuf, Que., was in his seventy-fourth year.

CAMPBELLFORD, January 28. —Jesse Hunt, an employee of the local branch of the Peterborough Cereal Company, was seriously injured in the mill yesterday.

His left arm was badly lacerated when his clothing was caught in the machinery.

Dr. A. Haig attended Mr. Hunt, and had him removed to Nicholls Hospital in Peterborough this morning.

The injured man came from Norval last November with his wife and two children. He was an efficient miller.

His injury is made more serious by the fact that he was a left-handed worker.

This is the first serious accident to occur in the mill, which was working overtime on account of pressure of business.

Fire in Percy.

The home of James Moir, of Percy Township, had a narrow escape from total destruction on Saturday when a fire started from an overheated pipe.

Mr. Moir had eight or ten neighbours helping him to saw wood, and while the men were at dinner someone smelled smoke.

Investigation showed that the woodwork in one of the bedrooms upstairs was on fire.

The men formed an effective volunteer brigade, and by carrying the water in buckets managed to confine the blaze to the one room, which was badly damaged, and the furniture in which was almost a total loss.

M's. Thompson's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Donald Thompson, who died on Friday in her 95th year, was held on Sunday afternoon from the home of her son on Bridge Street.

Rev. C. F. McIntosh, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, of which the deceased had been a member since her childhood, conducted the religious services at the home.

The pall-bearers were: J. A. Meiklejohn, William Russell, J. C. Birmingham, C. A. Wilson, J. D. Cummings, and W. J. Armstrong.

The late Mrs. Thompson, whose maiden name was Isabella Clark, had resided in Capbellford and district since 1850 in which year her parents came to Canada from Scotland. Sixty-eight year ago she was married to Donald Thompson who predeceased her 27 years.

The surviving children are three sons, Neil of town, Robert of Spokane, Wash., and Peter, who went to the United States many years ago. Another son John died in 1920.

D. J. Lynch Appointed.

The Separate School Board here has appointed Mr. D. J. Lynch as their representative on the local Board of Education. This is the first time that the Separate School Board has ever made such an appointment. They have already, as in the past, two representatives on the Board.

Mr. Lynch has been the appointee of the Town Council to the Board for the past twenty years, and at the last meeting of the Council, was defeated for the position by one vote. He is a lawyer, and is a valuable member of the Board, his advice being always available on legal matters.

Mrs. J. Horseman Dead.

Mrs. John Horseman, Sebastopol Street, who has been ill for a long time, died late on Saturday night, and the funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon at her late residence at half-past two.

At the Regent.

By special request, the picture, "Garrison's Finish," which had a successful run in this theatre for two nights some time ago, will be shown again on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings with a special matinee at 4.15 Wednesday. The leading man in this picture is Jack Pickford, who has just come back to the screen after directing the career of his sister, the great Mary Pickford, in her most notable achievement, "Little Lord Fauntleroy." This is without doubt the greatest racing and love drama that ever appeared on the screen. It goes direct from here to Ottawa for a six weeks' run. Don't forget the Wednesday matinee and give the children a chance to see this great racing and love drama.

"Wild Honey," with Priscilla Dean in the leading role, will be the feature picture on Friday and Saturday, with the usual matinee on Saturday.

The Regent is the house where the patrons are always certain to find an entertaining and high-class programme. Admission 25c. for adults and 15 cents for children.

HUNGER KILLS AGED IN BERLIN

Starvation Takes 103 in 22 Months, Mostly Women, City Bureau Reports.

BERLIN, January 28. — On the heels of the liveliest holiday season in years, with shops crowded with buyers and streets by evening rendered impassable in the downtown districts with regular and special trains to the winter sport resorts sold out days in advance, there comes the laconic report from the city's statistical bureau that 103 persons have died of starvation in the 22-month period just ended.

Commenting on this report, an authority writing in the Berlin Vorwaerts remarks:

"Death by starvation is so gradual as to be almost imperceitible to the physician. Indeed, it may be said that death as a direct result of hunger is very rare, for the reason that long before the end of the 'normal starvation period' is reached, the body has lost all resistanceto disease and infection, some specific illness sets in, and to this the mortality is traced.

The "Normal Period."

"The 'normal starvation period' is approximately three weeks. During this time life may be sustained with merely the consumption of water. The body demands from 2,000 to 3,000 food calories daily, and very soon, if this amount is denied, the reserve store of fatty tissue is consumed, literally burnt up, at the rate of one gramme for every 9.3 calories which are lacking. When this store of fuel is exhausted, the organs of the body are consumed one by one, and in a definite order until the point is reached where they can no longer perform their functions. Then death occurs.

"Thus if 103 persons in the city of Berlin have died of starvation in 22 months, it is evident that thousands must have succumbed, but indirectly, from the same cause. In the majority of the cases recorded, elderly persons were the victims. Few were able to last through the entire starvation period, due to lack of fatty tissues which might, for the time, serve as body fuel.

Some Comparisons.

"As a basis for comparison might be cited the fact that in the decade just before the war, 56 persons died in Berlin as the result of undernourishment, which, generally, followed some prolonged illness. But of the 5 or 6 such cases, annually recorded, not one resulted directly from starvation. It was in 1914 that we found our first case of death by starvation and there was one other recorded in 1917. Besides these, illness resulting from undernourishment or undernourishment following illness, took a toll of 7 in 1914, 6 in 1915, 7 in 1916, 49 in 1917, 335 in 1918, 43 in 1919, 21 in 1920, 13 in 1921.

"It can be readily seen that conditions are far worse now than ever they were during the war years, when mention is made of the fact that from April to October, 1923, 40 cases of death by starvation were recorded, of which 21 fell in September and October.

The Old Suffer.

"It is interesting to note that men seem to have greater resistance than women (or it may be merely that women are less able than men to provide for their needs) since but 14 cases were those of men and 26 were women.

Fifteen of the victims were under 60 years of age and 25 were over 60. This, of course, is to be expected. They lack the surplus flesh and therefore the resistance to starvation. Not uncommon is the recent case of a retired school teacher, 68 years old, who weighed less than 65 pounds at the time of her death."

It is a grim picture which the cold statistics conjure up, and it must be said that city agencies, as well as foreign missions, are doing their best to alleviate conditions through the establishment of soup kitchens scattered throughout the city. But it is to be feared that the average Berliner, still in possession of his health and strength and able to snatch an existence from the turmoil all about him, has developed a scientifically reasonable, if somewhat brutal, individualism.

He is quietly accepting the survival of the fittest as an incontrovertible fact and is going his way in peace. If the statistical bureau of the city of Berlin succeeds in its attempt to disturb him—forgetfulness is always to be purchased at the price of a bottle of wine or an evening's tour of the cabarets and "Dielen." "Devil take the hindmost," is the order of the day.

Letters Arrive From Man Reported Dead.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Jan. 28—(Canadian Press). — Mystery still surrounds the question as to whether Cornelius Heffernan, cattle buyer, who disappeared from St John about five years is still alive. A relative yesterday said he had received a couple of letters from the missing man more than two years ago. He was then in Halifax. Since then he had been informed that he had been seen in Winnipeg where he was visiting relatives, and still later a report reached the city that Cornelius had been seen in Montreal. So far as can be learned, however, no communication has been received from Mr. Heffernan for more than a year. The story of his disappearance is revived by a report yesterday that he had died in Montreal on April 3, last year.

PIELESS PLAN PROVIDES PERFECT PHYSIQUE

VICTOR LINDGREW

GLADYS HUGHES

PARK RIVER, N.D., Jan. 23. —Daily dozens aren't included in the regimens of two of America's most healthy children.

Nor is the high road to well-being charted with dietetic forbearances, they say.

Take, Gladys Hughes, modern Hygeia, for instance.

This 15-year-old miss from Moor head, Sunflower County, Miss., who won first prize as the country's most physically fit girl, informs that she arrived at the goal via the following prescription:

"Plenty of fighting plus volleyball practice."

And as for Victor Lindgren, 18 hailing from this place, he assures that his niche in Health's hall was carved by no other means than his manly abstinence from pie, coupled with periodic rushes on well-stocked platters of ham and eggs.

Gladys, who's but 15, came by her laurels at the International Live Stock Show held recently in Chicago.

Her score was 99 out of a possible 100. She represented the pick of 300,000 members of girls' clubs from every state in the union and was decided champion only after eliminating 28 other district representatives who vied with her for the honor.

Victor's title embraces but 12 states. He won it at the Interstate Fair at Sioux City, Ia. His score was 99.8 out of a possible 100. Which was going some, judges said.

Both youngsters come from farming communities. Each attends high school.

Gladys has red hair, gray eyes, perfect teeth, weighs 121.5 pounds is 5 feet 3.7 inches tall and smiles to beat the band.

"I'm going to be a music teacher," she says. "And positively I won't go on the stage."

So there, you are.

STARTING SMALL RESTAURANT

I will agree that many towns have a great many restaurants and that even small towns have restaurants, but despite this I will declare that Canada had not half enough small restaurants of the right kind.

The lunchroom, with copper steam boilers sizzling, and everything standardized, down to the number of beans that come with an order, has its uses. When men are in a great hurry and require only a hasty meal, the typical lunchroom will serve, but most of us have a fair amount of time in which to eat and many of us have rather high ideals of how we would like to eat. The small, individualized restaurant brings to us not only a special service but an atmosphere which the large, commercial establishment cannot. For a man or woman with a small capital and an instinct for both cooking and serving I know of nothing that will pay so well as a small restaurant.

Do not allow the estimations of the commercial resteranteur to influence you. You do not need big steam tables nor big coffee steamers. Make your coffee in a big household pot, and make it fresh every half hour. Serve as you would for a very large family. A big household steam cooker will do a great deal to help. You can get two for about five dollars each. Try to individualize your service. If your town is largely Scotch, get a recipe for genuine haggis, make good scones and have the real, old country porridge that you cook all day.

Few restuarants serve a roast beef that a real Englishman will smile on, and I will tell you why. The cooks persist in pouring all the pan gravy from different roasts into one big pot, into which they put a large amount of some bottled sauce or flavouring. I know of nothing that will so effectivly disguise honest beef. If, therefore, you have many English amongst your possible customers, roast the joint and right way and serve it with its own juice. The "au jus" of the commercial restaurant being as I have stated, it will not be long before you have patrons who will pay you almost any price within reason for the genuine thing.

Don't be misled, either, by the price of the restaurant ranges and ovens that you will see advertised. A good sized cook stove with a generous oven, such as you would use for a large family will be sufficient and you can get a good one second-hand for around thirty dollars. Often a second-hand range is quite all right but for the firebrick being burned out. Write to the manufacturer of the stove and you will get a new firebrick. This only requires to be fitted into the stove and the price should not be over eight dollars.

Again, the commercial restaurant table is expensive. So are the rounded and typically backed chairs. Such fittings take away from the homelike air of a small place. Take a note from the smart tea-room of the big cities and evolve a colour scheme. Orange and blue is a good scheme, and so is grey and pink. Hangings of these shades would be expensive, therefore buy common, cheap sheeting and, after making all hangings and curtains, allowing one inch more on every yard than you want, wash them in very hot water and then dye them. The effect is beautiful and the cost, including the dye, will not be over twenty cents a yard if you buy a roll of the sheeting. I know of a tea-room in Winnipeg which is wholly hung with dyed sheeting in blue and rose, and which is greatly admired.

Now for the tables and chairs. Buy unpainted kitchen tables with straight legs and have a carpenter round the edges. Buy unpainted, round back kitchen chairs, which are close in style to the picturesque old "Windsor" chair. Now paint the tables blue and ornament them with bands of orange, and in the same way with the chairs. Use plain oilcloth for the floor, the kind which gives an almost perfect imitation of a hardwood floor. Such oilcloth should not cost over seventy cents a yard, and it will last, even with hard usage, for four or five years.

Get a sign painter to make you a sign that is gay and distinctive. Put blossoming plants in your windows. Put your menu and its prices in the windows. Hand letter the menu, if you want to be artistic, but do not fall into the mistake of making the prospective customer wonder what he is going to pay. He—and more especially she—will be all the more apt to go into a place where the prices are known beforehand.

With care, two hundred dollars will start a small restaurant anywhere in Canada, even in the large cities. A smaller sum would do for a country tea-room, something which nearly every part of the country is greatly in need of.

When You Catch Cold Rub on Musterole

Musterole is easy to apply and it gets in its good work right away. Often it prevents a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. Just apply Musterole with the fingers. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster without the blister.

Musterole is a clean white ointment made of oil of mustard and other home simples. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of all sorts. Seldom fails to deliver results. 40c and 75c, at all druggists.

Ottawa to Continue Clean Hockey Fight.

OTTAWA, anuary 28 (Canadian Press). — "The decision of the National League not to entertain our charges against Canadiens will not in any way affect the policy of our club," said T. P. Gorman, of the Ottawa Hockey Association, last night, in discussing the N.H.L. meeting. "We shall continue our fight for clean hockey, and our players will continue on the ice the conduct that has made them admired from coast to coast. We have made it quite clear to the public how the Ottawa Hockey Association stands on the question of dirty hockey tactics."

FORD SAWMILLS BRING NEW ERA

Bank Deposits in Two Cities Grow—Railroads Doing Big Business.

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., Jan. 28. — Besides inaugurating a new era in the lumbering industry in the Upper Peninsula, the Ford interests have been a great stimulus to business, especially in this city and in L'Anse, where Ford has body plants and sawmills. Bank deposits show a large increase and a new era has hit the city in construction work.

The Northwestern and St. Paul rail way are enjoying a large increase in freight business. Both roads, it is said, have reached the million dollar mark as a result of the Ford industry. Their log traffic is heavy. Millions of feet of timber will be transported by both railroads before the season closes. The St. Paul, it is said, will handle 77,000,000 feet of logs for the Ford mill here.

Ford's mills at L'Anse and Pequaming are receiving very large shipments. Although Ford operates his logging camps at Sidnaw, he is buying much timber from jobbers, and the bulk of logging in the Upper Peninsula this winter is for the Ford industry.

Roals Add More Trains.

As a result of the increased logging traffic, the St. Paul road has found it necessary to add eight more train crews at Channing. Indications are that a further addition will be made before long. There are now ten trains out of Channing.

The Northwestern road is hauling large timber shipments to the Von Platen-Fox mill here and the Kimberly-Clark paper mills at Niagara.

Construction work on the chemical plant at the Ford works here is going ahead speedily, as are all the other building operations, despite the severe weather. Twenty six dry kilns, forming a part of the world's largest battery, are now being completed. If all the pipes in these kilns and the plant were placed end to end they would reach about 600 miles.

Ford is making preparations to obtain the huge supply of raw material that will be needed to keep the chemical plant in steady operation.

Ford's agents are negotiating with jobbers, it is said, for wood that was left in the forests because there was no market for it. So Henry Ford has done one more thing for the progress of the Upper Peninsula, created a demand for a product that has been "dead."

Nothing Wasted.

So fine is the Ford system of operation that nothing is wasted at the plant here. All defective timber that cannot be used for Ford cars goes to various machines and is made useful for battery boxes and other purposes. Wood and bark strips of no value are ground up and used for fuel in the power plant.

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

THAT LITTLE AILMENT

Do you enjoy having something wrong in your bodily health? Are you in the habit of making such a condition a common subject of your conversation, at home or among your friends?

Remember there is no bad health, as many persons term it. If you are cranky, hateful, lazy or selfish, and want to put the blame on some bodily organ, that's your chance.

"How terribly I feel!" or "If you felt as I do," are common to all of us from chronic complainers. The others, the more they will be magnified. It will take you much longer to get rid of them.

The worst feature of "that little ailment" is that it takes so much of your time, telling about it to others, that one leaves undone many important matters and often neglects real health conditions. How much better and more profitable it would be to say nothing about it!

Act as if you had perfect health. It may make you feel better to talk about your earache, or heartburn, but it does not have that pleasant effect upon other people. If you have a bad cold, get rid of it as soon as you can, but don't make a bore and nuisance of yourself to others.

Use every effort to get that little ailment out of your system. Don't nurse it along as a regular companion. People, as a rule, are quite willing to sympathize with real sufferers, but not with pseudo martyrs.

You will be surprised to find out yow much better you will feel if "that little ailment" is put away, and the "good health" sign hung out. Nobody loves a sick man.

PERSONALITY WON WAY TO SUCCESS

One Winner Has the Formula, While the Other Presents the Example.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Personality and apptearance is what elevated Bernice Dryer of this city from stenographer to head of her own successful employment agency.

Personality and appearance, Miss Dryer maintains, is what can produce the same results for others.

"The girl who wants to be a suecess in New York must know how to dress," she repeats, "and she must have a winning personality, besides knowing her typewriting and stenography."

But, school girl or college grad, her opening wedge into business must be stenography, Miss Dryer asserts.

New Start

"The college girl often fails to realize that her education, however extensive, has been almost entirely theoretical and that she must start all over in the business world," she explains. "And the girl who must start with little education often neglects the possibilities of advancement because she doesn't grow with her job. Both have their chances."

The fear of losing her job keeps many a woman at work in which there is no advancement, Miss Dryer says.

Beware Ruts

"Never stay more than three years in any place unless you are advanced in salary and in position," she advises. "Otherwise you limit your possibilities and are getting into a rut."

Another pitfall she points to is the goregously decorated office that holds only the palatial surroundings against good pay, as inducement for work.

"A job is worth a certain amount of money and should be paid in cash, not in interior decorations," she laughs.

POLICEMAN MAKES RECORD.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(Canadian Press).—Robert McAllister, "the Flying Cop," Saturday night established a world's record of 11 seconds flat for 100 metres, (109.3 yards) indoors, in the first event of that distance on a board track ever held. He made the mark in the tenth annual indoor track and field meet of Brooklyn College at the Thirteenth Regiment Armory, Brooklyn.

"Miss America" Declares Tanlac Wonderful Health Giving Tonic

Miss Campbell in "Miss America" crown which she has won on two occasions.
Photograph by Atlantic Foto Service

Miss Mary Katherine Campbell, twice proclaimed "Miss America," has taken TANLAC and endorses it in a statement recenily given to the women of America through International Proprietarics, Inc., distributors of this great tonic. In this statement, Miss America declares that Good Health is the basis of all Beauty, and advises women who would be beautiful to "first find good health."

Her complete statement as given is as follows "I consider it a great privilege to be able to tell the thousands of women everywhere what a great tonic TANLAC is. Health is the basis of all beauty. Without good health, one is apt to be run down, nervous, underweight, high-strung, anaemic. Indigestion drives the roses from a woman's cheeks and robs her of that radiant quality of womanhood that is real beauty.

"I have taken TANLAC and I do not hesitate to say that it is a wonderful health-giving tonic. It has brought relief and good health to many women, and with good health one may have a measure of beauty that will overcome shortcomings in face and figure.

"Rosy cheeks, sparkling eyes, a well-rounded figure, a lovable disposition, go hand in hand with good health. To those searching for beauty, I would say—'First of all, Find Good Health.' The TANLAC treatment has proven itself a boon to womankind, and I recommend it."

Miss Campbell has written a booklet on Health and Beauty which may be secured by filling out the coupon below.

AN EFFECTIVE PLAN.

Down in Belleville they have adopted a very businesslike and satisfactory way of making sure that the sidewalks are kept clear after a snow storm.

A city bylaw calls for citizens to keep the portion of the sidewalk in front of their property free of snow and ice—but like a good many other bylaws in Belleville and in every other Ontario city, the measure has been more or less of a dead letter until this winter.

Now they simply send out a force of twenty-five workmen, armed with shovels, and every piece of sidewalk that is found not cleaned is attended to by the Board of Works force—and the owner is charged by the city for the work done.

The system has worked like a charm, for the second day out the snow-shovelling gang found little work to do—the citizens having realized that if they didn't clean their walks they would have to pay for it being done, and they chose the cheaper course.

The result has been that Belleville never before saw so many well-cleaned sidewalks after a snow storm.

The local Board of Works may find the plan worthy of some investigation.

THE GRANT TO THE EXHIBITION.

The County Council has done its duty handsomely by the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, prqviding a grant of $1,000, which will be a very welcome contribution toward the cost of providing the additional cattle accommodation made necessary by the rapid growth of the Exhibition.

With the change in the dates of this year's Exhibition, the directors expect that many of the prize cattle shown at Ottawa will be seen here, and with that prospect in view the building of a new cattle barn becomes a necessity.

More pleasing than the actual financial assistance granted is the recognition implied in the county's grant of the Peterborough Industrial as a county enterprise.

There has been in some quarters a tendency to regard the Exhibition as a city affair.

It is not that, nor has it ever been.

Its directorate is made up of both urban and rural residents, and its benefits are felt in all parts of the district, but perhaps more particularly among the farmers to whom the bulk of the prize money goes and who have the chance to study good stock and to brush up on better methods.

And, above all, it is of advantage because it is a connecting link between city and county, an intermingling of city people and farmers in an enterprise that gives them a chance to know each other and understand each other better.

The county has given the Exhibition a good start in what promises to be the most successful year in its history.

THE FOOL AT THE WHEEL.

The president of the Royal Automobile Club of Canada, in commenting upon the fatal accidents in Montreal last year—there were 77 motor fatalities—urges parents and school teachers to impress upon the minds of children the vital importance of exercising care at all times when they are on the streets.

The Examiner agrees with him that much can be done along that line to reduce the number of accidents, but there is much, too, that remains to be done in regard to driving from highways the reckless motorist whose disregard for the rights of others is the cause of the majority of mishaps.

The children cannot be warned too often to take precautions when crossing the streets, but at the same time the whole responsibility should not be thrown upon their young shoulders.

The conditions should not be allowed to get so bad that a pedestrian's life is in danger if he happens to be momentarily off his guard.

Traffic regulations and speed laws are all right so far as they go, but all the regulations in the world won't supply brains to those who haven't got them—and it is usually lack of brains that causes reckless driving.

It remains, therefore, to keep fools away from the wheel—and the present laws do not go very far in that direction.

Almost anybody, if he is old enough, is allowed to take a heavy, high-powered car and drive it through crowded streets.

The weakness of the system lies in the issuing of licenses; the regulations in that regard should be strict enough to keep incompetents out of motor cars.

Until that is done, accidents must be expected in increasing numbers as the number of cars in commission increases.

A BOY IMMIGRANT.

The suicide of a young immigrant in Huron County and the allegation that the despondency that led to the sad tragedy was due to ill-treament the lad had received in his employment, calls for a searching enquiry by the Minister of Immigration and Colonization, says the Montreal Star.

Innocence or guilt in the charge of ill-treatment is a matter for the courts to determine, but the matter must not end with the conviction or acquittal of those against whom the charges may be levelled. This suicide, coupled with the stories of broken promises and disillusionment that have appeared recently in English newspapers come as a direct challenge to those responsible for the creation and the putting into effect of our policy of immigration.

This unfortunate boy seems to have been a lad of exceptional promise; his character and his abilities attracted the attention of the Board of Guardians of Southampton, who interested themselves in his future and gave him the chance of making a career for himself in Canada. Within a few months of his arrival here the boy has preferred death to the treatment he was receiving.

This boy is one of many hundreds that have come to Canada. The tale of his ill-treatment is not unfortunately an isolated case. The Department of Immigration and Colonization had little or nothing to do apparently with his immigration save to receive him. They must make answer as to what they have done in the matter of colonization. The lad was a stranger within our gates and he has found life so unbearable under the conditions under which he lived that he seeks escape by suicide.

Charlie Bulpitt was a type of our boy emigrants. What is being done to Canadianize them, to make them feel at home? What are we giving these boys in exchangefor what they have given up? What ointment are we applying to salve the wounds of severed friendships and torn associations with the Homeland?

That is the challenge which the death of this lad puts squarely up to the Minister of Immigration. If this is not met, if there is any attempt to shirk the investigation, the death of Bulpitt will do more to damage Canada and rob her of immigrants than hundreds of thousands of dollars spent in propaganda could off-set.

ROBERT BURNS.

There is something very appealing, very wistful, yet at the same time so brave and steadfast in Burns, that he is easily the world's best loved poet, and not only to those who come from the land of the heather does he make his appeal. Scott is a more universal genius, but in the essence of poetry and the spirit of song Burns has no equal—not in Scotch poetry only but in the literature of the world. He takes our hearts by storm, he rushes in with the fifes and pipes playing gloriously; he wins us at once by the intrepid gallantry of art. It is perhaps for this gay courage, or again for his periods of sadness, that he is so esteemed. "Mankind," as Lord Rosebery said, "owes him a general debt but the debt of Scotland is special. For Burns exalted our race; he hallowed Scotland and the Scottish tongue. The Scottish dialect, as Burns called it, was in danger of perishing. Burns seemed at this juncture to start to his feet and reassert Scotland's claim to national existence; his Scottish notes rang through the world, and he thus preserved the Scottish language forever—for mankind will never allow to die that idiom in which his songs and poems are enshrined. That is a part of Scotland's debt to Burns."

Some men are famous for a time, others longer. If a roll call of fame were to be read over at the beginning of every century, how many men of eminence would answer a second time to their names? Of Burns there is no doubt or question. His name rings out clear and unchallenged; there are few before him on the list and it would be hard to conceive a list without him. His extraordinary hold on mankind is possibly a complicated one, but the causes are like most great causes, simple in themselves, inspiration and sympathy. He loved the simple things of life, and because he was a genius he must needs sing, and he sang of the things he loved the most.

His tenderness was not a mere selfish tenderness for his own family, indeed he placed all creation, especially the sufferings and despised part of it, under his protection. Even a mouse, "wee, sleekit, cow'rin,' timorous beastie," an object of keen dislike to most of us, and better in a trap than anywhere else, found a friend in Burns. Above all he saw the charm of the home; he recognized it as the basis of all society. His verses go straight to the heart because they are so utterly sincere. The lines in which he tells his faith are not less memorable than the stately stanzas in which Gray sings the "short and simple annals of the poor." Often quoted as they are, they are worth quoting once more,

"To mak' a happy fireside clime
To weans and wife,
That's the true pathos and sublime
Of human life."

The Ayrshire ploughman's heart, "benevolent and kind," drew no hard and fast line between the ranks of creation entitled to his goodwill. His poems are a treasure house in which all may find what they want. "Every wayfarer," says Rosebery, "in the journey of life may pluck strength and courage from it as he passes. The sore, the weary, the wounded, will all find something to heal and soothe. For this great master is the universal Samaritan. Where the priest and the Levite may have passed by in vain, this eternal heart will still afford a resource. He is not only for the sick in spirit. The friend, the lover, and the patriot will all find their choicest refreshment in Burns."

Perhaps the sweetest tribute ever paid to Burns was that of Whittier, on receiving a sprig of heather in blossom:

"In smiles and tears, in sun and showers,
The minstrel and the heather,
The deathless singer and the flowers
He sang of live together.

But who his human heart has laid
To Nature's bosom nearer?
Who sweetened toil like him, or paid
To love a tribute dearer?

Through all his tuneful art, how strong
The human feeling gushes!
The very moonlight of his song
Is warm with smiles and blushes."

NEAR DEATH WITH PARALYTIC STROKE

Campbellford Man Was Stricken Similar to Wife a Year Ago.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 28. — People of the town were shocked when it was known that Mr. L. F. Gould had a paralytic stroke on Saturday morning about nine o'clock. He had had his breakfast and did a few chores around the house, then went upstairs to his room. In a short time Mrs. Casement, with whom he lives, heard some unusual sound, and going to his room found him on the floor, his left side paralized and unable to speak. Dr. Longmore was called in, but there is not much hope for his recovery.

A strange coincident is that his wife had a stroke a little over a year ago and was found in her room in about the same condition, and she never recovered.

Mr. Gould's two brothers live in the West, and word was sent to them. His brother in Dryden has sent a return telegram asking about his condition. At five o'clock there was no change, and the doctor says the case is very grave.

Since his wife's death, Mr. and Mrs. James Casement have been living in his house and he has lived with them. Mr. Gould while away visiting late in the fall took a severe cold and has not been very strong since.

HOUSEWIVES' COLUMN

Settled down in my comfy chair last night, cozily contented—and what do you think I read? Our little red instruction book for Dominion Store managers.

Maybe you think that a strange thing to do. But, truly, it was most interesting. I read all about how the store must be swept out every night, so as to be ready, spic-and-span the next morning. Windows washed clean and bright. Refrigerator scrubbed spotlessly clean so as to be always fresh and sweet.

Other things, too. Scales inspected regularly to make sure Dominion Store weights are always honest weights. Clean white coats and aprons, clean hands—everything as invitingly clean and fresh as Dominion Store foods themselves.

But best of all I like the instructions about treatment of Dominion Store customers. If you, too, could read them you would see why each Dominion Store is a friendly store where you always get real service and satisfaction. The book tells our managers—"The customer is the BIG BOSS. He or she must be pleased, every time."

No wonder we have more than a million customers a week at our stores. Each one of the million knows she will get good clean food, in a clean, efficient store—as well as lower prices that mean steady savings.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN THE NEWSPAPER MAN

Became Publisher by Accident in 1720. Aimed to Entertain Rather Than Instruct Readers—Fought Against Abuse of Persons in News Columns and for Freedom of the Press.

To Benjamin Franklin, the newspaper man, a tribute ought to be paid. Last year Professor James Melvin Lee, of the Department of Journalism at New York University, told, in his paper, of the human side of Franklin. Franklin's love for the newspaper game makes such a tribute most appropriate. He wrote an epitaph—which was never used—calling himself, "Benjamin Franklin Printer." Newspaper men in colonial days called themselves not editors, but printers.

Accident played a large part in the life of Franklin. It was accident that made him a newspaper man. Had his brother, James, not fallen into the toils of the law, Franklin would not have been made publisher of the New England Courant. Because the apprenticeship irked his independent soul, he might have gone into another line. He did start in the drygoods business at one time, and it was the death of his employer that sent him back to printing.

"My brother had, in 1720, begun to print a newspaper. It was the second that appeared in America, and was called the New England Courant. The only one before it was the Boston News-Letter. I remember his being dissuaded by some of his friends from the undertaking, as not likely to succeed, one newspaper being in their judgment enough for America. At this time, 1771, there are not less than five-and-twenty He went on, however, with the undertaking. I was employed to carry the papers to the customers, after having worked in composing the types and printing off the sheets.

My brother's discharge was accompanied with an order, and a very odd one, that "James Franklin no longer prints the newspaper called the New England Courant." On consultation held in our printing-office amongst his friends, what he should do in this conjuncture, it was proposed to elude the order by changing the name of the paper. But my brother, seeing inconvenience in this, came to a conclusion, as a better way, to let the paper in future be printed in the name of Benjamin Franklin; and in order to avoid the censure of the Assembly, that might fall on him, as still printing it by his apprentice, he contrived and consented that my old indenture should be returned to me with a discharge on the back of it, to show in case of necessity; and, order to secure to him the benefit of my service, I should sign new indentures for the remainder of my time, which were to be kept private. A very flimsy scheme it was; however, it was immediately executed, and the paper was printed accordingly, under my name, for several months.

Professor Lee, in his "History of American Journalism" corrects a slight error made by Franklin. He mentions that the Courant was not the second newspaper to appear in America, but the fourth in the Colonies and the third in Boston. The second newspaper to be published in Boston was, of course, the Boston Gazette. On Dec. 22 1719, the Tuesday which followed the Monday on which the Boston Gazette first appeared, Andrew Bradford brought out the first paper in Philadelphia, the American Weekly Mercury.

The controversy between the law and the Courant has been repeated over and over again. Its significance, however, has been overlooked by all but a very few. Clyde Augustus Duniway, who is a Harvard Historical Study reviews the freedom of the press in Massachusetts, shows the far reaching results of the Courant controversy in the following comment:

"The Courant case was of great importance in the development of freedom of the press, for it was the last instance of an attempt to revive and enforce censorship in Massachusetts. The prerogative of the governor as licenser had been set at defiance by the House, and his request to be given licensing powers under an act of the General Court had met with a negative response. Irritated by the Courant, the General Court had attempted to restrain its freedom by requiring it to have a "customary" license from the secretary of the province; but, the press having outgrown its swaddling clothes, evasion of the order went unpunished, and restrictive censorship passed away.

However, it was not in Boston, but in Philadelphia that Franklin became the big newspaper man of his time. Accident again played a part. In fact, accident prevented his being the founder of the Pennsylvania Gazette. He was betrayed by a friend to whom he had confided his dream of publishing a paper, and Samuel Heimer brought out the Universal Instructor in Arts and Sciences; and the Pennsylvania Gazette, Dec. 24, 1728, before Franklin was ready.

In the Mercury, a competitor of the Gazette, Franklin had a fling at journalism, under the head of "Busy Body," the first article being published Feb. 4, 1728-9. I quote this first story in full, because, while he was only 23 when he wrote it, he carried the same sense of humor and the same clarity of English throughout his whole life:

"Mr. Andrew Bradford:—I design this to acquaint you, that I, who have long been one of your courteous readers, have lately entertained some thought of setting up for an author myself; not out of the best vanity, I assure you, or desire of showing my parts, but purely for the good of my country.

"I have often observed with concern, that your Mercury is not always equally entertaining. The delay of ships expected in, and want of fresh advices from Europe, make it frequently very dull, and I find the freezing of our river has the same effect on news as trade. With more concern I have continually observed the growing vices and follies of my country-folk; and, though reformation is properly the concern of every man, that is, every one ought to mend one; yet it is too true in this case, that what is everybody's business is nobody's business; and the business is done accordingly. I therefore, upon mature deliberation, think fit to take nobody's business wholly into my own hands; and, out of zeal for the public good, resign to erect myself into a kind of censor morum; purposing, with your allowance, to make use of the Weekly Mercury as a vehicle in which my remonstrances shall be conveyed to the world.

"I am sensible I have in this particular undertaken a very unthankful office, and expect little besides my labor for my pains. Nay, is is probable, I may displease a great number of your readers, who will not very well like to pay 10 shillings a year for being told of their faults. But, as most people delight in censure when they themselves are not objects of it, if any are offended at my publicly exposing their private vices, I promise they shall have the satisfaction, in a very little time, of seeing their good friends and neighbors in the same circumstances."

The Gazette, in the meantime, being a hastily adopted child of Keimer, and falling ill of the diseases that so often afflict newspaper children, would have died had not Keimer finally turned it over to Franklin, whose own child it was. It came back to him in issue XL, Oct. 2, 1729.

Franklin threw into the "hell box," Chambers' Dictionary of the Arts and Sciences," which Keimer was reprinting. "Religious Courtship," which was running in the paper, and killed numerous extracts from English prints. For these features Franklin substituted what was for the time live news items.

As a printer Benjamin Franklin was an expert; the best of his time in a mechanical sense. Those who look over the early issues of the Pennsylvania Gazette in the New York Public Library almost believe they are looking at recent reprints, so clear are the types, and so plain the impressions, as the reader can see from the illustrations reproduced in connection with this article.

Two house ads, one by Keimer and the other by Franklin, show a striking contrast in the sense of news values of these two early printers in Philadelphia.

Keimer shows he had no modern sense of news values. On page 2, of his first issue, Dec. 24, 1728, is found the following:

"We have little News of Consequence at present, the English Prints being generally stufft with Robberies, Cheats, Fires, Murders, Bankruptcies, Promotions of Some, and Hanging of Others; nor can we expect much better till Vessels arrive in the Spring."

In contrast, note Franklin's "nose for news" in his second edition, October 16, 1729, page 4:

"Our Country Correspondents are desired to acquaint us as soon as they can conveniently, with every remarkable Accident, Occurence, &c., fit for publick Notice, that may happen within their knowledge; in Order to make this Paper more universally intelligent."

In the third issue after Franklin took over the Gazette, Oct. 23, 1729, the first paragraph shows Franklin's publicity sense:

"The Publishers of this Paper meeting with considerable Encouragement, are determined to continue it; and to that End have taken Measures to settle a general Correspondence, and procure the best and earliest Intelligence from all Parts. We shall from time to time have all the noted Publick Prints from Great Britain, New England, New York, Maryland and Jamaica, besides what News may be collected from Private Letters and Information; and we doubt not of continueing to give our Customers all the Satisfaction they expect from a Performance of this Nature.

"From this Time forward, instead of publishing a Whole Sheet once a Week, as the first Undertaker engag'd to do in his Proposals, we shall publish a Half Sheet twice a Week, which accounts for the same Thing; only we think it will be more acceptable to our Readers, inasmuch as their Entertainment will by this Means become more frequent. Numb. XLIV. will come out on Monday next."

Modern critics might note that Franklin uses entertainment of readers, instead of instruction.

Thomas, in his "History of Printing in America," inserts as a footnote the following item about an ad by Franklin:

"Bills of lading formerly began with "Shipped by the Grace of God," &c. Some people of Philadelphia objected to this phraseology as making light of serious things. Franklin therefore printed some without these words and inserted in his paper the following advertisement: 'Bills of Lading for sale at this office, with or without the Grace of God.'"

When Franklin took over the Pennsylvania Gazette he had as a partner, Hugh Meredith. Beginning with the issue of May 11, 1732, when Meredith retired, Franklin's name appeared alone in the imprint until Jan. 12, 1748, when it was changed to "B. Franklin and D. Hall."

On Nov. 7, 1765, the first week the Stamp Act took effect, the Gazette appeared in the form shown in the illustration: "No Stamp Paper to be Had." This was the first issue without Franklin's names as publisher.

Franklin once told how much help Hall was in this partnership, for Hall took from Franklin's hands all care of the printing office and divided the profits, punctually, with Franklin. In spite of the absence of Franklin's name in the imprint when the paper resumed its old title, the partnership of Hall and Franklin was not formally dissolved until Feb. 1, 1776.

To give the reader an indication of the ledger of the Gazette, it may be remarked that the profits from 1748-1776, when Hall became publisher, amounted to more than £12,000 for subscription and £4,000 for advertising. In May, 1766, Hall took in William Sellers as a partner. But the history of the Gazette from this time on has no direct connection with Benjamin Franklin, the newspaper man.

It should be noticed in this connection that after Franklin left the paper the influence of the Gazette began to decline, while that of the Pennsylvania Journal increased. This Journal was published by William Bradford, a grandson of the William Bradford who brought out the first paper in New York, the New York Gazette, Nov. 8, 1725; the 200th anniversary of which, by the way, will occur next year.

(This same William Bradford, the grandfather, was the man who sent Franklin to Philadelphia to find work, not having any for him in his New York shop.)

Now that Franklin's newspaper career, technically speaking, is over, it might be well to review his opinions on the various phases of journalism.

The following shows the very nice way he "calls" the Mercury for stealing stories:

"When Mr. Bradford publishes after us and has occasion to take an Article or two out of the Gazette, which ye is always welcome to do, he is desired not to date his Paper a Day before ours, (as last Week in the Case of the Letter containing Kelsey's Speech, &c.) lest distant Readers should imagine we take from him, which we always carefully avoid.

Over and over, throughout his life, Franklin stresses his aversion to newspaper abuse of persons.

He writes to "Messrs. Hall and Sellers," editors of the Gazette, telling them that this abuse endangers the liberty of the press, and commending the Gazette because for the 50 years of its existence "scarce one libellous piece" had appeared in it. He also askes them to publish their "disapprobation" of this practice, and says that it hurts our country abroad.

In writing to Mr. F. Hopkinson, Philadelphia, from Passy, Franklin says he thinks the "conductor of a newspaper should consider himself the guardian of his country's reputation, and refuse "such writings."

In regard to freedom of the press, he sagely remarks: That he will "cheerfully exchange his liberty of abusing others for the privilege of not being abused."

His solution to the question follows: "My proposal then is, to leave the liberty of the press untouched, to be exercised in its full force, and vigor; but to permit the liberty of the cudgel to go with it pari passu." Then he goes on to recommend to the legislators that when they "secure the person of a citizen from assaults, they would likewise provide for the security of his reputation." A similar resolution was introduced in the first Kansas Legislature, when Mr. McMeekin moved that if any reporter of a Kansas newspaper vilified any member of the Legislature, the member so vilified should be authorized and expected to thrash the offender.

Newspaper readers must have been about as critical in Franklin's day as they are now, for we find him, in 1765, complaining of their incredulity.

"Formerly," he says, "everything printed was believed because it was in print; now things seem to be disbelieved for just the very same reason."

Franklin was one of the early publishers in America who wanted to require payment in advance of subscriptions. The following "duns" may explain the necessity:

"This present Paper, No. 303, finishes the Fifth Year, since the Printer hereof undertook the Gazette; no more need be said to my generous Subscribers, to remind them, that every one of those who are above a Twelve month in Arrears, has it in his Power to contribute considerably toward the Happiness of his most obliged humble Servant.

B. FRANKLIN."

"This Gazette Numb. 564 begin the 11th Year since its first publication; And whereas some Persons have taken it from the Beginning, and others for 7 or 8 years, without paying me one Farthing, I do hereby give notice to all who are upwards of one year in Arrears, that if they do not make speedy payment, I shall discontinue the Papers to them, and take some proper Method of Recovering my Money.

B. FRANKLIN."

"Soon after the establishment of piece, which he requested him to Franklin desired that the piece might be left for his consideration uptil next day, when he would give an answer. The person returned at the Franklin this communication:

"'I have perused your piece, and find it to be scurrillous and defamatory. To determine whether I should publish it or not, I went home in the evening, purchased a 2 penny loaf of the baker's, & with water from the pump made my supper; I then wrapped myself up in my great coat, and laid down on the floor & slept till morning, when, on another loaf & a mug of water, I made my breakfast. From this regimen I feel no inconvenience whatever. Finding I can live in this manner, I have formed a determination never to prostitute my press to the purpose of corruption, & abuse of this kind, for the sake of gaining a more comfortable subsistence.'"

If space permitted I would tell of Franklin's unselfishness. How he helped his relatives who started colonial newspapers in Rhode Island, Connecticut and New York. But all of these details can be found in the early chapters of Professor Lee's "History of Amrican Jouralisnm."

As a fitting conclusion to this chat about B. Franklin, the newspaper man, I should like to quote the toast proposed at the Franklin dinner given by the New York Typographical Society, Jan. 17, 1850, by Professor S. B. F. Morse, of New York University, the inventor of the telegraph which put news in the newspapers:

"The Press—Its legitimate use to express and im-press, not to sup-press the truth, nor to op-press nor de-press an honest heart."

STRIKING ON THE JOB REPUDIATED BY CONVENTION

European Practice Employed By Nova Scotia Miners Declared to Be Ruinous and Dishonorable—International President Vindicated and Commended.

Adjournment in Sight.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 28.—(Canadian Press). — The adjournment of the United Mine Workers of American convention before the end of this week was in sight yesterday, following the announcement that the scale committee has virtually completed its deliberations and is ready to report. Although President Frank Farrington, of the Illinois District, who heads this important committee, said all members were sworn to secrecy, it was the general impression that they would follow the recommendation of International President Lewis and advise a renewal of the present wage scale for a term of four years.

The repudiation of the "ruinous practice of striking on the job" and a pledge of their high regard for the "sanctity of contracts" was voiced by the United Mine Workers' convention Saturday in casting an overwhelming vote of confidence in their leader, and commending him the second time for deposing the officials of the Nova Scotia district.

Defending his action before the convention, International President John L. Lewis said he regretted he had to stand before the delegates to answer questions put by the deposed Nova Scotia vice-president, Alex. McIntyre, who, he said, is no longer a member of the United Mine Workers, "but a keeper of a grog shop."

"Striking on the job," it was explained, is a European practice. The workmen under this system hold ojbs and idle their time away, or work one day, then strike one, work one and strike two, or three, and so forth.

FIVE THOUSAND ATTENDED THE SCOUT MEETING

Girl Scouts of Country Hold Record Club Meetings by Listening In on the Radio.

MEET BY RADIO

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 28.—Honors for the greatest regular attendance at weekly club meetings, of all organizations in the world, may safely be awarded to a new group of Girl Scouts.

They meet—5000 of them—by radio.

Today the largest single troop of Girl Scouts is to be found, not in the largest city, but scattered throughout the country, wherever the ethereal waves of KDKA strike. It consists especially of girls tucked away in the isolated regions of the country, where there are never enough within hiking distance to form a troop.

Now these girls assemble every Monday evening at their radio sets and begin their meetings by listening in on the customary signals, the allegiance to the flag and the other routine of troop meetings. Instead of personal instructions from a local scout leader, these girls listen in on the instructions broadcast from KDKA.

DUKE OF YORK MET PLAYERS

Witnessed Aston Villa's Victory Over Bolton Wanderers—Goalie Was Hew of Swansea.

LONDON, January 28 (Canadian Press Cable). — H.R.H. he Duke of York as given an enthusiasic reception by 30,000 spectators when he attended at Aston Villa's grounds at Birmingham on Saturday to witness the match against Bolton Wanderers, which the former won 1 to 0.

The Duke shook hands with all the players, who were inroduced individually to him, including the captains of the rival teams.

Sims, former centre-forward from Luton, scored three of the five goals for Stockport against Hull, Stockport winning 5 to 1.

Chelsea's defeat on their own ground was due to the magnificent goalkeeping of Huddersfield's goalie, Taylor, who stopped everything. Chelsea must, however, be accounted unlucky to have lost.

Just after the whistle blew, Fulham's goalkeeper was beaten by a shot from Manchester United forward Lockhead. The ball had 30 yards to travel, so that Fulham were saved from defeat by seconds.

On the other hand, both Tottenham and Newcastle scored in the first five minutes of play, which was much too vigorously contested in the first half, with the result that Tottenham suffered severely, Poynton being disabled early in the game, wile Forsters and Walden were unable to resume after half-time. Lindsay, too, was limping during the latter part of the match.

Lock, the former Southampton and Glasgow Rangers' goalkeeper, was the hero of Swansea's game against Bournemouth. Some of his saves were really wonderful, and it was only after desperate fighting in the mouth of his goal that he was eventually beaten by Smith, Swansea's centre-forward, who made a special point of heartily shaking hands with Lock at the end of the game.

Lees scored three times for Wolverhampton against Wrexham, making his total of goals scored in the Northern Section of the Third Division, 19 for the season.

She also spoke on why the women of Ontario should take an active part in the clubs, why they should be appointed to offices on the School Board, and other public offices.

TWO WEEKS OF GRACE GRANTED CAR OWNERS

Time Limit for Renewal of Licenses to Expire February 15

TORONTO, Jan. 28. — Official announcement is made that the issuance of motor licenses by the Ontario Government for the year 1924 will commence next Thursday, January 31, which is one day earlier than at first announced.

As it would be a physical impossibility to complete the distribution of license plates to the three hundred thousand Ontario car owners in a single day, and as even a week would hardly be sufficient time, the Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Public Works and Highways, has decided to extend the time limit until February 15 next.

LYNN WORKERS TO SAVE PLANT FOR EMPLOYER

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—Out of work because their company failed, former employees of the Cushing Shoe Company at Lynn have begun a movement to raise money to purchase the factory and turn it over to its former President, James Daley, to operate.

The company's equipment was sold at auction for $20,000, but the shoe workers are confident that they can buy the plant.

Why Ford Predominates

Low First Cost

The low price of Ford cars and trucks has been one of the great dynamic forces in the development of motor transportation.

Since January 1920 the average price of Ford products has dropped 38% and Ford prices are now the lowest in the history of the industry.

And because Ford prices are so low, the worker and his family enjoy the innumerable benefits and delights of owning an automobile; the merchant and manufacturer extend their business into new and profitable fields by means of motor delivery; the farmer carries his fresh produce to the best markets with none of the old-time hardship and delay—and all for a very small initial investment.

Fifty out of every hundred cars and trucks in Canada are Fords—due to the public appreciation of Ford value.

GODARD ADMITTED ATTEMPTED MURDER

After Identification by May Duncan, Say Detectives — Denies Murder of Mrs. Crooks.

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—(Canadian Press). — Harold "Ted" Godard, who was arrested yesterday on a charge of the attempted murder of Miss May Duncan, and who stoutly denies that he knows anything concerning the murder of Mrs. Martha Crooks on Friday last, appeared before Police Magistrate Edmund Jones this morning and was remanded until February 5. Bail was refused.

Roughly dressed with his coat collar turned up and his hair dishevelled, he gazed vacantly about the court-room. Godard served at the front and was shell shocked.

Under examination by police officials, Godard has claimed that his mind is a blank, and that he cannot remember anything that transpired last week, at the same time denying that he knew anything about the murder of Mrs. Crooks.

According to detectives, the prisoner, after being identified by Miss Duncan, admitted that he had attacked her and declared that he had burned the pipe with which the attack was committed in High Park.

PUT VICTIMS' BODIES IN CONCRETE MOULDS

Chicago Murderer Lincoln Clears Up Fate of Wife and Her Brother.

AURORA, Ill., Jan. 28.—Warren Lincoln, Saturday confessed to the police that he had shot and killed his wife and her brother, Byron Shoup, January 10, 1923, and had buried the bodies after dismembering them. The heads of the two, he said, would be found in the city dump in a concrete block he had moulded around them. He was taken to the dump, and diggers under his direction found the block. It weighed several hundred pounds. As the block was uncovered, Lincoln swooned in the arms of Chief of Detective Wirz.

The ghastly work of removing all the concrete from the heads of his victims was completed to-day. The heavy hair of his wife had mixed in the cement to such an extent that the work was slow, but the faces are fairly well preserved and readily distinguishable. The flesh is shrunken around the teeth and nostrils, and the eyes have faded under the strong chemical action of the concrete, but otherwise they are not marred to any extent.

CHIMNEY FIRES

Yesterday afternoon the fire fighters were kept busy answering calls to chimney fires at all corners of the city. The wind in the west ward must have been much stronger than in the other sections of the city as the west end had 50 p.c. of the fires. It had two fires and the south ward two, while East City, which is noted for fires, has a clean sheet. There was not much of a breeze blowing yesterday, but it was the kind of weather that crept into the house at every chance and made it much harder to heat. The large fires that were raging in the furnaces and heaters were the cause of these fires.

The calls started sharp at one o'clock and kept coming in until 4.20, when the last call was received.

At 1 p.m. the men were called out to a fire at 337 St. Joseph street, in the west end of the city.

At 1.49, which was shortly after they had returned from St. Joseph street, they received another call to 86 Park street south.

At 3.27 they were called out to 572 Romaine street.

At 4.20 they once more journeyed to the west end to a chimney fire at 487 Elm street.

All the fires were extinguished by the use of chemicals, and there was no damage.

NEGOTIATIONS ON THE AGREEMENT SOON END

GLACE BAY, N.S., Jan. 28.—(Canadian Press). — To-morrow afternoon will likely see the end of negotiations of the wage agreement between the representatives of the Dominion Coal Company and the United Mine Workers. What outcome of conference will be can only be conjectured.

The parties were in conference on Saturday afteroon but at the close of the meeting had nothing to say for publication. The conference resumes this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

There is general feeling among miners and the general public that Dominion Coal Company must take definite stand in regard to demand of United Mine Workers which are that men be given approximately twenty per cent increase. United Mine Workers have not receded from this position since beginning of conference and company officials have not yet approached the stage where they will talk of an increase.

BREACH OF PROMISE IN APPELLATE COURT

late Division this morning commenced a hearing in the application of Mrs. Pinfold, of St. Thomas, for a new trial following the finding of a jury last year in favor of T. Honsinger,, also of St. Thomas, against whom she claimed $40,000 for an alleged breach of promise. Honsinger declares that there was no promise of marriage at any time and the jury at the trial accepted his statement. In 1919 he states he gave Mrs Pinfold $3000 for the sake of peace, and advanced her sums at various times aggregating $10,000.

From One Acre of Land

Fresh Vegetables Can Be Cultivated at a Profit.

If you live in any part of the Dominion where there are no towns—if you are a pioneer in Northern Ontario, we'll say—you cannot make money from one acre of land, but anywhere else you can, provided that you plan with brains as well as with seeds.

Many women who live near towns in Manitoba and Alberta have written me from time to time that they did wish they could do something to add to the family income, it being derived from a great wheat farm. I have often answered in something like the following words:

"Get your husband to plow and harrow an acre of land and have one of the children help you in its further care. Get three year old asparagus roots and put down a fifth of that land. You can cut the crop the next year. Sow one-fifth to peas, one fifth to string beans and divide the rest into small beds of beets, celery lettuce, radishes, summer cabbage and spinach. Send this to town once a week. If you have traffic past your place, put a sign out."

Now, the reason that I gave this advice is that all through Canada we have too little of this intensive and diversified truck farming. With the exception of the City of Montreal, there is no place where all possible kinds of vegetables may be bought direct from the farmer at a very moderate price. Those who live in Toronto, for instance, will mournfully agree with me. On the Western prairies and especially through all the wheat country it is often impossible to buy a variety of fresh vegetables, at any price.

Many a woman to whom I wrote as above tried the experiment. I was very happy to hear from the mother of a large family as follows:

"I must confess that I tried the experiment of one acre of land with misgivings, but the result has been so splendid that I write, hoping that what I have to say will encourage other women.

"My seed and three dollars that I paid my cousin to plow and harrow for me, cost fifteen dollars. I put in peas, string beans, tomatoes, beets, lettuce, radishes and spinach, chiefly. Next year I will try the asparagus, as you recommended, but this year I wanted to see if I really could sell anything. Well, my neighbors drove for miles to buy from me and the hotel, which is twenty-three miles away, sent a truck once a week to buy. Next year I intend to have two acres. I have made, in profit, two hundred dollars. Of course, that means that I have given every moment of my spare time to the work and that I spare time to the work and that I have had to hire help several times, but I know of nothing that would have given me the same amount of money, nor that I would have enjoyed so much."

In England and on the Continent it is possible to buy fresh vegetables and fine fruit in any little town. There are always people right round there who are raising these things for local trade. We in Canada, with our vast possessions of land, with our big ranches and our monster wheat farms, with enormous operations in the growing and transportation of products of the land, are too apt to lose sight of the fact that there is always a demand for the home grown article and for the produce of the district.

British Columbia and Quebec are the two Provinces in which this intensive growing is practiced. Quebec, with its severe climate, supplies its local markets as well as British Columbia, so that we cannot attribute the success of the latter to climatic conditions.

TRINITY AFTERNOON TEA GREAT SUCCESS

Group T. of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity Methodist Church held a very successful and well-attended afternoon tea, sale of homemade cooking and rummage sale, on Friday afternoon, in the Reid street hall. Mrs. A. F. Lane is president of the Society. The arrangements for the tea and sale on Friday were in the hands of Mrs. Morley Lyle, who is convenor of Group G. and were carried out in very satisfactory fashion. The hall was prettily decorated in spring-like fashion with quantities of artificial pink cherry blossoms, and the pretty tea-table was very attractive with paper white narcissus and smilax. Mr. W. Lytle assisted Mr. Lyle; the tea-room was in charge of Mrs. Ira Moore and Mrs. H. Huffman; the home-made cooking table, arranged with yellow daffodils, was supervised by Mesdames C. Cook, J. Wolstenholm and W. Padget, and the rummage sale was in charge of Mrs. Jas. Lillico and Mrs. Watterworth. Miss Jean Padget played during the tea hour.

BALDWIN LIKELY ISSUE RETIRING PAPERS SOON

LONDON, Jan. 28. — (Canadian Press.)— Former Premier Stanley Baldwin is expected to issue the customary retiring Premiers' list of honor this week. It will probably be small and without any surprising inclusions. It is expected to be confined mostly to certain men of commercial and political standing who have found themselves barred from Westminster through supporting protection.

An interesting question arises whether the Labor Government will adhere to the custom of the two older parties in creating titular distinctions for purely political services.

THE GROVE SCHOOL CHAPEL DEDICATED

Boys Who Gave Their Lives in the Great War Remembered.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 28.—On Friday evening the chapel at "The Grove" school, which has recently been completed, was dedicated to the glory and worship of God and in memory of the old boys of the school who gave their lives in the Great War.

The building is of cement blocks, and of Gothic architecture, with a solid stone foundation and is situated east of the school, being connected with the main building but possessing also an outside entrance. The cement blocks will later be covered with stucco to match the remainder of the school. Inside, the chapel is wainscotted with dark stained wood to the beamed Tudor ceiling. The windows are set high in the walls and are arranged in a manner to supply good ventilation. The sanctuary window, of regulation shape, is in porportion to the building and through the amber glass the softened light adds to the religious atmosphere of this veritable gem of a chapel. The altar was made by W. Macdonald of the village and the clergy stalls and lectern by H. Scriver. The carpenter work was done by John W. Botterill and his men, while W. J. Webster and sons and P... ola Beaver did the cement and stone work so that nearly all the work was done by local men. The Old Boys' Association, under whose direction this beautiful memorial to the old boys who did not return from the war was built, are to be congratulated on the success of their endeavor in adding the last touch necessary to make the school complete.

The service opened with the beautiful hymn, "The Saints of God, How Sweet They Rest," after which evensong was said by Rev. H. Britten, Rev. A. W. Mackenzie reading the lessons.

Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, in a few brief remarks, told of the idea of building the chapel which was suggested some years ago. The names which will be read, of those who are on the honor roll, were men who once, not so long ago, were schoolboys, sat in the same seats, played in teams and took their part in school life as the boys are doing now.

Rev. R. J. Moore of Toronto, spoke to the boys for a few minutes before dedicating the chapel. The dedication of the chapel marks an epoch in the school life and years hence when old boys meet they will recall being at the school on the stormy night when the chapel was dedicated. The chapel will stand out in connection with the Sunday services and daily prayers and will be of tremendous value. Probably all the boys do not understand the service but the parents wish their boys to go, so they may learn to understand all that it means. Children do not realize the meaning of baptism when they are baptized but later one learns to appreciate its meaning and privileges. The chapel is a place to go to talk to God and get closer to Him, and as it is hard to pray earnestly in a dormitory among a lot of noisy boys, the speaker hopes the boys will sneak away to the chapel for their devotions and if they do this the chapel will not be built in vain. Prayer is not, what some people think, entirely a petition, but it is an atmosphere of God, it is coming under the power of an influence which cannot fail to do good. Don't be afraid of comment of others in following this course. In cricket, you can't make runs unless you're bowled at and you can't play the game for God unless you're bowled at. Over the gateway of Aberdeen University is this inscription: "They say, what say they, let them say." During the war a colonel said to a man in his regiment who was addicted to drink: "If you don't give up drinking you will go backward and die, but if you do give it up, you will go forward and live," and so it is in life, if we go backward, we die but if we press forward, we live. May these services draw the boys nearer to God.

T. B. Marling, M.C., read the names of the old boys who gave their lives in the service of King and Country, and in whose memory the chapel was built:

Frederic Anderson, Deric Brougham, William Carey, Esmonde Clarke, Vincent Cromwell, Keith Cumberland, James Dennis Brown, Philip Graves Thomas Gray, Geoffrey Hilliard, Ivan Kirkwood, Alister McGillivray, William Morris, Chilton Newburn, Norman Nelles, George Renfrew, George Strickland, Hubert Stuart, John Sydney Smith, Marsden Van Allen, Arthur Andrew.

Rev. R. J. Moore then dedicated the chapel to the worship of God, after which the hymn of Whittier's "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind," was sung.

Owing to the terrible storm there were not many present from the village, but those who ventured forth were rewarded by the beautiful service and the helpful address of Mr. Moore.

The seats are arranged according to the manner followed in college chapels, at the sides of the room. At present the seats in use are temporary, as the proper pens have not been installed as yet, but it is a genuine inspiration to see the rows of bright-faced boys and to hear their fresh young voices raised in praise to God in the dear familiar hymns beloved of boys for many years.

Occasionally one sees a large hat of felt with a soft rolling brim and a bit of colorful trimminy applied directly in front.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

AN AIRY FAIRY RIDDLE

They ride on frogs and green pollywogs.

"The next riddle," said the Riddle Lady, "is something you can't eat or see or hear, or smell or touch or taste! That is unless the Sandman or the Dream Maker are nearby, or you have some sort of magic with you. Now see who can guess!"

"What is it that is
Gay and sweet,
In the green retreat,
Of their shingly dingly dells,
Slipping in and out,
As they flit about
Busily weaving spells.

"Their houses are bowers
Of posey flowers,
Their drink is mist and dew,
And the leaves of the rose
They wear for clothes
Are the finest you ever knew.

"The way they tease
The birdies and bees,
Is a mocking shocking thing,
They always say
It's the onliest way,
They know how to make 'em sing.

"They ride on frogs,
And green pollywogs,
When they go out to call,
And lizards and eels
Are their automobiles,
When they go to the elf king's ball.

"They cling to the gleams
Of gold moonbeams,
And climb to a starry height,
Then down they coast,
A tumbling host,
Shrieking with shrill delight.

"If they'd tell me this secret,
I'd try so to keep it!
Do they ever have comp'ny to tea?
Then I'd go and I'd call,
And I'd talk to them all,
And perhaps they'd say something to me."

"Is it caterpillars?" asked Bo Peep. "Or spiders? They live in posey flowers sometimes and drink dew and everything like that!"

"The very idea!" said Contrary Mary indignantly. "Of course not. I never allow a caterpillar in my garden. Besides, who ever heard of caterpillars wearing rose-leaves for clothes. The ugly things wear fur!"

"And as for spiders," put in Miss Muffet, "let me tell you they don't have company to tea. The cheeky things come to other people's parties without being asked."

"I know what it is," spoke up Nancy. "It's fairies, isn't it?"

"Yes," smiled the Riddle Lady, "and the prize is a lovely pink rose. If you know where there are any fairies, you can make dresses for them all."

This new way to prettier teeth

A delightful test

This offers you a new way to clean teeth. A way which millions now employ. Leading dentists of some 50 nations are advising it today.

Wherever you look you see the results in whiter, cleaner teeth. Now learn what they mean to you.

Film ruins teeth

Teeth are clouded by a film—that viscous film you feel. Under old-way brushing, much of it clings and stays. It becomes discolored, forms dingy coats, and hides the beauty of the teeth.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Under old methods, these film-caused troubles became alarming in extent.

Modern science has found ways to combat them. One way disintegrates the film, one removes it without harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

To homes the world over that tooth paste is bringing a new dental era.

New protections

Pepsodent also multiplies the tooth-protecting agents in saliva. One is the alkalinity, one the factor which digests starch deposits.

These combined results will be a revelation to you. Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

Don't go longer without knowing what these things mean to you and yours. Cut out coupon now.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

COAL RATIONING USED IN SYDNEY

Coal Famine and Zero Weather Do Not Go Well Together.

SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 28.— (Canadian Press).—Coal famine and below zero weather both have Sydney in their grip.

With many families practically without fuel as result of recent suspension of work at collieries of British Empire Steel Corporation, severe cold set in on Saturday and brought suffering with it. Thermometer drop ped to 10 below zero and bitter wind swept city, below zero temperature still prevails and suffering must increase unless weather moderates as there is insufficient coal on hand to meet demands.

Frank Parks Was Saving Fifty Dollars A Year---

One day Frank Parks casually reviewed the entries in his bank book—and made a startling discovery.

He was saving about fifty dollars a year:

True, he was young—only twenty-four; and, living at home, his responsibilities were few.

But only fifty dollars saved in a year:

The natural desire to save more money brought this young man to interview a North American Life representative and to-day he holds a North American Life Endowment Policy and finds saving easy.

Shortly after his forty-fourth birthday, this policy will bring him $5,000 cold cash. In the meantime, he approaches his forthcoming marriage with the feeling that he has already played fair by providing protection for the woman he loves.

Our booklet "Twenty Years Ahead" tells how you can follow Frank Park's example. Write for it.

But Clavering was also a man of swift decisions and resource, and he knew this was no time to lose his head, or even to play a waiting game. And he must tread warily. Impulsive as he was by nature he could be as wary as a Red Indian when wariness would serve his purpose. He called up Mr. Dinwiddie on the telephone and asked if he might see him at once. It was only half past nine and Mr. Dinwiddie was just finishing his breakfast in bed, but he told his favorite cordially to "come along."

XLIV.

"What is it?" asked Mr. Dinwiddie, as Clavering entered his bedroom fifteen minutes later. "This is an early call. Thought you didn't get up till noon."

"Went to be early last night for a change. I've come to ask a favor. I'll smoke, if you don't mind."

He took a chair beside the bed, where Mr. Dinwiddie, in skull cap and decorous pyjamas, leaned against high pillows, happily digesting his breakfast, with the newspapers beside him. Clavering smoked for a few moments in silence, while his host watched him keenly. He had never seen his young friend in quite this mood. There was a curious deadly stillness about him.

"What is it, Lee?" he asked when curiosity finally got the better of him. "Nothing wrong between you and Mary, I hope? Of course you know it's all over town that you're engaged to her. Don't mind my saying this, do you? And you know you can trust me. Nothing like an old gossip for keeping a confidence sacred."

"Well, I am. But she chooses not to announce it and that is her right. And here is where you can help me. I want you to open your camp in the Adirondacks and give Mary a house party. I suppose Larsing and his wife are still there?"

"Yes, at it's too early——"

"Spring is early this year. The ice must have gone out. And the house is always comfortable; we've often had fires there when people were having sunstroke in New York. I want you to get busy, so that we can leave tomorrow morning——"

"Tomorrow morning? You young dynamo. It can't be done."

"It can. I'll call up the people I want in a few minutes—from here. You can telephone to the camp. Provisions can go tonight. I'll see to that also——"

"But can you get away yourself?"

"I'd get away if I had to resign, but I shan't. I shall break away for two months later anyhow. We have planned to marry in Austria in about a month from now."

"Then why in thunder do you want to run off to the woods with her now? I never heard of anything so unreasonable. She has friends here who'd like to see her until the last minute, you selfish young beggar——"

"It's the most reasonable thing I ever did. Don't insist upon an explanation, Din. Just accept my word that it's a vital matter to me."

"Ah! But I know!" Mr. Dinwiddie's eyes glittered. "Hohenhauer is here. That's the milk in the cocoanut."

Clavering scowled. "What do you mean by that?"

"I—I—well—there was a good deal of talk at the time—but then you know, Lee, I told you the very first time we both saw her that there had been stories about Mary."

"Well, as it happens, she told me about this man, although not his name. Enough, however, for me to know at once this morning who he was. I don't intend she shall see him."

"You don't mean to tell me that you are jealous of Hohenhauer. Why, that was nearly twenty years ago, and he is almost as old as I am."

"I'm not jealous, but I've got a hunch." He scowled again, for he fancied he could see that old story unrolling itself in Dinwiddie's mind. It is one thing to dismiss the past with a lordly gesture and another to see it rise from the dead and peer from old eyes. He went on calmly, however. "I've no faith, myself, in the making of bonfires out of dead ashes, but all the same I scent danger and I intend to get her away and keep her away until the day before she sails; and I'll marry her all married couples, Lee, for heaven's sake. Let's have two girls, at least. But the season is still on. Sure you can get anybody?"

"Of course. They're not all pinned down to regular jobs, and will be only too glad to get out of New York after a grinding winter. The novelty of a house party in the mountains at this season will appeal to them. I'll call up Gora first."

He was crossing the room to the telephone when Mr. Dinwiddie said hesitatingly: "And so—so—you're really going to marry Mary? Have you thought what it means? I mean your own career. She'll never live here—she's out of the picture and knows it."

Clavering took down the receiver and called Miss Dwight's number. Mr. Dinwiddie sighed and shrugged his shoulders. But his eyes were bright. He would have a love drama under his very nose.

Mothers Should Not NEGLECT BRONCHITIS In the Babies

Mrs. E. Langdon, Kingston, Ont., writes:—"My baby had bronchitis when he was two weeks old, he recovered from the attack but took it again, several months later, and on account of the severity I was almost panic-stricken to know what to do for him. My mother advised me to try Dr. Woods' Norway Pine Syrup, as she had used it for several years with splendid results.

I got a bottle, and after I had used it I could see a decided improvement in him; after several bottle he was completely relieved.

My boy is now two years old, and he has never had an attack of bronchitis since.

As a mother, raising a family, I am very grateful to know that I have found a real remedy for bad colds and bronchitis, as it lifts care and anxiety from an anxious mother's shoulders."

Folks Back Home

Sketches by J. H. Striebel

By Robert Quillen

Norah Woods

Nora Woods is seven years old and she has no mother. A sister, aged twelve, does the cooking and housework before and after school.

Nora's father spends nearly all his time at the sales stable, talking with the farmers who come in to buy mules. He never works and there is a general belief that he is a bootlegger. At any rate he has some hidden source of income; and the income must be no inconsiderable sum, for he is drunk three days in each seven and drunkeness has become an expensive business.

Nora is on the street a great deal, dressed in shabby garments, and her face is never clean. People who see her say, "Poor little thing," and there has been much talk about sending her to an orphanage, but nothing comes of it.

Before Christmas Nora wore a sad and pensive look, but since that time she has been radiant. On Christmas Eve her father became very drunk and went into the Racket store and bought her a toy sad iron. It was her first toy, and the first gift from her father.

She carries it about with her on the street and shows it to everybody. "See," she will say proudly, "my daddy gave me this for Christmas. He is an awful nice man, and he loves me just lots."

Aunt Het

"The seven sets of famous authors we've got don't mean that we are literary, but only that Pa is easy when a female book agent gits after him."

Famous Guys

Cromwell, Oliver: Here is a man who mixed religion and politics, held place and power because the army stood at his back, and yet steadily alienated his people because he knew more about religion than he knew about human nature. He tried the disastrous experiment of making people good by force; and he made the disastrous mistake of thinking success will make people forget high taxes.

Much of Cromwell's success as a leader of cavalry was due to his Puritan faith in God. He thought God was with him; wherefore he entered the battle with solemn assurance of victory, and assurance brought him success.

Joan of Arc was inspired by a similar faith and triumphed for a similar reason. "Stonewall" Jackson, recognized as a military genius, placed his faith in God and bayonets in equal proportion. He believed himself in the hands of God, who would chose the time for his death; why, therefore, should he be concerned about the matter? He took chance, and taking chances in pious recklessness brought him brilliant successes.

It does not follow that God fought the battles of these three. War is a crime, and only mortals indulge in crime. Heaven never is an accessor to many's follies and brutalities. But, faith takes away fear, and when fear is gone and assurance takes its place, the enemy has need of fleet heels.

Cromwell is hated still, but it is probable that those who most condemn him envy his faith most sincerely.

Willie Willis

Little Willie Willis slipped off and went hunting with his father's gun Friday. Only one shot entered his toe, and the shoe can be mended.

THE BUTCHER BOY AND HIS BRIDE

Hiram and Willis Have It Out

"The man who sees red when facing a little fellow usually shows yellow when facing a big one."

Some of us have been rather uneasy about Hiram, the butcher boy; for a number of days. When that sorry Willis, from down on the river, sold Hiram three-quarters of diseases beef last week, and later paid for his sins when Hiram learned the truth, many of us expected serious trouble. For Willis is a good hater, and not one to accept a public beating without making some effort to get even. We reasoned that he might not risk another fistic encounter, since the first proved so disastrous, but that with a knife or gun to stiffen his backbone he would await his opportunity and do Hiram serious injury.

Our reasoning was fifty per cent sound, but no more than that.

Willis was in town Friday afternoon, still bearing on his face the marks of Hiram's fists, and he made no secret of his desire for vengeance. Blind tiger liquor has loosened his tongue and made him indiscreet. He stood on the sidewalk in front of Uncle Gus' grocery store and held forth concerning his prowess.

"I'm a cutter," he declared. "I kin cut a man's throat while he's gettin' ready to fight. And I'm a dangerous man, that's what I am. It don't pay to monkey with me. I'm mild as a lamb till I git roused, and then I'm pizen. I ain't got no control of myself when I git stared. I bloody the other feller or he bloodies me, and there ain't no partin' us once I fasten him. I kin jerk my knife open with my teeth and—"

At this point Hiram joined the group—Hiram, the mayor, clothed with authority.

"Willis," said he evenly, "you're drunk and noisy. If you're not out of town in ten minutes, I'll have you locked up."

"Yes, sir" agreed Willis. And that's all there was to it.

Of course that's the best way it could have ended, but Willis had an enviable reputation as a bad man and many of us were disappointed. Still, one must remember those tales about Willis beating his wife. A man who abuses his wife and children isn't likely to prove very dangerous when his antagonist is a man. The man who sees red when facing a little fellow usually shows yellow when facing a big one.

LOOKING FOR WORK WITH FEET FROZEN

Salvation Army Took Man in for Night and Sent Him to Hospital.

TORONTO, January 28 (Canadian Press). — With both feet frozen, Ernest Rispin, aged 30 years, was removed to St. Michael's Hospital on Sunday morning from the Salvation Army Home, Sherbourne Street.

Rispin told the police he had no home. He had walked around all day on Saturday in the cold, searching for work to get money to provide himself with food and shelter.

Late on Saturday evening he was taken in for the night by the Salvation Army. His feet were frozen, but Rispin did not know this until yesterday morning.

Senator Wilson Is on Homeward Trail.

LONDON, Jan. 28.— (Canadian Press Cable). — "You can take it from me, that Australia stands four square with the King," said Senator Wilson of Australia before his departure for Canada where he will break his homeward journey to negotiate a trade agreement with the Dominion.

Senator Wilson added that he had met the Prince of Wales in Australia and had told him a story about himself. A bushman who had seen the Prince was so delighted with his personality that he said to Senator Wilson: "The Prince is a regular fine youngster. I would walk a hundred miles over broken glass to meet him."

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

Before buying a lot to build on, make a careful study from an investment point of view, because it is the lot and not the house which may become more valuable in later years.

As to neighborhood, notice the transportation, the kind of neighbors, the accessibility of churches, schools and places of amusement. A district that sets too elaborate a social standard may encourage you (unconsciously) to raise your cost of living, as people tend to follow the lead of their neighbors. On the other hand, it is not good to live in a neighborhood that sets too low a standard.

As to soil, notice whether there will need to be much excavating and if so, whether it will be expensive and difficult. Is there good drainage? Are there trees? Is the soil such that trees and a garden can flourish? An ideal lot for a home site is one that can be made partly productive if desired.

As to improvements, notice whether there are connections for water, sewer, gas, electricity and telephone. If not, can such connections be made and at what cost.

Such points, considered with the purchase price and taxes, determine the value of property as an investment.

KILLED FROM CHARGE WHEN CLEANING GUN

HAMILTON, Jan. 28.— (Canadian Press.)—Shot through the right breast while he was cleaninghis shot gun at his home, Fred Gartrell, R. R. 5, Hamilton, a well known Saltfleet fruit farmer, was found dead in his home shortly after four o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Gartrell, with her four children, had left home at three o'clock to attend church service. Mr. Gartrell stated that he would remain at home as he intended cleaning his shotgun before going rabbit hunting in the morning. When the family returned he was found lying dead in a pool of blood.

At least four small islands were "born" in 1923. Two appeared off the coast of Cochin-China, one off the Japanese, and the fourth in the Bay of Bengal.

Y.W.C.A. ACTIVITIES.

The Y.W.C.A. gymnasium campaign for ne members is still growing and causing considerable excitement among the many canvassers. The Red side has been catching up this past week, and are only six behind the Blues.

The home nursing class is starting off very enthusiastically, and both classes are now overcrowded, but if more wish to join a new class will be organised. Mrs. Wood has charge of the Thursday class this week, and everyone seemed to feel that right from the first the course was proving most helpful. Miss Bulmer will have charge of the Wednesday class which starts this week.

The community singing club is growing in numbers, and interest, too. Everyone is invited on Tuesday nights.

The Bible study class has been changed from Thursday to Tuesday nights. This class will take up an outline of the Bible as a whole and especially the four Gospels.

CITY COUNCIL JOIN SERVICE AT ST. JOHN'S

Mayor J. J. Turner and City Officials Accepted Invitation of Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave.

"UNTO CAESAR"

St. John's Church was yesterday evening the scene of a pleasing service, when Mayor J. J. Turner and the Council, which has just entered upon the government of the city, attended in a body, the second lesson being read by His Worship the Mayor.

Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave preached the sermon, taking as his subject for this special occasion "Render unto Caesar."

Interesting Sermon.

"Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God the things that are God's."—Matt. 22: 21.

I am glad to welcome to this old historic church the members of the administration of this city for this year.

It is well that you should join with your fellowcitizens in this way in invoking the Divine favour upon your work and undertakings for this city.

You have laid upon you serious responsibilities, and only in a serious spirit can these be properly met. You have been honoured by your fellowcitizens in your election. This honour I have no doubt you fully appreciate. This city needs the very best service her best citizens in public office can render. This applies also in every department of public life in the Dominion. Cultivated minds that can penetrate to the heart of our weighty problems are sorely needed all over the land, and that probity of character that will not turn aside from the path of right for any cause whatsoever.

Public servants are charged by St. Paul with an accountability to God no less exacting than those who are leaders in the spiritual realm. "They are the ministers of God to thee for good." The high quality of public life waits for those who are called to responsible office to recognize the seriousness of their calling, and to lift the standard of dignity and honour to that high estate from which it has fallen in these perilous days.

Church and State

For all practical purposes, in this country at least, there is a clear line drawn between church and state; that is between the corporate life of organized religion and the corporate life of the civil community. Each has its own duties and responsibilities, though as a matter of fact both are concerned with the same constituency, and ought to be equally anxious for its highest welfare and prosperity. All churchmen are citizens and all citizens ought to be churchmen. But our Lord gives us the line of division in the words of the text as well as in that other saying: "Who made me a ruler or a divider among you?" So there is at once a singleness of aim between church and state, a unity in the constituency and a division in function and responsibility. It is not for the religious to impose its will or to attempt to do so in the civil realm, but to follow the Master's method in winning all men and so all nations to Him.

Democracy and Leadership

These are days of democracy. The people rule. All great and important issues must go to the people for their verdict. This is a great adventure. We know that the "vox populi" is not always the "vox dei." There are so many influences, personal influences, sectional influences and selfish influences that determine the mind of the people. Their plain and unprejudiced judgment on any definite issue is very difficult to secure, insofar as it is not secured to that extent is democracy a failure. As a matter of fact it is hard for people to know just what ought or ought not to be. Intellectual training will not qualify a democracy for the highest government. There must be moral and spiritual culture as well. Politically our relations are all moral relations. Here is where the value of leadership comes in. People can be lead or they can be mislead. The one is almost as easy as the other. Dr. L. P. Jacks, in his editorials in Hibbert Journal, points out the danger of government by talk; as strongly repudiated by John Ruskin as advocated by Lloyd George. So long as the talk is true and not false, noble and not selfish, it is feasable. It depends upon the talker or the leader. Amid all the sins to which we are susceptable there is a fine thread of spiritual desire. Moral aspirations inhere in democracy. We see the truth when it is presented to us and we admire nobility and sacrifice. The world yearns for and will react to spiritual leadership. But that is just what it is not getting today. Policies today take cognizance mainly of selfish interests. They are full of compromise. Premier Baldwin made a speech a few weeks ago that went around the world. It reflected high spiritual vision. Its merit was not so much in its excellence as in its rarity. Democracy needs spiritual leadership, great minds that see great issues in the high light of their moral bearings on the life of mankind. We listen steadily for that inspiring note that will give confidence and hope to our bewildered senses but we do not hear it. There is good in the people's hearts. Let our leaders give it expression.

Value of Ideals

Our best ideals come from outside us. Left to ourselves we become cribbed and confined. The highest and best ideals of life come from God and are set before us in Jesus Christ. Apart from that light and revelation we are left suspended. Our highest moral and spirjtual incentives are bound up with our religion, as well as our best ideals. No one and no nation ever lived close to the Master's way of life and failed. The trouble is it has not been truly tried. Robert Peel said: "It is not prudent to trust yourself to any man who does not believe in God or in a future after death." But even that belief, quiescent and petrified, as it often is among both leaders and people, will never lead the world into the promised land. It must be interpreted into righteousness in social and national life. The ideals of Christ must be warmly cherished and applied. These ideals are very high; infinitely higher than we could ever come to ourselves. When we are in living touch with Him we are drawing upon the fount of truth for our spiritual vision, and our heart responds to it. Lord Birkenhead declares that Christian ideals are impracticable. The fact is we have not made them practicable. We can only come by our highest righteousness in public and social life by keeping those ideals which some day may be put into practice. They are the star that leads to the cradle at Bethlehem. We must not lose sight of the star else we are lost.

Mankind Spiritual

Here is where the spiritual influence of the Church comes in in affairs of state. We are not an aggregate of soulless animals. We are spirits and our whole life is all its relations, is, in the last analysis, spiritual. If you are not in touch with spiritual things how can you give a lead or a support to the aspirations of a spiritual people. You must worship at the mystic shrine of your mind is to take the wings of the morning. Only those who are in touch with God can lead the people to the vision that is necessary to meet the needs of their day. That touch is mediated through the living church without which there could be no sustained contact.

The Highest Impulse

You as a local council share in the responsibility of leadership. In a democracy it is the same on a small scale as on the larger. The same qualities and ideals are necessary. You find yourselves involved in questions of finance. You have to watch taxes and take care of budgets. On the higher plane you have to see that people in times of depression are clothed and fed. But do you, and let all our public administrators not stop there. Lift your eyes above the sordid and the material to the higher purposes of human life. Cleave your way through all the cross-currents and the influences that play upon your life to a definite and uplifting goal. See the glory of God over all and be seized of the ideals of beauty, truth and righteousness that beacon on to greater ends and higher attainments—to lead us out of the slough of despond onto the solid rock of noble purity and holy sacrifice. Then, and only then, can God and Caesar share justly in the affections and devotions of men. When General Dawes said at the Reparation Commission "let common sense be crowned king" he coined a striking phrase which will find a re-echo everywhere. He just meant "let us look at truth as it were let down from heaven."

Dethrone the selfish and grovelling instincts that enfeeble men and incapacitate progress; and exalt sanctified intelligence to its reasonable and commanding place in the realm of human life. Let the Spirit of God, which not only lifts up ideals, but also gives the resource for their attainment, be the guiding impulse of your whole life, and it will then be said of you: "Thou hast been faithful in few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

TONGUE COATED BAD TASTE IN MOUTH EYES TINGED WITH YELLOW

Liver Trouble the Cause

Mrs. A. C. Brown, Oromocto, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled with my liver for a few years back and was so bad I did not feel able to do my work.

I had severe pains in my stomach so bad I could hardly stand them at times; coated tongue; bad taste in the mouth, especially in the morning, and had a yellow and sallow complexion.

I had read a great deal about Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and decided I would try a vial, and after taking two or three I found I was greatly improved, and can truthfully say that I felt more like living and can now do my own work without any trouble."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers, or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HAMILTON WON FROM SENATORS

Crippled Leaders Were Outclassed—Billy Burch and Green Brothers Had a Great Night.

HAMILTON, Jan. 27. — Ottawa, minus Broadbent and Denneny, were outplayed and outclassed from the goal mouth out by the fast climbing Hamiltons in a N.H.L. fixture here on Saturday night, finishing on the short end of a 5-1 count; at no time during the 60 minutes were the league leading Ottawas in the picture, and they have Benedict to thank for not being beaten by a much larger margin. Tigers, with Burch and the Green Brothers on the forward line, made Nighbor Campbell and Clancy look foolish. "Red" Green ran wild on Campbell and made life for Benedict real miserable; the red-thatched youth was in on top of the Ottawa goalie repeatedly and had Cliff sprawled all over the goal moutn in an attempt to stop his shots.

The exhibition of stick handling given by "Red" Green was one of the many features dished up. Time after time he walked right through Boucher and Hitchman only to find Benedict his stumbling block. "Shorty" on the other wing, was almost as good. His one goal came after a pretty piece of play, for after circling the Ottawa defence he pulled Benedict away from his post, and lobbed the rubber into an open net, and Billy Burch worked in well with the Green Brothers. The short snappy passing of the Hamilton forward line had the Ottawa team at sea. Their efforts to break up the Hamilton play looked ridiculous and before play had been in progress very long Frank Nighbor gave it up as a bad job and fell back on the defence in an effort to keep Hitchman and George Boucher company in keeping the Hams out.

Nighbor could not get going properly with Campbell and Clancy and it was only in spots that he showed any of his old time form.

Finding the passing game with his wings was a failure, Nighbor attempted repeatedly to beat the Hamilton defence single handed but the repulse that he received from Prodger and Randall soon cured him of this idea. The Hamilton defence was wonderful. They stepped into everyone that came near them, and handed out many a stiff jolt. In the latter stages of the game they had Hitchman shooting from outside the defence and then following in his shot. King Clancy and George Boucher were the only members of the Ottawa team to show anything.

TORONTO SKATERS STAR AT OTTAWA

Gladys Robinson and Company Encountered Light Opposition--Races Run Off in Gale.

OTTAWA, January 28 (Canadian Press). — Three Toronto skaters were feature attractions at the speed skating carnival run off at Plouffe Park Speedway here on Saturday.

Miss Gladys Robinson, Emery Stephenson, and Maser Jackie Marr each won he single event in which they entered, having little serious opposition from the local speeders.

The severe cold weather, with a near-gale blowing across the park, hindered the skaters considerably, and the question of bettering previous records was out of the question.

The immense crowd which attended was well rewarded with the exhibition of style, grace, and speed given by each of the trio.

KINGSTON WISH TO REMAIN WITH CENTRAL LEAGUE

Prospect of Five - Team League Next Summer—Brownscombe Moving From Belleville to Toronto--Micky Murray Still In Oshawa.

CHANCE FOR SOLOMON

OSHAWA, Jan. 28.—According to a letter received by Secretary of Central Ontario Amateur Baseball League from W. J. Smith of Toronto, Harold Brownscombe, who migrated from Lindsay to Belleville, has decided to draw away from the cold water breezes of the Quinte City to again take up his residence among the white lights in the city of Toronto, and has asked to be given an amateur card in appearance before the Registration Committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, stating that he was a resident of Toronto, owing to circumstances from which he had no control, being as follows: "A death in the family, illness of his wife and loss of his position in Belleville." President M. P. Duff of Belleville has corroborated his story, and the dark-haired boy is likely to be found wearing a Toronto baseball uniform for the season of 1924, and fans around Central Ontario League circuit will anxiously await to see with which Toronto club he attaches his John Henry.

Kingston Enquiring.

That Kingston Amateur Baseball Association have a liking for the Central Ontario Baseball League and its environment was confirmed this week when the following communication was received from Secretary J. J. O'Neill:

"At a general meeting of the Kingston Amateur Baseball Association, the Secretary was instructed to communicate with Secretary of Central Ontario Amateur Baseball League as to the exact position which their association occupies as to the C.O.B.L. Their association is very enthusiastic and aims to 'carry on' in a larger way this season, hence their desire to know just where they stand in relation to the C.O.B.L., and will appreciate an early reply."

New Grandstand.

Good news was handed out to the Oshawa baseball management this week when it was announced that the contract for the new grandstand at Alexandra Park had been let, with the time for completing same fixed for May 10th, which means that everything will be in readiness for the opening of the season on May 24th.

Murray in Oshawa.

The rumor going the rounds of the league that "Mickey" Murray had kicked the snow of Oshawa from his heels to join the intermediate hockey team of North Toronto, the club that had his John Henry to a O.H.A. certificate last year, has no foundation, for the ex-Peterborough third sacker still punches the time clock at the entrance to General Motors at Oshawa.

The Biggest Surprise.

The biggest surprise to Central Ontario ball fans was the announcement under his own signature that J. J. Solomon was "out at home," and being a free man was open for a berth on the league's umpire staff. Jake states he can handle as many dates as can be allotted for either behind the plate or on the bases, and as he has always been a chief attraction on the coaching lines, he will likely be given the opportunity of receiving the razz, "Let Jakie tell 'em."

FIRPO MATCHED AGAINST WILLS

Newly Organized New York Syndicate Offered $250,000 For Bout.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28. — Lewis Raymond, representative of a newly organized New York syndicate, announced on Saturday receipt of word from Buenos Aires that Luis Angel Firpo had accepted the syndicate's offer of $250,000 for a 15-round match with Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, next July. Wills he added, already has accepted an offer for a similar amount.

According to Raymond, who declared the syndicate had several millionaire backers, it is proposed to stage the fight in Brooklyn, where options are held on several pieces of property. It is planned to erect an arena seating 1000,000 on one of these.

Lively bidding for a Firpo-Willls bout has been in progress for some time. Recently Tex Rickard cabled the South American battler a $200,000 offer after bidding $100,000 for Wills signature. The negro, however, rejected the bid, while Rickard has not yet heard from Firpo.

The National Sportsmen's Club of Newark, also announced an offer of $250,000 made to Firpo and while this feature was not made clear tonight, it was believed the syndicate represented by Raymond was associated with Newark interest.

Thirty Experts Pick Four Best Outfielders; Cobb and Speaker Are Unanimous Choice

RUTH — UPPER—CLARKE LOWER—COBB — SPEAKER

BY BILLY EVANS

What players comprise the greatest outfield of all time?

In all probability if a vote were taken among the experts and players as the the greatest outfield a certain team ever boasted the Speaker, Lewis and Hooper trio of the old Boston Red Sox would get the call.

The combination of Lewis in left, Speaker in center and Hooper in right was certainly a corker. It was a trio that could do everything well, yet, perhaps, nothing better than throw.

It was foolhardy for a base runner to take any chances on a ball hit into the Boston outfield, as far as getting an extra base in addition to the certainty. Lewis and Hooper were right-handed throwers and had deadly aim. Speaker, I regard, as the most accurate left-handed throwing outfielder I have ever seen in the majors.

Donie Bush summed up the throwing ability of that outfield when, in disgust after twice being thrown out at the plate, remarked:

Strikes From Outfield.

"That trio throws strikes from the outfield. A fellow is a sucker to take any chances with them."

Recently I read with interest the story dealing with an all-time all-star team selected by Hans Wagner, now writing a baseball story covering his career. Wagner selected for his outfield Fred Clarke in left field, Tris Speaker in center and Ty Cobb in right. His extra outfielder was Babe Ruth.

Wagner's team as a whole was a corker, but to me the outfield stood out more than any of the other selections, unless it was the pitchers. It seemed as if Wagner had selected four players for the outfield that would be hard to improve upon.

The Wagner story started me to delve in my scrap books where I have filed away the All-America teams as selected by such baseball authorities as John McGraw, Hughey Jennings, Connie Mack, Frank Chance, Clarke Griffith, Fielder Jones and other celebrities.

Consensus of 30 Experts.

Of 30 teams selected by leading experts, Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker were placed on all of them in the outfield. Fred Clarke and Babe Ruth were on the majority of them, while such players as Roush, Keeler and others too numerous to mention were considered.

However, the consensus of the experts were agreed that the strongest outfield combination would consist of Clarke, Speaker, Cobb and Ruth. Some combination.

Can Brookes Come Back?

Australian Tennis Star to Play in the Davis Cup Matches.

The announcement from far away Australia that Norman E. Brookes, world renowned racquet wielder, plans to get back into tennis competition again this season is of more than passing interest.

For one thing it means that the Antipodeans will be better fortified than they have been for some time in their efforts to grab off the famous Davis trophy. Not only should Brookes' ability as a player aid the Australian cause to a marked degree, but the psychological effect his presence is certain to have on the other members of the team will no doubt enchance the prospects of the foreign entry appreciably.

Brookes, though perhaps not as clever a court exponent as he was a few years ago, is nevertheless still capable of putting up a mighty good article of pastiming. At least he should prove superior to some of the other chaps who have represented Australia in previous Davis cup affairs.

NORMAN BROOKES

Paired With Wilding, Defeated America's Best in 1914 Tourney.

Maurice McLoughlin, the "California Comet", caused a sensation by tripping Brookes and Wilding in the singles; a pair of victories which, by the way, still rank as two of the most remarkable in the history of the Davis classic.

In all the other matches, however, Brookes and Wilding came out on the desired end of the figures, each grabbing a singles clash, and paired together ran off with the doubles also.

As a doubles combination Brookes and Wilding were practically invincible. Their styles were suited to each other. And they played together like two well-oiled machines.

Wilding was killed in the World War. But Brookes has been in the game off and on ever since. Recognized as one of the greatest players the game has ever produced, his performances on the courts this season will be closely watched by all followers of the game.

Americans doubtless remember Brookes best for his work in this country back in 1914. That year, along with that other famous racquetee, Anthony Wilding, Brookes took the Davis emblem to his native country. That was the year in which

FINLAND WON AT CHAMONIX

Scandinavian Skaters Carried Off Major Honors in Speed Skating Events —United States Third.

CHAMONIX, France, January 28 (Canadian Press). — Finland, with only three men entered, won first honours in th espeed skating events of the 1924 winter Olympic Games, which were concluded yesterday, with a total of 48 1-2 points.

Norway was second with 35 1-2 points, and the United States third with 11 points.

Sweden got 1 point.

Charles Gorman, of St. John, N.B., made a creditable showing in the 1,500 meter race on Sunday. He ran his heat with Joe Moore, of New York, and took only 3 4-5 seconds more than Moore to make the distance, Moore's time being 2 minutes 31 3-5 seconds, the same time that Jewtraw made in his heat with Olsen of Norway.

The Gorman-Moore race was a neck and neck affair until near the finish, with both men exhausted.

A member of the Canadian party says Gorman's failure to make a better showing was the result of seasickness when coming over, lack of practice, and a strain in the groin. It is the general opinion he lost because he hit an impossible pace at the beginning.

The Canadian hockeyists have enjoyed two try-outs. Munro is experiencing some difficulty in his breathing owing to the change of temperature.

Representatives from the several countries are advocating the revolver start instead of the flag signal.

Thunberg, the Finnish world champion, was easily the star of the meet. He showed ease of motion and smoooth action, reeling off lap after lap apparently without exertion in 42 seconds in the distance races, the laps being 400 meters around.

His two victories came without his having to extend himself to the limit of his speed, and seemingly he finished second in the 10,000 meters only out of courtesy to his compatriot Skutnabb.

Thunberg has received an invitation from the International Skating Union to participate in the United States championships in February, and he may leave for the United States to-day.

The solitary Canadian skater and the athletes of the United States were very popular throughout the Games, their unassuming behaviour making them great favourites with the crowd.

The skating races were a success from every standpoint.

The attendance was large, and the weather conditions ideal, with the ice as hard as flint.

CANADIENS ARE AT THE BOTTOM

St. Pat's Broke Tie in Last 90 Seconds and Took Second Place.

TORONTO, Jan. 28. Canadian Press. — Canadiens with three regulars missing, gave St. Patricks more than a scare here on Saturday night even if they did lose an exciting struggle by 2 to 1. The Frenchmen scored their only goal in the first period and it was not until only one mihute and a half remained to play that Bert Corbeau batted in the winning counter after the puck had rebounded on Adams' shot. St. Patricks retained their two game lead in second place over Hamilton, while Canadiens fell back nto last place.

The standing this morning is as follows.

Team.	Won.	Lost.
Ottawa	10	3
St. Patricks	7	6
Hamilton	5	8
Canadiens	4	9

Manager Leo Dandurand, who has been worrying over the slump of his team, went away satisfied that Canadiens will be able to shake off the jinx in the remaining games.

While the game was strenuous in spots it was not rough and only three men were invited to decorate the penalty box, the unlucky individuals being Adams, Corbeau and Moreuz.

FIFTH FOR SELKIRK.

FORT WILLIAM, January 28 (Canadian Press). — Snatching what seemed like certain victory from the local team in the last five minutes of play, Selkirk defeated Fort William 5 to 4, in an Eastern Division Manitoba Hockey League fixture here on Saturday night.

The failure of the Fort William defence to adhere strictly to defensive tactics for the last few minutes of play brought the Fish Town boys victory, and gave them their fifth successive win.

BRIGHT LIGHTS MADE TEAM FEEL AT HOME

JACK HOLLAND, who for years has managed clubs in the Western League, is a unique character in the minors. Umpires who have worked in that organization tell ball stories with Holland as the central figure. In recent years several umpires have graduated from the Western League to the majors. One of them relates the following story, proving even in the hardest kind of luck, Hollands' sense of humor never deserted him.

It seems that one year the poor showing of Holland's club was largely due to the failure of a number of his best player to take proper care of themselves. For a time Holland placed the blame on a touph run of luck what seemed to be following his team. Later he discovered that the tough luck was the result of poor condition.

After losing a bunch of games in a row, Holladn's club managed to tie up a game in the ninth that seemed hopelessly lost by staging a five-run batting rally. For the next five innings the clubs battled on even terms, neither being able to score. It began to get dark, and several times during the fourteenth inning the plate umpire looked back at the bench toward Holland as much as to say, I am not goiing much farther.

About this time some of the street lights pust outside the ball park were turned on. The flash of the lights gave Holland a double cue. He feared the umpire would call the game if he noticed them and he sought to preevnt it. From the bench he shouted to the umpire

"See they have turned on the bright lights. Don't you dare call this game. My boys are right at home now, they shine at night. If they can't win this ball game they never will win one."

The humor the situation appealed to the umpire. He went another inning and Holland's team won the first game in a couple of weeks. Incidentally the players got the drift of Holland's sarcasm, took it to heart, turned over a new leaf, and the club started on a winning streak.

Sport News

The local Intermediate basketball squad continue their snappy workouts regularly on the "Y" floor and are shaping into a fast and peppy quintette. They are grouped this year with Belleville, Kingston and Queens University. Belleville will pry the lid off the O.B.A.A. season with a game here during the first week of February. While on February 14 the Petes will journey to Belleville and will continue eastward and invade Kingston in their own citadel. The fast going Easterners should provide some real excitement for the locals.

The P. C. I. basketball team have been trying to widen the circle of their basketball horizon by endeavoring to secure games with the quintettes of other High Schools. As yet their efforts have met with little success, in the fact that no replies have been received from the friendly challenges hurled at Cobourg and Lindsay. However, the Central Park boys have hope and are spending all their spare tossing in baskets. The girl's team is vainly trying to book some outside games.

Perhaps if the P.C.I. took in the young men's team they might find some real opposition.

Neither Neal Collins of St. Peter's School nor Harry Chew of P.C.I., were allowed to play for their respective schools when S.P.S. and P.C.I. clashed last Thursday afternoon in the first interscholastic game, on account of the junior game in Lindsay the following night. The junior O.G.A. management is certainly not fostering school spirit.

These two teams will cross sticks again this week. 'Twill be a lively battle with S.P.S. all they can to put over a win and the P.C.I. lads doing all in their power to add another pelt to the one already dangling there from the last game.

The Boys' Athletic Association of P.C.I. have seen fit to invest in sweaters for the school hockey team and their puck-chasers looked well in their natty new uniforms when they made their bow Thursday aftdrnoon.

The sweaters consist of a garnet body and garnet sleeves with a grey band. The stockings are striped garnet and grey. This colour will likely be adopted by P.C.I. teams in all branches of sport. Next fall it is hoped that the rugby team may be equipped with this uniform. This will mean the destiny of all those luck-bringing, and many hued sweaters that garbed the locals during their gridiron battles.

The students of the Normal School have had several hockey practices and are moulding a nice team together. Last year the Normals had a pretty nifty team and with 'Shorty' Carson in the vets, were not an outfit to be lightly scoffed upon. Last year they had a series of home-and-home games wirh the Toronto Normalites, both in hockey and basketball, which turned out very successful.

It is hoped around the school on Benson Ave. that the Toronto Normals will see fit to bring their squad of athletes and their cohorts down next Saturday, hence the sudden activity for preparation.

The Quaker Oats opened this season with a one-goal victory over the Cognawagas last evening. The floormakers bulged the twine four times, while the Cogs only slipped three in.

If all the games are as clean as this game was the South End boys will have to depend on some other tource of firewood than broken sticks o keep their dressing rooms warm.

LADIES' CURLING.

The final round in the ladies' curling games for the Waddell Trophy was played this morning, the rink skipped by Mrs. W. J. Oke securing the prize, after a hard-fought game, in whicff the ladies tied the score at the beginning of the last end. The final score was: Mrs. W. J. Oke 6, Mrs. H. O. Fisk, 5.

The draw for the vice-skips' competition, which will commence at the conclusion of the men's bonspiel, is as follows: Mrs. R. Grant vs. Mrs. B. Harkness; Mrs. A. W. Turner vs. Mrs. J. H. Vernor; Mrs R. H. Turner vs Miss Margaret Neill; Mrs. H. W. Cressman vs. Miss E. Munro.

Miss Isabel Coursier, of Revelstoke, British Columbia, is the champion woman ski-jumper of the world. She leaped 78 feet at an international meet at Rafter National Park.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

It with pleasure that we announce the presentation of the Victor Schertzinger production, "The Kingdom Within," at the Regent Theatre to-day.

This is a story that has all the pathos of "Over the Hill," all the human interest of "The Mircle Man," and all of the suspense of "The Birth of a Nation." It will enthrall you from beginning to end.

An all-star cast, consisting of Russell Simpson, Gaston Glass, Pauline Starke and Ernest Torrence, capably enact the various roles in this superb drama.

We can recommend "The Kingdom Within" as being a drama unusual and novel, with all necessary ingredients added to make it an excellent entertainment.

Dont' miss it. Come early. You will enjoy it.

AT THE GRAND.

"SWEET LAVENDER" TO BE SEEN AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE TO-NIGHT

Anthony Gordon and a supporting company of the best of England's actresses and actors will present Arthur Wing Pinero's sweetly fragrant comedy, "Sweet Lavander" at the Grand To-night and To-Morrow. That this classic still delights audiences after thirty years of life, in which drastic changes have come to the hearts sof countries and to the hearts of men, surely is a test of its beauty and worth. Our grandmothers and mothers love to tell of the cherished memories as th, years pass. We of the younger generation have wondered at their reverence of this play, and must admit that in these days of worthless musical revues and senseless mystery dreams, find it all rather difficult to apprehend. But those who witness a performance of Pinero's evergreen comedy will understand their emotions, and will find in their memory chest a corner wher, they will also tuck away their impressions of this quaint pathetic, human story of dear old Dick Phenyl and those who lived their lives about him. Dick Phenyl becomes a real and lovable character through the able art of Anthony Gordon, who gives the impression of being a sniffer as well as a toper, but he never overplays his element of the character A kindly, old soak, inoffensive, eloquent in repose, never pounding home his comedy, but prefers to let his audience use their imagination. Assisting Mr. Gordon ar, Viva Birkitt, Sydney Paxton, Ambrose Manning, H. Tyrrell Davis Alice Moffat, Leslie Stiles, Dorothy Fletcher, Edgar Payne, Ormonde Wynne, Joseph Bell and Phyllis Kathleen Cooney, one of Peterboro's most charming young dancers is apeparing at the Capitol theatre today, Tuesday and Wednesday presenting a series of Spanish dances in connection with the showing of Pola Negri's latest picture, "The Spanish Dancer." Miss Cooper who is regarded as one of the most talented young dancers in the city will appear at the evening performances only.

TOM MIX BATLES VICTORIOUS PATHWAY IN NEW SPEED DRAMA

New from a sheltered stock farm, Michael Dane, impersonated by Tom Mix in "North of Hudson Bay," the William Fox production which will be at the Capitol Theatre next Thurs day, Friday and Saturday is suddenly pierced by cupid's dart, innocently condemned to share a murder's death aggrieved by his brother's death, out raged by his supposed friend's treachery; all when he goes to seek his for tunes north of Hudson Bay.

With striking effect Tom Mix climbs into the guise of Michael Dane and smashes through every obstacle with such convincing realism that when he wins the fight against great odds you are glad.

POLA NEGRI'S GOWNS

Star Wears Fine Assortment in "The Spanish Dancer"

The old Spanish gowns worn by Pola Negri in her latest Paramount star picture, "Th, Spanish Dancer" which will be on view at the Capitol Theatre to-day, Tuesday and Wediesday constitute a veritable fashion display, which will enthuse almost every woman screen fan Some of the costumes worn by the famous star in the scenes taken in th, gypsy camp show the strong influence which the Moorish invasion exercised over Spanish lif, even after it had been repulsed. Later in the story, when Polo Negri as Maritana, the gypsy girl, becomes the wife of Don Cesar, sh, wears costumes which for sheer beauty have probably never been equalled by the gowns of any other period in history.

Kathlyn Williams, who plays the role of Isabella, queen of Spain, displays gowns designed from those shown in the hundred odd pictures which Velasquez painted of that famous queen. A number of ladies in waiting also appear in the picture. Seven different gowns were designed for each. In "The Spanish Dancer," Antonio Moreno is featured. Heading a strong cast are Wallace Beery as King Philip, Gareth Hughes an armourer's assistant, Adolphie Menjou, a powerful minister in th, Spanish court—Edward Kipling, Robert Brower and many others.

AT THE ROYAL.

NINE PEOPLE IN VAUDEVILLE AT ROYAL FIRST HALF OF WEEK.

That the Royal management is sparing no expense to bring high class vaudeville to Peterboro is again proven by the bill offered to-night. One of the acts, DeCorbin's Jazzmatic Syncopators, has seven people in it. This is a jazz band that has made quite a name for itself over the Pantage circuits. The other two acts are Bond Morse, who styles himself the "Lounge Lizard," and Bob Mills, a somewhat different singing and piano act. All his playing is done with five fingers.

The photoplay, "Wandering Daughters," stars Marguerite de la Mott, Marjorie Daw, Noah Beery, etc. It is not a preachment on conduct, but a delightful comedy drama based on the secret romances of two girls who stumbled into the whirlpool of the jazz age, with unexpected results.

MARJORIE DAW, FEATURED IN "WANDERING DAUGHTERS," WEDS EDDIE SUTHERLAND.

Marjorie Daw, one of the featured stars in James Young's First National production of "Wandering Daughters," which comes to the Royal Theatre to-day, was married April 20th to Eddie Sutherland, director for Charles Chaplin, at "Pickfair," the Beverley Hills home of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks.

The marriage of the diminutive player created considerable of a surprise among the Hollywood movie folks among whom Miss Daw has been prominent for several years, and especially so in view of many statements from Miss Daw that she did not contemplate marriage until her theatrical career was concluded.

Mary Pickford acted as Miss Daw's maid of honor and Charles Chaplin as best man at the ceremony Douglas Fairbanks and Pola Negri also attended.

HOCKEY

The Quaker Oats office teant made their presence known at Cognawaga rink on Saturday afternoon, when they handed the Cognawagas A. C. team their first defeat this season, the score being 4 to 3. The Quakers caught the Cogs napping in the first period and salted away 3 goals to the Cogs' 1. In the second period both teams failed to score, but in the third period the Cognawagas, with four men on the forward line, bottled the Quakers into the end of the rink, but were only able to secure 2 goals, while Butcher and Turner combined nicely in a rink rush and netted the Quakers the winning goal. The line-up:

COULDN'T'GET' PARIS SO HE BEAT HIS WIFE

Woman Says Radio Ruined a Model Husband.

KANSAS, January 28.—The radio craze with which she said her husband was afflicted, resulted in Mrs. W. B. Watson causing the arrest of her husband here.

"Watson was a model husband until he got the radio bug," Mrs. Watson told Judge M. J. Kilroy.

"One morning a friend induced him to try out a radio set, and he has never been the same since," she continued.

"It was just like booze. It got him in its grip. He's always trying to tune in on Paris or Havana or some other outlandish place, and when he can't he goes into tantrums of rage."

Mrs. Watson said her husband beat her when he was in one of the tantrums.

Cy Young's Pitching Feats Supreme

(By BILLY EVANS)

Most baseball records are made to be broken. Some stand the test of time longer than others, but eventually they go into the discard.

Until the coming of Ty Cobb, the batting records were held by any number of veteran stars. Then the irrepressible Cobb arrived on the scene, and slowly but surely he has broken practically every worthwhile record from a batting standpoint.

It is a certainty that most of Cobb's records will stand during the present generation of baseball fans, since some of them can only be equaled by a length of service in the majors such as Cobb has enjoyed. Few players are so fortunate as Cobb in that respect.

"CY" YOUNG

Yet one record made by Cobb that I expected to see stand for years was broken in 1922. During the season of 1911, Cobb set an American League record by batting safely in 40 consecutive games, within four games of the mark set by Willie Keeler in 1897. Season before last George Sisler hit safely in 41 straight games, smashing Cobb's American League record.

Back in 1899 Ed Delahanty, then with the Philadelphia Nationals, made 56 two-base hits in a season. For 24 years that record stood the test, despite the fact that many of the leading sluggers threatened it. Then along came Tris Speaker in 1923 with 59 two-baggers and Delahanty's feat went "blooey."

Baseball records, it seems, are merely made to be broken except those established by that grand old pitcher, Cy Young. The way the modern pitchers are being slammed about, it looks very much as if the feats of Cy Young will go down in baseball records forever and anon.

In the matter of games won during his major league career covering a period of 22 years, Young has broken the 500 mark in victories. Winning 500 ball games in the majors is one baseball feat that I believe will stand the test of time.

In the first place it is a rarity for pitchers to stick in the big show for 22 years. Cy Young was a decided exception in this respect. In addition recent changes in baseball have imposed several handicaps on the pitcher that hurt, particularly the lively ball. No pitcher is now even close to Young's record. Walter Johnson and Grover Cleveland Alexander have a chance, but it is a mighty slim one.

Under the pitching rules that now govern the game, Cy Young stands as the only pitcher who has pitched three games in which he held the opposition hitless. One of these games was pitched while he was in the National League, the other two in the American. In one of these games not a batsman reached first base.

Three no-hit games in the majors is something for the modern day pitchers to shoot at. It is some trick to turn, but in no way compares with the task of winning 500 games.

True most baseball records are made to be broken, but it seems as if the feats of Cy Young are to stand for all time as supreme.

QUEENS WON A CLOSE GAME FROM MONTREAL

MONTREAL, January 28 (Canadian Press). — Queen's University hockey team defeated the University of Montreal in a scheduled intercollegiate fixture at the Mount Royal Arena here on Saturday evening by the score of 4 to 3, after one period of overtime.

Up until eight minutes of the end of the last period, Montreal looked like the winners, with 2 goals to the good, and playing a good defensive game, but Queen's started rushing things, and played the locals off their feet to score two counters, which knotted the score at 3 all.

Two and one-half minutes' overtime had elapsed, when Smith scored the winnig goal for Queen's.

ORIGINAL RULES FOR THE HOCKEY

American Team Wanted Fifteen Minute Periods at the Olympic.

CHAMONIX, France, Jan. 28.— (Canadian Press). — Miss Cecil Eustace Smith, fifteen - year - old girl who is entered for figure skating competitions at Olympiad, was astounded this morning to hear that the figure skating events are to be held immediately without preparation.

The contention of the American hockey team that hockey contests should be of two periods of fifteen minutes each has been definitely rejected by the Olympic officials, and the original rules stand.

At a banquet here last night P. J. Mulqueen, Toronto, chairman of the Canadian Olympic Committee, sat on the right of Gaston Vidal, Under-Secretary of State For Physical Education, who presided, and General Reginald Kentish, of the British Olympic Council, sat on Vidal's right. This was taken as an indication that the French desire to co-operate with the British Empire, and the speeches bear out this friendly sentiment.

LINDSAY JUNIORS HERE WEDNESDAY

Last Home Game in Group Series to Be Played at Brock St. Rink

Two goals down on the round, the Peterboro Juniors will clash with Lindsay at Brock Street Rink on Wednesday in the last home game of the series. The young Petes made a much better showing in Lindsay than in their last game here and should have brought home the bacon if they had not eased up a little too soon in the final period, and Lindsay pulled the game out of the fire. The Petes are sore at themselves for the poor form displayed on the occasion of the last Lindsay visit, and they hope to show the fans some real stuff on Wednesday and incidentally set up a lead on the round. The Lindsay crew are a fighting aggregation, however, and can be depended upon to battle it out until the final whistle. They are running a special train down for the game, and will have a big bunch of rooters to support them in the most important game of the series.

GUELPH WAS ELIMINATED BY KITCHENER JUNIORS

GUELPH, January 28 (Canadian Press). — Kitchener Juniors eliminated Guelph from the O.H..A series on Saturday night when they won the final group game by 5 to 2.

The green-shirted youngsters, by their victory, earned the right to play off with Stratford Midgets for the group honours, and home and home games will be arranged to decide which team will go into the play-off.

In the game against the local kids," Kitchener fully deserved the verdict. They checked the Guelph boys off their feet.

COATS STILL MISSING.

The question of re-imbursement of the two ladies whose fur coats were stolen from St. Paul's church some weeks ago came up for consideration at the recent annual meeting of the church. A discussion took place, but no final decision was reached, the matter being still in the hands of the police, who are working on the case.

One of the ladies whose coat was taken declared she would accept no reimbursement from the church, considering that the fault lay with herself in leaving the garment in the place from which it was taken.

A BIG CORD WOOD FOR TEN DOLLARS

What One Customer Thought of Bargain—Two More Cars In.

"That was the biggest cord of wood I have received this winter," said one customer who last week purchased a cord of hardwood delivered from the car at ten dollars a cord. To-day two more cars arrived at the Peter Hamilton siding. Remember good hardwood cut in stove length and delivered from car to any part of the city for $10 a cord. If you want it delivered from the yard it will cast you two dollars more. Better order from the car to-night. W. H. Baker, Peterboro Planing Mill. Telephone 1452J. 1d 24 425

IN MEMORIAM.

WELCH.—In ever loving remembrance of my dear husband, Edward Lee Welch, who died Jan. 28, 1924:

Our family circle is broken within our happy home,
A father dear, a husband true, from loving ones has gone.
Life's golden cord is severed, his soul from earth has fled,
That faithful one so dear to all, is numbered with the dead.
Now all within our happy home is still
Yet fast the moments fly, this life but a passing dream; he'll welcome us on high.

—Sadly Missed by Wife and Family

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear daughter, Mrs. Walter J. Gillespie, who died January 28th, 1923:

Short and sudden was the call,
Of our dear Edith loved by all,
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought her death so near.

Just when her hope seemed brightest,
Just when her hope seemed best,
God called her from among us
To that home of eternal rest.

No one knows how much we miss her,
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost her,
Life has never been the same.

In our hearts her memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true,
There is not a day, dear Edith,
That we do not think of you.

NEW PLANS FOR SCHOOL DOCTOR

Will Be Responsible to Board of Health Instead of Board of Education, Says Godfrey.

Intimation that the Board of Health may be given charge of the School Medical Department, hitherto supervised by the Board of Education, is contained in a message from Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Provincial Minister of Health. Mr. Godfrey gave the assurance that a measure will be introduced to effect this change at an early date.

Mayor J. J. Turner told te Examiner to-day that while he has not yet made a study of the problem, he is in favor of consolidating departments wherever possible in order to secure uniformity and economy. The question will be taken up in Peterboro, His Worship intimated, at an early date and given consideration.

It is claimed in other cities that there is overlapping in the administration of the departments, and omissions also occur where one department leaves the work to another.

In Peterboro this was exemplified recently when Public School Inspector A. Mowat reported to the Board of Education that attendance in the public schools had been interfered with by an outbreak of chickenpox, at a time when the city records showed only five cases in the school period from August to December.

On investigation by the Medical Health Officer for the City, it was found that another case had not been reported until the child had recovered.

On application to Mr. Mowat for particulars of the cases which he said had interfered with school attendance, he produced a list of twenty-one names, described by him as "Queen Mary pupils absent from school and reported to the teachers as having chicken-pox." Of the 21 pupils, only 12 produced certificates of some kind, indicating that they had recovered from whatever disease kept them from school, and of these 12 only six specially mentioned chickenpox.

Not for City.

These certificates and names were not given to the City Medical Health Officer, but were examined by a lawyer on his behalf. It was claimed by the Public School Inspector that the certificates are the property of the school authorities.

The City Board of Health informs the School Inspector immediately on the outbreak of a contagious disease in a home where there are children who attend school, but no reciprocal service has been extended by the School Officers, the Medical Health officer said. If there were 21 cases of chickenpox in one school, they should have been reported to Board Health, the Sanitary Inspector, or the Medical Health Officer.

Instead of 21 cases in one school, as it was claimed, there were, according to the city health records, 5 in in the entire city.

Will Ride Through "Bottomless Swamp" On the Block Road

Samuel Armstrong, who last week told the County Council it had spent $9000 on the Norwood Road only to make the hills steeper than before, has now an effective answer to those who say the swamp through which he proposed to run an alternative road is impassable.

Mr. Armstrong informed the County Council he had made soundings in the swamp which showed the average depth to be 2 feet 3 inches from the top of the ice to hard pan, and along the route of the proposed roadway the depth is 18 inches, with solid bottom.

"There is no such place as the bottomless swamp," he declared.

That Mr. Armstrong is prepared to back up his argument is indicated by his offer made to the Examiner. He says: "I will agree to take a team of horses hitched to a wagon, and drive across the creek, cut enough trees to turn around, and come back, and then repeat the operation six times, for $100, at any time after the ice is off.

This offer of Mr. Armstrong's arose out of a statement that the speaker would "give him $100 if he drives in there with a team of horses."

PIPE BAND PRACTICE.

All pipers are requested to attend practice on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock prompt. Chanters only.

ROTARY HEARS FINE PAPER ON BOBBIE BURNS

Mr. Duncan Walker, Principal of Normal School is Speaker at Today's Luncheon.

TWO NEW MEMBERS

To-day being the Monday nearest to the anniversary, the Peterboro Rotary Club celebrated at its weekly luncheon to-day the birthday of Robert Burns, the programme being featured by a most thoughtful and scholarly paper on "Burns," by Mr. Duncan Walker, B.A., Principal of the Peterboro Normal School, and by the singing of two Burns' songs by Mr. John Smith.

President McElderry was in the chair, and the attendance was reported as 92½ per cent., the third meeting in succession to go over the 90 per cent. mark.

Rotarian Dr. McPherson distributed slips to the club members, each slip containing the name of a child suffering from a physical defect. The Rotarians are expected to get all the necessary information in regard to these children, after which arrangements will be made to have the children examined by a committee of local doctors and to have the necessary treatment given.

Mr. Walker's paper was a condensation of an address on Robert Burns given some time ago, and published in its entirely in The Examiner. The speaker had evidently devoted a lot of time to the preparation of his paper, for it covered the whole career of the poet, telling of his struggle against poverty, his yielding to the temptation of convivial life, his sudden changes in temperament, his seeming inconsistancy in love and the reason for his great popularity wherever the English tongue is spoken, and particularly among the Scottish peasantry. Mr. Walker quoted many of Burns' poems because of the light they threw upon his life, and his paper was one of the greatest interest from start to finish.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered him in the usual Rotarian fashion.

Mr. John Smith sang with much expression and in excellent voice, "Scots Wha Hae" and "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton."

Two new Rotarians, Douglas Carlisle and Manson Comstock, were tendered a warm reception at to-day's meeting

THE RAIL STIKRE NEAR SETTLEMENT

One Woman Member of Parliament Likes the Walking Better.

LONDON Jan 28—(United Press) Considerable hope is felt that the secret week end negotiations will lead to settlement of the National Rail Strike within 48 hours.

The efforts of Tom Shaw, Minister of Labor in the MacDonald Cabinet Arthur Henderson and other succeeded in persuading the executive of the Associated Society of Engineers and firemen to meet with the railway managers. The strike officials met this morning and awaited a summons for the meeting.

While general sabatog has been happily missing from the strike, save for a few outbreaks in the vicinity of Glasgow, it was learned to-day that the Scotland Express, running near Monmouthshire Saturday night narrowly escaped being derailed when it crashed through an iron obstruction which had been set up across the track presumably by strike sympathizers.

Miss Dorothy Jewson, Labor M.P. for Norwich, started yesterday with woman friend to walk from London to Norwich distance of 115 miles, to fulfill an engagement to address her consituents. Several trains were available but Miss Jewson refused to use one, saying that she regarded men working them as strike breakers

Public this morning was encouraged to hope for an early end of railway strike as result of yesterday's negotiations in which emergency committee of Trades Union Congress, railway managers and Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers, had part. It was first time since the break week ago that representatives of companies had met the men.

NICK LENINE WAS BURIED YESTERDAY

MOSCOW, January 28 (Canadian Press). — Vladimir Ilyitch Ulianoff, whom the world knew as Nikolai Lenine, was entombed yesterday afternoon.

Followers of the ruler of Soviet Russia hailed him an hour before his burial as greater in death than in life, and paid honours that a king might envy. They withstood for hours the bitterest cold that the Bolshevik capital has known in years.

Half a million people marched or waited for eight hours in a temperature 30 degrees below zero for the privilege of passing the temporary mausoleum.

Lenine's funeral was like a strange mediaeval painting—a great Tartar horde on a burial march, its red and black banners obscured by the smoke of camp fires and blurred by the steam of the bodies of men and horses and fog the cold air had turned into a dull Arctic blue with frost particles.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines | New York Stock Exchange — and Curb Prices

Today's Quotations and Opinion and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, January 28 (United Press). — Developments in basic industries like copper and steel continued favourable over the week-end and this resulted in a sustained buoyant tone in the general industrial list of the stock market, the movement being carried through from Saturday.

Strength in sterling and francs was another helpful factor, and most of the active stocks were up fractionally with steel favoured because of the imminence of this week's dividend meeting, at which an extra of at least 26 cents is expected.

But the price movements were by no means uniform owing to pressure in the early dealings against the Pan-Americans and Sinclair Oil, reflecting the growing apprehension regarding the outcome of the naval lease investigations at Washington.

Prices fluctuated with extreme irregularity. Through the first hour, profit-taking appeared in Steel Common, General Electric, and other leaders of last week's advance.

Studebaker was subjected to renewed pressure and the Pan-American continued heavy.

Simultaneously operations for the rise went ahead in some mlils under the lead of Atchison, which spurted 2 5-8 to 101 3-4. No special developments took place to account for this sudden uprush.

J. P. Morgan to-day returned to his desk after a short trip to the South. It is thought he returned to attend the United States Steel Corporation meeting scheduled for to-morrow.

Air reduction was a sensation among the specialties advancing to 79, up over 6 points from last week's low, based on the announcement that the company had called $1,000,000 remaining 7 per cent. convertible notes outstanding as of 1st April. This leaves no obligations ahead of 173,186 shares of common stock.

Earnings for 1923 are expected to be around $15.00 a share.

TWO MEN STILL LEFT IN MINES

Thirty-eight Bodies Recovered From Coal Mine

SHANKTOWN, Jan. 28. —(United Press.)— The bodies of all but two of the 38 men trapepd by a gas explosion in the Lancashire mine of the Barnes Tucker Company here late Saturday have been recovered.

Fifty men were in the mine when the blast occurred. Nine were rescued by John Rico, a miner of Starford, three fled or dug their way to safety, leaving 38 entombed.

Rescue crews which have been working in relays without ceasing since Saturday night, were early today battling to reach the small group of miners still entombed. Little hope was held that any survive.

The bodies of thirty-one men who died as the result of an explosion of gas in the mine late Saturday afternoon, were removed from the workings yesterday and last night. The bodies of five other men have been located .Four others, it is believed, are yet to be found.

SOBRIETY OF LABOR PRAISED

British Physician Finds Workers Drink Less Than Professional Men.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Laborers are more sober as a class than professional men, declared Dr. H. M. Vernon in a lecture before the Society for the Study of Inebriety.

"The death-rate from alcoholism," he said, "is twice as great among professional men, clerks and shopkeepers as among skilled and unskilled workmen. Lawyers and doctors, whose professional duties teach them daily the evils of alcoholism, are among the greatest sinners.

"Schoolmasters alone are comparable in alcoholic restraint to the average skilled industrial worker."

UNCLE SAM PROPOSES A 25 P.C. CUT IN TAX ON SMALL EARNED INCOMES

Taxable Incomes Specified In This Recommendation of Committee Extend From Those of Less Than $5,000 to Maximum of $20,000.

Mellon's Suggestion.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. — (Canadian Press).—Income taxpayers got their first slice of the proposed tax relief yesterday when the House Ways and Means Committee adopted the recommendation of Secretary Mellon to allow a special 25 per cent. reduction in the tax on incomes which are "earned."

All taxable incomes under $5,000 were defined as earned for purposes of this reduction, while $20,000 was as the maximum amount of incomes on which the reduction could be taken.

Treasury estimates show that about 13,000,000 taxpayers have incomes of less than $5,000 and automatically could deduct from their tax when computed, 25 per cent. of its total. Thus, a married man with two children who now pays a tax of $28 on an income of $4,000 would pay only $21.00, this figure not taking into account normal income tax reductions—, a proposition still before the committee.

Disposition of this section of the bill cleared the way, with the exception of some odds and ends to be taken up today, for consideration by the committee of the income rates themselves, including the new surtax, the main point in the tax revision program.

CHILDREN WITH INSANE FATHER

Authorities Finally Took Action After Three Years' Trouble — Broke Policeman's Wrist.

WOODSTOCK, Ont. Jan. 29—Wearing a large court plaster on his partly bald head and with a tense, expressionless face, Peter Robertson walked into the court room this afternoon unhandcuffed and accompanied by Turnkey Forbes and Provincial Constable Baugh, one of the officers who assisted in Peter's capture.

Peter, who lives near Rathe, on the North half lot 12 in Blandford township, has been a source of considerable trouble to authorities of Oxford for the past three years because of his repeated failure to provide his children with the proper education and living conditions. Last Thursday eight Provincial officers raided Peter's farm and in making a forcible entry the accused struck the first constable, breaking his wrist.

Dr. Andrew McKay, Dr. Welford and Dr. Williams, of the Ontario Hospital, who examined Robertson and found him insane, were present.

When examined by Magistrate A. S. Ball, of Woodstock, who sat on the bench, with Magistrate Paterson, Robertson strongly denied having hit one of the officers. In reply to a query as to the number of officers present at the time of the raid, he said there were twice half a dozen Peter said he hadn't sent his children to school since last February as the teacher didn't want to teach them.

Magistrate Paterson told him: "You have been examined by three doctors and I have decided to put you in a place where no one can bother you and where you can be taken care of."

Mrs. Robertson, a white haired and fair complexioned woman, was next examined, and in her evidence stated that she didn't allow the children to play with the neighbors.

Robertson and wife were remanded to the County Jail awaiting action by the Provincial authorities.

100,000 Cases of Canadian Beer Piled Up At Petite Cote

SANDWICH MADE SHIPPING PORT BY GOVERNMENT

Warehouses Bulging With Cases of Beer at River Port Which Has Served As An Ideal Base For Deliveries to Detroit.

NOT A CASE MOVING.

DETROIT, Jan. 29.—(Canadian Press).—A Canadian Government order, issued from Ottawa three days ago, has corked the flow of beer across the Detroit River into the United States, and has resulted in the accumulation of more than 100,000 cases of Canadian beer at Petite Cote, Ont., warehouses. This was revealed yesterday when an attorney representing Canadian liquor interests departed for Ottawa in an effort to obtain modification of the order, which in effect prohibits future liquor shipments from Petite Cote.

Virtually all of the beer and whiskey, run across the river at this point, has come from Petite Cote, which, because of its position on the river, partially concealed by bays and inlets, has served as an ideal base for the smugglers. The place is difficult of surveillance from the United States shore and from prohibition navy craft.

Port Is Closed.

The new order, which is said to have resulted from the recent conference between Canadian and United States officials at Ottawa stipulates that inasmuch as Petite Cote, about eight miles west of Windsor, is not recognized officially as a port, all further export shipments of beer and liquor must clear from Sandwich.

Traffic from Sandwich, it is pointed out, will be much more difficult inasmuch as it is in full view of the United States shore.

Windsor Customs officers said yesterday that they believe not a case of beer has gone across the river here since the order was made effective. The Petite Cote warehouses are choked with cases awaiting shipment.

MINERS OFFERED THE OLD SCALE

No Announcement From Sydney Conference — Believe Men Want the Difference Split.

SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 29. — The wage conference yesterday sat and rose without any disposition on the part of the men's representatives to alter their demand for the 1921 rates. It is now stated the company has offered the 1923 rates, plus improved conditions at the colleries and steadier work. The rates now offered are those under discussion when the break came in the negotiations.

It is reported that the miners met this proposition with the counter-proposal that the difference between the rates asked and those offered be split, together with some minor requests.

Not Exorbitant.

"Our demands on the company are not exorbitant," President Barrett said. "The rank and file of the miners are putting up a brave fight. Long ago their small stocks of food and money have run out, but there is no complaint. Even when working full time they have difficulty in making ends meet, so what must be their suffering during the period of enforced idleness in the dead of winter. For the greater part they and their children are ill-clad, their homes are without fuel, and the bare necessities of life are beyond their reach. Surely these men are fighting for more than a principle; they are battling for existence for themselves and those dependent upon them."

No Longer Discussed.

The question of the twenty per cent. reduction earlier proposed by the company is no longer discussed.

The men claim that if a long term contract were signed at a fair wage, and the colleries operated steadily the year round, the company would be reimbursed for extra pay by increased production, besides stabilizing the industry and enabling the company to book contracts.

DRASTIC ECONOMY KING ANNOUNCES

Dominion Cabinet Preparing Budget in Spirit of Retrenchment — May Affect Staffs.

OTTAWA, Jan. 28. Canadian Press —With the consideration of the estimates, which occupies the Dominion Cabinet almost daily now, there is much talk of retrenchment. To what extent this will effect the carrying out of public works and the personnel of the civil service is not known of course. The Prime Minister has called a meeting for next Friday of the heads of departments, and the Civil Service Commision, with the Cabinet. This will be probably only the first of a series of conferences at which the personnel and the strength of departmental staffs will be discussed, and matters of dispute between departmental heads and the civil service commission will be settled.

That there will be drastic economy in the preparation of this year's estimates was admitted to-day by the Prime Minister, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, who said at the end of the Cabinet Council that every detail of public expenditure was being carefully scrutinized and an effort was being made at cutting down the estimates so far as is consistent.

C.N.R. ECONOMIES ARE EXPLAINED

Sir Henry Thornton Refers to Reduction in Operating Expenses and the Increase in Gross Revenues — Effort By Employees.

MONTREAL, Jan. 29.— The following official statement was issued by Sir Henry Thornton, chairman and president of the Canadian National Railways last night:

"Dispatches emanating from Ottawa have stated that the results from operation on the Canadian National Railways for the months of November and December, 1923, must have been of an unusual character, and that large savings must have been affected during those months to justify the declaration of the president of the company placing the net revenues for the year at $20,127,447.

"This view is entirely correct. There was a reduction in expenses in the month of November, 1923 of $1,942,000, as compared with the corresponding month of 1922, and at the same time an increase in gross revenue of $690,00, making an increase in the net revenue for that month of $2,632,000.

"In the month of December, 1923, expenses decreased by $5,083,000 as compared with December, 1922, and gross earnings were increased by the sum of $1,732,000, representing an increase in the net revenue for the month of $6,815,000. It should be mentioned that in December 1922, the Canadian National Railways had an operating deficit of $3,291,000.

Expenses Lower.

"The improvement shown in the financial position of the railway during November and December, 1923, wa sdue primarily to a reduction in operating expenses. The administration inaugurated in 1923 a plan of spending money on maintenance in the earlier months of the year when labor is abundant and consequently less expensive, at the same time bringing the transportation machine to its highest state of efficiency to handle the large traffic movement which occurs during the last four months of the year.

"Much was likewise due to constantly improving transportation efficiency, coupled with the conscientious and enthusiastic effort put forth by the officers and employees. Also in the month of December, 1922, a number of charges of various kinds had to be taken care of in the operating expenses which had not been charged out currently over the other months of that year. The policy of the present administration has been to make each month of 1923 carry its share of the expense of moving traffic and maintaining the property.

Continuous Audit.

"The accounting methods followed on the Canadian National Railways closely adhere to the standard practices in force on the important railway systems on the North American continent, these having been evolved through experience and strict Governmental regulation. In addition, the accounts of the Canadian National Railways are made the subject of a continuous audit by an independent firm of chartered accountants on the order of the Canadian Government.

"Other despatches from Ottawa have stated that the proceeds of the $50,000,000 Canadian National Railways' bond issue are to be devoted to the payment of fixed charges. The fact is that at least seventy per cent. of the proceeds of this issue are to be devoted to the liquidation of the capital obligations and to expenditures for capital account. This issue calls for an annual interest payment of two and one-half million dollars, being at the rate of 5 per cent.

"It is the policy of the administration to make only such capital expenditures as will be productive of increased revenue or will result in decreased expenses in an amount that will considerably exceed the rate of interest called for."

LABOR MINISTER SURPRISED HIS OFFICE PORTER

Presented Himself Unannounced and Was Mistaken For Shell-Shock Patient — Guest With Prince of Wales.

KING'S CONFIDENCE.

LONDON, Jan. 29.— The Secretary of the Colonies, J. H. Thomas, who with the Prince of Wales was the guest of the Australian Luncheon Club to-day, said, in referring to the advent of a Labor Government, that the change merely meant "that the Old Country and the Old Empire will go on."

He spoke of the change in government as a bloodless revolution and referring to the fact that some people professed to be frightened by the rise of labor to power, he said:

"The least apprehensive was our guest to-day, the Prince of Wales. The only exception to him I would make would be his illustrious and distinguished father. They were the least disturbed of all the people — least disturbed because they were most wise.

"They were wise because they knew their people better than others, ebcause they had long recognized that patriotism, love of the Empire, service and duty were not the gift or monopoly of a class or creed, and because they recognized that there were men in more humble circumstances denied the opportunities of a university education, whose sense of duty and whose love of country were equal to any other type of men.

"That is why this great change merely means that the Old Country and the Old Empire will still go on."

Mr. Thomas gave a humorous description of his entrance into office as a Cabinet Member.

"When I visited the Colonial Office on Tuesday," he said, "I presented myself with the modesty characteristic of my party. I was met by a porter on the steps

"'Whom do you want to see?' he asked. 'I want to see the office,' I replied. Then ,thinking I had better get at it right away, I said: 'I am the Colonial Secretary.'

"He looked at me ,and then turning to another porter, he said:

"Another shell shock patient."

Another Election For Dover Deputy-Reeve.

CHATHAM, Ont, Jan. 29.— Another election in Dover township was assured yesterday when Matthew Rankin and Sam R. Montgomery, following nominations, announced that they intended to compete for the seat of Deputy-Reeve Rankin, who was elected by a small majority on Jan .7, disclaimed his seat when Otto Brown commenced leagl proceedings, charging that he had not qualified within the time limit. Ed. Rankin, , James Fox and Joe Rose subsequently disclaimed their seats as councillors. Their names were again placed in nomination this afternoon along with those of William Ruhnke and Harry Stirling.

Elections will be held February 4.

India Needs Love Not Machine Guns

MONTREAL, Jan 29.—(Canadian Press).—Addressing the Canadian Club here yesterday, Professor Yohan Masih, principal of Malwa College, Indore, Central India, gave it as his view that India was not yet fit for home rule along the lines of the other British Dominions. He was not, however, adverse to native leaders having more influence in the ruling of their own country.

"What India needs at the present itme to quiet down its unrest is not machine guns, but the hand of confidence; the hand of fellowship; the hand of sympathy and the hand of love. With these, India's restlessness will be quieted and everything will be peace," was Professor's Masih's conclusion.

NEW TENANTS IN DOWNING STREET

Premier Macdonald Will Move Into Official Residence This Week — Is Deep Into Foreign Office Problems—Appoints Another Secretary.

LONDON, Jan 29. — Ramsay MacDonald, the new Prime Minister, appears to have very little time to spare from his self-imposed task of mastering the work of the Foreign Office for completing his ministry. One new appointment was announced last night— John Willlam Muir, Member of Parliament for Glasgow, as Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Pensions Mr. Muir, the son of a blacksmith, is an engineer by profession, and has given twenty years voluntary propagandist work to the Labor Party. He suffered twelve months' imprisonment in 1918 under the Defence of the Realm Act, for the publication of a series of articles in a paper—The Worker—the organ of the Clyde Workers' movement, of which he was then editor; these articles the Government held as likely to create disaffection.

Moves This Week.

Premier MacDonald is expected to take up his residence in Number 10 Downing Street in the course of the week and will have for neighbors at Number 11 the family of John Robert Clynes, Lord Privy Seal and Deputy Leader in the House of Commons, although No. 11, by tradition, is the official residence of the Chancellor of the Exchequer. Philip Snowden, who holds that office, however, already has a town residence.

Mr. MacDonald's intense devotion to the study of foreign affairs is no surprise to his colleagues, but is simply characteristic of his methods throughout his career. More than once on this account he has been near a breakdown and obliged to take a long holiday, and friends are now urging him to take more relaxation, especially as gossip says he has no present intention of availing himself of the privilege of occupying Chequers Court, the country residence of the Prime Minister. The general opinion is that the double task of Premier and Foreign Secretary under existing conditions of European affairs is too great a tax on any one man.

British Vessel Sunk, Crew of 21 Rescued

HAVRE, Jan. 29. — (Canadian Press).—The British freight steamer Maid of Spotzai, of 1,500 tons gross, was sunk Saturday off the Island of Triago, west of the English Channel, northeast of Saint Pol, in a collision with the Italian steamer Maiella from La Plata, December 24, for Rotterdam. The Maiella arrived here yesterday with a big hole above the waterline received in the crash with the Maid of Spetzai The British steamer went down after her crew of 21 men had been taken on board the Maiella.

80 AMENDMENT FILED AGAINST POINCARE BILL

Tactics of Communists and Socialists Are Regarded As Doomed to Failure—Motions For Adjournment of Discussion Defeated — Power to One Man.

CRY OF "MUSSOLINI."

PARIS, Jan. 29.—(Canadian Press).—The Radicals, Socialists and Communists launched a strong offensive against the Government's new tax program in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday afternoon, when they filed eighty amendments, while the leaders of the groups were discussing from the Speaker's platform four different motions to adjourn the discussion until after the elections.

The Finance Committee voted to report adversely on the amendments, and the Chamber rejected one after the other the motions to adjourn the debate.

Premier Poincare's demand that all motions to postpone consideration of the measures be rejected was sustained by 426 to 152, and discussion of the measures, article by article, will be taken up at once.

Tactics Will Fail.

The vote of 152 was the biggest vote the Opposition was able to master, but this is not regarded as a test of strength of the Government forces, as the division of the Chamber will be modified when it comes to a vote on the propositions themselves today. The tactics of the Socialists and Radicals in endeavoring to smother the bills with amendments, it was predicted last night in parliamentary circles, are doomed to the same fate as the motions to adjourn.

The Government majority will be smaller, but it will be large enough in the opinion of experts in parliamentary proceedings. The amendments will be quickly disposed of, as, outside the Socialist and Radical groups, the opponents of the new taxes believe in a straight fight for and against them.

Britain's Example.

The most vigorous assault against the Government was by M. Moutet, Socialist Deputy from Lyons, who was M. Caillaux's attorney before the high court He declared it was not time for the French people and their representatives in Parliament to abdicate their power into the hands of any one man, when such countries as Great Britain were setting an example of popular government.

The tone of the debate indicates that the sharpest fight will be on Premier Poincare's demand that the Chamber authorize him to proceed to the reorganiztaion of public services by decree in order to effect economies, action taken in this way to be referred to the Chamber within six months for approval. The Socialist Party cry against this in the lobbies is "Mussolini." In the Chamber, however, criticisms are far more moderate, suggesting that the Opposition feels it is supporting a lost cause.

YOUNG WOMAN SHOOTS HERSELF WITH A GUN

BOSTON, Jan. 29.— (Canadian Press.) — It was announced here yesterday that Margaret Eliot Harding, daughter of the Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, who was found dead at her home last Saturady, committed suicide by shooting herself with her fathers' revolver.

In a note addressed to her father, she said: "I could not stand life any longer."

The father stated that his daughter's act was due to her love for socia llife, dancing every night and smoking cigarettes

Stanley Hawkes, of the Information Bureau at Washington, and a close friend of Miss Harding, announced his engagement to another young woman recently.

The Free-er the Braver.

"The rapidly increasing divorce rate," remarked the newcomer, "proves that America is fast becoming the land of the free."

"Yes," said his friend, "but the continuance of the marriage rate shows that it is still the home of the brave." —West Virginia Wesleyan Pharos.

Lecture on Engineering

On Friday Professor Gillespie delivered the fifth lecture on the Course of University Extension, on the subject, "Canadian Engineering Achievements of the Past Fifty Years."

We have just passed through a great era," with regards to the engineering exploits of the last fifty years. One reason for this is that about 100 years ago Portland cement was invented. Other reasons are that steel is constructed very cheaply and in great quantities and our water power has been harnessed and the energy can be transmitted great distances.

The first slide which Professor Gillespie showed was of Halifax. Years ago Joseph Howe prophesied that Halifax would be the port of the Atlantic for Canada. At pregent the prophesy seems fulfilled on account of the large amounts of goods coming and going in the ships from Halifax. At the docks are constructed large freight sheds to hold the grain, etc., till it can be shipped.

Plans of the dry-dock at Quebec were shown. The ships are floated into the dock, which is 1,150 feet long and either the "floating cason" or the "rolling cason" are put in place. There are 40 feet of water on the sills to float the vessels. When the ship is in place the water is rapidly pumped out and the vessel sinks into place on blocks. The ships are then repaired and fitted for sea again.

Going on to Vancouver we see the Valentine Pier, a monument to engineering skill. The cylinders of concrete which act as supports are 100 feet under water. These cylinders are eight feet in diameter and 10 inches thickness of cement. They are composed of a cutting edge of steel surrounded by cement. Weights of iron force the piles down into bottom of the inlet. The material and water in the centre of the cylinder is pumped out and concrete is poured in. In this way a pile is sunk.

The Lift Locks

The hydraulic lift locks in Peterboro' are noteworthy because there are only two such locks in Canada. They were completed about 1905 or 1906 with a cost of half a million dollars. The first survey for the Trent Valley Canal was made in 1836, and a lock was placed at Peterboro'. However, this first lock was replaced by the present hydraulic lift locks.

In 1871 British Columbia entered the confederation on condition that a transcontinental railway be built within 15 years.

The next year surveyors were sent out. At the head of these was Sir Sanford Fleming, who was the chief engineer of the Intercolonial Railway and who now became the chief engineer of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

In 1880 the work was handed over to a syndicate headed by George Stephen of Montreal, and a new survey was made of the road and instead of passing through the Yellowhead Pass as formerly intended it kept more to the International Boundary and passed through the Kicking Horse Pass.

Views were shown of Roger's Pass which is now called Connaught Tunnel. The tunnel is about five miles in length. At place the overburden of rock is over a mile in depth.

Before the tunnel was built snow sheds had to be built to protect the track from snow slides and the curves in the road made it dangerous.

The distance on the Canadian National Railway from Vancouver to Winnipeg is 1,600 miles. The greatest elevation is 3,750 feet and the greatest grade is 7-10ths ft. in 100 feet.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has a distance of 1,464 miles from Vancouver to Winnipeg. The greatest elevation is 5,320 feet. The grade is 2.2 feet. Formerly the grade was 4½ feet. in 100 feet until some new tunnels were built.

The Grand Trunk Pacific has 1,745 miles of track from Prince Rupert to Winnipeg. The elevation is 3,719 feet and the grade is one foot in 100 feet.

A photograph of Sir Sanford Fleming was shown. He died in 1915 at the age of 87. Lord Strathcona was shown driving the last spike of the Canadian Pacific Railway in 1886.

A list of 54 names was given who were on the staff of the Intercolonial Railway 53 years ago. Five of these men are still alive.

The Quebec Bridge

The bridge at Quebec is 1,800 feet from one pier to another in the cantilever bridge. There was much difficulty in constructing a bridge to span the river but the cantilever bridge seemed the most advisable.

In 1860 a bridge was built by Robert Stephenson at Montreal, resting on 24 piers of masonry. In 1897 this bridge was torn down and a new, heavier, open trestle was built. The piers were in such good condition that there was no need to change them.

Slides were shown of many other bridges which have called forth the skill of Canadian engineers such as Lethbridge Viaduct, Michigan Central Cantilever Bridge, bridge over the Lachine Rapids, Saskatoon University Bridge, and many others.

Professor Gillespie explained carefully the system of irrigation carried on in Alberta by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Some of the electrical systems were shown also, and the system of bringing water into Winnipeg from a lake 100 miles distant was shown.

These are some of the chief engineering exploits of the last fifty years.

Rev. Father Traynor made an excellent chairman for the evening.

Personal

Miss Margaret Clare returned from attending Winter School in Cobourg on Thursday.

HELD BY ONLY 2 BRICKS

THAT SUITS EVERYBODY

The Major (over garden wall)—If you were a gentleman you would apologize for your dog's behavior.

The Colonel—I could never think of apologizing to you, sir!

"Sir, I thought you were a gentleman!"

"I never thought you were one, sir."

"Well, perhaps we were both mistaken!"—Answers (London).

LABOR PARTY SITTING EASY SINCE STRIKE

No Representative of the Government Had a Hand in the Actual Settlement of the Strske.

(By Lloyd Allen, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, anuary 29. — The new Labour Government cleared its first hurdle through the settlement of the national railroad strike, which was reached at five o'clock this morning, after an all-night conference of railway managers and union leaders.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald had learned the good news over the telephone before breakfast, and left for Edinburgh shortly afterward on a private visit, smiling broadly in answer to the cheers at the station, obviously a greatly relieved man.

J. Bromley, leader of the striking locomotive engineers and firemen, said after the conference broke up:

"The 'terms reached were most satisfactory. The men will return to work immediately."

Another strike official said the service would be back to normal by nightfall.

The rail strike lasted just eight days. Members of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen went out at midnight on the 20th of January, after negotiations had failed.

The strike was timed to coincide with wage reductions authorised by the National Wage Board, to which engineers and firemen objected.

The walkout affected some 70,000 men. Traffic was tied up on some lines, and ran disjointed and spasmodically on others.

There was some violence in Scotland, but no casualties.

Motor lorries and airplanes were used in great numbers to relieve the situation.

The strike was supposed to sound the death knell of the new Labour Government, which came into power just as the strike started. But owing to the efforts of Tom Shaw, now Minister of Labour, Harry Gosling, Minister f Transprt, J. H. Thomas, head of the National Union of Railwaymen and Minister of the Colonies, the strikers and managers were finally brought together.

No representative of the Government had a hand in the actual settlement ,which was fostered solely by a committee from the Trades Union Congress.

But the Government is naturally tremendously pleased.

Instead of being wrecked by the strike weapon, the Labour Government may, as pointed out by the United Press on the day the strike started, gain credit therefrom.

For the rail strike, which was a heritage from the Baldwin Government was settled promptly under the new Labour regime.

REPUBLICANS OF GREECE EXPECT LUCK IN SPRING

ATHENS, Jan. 29 Canadian Press —All indications point to a victory for the Republicans in the Spring, when Venizelos can hardly refuse the presidency of the Greek Republic.

A striking analogy exists however in Greece, where a Republican system can hardly survive Mustapha Kemal, because the population of both countries is by tradition fundamentally royalist.

However a number of influential Turkish generals, anti- Kemalists and Greek Royalist officers have been weeded out of the two armies, which is generally the last work in near eastern politics.

Meanwhile Venizelos is trying to cary out a programme of internal reconciliation, despite the efforts of some of his extremist partisans to alter his conciliatory plans by means of the National Assembly where they dominate, owing to the abstension of the Royalist and anti-Venezelist opposition from the elections of last November.

A recent decree, changing into short prison terms the death sentences and long prison terms of several of the leaders of the recent Metaxist counter revolution and releasing others, means a victory for the policy of Venizelos, who yielding to the objections of the Royalists, also ordered a revision of the election list to be used in the plebiscite next April because the lists it is alleged were partly forged.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Annual Meeting of the Baptist Church--A Year of Progress.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 29.—The members of the Baptist church held their annual meeting Friday evening, when reports of the past year's work in all departments were read and officers were elected for 1924. About 7 o'clock the members sat down to a splendid supper which did credit to the ladies of the church who had prepared it.

At 8 o'clock the pastor, Rev. H. S. Bennett, B.A., called the meeting to order. After the devotional exercises the pastor's address was delivered, the theme of which was "The Source of Elijah's Power." This source, the preacher said, was threefold—to Elijah Jehovah was the one supreme reality of life. His message to Ahab was "as Jehovah liveth." Consciousness of a presence greater than that of King Ahab, even Jehovah; he said, "Jehovah, before whom I stand."

The name Elijah may be rendered, "Jehovah is my strength." This gives the key to his whole life. Jehovah was the strength of his life, of whom then should he be afraid? When the wicked, even his enemies came upon him to eat up his flesh they stumbled and fell.

"If," continued the speaker, "we cease from our own strength which at best is weakness and appropriate God's strength by daily, hourly faith then the motto of our lives will be: "In the Lord have I righteousness and strength: I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

Jugo-Slav Ministers in Audience With Pope.

ROME, Jan 29.—(Canadian Press)—Pope Pius granted audience to Premier Pachitch and Foreign Minister Ninchitch of Jugo-Slavia, together with their wives and entourages. The Pontiff expressed good wishes for the prosperity of Jugo-Slavia and also satisfaction at her agreement with Italy over Fiume, which, he said, would work to the benefit of universal peace.

BALDWIN SOLD TO THE GIANTS

Commissioner Landis Upholds Deal With Former Newark Owners For $25,000.

NEW YORK, January 29 (Canadian Press). — The sale of the contract of Howard Baldwin, star pitcher, to the New York Giants for $25,000 by the former owners of the Newark Internationals, was upheld yesterday by Commissioner Landis over the protest of the newly organised syndicate now in control of the Newark Club.

The Commissioner's ruling, announced after a formal hearing attended by representatives of the Giants as well as former and present Newark Club interests, ended a controversy that has stirred baseball circles for the past week.

The decision in favour of Bernard Moan and William Ashton, of Baltimore, former Newark owners, was based upon the existence of a stipulation in the franchise bill of sale, giving them the right to dispose of Baldwin, and also upon the fact that the deal for the transfer of the club has not yet been completed, since no money has as yet changed hands.

FASCISTI STILL STANDS BY STATE

Mussolini Outlined Election Programme and Was Given An Ovation From Throng of Fascists.

ROME, Jan. 28.— There was an imposing gathering to-day in the Venetia Palace of the Fascist party. Premier Mussolini was greeted by the assembled Fascists with cheering and the ancient Roman salute.

Mussolini outlined the election programme of his party during a speech which extended over an hour and a quarter. When Mussolini rose to speak he was given an ovation. At various times during his lengthy address the Premier was cheered to the echo, especially when he recapitulated the aims of the Fascista and its success in restoration of the authority of the State and the reconstruction of the nation. He insisted on the necessity of having a Chamber of Deputies which would carry out the aims of the Government with loyalty, and declared that if the Opposition attempted any underhand measures against the security of the State the Fascista was ready to crush it.

Trapper Finds Vicks Handy For A Host of Ills

ONTARIO MAN SAYS IT IS A MOST USEFUL REMEDY.

Mr. C. Phoenix of 755 Grey St., London, Ont., writes: "I am very pleased to recommend Vicks VapoRub. I am a hunter, trader and trapper, also a fisherman. I use Vicks VapoRub in place of liniments, because it is very handy to carry and always gives such quick relief for small animal and insect bites, and for chapped hands and lips. My boots would blister my feet and I rubbed it on them and it made them just right. When I go trapping next fall I will have plenty of Vicks VapoRub in my kit. I call it the 'Trapper's Friend.' I have not had a cold all winter and I go out all the time and sometimes stay out all night with my traps."

Vicks VapoRub, the discovery of a Southern druggist, is a combination in salve form of Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Thyme, Turpentine, etc.

Absorbed through the skin and at the same time inhaled as a vapor, Vicks reaches immediately inflamed, congested air passages.

It is the modern direct treatment for all cold troubles, the successor to goose grease, camphorated oil, liniments, poultices and plasters.

EXCHANGE QUOTATIONS HAS FOUND NEW SYSTEM

PARIS, Jan 29—(Canadian Press) The Bourse today instituted a new system of exchange quotations under the Government's order, posting prices as usual during the session, but giving the closing figure as the official one instead of establishing an average quotation as heretofore.

This measure was adopted because the Minister of Finance believed the average figures were made unfavorable to the franc by "wash sales." The exchange session has also been lengthened.

HASTINGS UNITED IN RECEPTION TO WARDEN

Native of the Village Reaches Highest Place in Municipal Life of United Counties--Many Speeches.

HASTINGS, Jan. 29.— Seated at the right of Toastmaster Alex Wilson, Walter M. Fowlds, the newly eleted warden of the counties of Northumberland and Durham, sat last night, the guest at the banquet given by the citizens of Hastings in his honour, listened to panegyrics that would have turned a head less level than his own. Tributes of praise came from all sorts and conditions of men, from members of the Federal Parliament and the Legislature, from business and professional men, from his colleagues in the Hastings council and in the little Parliament at Cobourg, from ministers of all denominations, from friends and neighbors who have known him since his boyhood. All these praised him for his private and public career, for what he has achieved in the past and for what they all hope he may yet be able to accomplish in the future. A prophet may be without honor where he is best known, but the banquet at Hastings last night demonstrated that it is sometimes different with a public man.

Warden Fowlds appreciated all the fine things that were said of him. He was the last speaker on a programme that was not finished until nearly 3 a.m., and his address was one of the best that was heard during the evening. When he rose to his feet the audience stood and joined in singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and then gave three hearty cheers and a tiger.

Warden Fowlds said that three influences had brought him to where he is to-day. His father had for 25 years represented Hastings at Cobourg and had often spoken to his son of the honour of belonging to such a distinguished body and expressed the hope that some day the young fellow would attain the wardenship. That hope had been realized after all these years, but the father had not lived to see it.

When he was first a member of the Hastings council he owed much to the help that was given him by Alex .Wilson, the man who has been clerk of the village for over 33 years. When he went to Cobourg he profited by the teachings of Col. W. F. MacNachtan, the clerk-treasurer, who was always ready to help new members and instruct them in their duties

Warden Fowlds said that another person who helped him, perhaps more than all others in his career, was his wife. When his ambition showed signs of flagging she spurred him on to reach the high mark his father had set for him.

A Brilliant Gathering.

There was a brilliant gathering of public men at the speakers' table. To the right of the toastmaster was the guest of the evening, Mr. E. Maybee, M.P. for Northumberland, F. W. Bowen, M.P. for Durham, Col. F. D. Boggs, Mayor of Cobourg and solicitor for the United Counties, J J. Duffus, ex-Mayor of Peterborough, Rev. Dr. J. T. Daley, superintendent of the Childrens' Shelter at Port Hope, and J. McCamus, reeve of Cavan. To the toastmasters' left were seated Major Belford, M.P.P. for Northumberland East, Sam Clarke, M.P.P. of the western riding in the same county, Col. N. F. MacNachtan, clerk-treasurer of the United Counties, ex-Warden Harry B. Phillips of Brighton, E. P. Cuffe of Norwood, Reeve C. H. Davidson of Campbellford, Reeve John McCubbin, of Percy, ex-Reeve Charles Grigg and ex-Reeve Thomas Drope, of Alnwick, Alex. Anderson, Reeve of South Monaghan, ex-Reeve J. A. Anderson, of Campbellford, and Deputy Reeve H. W. Nelson, of Percy. Other invited guests, including John Roxborough and Thomas Findlay, of Norwood, were seated among the main audience.

A Long Toast List

The toast list was a long one and some eloquent addresses were listened to with the closest attention after letters of regret at inability to attend and congratulating Warden Fowlds upon his success had been read. One of these messages was from Hon. G. N. Gordon M.P. of Peterborough, deputy speaker of the House of Commons.

The first toast "Canada and the Empire' was proposed by Dr. W. Wilson of Hastings and was responded to by Major Belford and Col. F. D. Boggs. The Major believes that what is needed to bring prosperity to Canada is not greater farm production which is now in excess of the demand but under markets for the farmer. A home market can be secured only by developing the industries and so increasing the consuming population. There is nothing of the pessimist about the Major. He does not anticipate ruin to the Empire because a Labor Government is at the helm in England. He believes that the members of that Government love their Empire and will do the best they can in its interests. He counselled a closer unity between the people of Ontario and Quebec.

Col. Boggs drew a bright picture of Canada's future which he said depended altogether upon the people themselves.

No Chance for Public Works

In proposing the toast, 'The Parliament of Canada," Mr. Maybee made one statement that was of special interest to the people of Campbellford when they are pressing the Government for a new post office and Armouries. Mr. Maybee said there was little chance for further expenditure for public works as it was imperative that the Governments outlay he curtailed and the burden of taxation reduced. He believes that capital in proportion to the number of immigrants admitted should be brought into the country.

Mr. Bower, who like Mr. Maybee is a former warden of the United Counties, told of the dignity with which the little Parliament at Cobourg is conducted and praised the new warden as one of the ablest members ever elected to that body.

Sam Clarke made one of his characteristic humorous addresses, and expressed the hope that Warden Fowlds would turn out as good as looks, and adding with Clarkesque bluntness, that if he did he would make a "darn good warden."

Then followed addresses by Ex-Reeve Dr. J. H. Hess, who dropped out of the Hastings contest last election to help his opponent attain the Wardenship, by Col. MacNachtan, who had figures to prove that the united counties are on a firm financial bases. They have a debenture debt of about $40,000, 75 cents per capita, and it takes a levy of one-eighth of a mill to provide for the annual payments of principal and interest. Wellington County, in comparison, has a debenture debt of $65 per resident, and the annual levy to provide for this is five mills.

Dr. Doley made a short address on the institute of which he is the efficient manager.

"The Press" was proposed by Rev. D. A. Thomson and responded to by C. P. Doughty, Rev. H. L. Hinton and Rev. W. A. Pippin, all of Hastings. The clergymen agreed that the newspapers are second only to the pulpit as an influence for good in the community.

Mr. Thomson explained the physical and moral superiority of the new Warden. The first is due to a diet of oatmeal, and the latter to a thorough drill in the Shorter Catechism. Warden Fowlds has been under the spiritual guidance of Mr. Thomson, boy and man, for the past 40 years.

Rev. Father Bretherton made a pleasing speech, with the industries of Hastings as his theme, and ex-Councillor A. E. Chapman proposed the toast, "Our Sister Municipalities." Ex-Mayor Duffus said that from his personal acquaintance with Mr. Fowlds, he had always expected to see him reach the top of the ladder in municipal life, and he was glad to see that hope realized. E. P. Cuffe and Reeve Davidson spoke briefly, as did Reeve McCubbin of Percy. Other speakers were: Charles Plant, who toasted the ladies; Reeve McCamus of Cavan, and John Coughlan, one of the pioneer residents of Hastings, and Neil McDonald.

During the evening solos were rendered by Neil McDonald, James Masterton gave a recitation, and Alex. Shand gave a violin solo. All these performers were heartily encored. A. U. Bailey acted as pianist.

The gathering broke up with cheers for the Warden and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

"This was the biggest night Hastings has ever known," remarked Toastmaster Wilson at the close, and this sentiment was echoed by the audience. Every step of the proceedings was completed without a hitch, the seating arrangements were perfect, and the banquet, provided by F. F. Long, of Campbellford, was all that could be asked for.

A GOVERNMENT WAR ON WASTE

Civil Service Will Come in for a Reduction in Forces.

OTTAWA, Jan. 29. — War on waste or reckless expenditure has been declared by the King government.

Economy in the sphere of civil government and retrenchment in matters of public expenditure outside that of carrying on business of the government are being pushed.

Substantial reduction in the number of those employed in carrying on the business of the Dominion may be expected soon.

A request has been sent out by the Prime Minister to Deputy Ministers, or permanent heads of government departments, to be prepared to meet the Cabinet at its sitting on Friday of this week to show cause why certain reductions in their departmental expenditures, especially under the head of 'civil government' be not now made.

It is known that very convincing reasons must be forthcoming to prevent lopping off of those not deemed essential to efficient working of any particular government service.

CONDEMNS LACK OF IMMIGRATION PLAN

Leader of Conservative Party in Canada Attacks Dominion Government --"Shivering Impotence."

MONTREAL, Jan. 29.—(Canadian Press).—"Are we to sit by in silent, shivering impotence while men are trekking out of this country into the United States?" asked the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservative Opposition, at one stage of his address to members and friends of the Liberal-Conservative Association and Women's Conservative Association, who gave a banquet that celebrated the opening of the new headquarters of these organizations last night.

Mr. Meighen attacked the present administration at Ottawa because of what he described as their lack of an aggressive immigration policy and referring to the exodus from Canada, asserted that "figures are not only distressing, they are startling."

Under the English system of free trade, great quantities of cheap German manufactured products are dumped on the English market. To the casual purchaser during the rush of holiday shopping the words "Designed in England" meet the eye. In smaller print below, almost unreadable, was the regulation "Made in Germany" mark.

WAS WELL TREATED.

The suicide of a young Barnardo Home boy employed on the farm of William Fee of South Emily, following closely upon the Bulpitt tragedy which caused so much comment, has been given an amount of publicity, particularly in some of the Toronto newspapers, that is resented by the people of Omemee and the surrounding district.

So far as the Examiner has been able to ascertain, there was nothing in the treatment accorded this unfortunate boy by his employer or any other member of the family that would provide a reason for his rash act.

The boy had been with Mr. Fee four years, and was treated as one of the family, being on the best of terms with everybody with whom he was associated.

These facts have been so well established that Crown Attorney Anderson of Lindsay, after an investigation, has declared that there is absolutely no necessity for any further inquiry into the case.

So far as the Omemee episode is concerned, it is doubtful whether any system of Government inspection could have averted the tragedy inasmuch as periodic investigation would have merely shown that the boy was contented in his position and was being well treated.

In spite of that fact, however, the second case will increase the demand for a more systematic inspection of immigrant children and the conditions under which they are placed.

THE VISITING CURLERS.

Peterborough is glad today to welcome the jovial band of curlers from all over the district who are assembled here for the annual bonspiel now widely known as the blue ribbon sporting event of the winter season.

Many of the visiting knights of the stane and besom have been coming to Peterborough so long that they arrive as old friends for whom everybody has a hearty welcome; others are here for the first time, but to all them, whether old acquaintance or new, Peterborough extends open arms.

May their stay here be pleasant and their games enjoyable—and may the best rinks win!

It is a sociable, sportsmanlike game, this curling. There are some "grouching" curlers, of course, and a few who take a beating with ill-grace, but fortunately, their numbers are small in comparison with the host of good fellows who win graciously of accept defeat with a smile as the fortunes of war nave it.

And talk about inter-city relationships, and the necessity of understanding the other fellow's viewpoint, there is nothing that brings about a better feeling among different centres than a bonspeil such as Peterborough's annual affair, which brings together curlers from here, there and everywhere and throws them into two or three days of friendly intercourse and friendly, although keen, competition, from which they emerge knowing each other better and having formed friendships that last.

So the Examiner is happy in expressing a welcome to the visiting curlers and in wishing them an enjoyable visit to Peterborough.

HELP FOR NORTH COUNTRY.

The Peterborough County Council has decided to ask the Ontario Government to establish a small hospital at Apsley for the benefit of the people of the northern section of the county, and if the request is looked into thoroughly by the Government it is difficult to see how some measure of relief can be denied.

The conditions in that portion of Peterborough so far as treatment for the sick and injured is concerned leave much to be desired.

The district needs more medical and nursing service, and an outpost hospital at Apsley would be of the greatest assistance.

Some figures were given before the Hastings Council the other day as to the number of maternity cases in the northern part of that county in which no medical attendance was possible or was obtained.

It was found that in a large percentage of confinements no expert service was used, and the percentage of fatal cases was, as might be expected, high.

A survey of portions of Peterborough and many other Ontario townships would reveal a similar state of affairs, and the need of medical and nursing skill in such districts would be clearly shown.

The County Council, which has not paid as much attention to this question in the past as its vital importance merited, is on the right track at last, and it is hoped will be successful in impressing upon the Ontario Government the necessity of doing something to relieve conditions that are endangering the lives of many people.

AN OLD STORY WITH A MODERN POINT.

There is a story often told of a camp follower of an influential politician who after fortune had smiled on their party banners in an election besought his leader to reward his services on behalf of the organization with a Government position.

"Something with good pay and very little work" was what he wanted, and having been a handy man in winning elections, he was successful in his petition.

He was told to report for duty as an inspector on some Government work in the neighborhood and instructed to say little, but walk around from one part of the work to another—and draw his pay.

To the surprise of the politician he turned up a few days afterward and declared the job wouldn't suit him.

"Why you have nothing to do but walk around," said his benefactor.

"Yes, but the last couple of days there has been a fellow following me wherever I went, and I don't like that kind of thing," objected the camp follower.

"You poor idiot," remarked the political boss disgustedly. "That fellow is your assistant inspector."

The story of all its details may be overdrawn, but there is reason to believe that in our Civil Service machinery, both Federal and Provincial, the departments are cluttered up with useless officials whose work is not much more important than that of the man in this anecdote.

Over-manning, duplication of effort, red tape regulations, hammering the efficiency of and adding to the overhead cost of departmental administration, an army of officials here, there and everywhere, a Federal Civil Service payroll of over $50,000,000 a year—no wonder Canadians are groaning about heavy taxation.

These are facts that must be faced by our politicians because the people of this country are beginning to realize that everywhere else outside of Canada successful efforts to reduce expenditure have been made, and as a result the burden of excessive taxes is being lifted, as against an increase here as represented by the new Sales Tax.

Canadians are long-suffering people, but the limit of endurance has been reached.

The majority of them, regardless of party affiliations, are waiting for the next session for signs that the feeling of the country has been recognized by those in authority, and if no such signs manifest themselves the consequence can easily be prophesied.

A PACIFIST TURNED MILITARIST.

What has come over Mr. Ramsay MacDonald? asks the Ottawa Journal. When Prussia trampled upon Belgium and Britain interfered he said that Britain was wrong. When Lloyd George told General Harington to stay the Turk at Chanak and prevent a world conflagration, MacDonald denounced him as a breeder of war. And only the other day he was vociferous in denouncing Mr. Baldwin for not being more amiable and peaceful about Europe.

Now, in office, what a change in Mr. MacDonald. The cooing dove has turned to a screaming eagle, and the erstwhile pacifist is found sending a fighting message to some Indians in India. There are some in India who want to break away from British rule, and who are making trouble. MacDonald has thus addressed them:

"No party in Britain will be cowed by threats of force or by policies designed to bring the Government to a standstill. If any Indian section are under the delusion that this is so, events will sadly disappoint them."

Mr. Winston Churchill, in his most impetuous mood, never rattled his sword in his scabbard like that. And as for poor Lord Curzon and Mr. Baldwin, such fighting talk would never emanate from their lips.

Is history going to repeat? Lloyd George was too much of a pacifist for even Campbell-Bannerman; but once in office he sent a challenge to the Kaiser over Agadir that echoed round the world. Mr. MacDonald, beginning his Ministerial career with a militant message to India, would seem to be in a fair way to out-Lloyd George Lloyd George.

WHAT IS PROPAGANDA?

"What is your definition of propaganda?" enquired Edward W. Bok, during the course of his examination before a committee of the United States Senate which has been enquiring into the conduct of his peace plan competition. Senator Reed of Missouri, who has not been favorably impressed by the competition or by the prize-winning plan, had been referring to literature relating to the contest as "propaganda." Mr. Bok retorted by putting his question. But the Missouri Senator did not care to go into that and added "If you don't know what it is, you ought not to be undertaking to regulate the affairs of the world."

Propaganda is a word which became much more common in conversation during and after the Great War than it had been before. It is defined in the New Standard dictionary as: "1. A congregation or society of cardinals having the care and oversight of foreign missions, instituted at Rome, A.D., 1622; applied also to the College of the Propaganda at Rome founded by Pope Urban VIII. for the education of missionary priests; 2. Hence, any institution or systematic scheme for propagating a doctrine or system of doctrines; 3. Effort directed systematically toward the gaining of support for an opinion or course of action; 4. The principles advanced by propaganda." Thus, the word has a wide meaning and recalls the story of some Canadian officers, who visited Rome during the war and whose guide drew attention to a statue representing St. Paul. The man evidently did not think the visitors understood the Italian form of the Apostle's name, for he added emphatically "propaganda, propaganda." Thus, a church seeking proselytes might be called propaganda; its efforts to do so might be propaganda and the doctrines it disseminated might be propaganda. During the war, Governments of all the belligerent nations, although they controlled the publication of news, realized the importance of publicity. They saw that even accounts of events might be so presented as to sustain the courage of their people and to put forward their official view of the significance of those events. They placed value upon the expression of their arguments as to the causes, conduct and consequences of the conflict. And they published literature to explain and direct movements in their own countries. For example, we had in Canada a Food Board which resorted extensively to publicity in its effort to encourage production of foodstuffs for export to Allied countries and to regulate the domestic use of such materials. All these activities were truly "propaganda." And, most of them were the result of patriotic and worthy motives. We have no election campaign, moreover, without an abundance of propaganda from a variety of sources to guide or influence the electors in their choice of parties or candidates.

By many the word is used to describe literature circulated under false pretences or surreptitiously, containing untrue statements or conclusions and intended to promote a bad cause. By some it is applied to advocacy of opinions or action with which they do not agree. Senator Reed probably used the word to convey the idea of an insidious method, which he regarded as improper, of preaching doctrines he regarded as contrary to the public interest. Mr. Bok may retort, perhaps, that Senator Reed and his associates were engaged in the Senate committee in "propaganda." In the correct sense of the word, literature advertising the peace competition was propaganda, so is the prize-winning peace plan. And so was Senator Reed's objection to both.—Mail and Empire.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

If the Canadian hockey team at Chamonix continue to hand out any more 30 to 0 scores, the League of Nations is likely to have a lot of work to do.

One good thing about being a member of the Council is that it ensures attendance at church once a year anyway.

The Toronto Trades and Labour Council wants all immigration to stop. And as the Globe points out, many of the Council were either immigrants themselves or the sons of immigrants.

AN AWFUL ATTACK OF PIMPLES ALL OVER HIS FACE

Pimples breaking out on the face and other parts of the body is a sure sign that the blood is not in proper shape.

While the skin is the object of the attack the real seat of the disease is in the blood on account of the entire circulation being poisoned.

Burdock Blood Bitters quickly and effectually banishes pimples and all other skin diseases as it goes right to the root of the trouble by cleansing and enriching the blood.

Mr. Conrad Anderson, Kelfield, Sask., writes:—"A year ago I had an awful attack of pimples. They broke out all over my face and I could not get rid of them in any way. One day a friend told me about your Burdock Blood Bitters and let me have a bottle he had to spare. After using it I noticed a change, so I bought three more bottles, and now I don't know there is such a thing as pimples."

Has Had Unusual Table Delicacy For a Week--Grown in Store.

John Speer, an East City grocer, reports a most unusual feat in market gardening. On this, the 28th day of January, he has rhubarb in stalks, 18 inches tall, and has already been using it over a week. The plants are quite healthy, and are growing in his store.

More of the stalks, Mr. Speer says, are coming along steadily.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Jan. 29.—For butchers' cattle the buyers were asking more money and the sales would point to an advance of 25 cents to 50 cents a cwt. Handyweight butchers, just in, the good class, sold at 6½ cents

Harry McCrae bought about 30 butchers' cows at 3 to 4½ cents a pound. These prices, he thought, were no higher than last week. Some choice handyweight butchers' steers and heifers sold at $6.90 and $7 a cwt. Good butchers were 6½ cents and medium 5¼ to 5¾ cents. Bulls were firmer and a choice butchers 'bull brought 5½ cents and a choice cow the same money.

Calves were quite steady at the advance of last week. There were no real choice vealers for sale and good calves sold at 13 cents. Good mediums made 11 and 12 cents and common ones 8 to 9 cents.

The lamb market holds strong. Fred Dunn sold a couple of bunches of choice at 15 cents a pound and a deck of good lambs brought 14½ cents for the ewes and wethers. Sheep are firm at last week's closing quotations.

Packers bids on hogs this morning were set back 50 cents a cwt. to $7.25 f.o.b. This appears to be a base price on which to dicker and sellers are trying to get the best quotation above this. It is not thought that any of yesterday's hogs will sell below $7.75 a cwt. f.o.b.

LAKEFIELD HAD SEVERAL FIRES

Firemen Had Two Calls Within An Hour During the High Wind.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 29.—On Saturday morning the fire brigade responded to two calls within an hour, in both case for chimney fires. The high wind, which made the most ordinary traffic difficult, was a handicap but the boys, as usual, responded promptly and cheerfully. The first call was from Miss Stablers' house on Regent street and the second from Dickson's store. Both fires were speedily extinguished.

One of the worst storms for many years raged in and around Lakefield on Friday and Saturday. Traffic outside the village was almost impossible and the rural mail lines were served with greatest difficulty. The north country roads were practically blocked.

On Monday evening the first Carnival of the season will be held in the rink and with good prizes and good music there will be a large crowd which, however, will probably draw only from the village owing to the blackade of many of the country roads.

On Thursday the first of the season's card parties under the auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary of the G.W.V.A. will be held in the Lakefield House.

On Friday night Northey's team and Young's Point will play in Lakefield and District League. The postponed game between Warsaw and Hull's team will be played during the week.

The weekly union prayer meetings will be resumed on Thursday evening when an invitation has been given to meet in the Presbyterian church.

Mrs. J. H. Sherin entertained a number of ladies at a delightful bridge party on Saturday afternoon.

Miss Eastwood of Buckhorn spent the week-end in the village.

Mr. Scully of Toronto was in the village on Friday.

Messrs. Robert and W. C. Garbutt of Hamilton were in the village on Friday attending the funeral of H C. Garbutt.

Mrs. W. W. Leonard was in Peterboro on Friday.

Rev. A. W. Mackenzie spent a few days in Montreal last week.

Rev. and Mrs. Walter Cox were in the village from Toronto for the week. Mr. and Mrs. Cox hope to be settled in the Rectory very shortly.

SUICIDE DOES NOT JUSTIFY INQUEST

Omemee Case Closed So Far as Authorities Are Concerned.

LINDSAY, Jan. 28.—(Specially)—In conversation with the Examiner today, Crown Attorney J. E. Anderson of Lindsay said there was absolutely nothing to justify an inquest or investigation into the death of John Page, a Barnardo Home boy, who committed suicide a few days ago by taking paris green. The crown attorney has received the report of Provincial Officer H. Storey and on the strength of that report and other information obtained by the officials interested in the case, it was decided not to hold an inquest or investigation as demanded by some of the Toronto papers. Business men of Omemee near where the boy lived, resent the undue publicity that has been given to the case by the Toronto evening papers. They say it was uncalled for especially when the officials in charge of the case found nothing to justify an investigation.

Passed through here

Weeping bitterly, alone in the crowd which thronged yesterday morning's C.P.R. train from Toronto, the twelve year old brother of John Page travelled to attend the unfortunate boy's funeral. Between his sobs he told a sympathetic enquirer the story of how he is now, since his brother's death by his own hand, left together alone in the world.

A Peterobro man when passing through the train noticed the lad, this man's kind enquiries broke down the boy's reserve, and he told of his life in the Barnardo home, of his being sent to a home in Caledonia, while his brother came to Omemee, and of how his brother killed himself "Now," he sobbed, "I have nobody left in the world."

The boy had travelled alone from Caledonia, and was glad of the chocolate which the Peterboro man procured for him. He expected someone to meet him at Peterobro to take him to Omemee, and had not been long in the station, until called for.

Press Comment

LONDON, Jan. 28.— (Canadian Press Cable)— With reference to two "home" boys, who committed suicide in Ontario recently, Charles Bulpitt on farm near Goderich, and John Page, on farm near Lindsay, there seems to be no disposition so far on part of press here to make anything like "sensational revelations," or to emphasize fact that two English boys took their own lives within few days of each other.

Only one morning and evening paper in London have ever shown any marked inclination to disparage emigration towards Canada.

Three Murder Cases For Montreal Court.

75% of disease avoided through internal cleanliness

Internal Cleanliness More Important Than Bathing

WHY run the risk of sickness? Keep clean internally. When you are constipated, poisons form in the accumulated food waste. These poisons, absorbed by the blood, attack all parts of the body. The first results, headache, biliousness, a feeling of "heaviness," etc., serve as warnings of a graver danger. If this intestinal poisoning continues unchecked, you become the victim of some serious organic disease.

This is why intestinal specialists state that constipation is the primary cause of three-quarters of all illness, including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Washing Cleans Only the Skin

Why Physicians Favor Lubrication

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Not a Medicine

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water it is harmless.

Get rid of constipation and avoid disease by adopting the habit of internal cleanliness. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.

TEAPOT DOME SCANDAL MOVING GOVERNMENT OF U.S. TO LEGAL ACTION

House of Representatives Appropriates $100,000 to Push Proceedings For Annulment of Leases to Sinclair and Pan-American Oil Interests—The Former Secretary of the Interior Alleged to Have Received Large Sum From Harry Sinclair For Lease of Government Oil Property.

WAS APPROVED BY DENBY.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(Canadian Press).—A whirlwind of developments yesterday advanced measurably the Government's plan to rid itself of the Fall oil leases.

A resolution urging the Pesident to institute proceedings for annulment of both the Sinclair and Doheny contracts was debated all day in the Senate, with indications pointing to its adoption today.

Another resolution, requesting the President to call for the resignation of Secretary Denby because of his part in the leasing program, was introduced by Senator Robinson, Arkansas, the Democratic leader, but its consideration was deferred.

Will Prosecute.

President Coolidge, who already has announced his purpose to prosecute, communicated with several of those he has in mind as special counsel, but last night was unable to announce definitely who had been selected.

The House, however, passed a resolution appropriating $100,000 for prosecution of annulment proceedings. But a single vote was cast against it.

The whole situation was talked over at a White House conference during the evening between the President, Chairman Lenroot of the Senate Oil Committee and Senators Lodge of Massachusetts and Curtis of Kansas, the Republican leaders.

Fall Is Sick.

From the sick bed of former Interior Secretary Fall, word went out that he not only would be unable to appear before the oil committee today as planned, but might not be able to testify for some days to come.

The resolution proposing the resignation of Secretary Denby was offered after demands that he quit the Cabinet had been made by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana.

It has developed that Fall never presented for discussion by the Harding Cabinet the Teapot Dome and Doheny leases. Acting under broad authority granted to him by the President in an executive order, which Fall obtained within three months after he became Secretary of the Interior, he excluded navy officers from participation and handled the whole affair as a department al matter.

It is contended now in some quarters that had Fall presented the Teapot Dome lease to the Cabinet, the political possibilities of a contract negotiated in secret and without competitive bidding, would have caused some members of the Cabinet to suggest there should be open competitive bidding, so that if the Sinclair and Doheny terms were the best the Government could obtain, as Fall and Denby contend, the circumstances would be made clear at the outset.

J. W. (Bill) Zevely, Sinclair's personal attorney, has already testified that he loaned Fall in June last $25,000 in Liberty bonds obtained from Sinclair.

Fall gave a personal unsecured note for the loan some six weeks or two months later. The note bore interest at 6 per cent. It was payable only on demand. No part of principal or interest has been paid, the witness swore.

It was that transfer of $25,000 in Liberty bonds to Zeverly which Sinclair's confidential secretary, G. D. Wahlberg, testified had caused him to suspect that "somebody might have loaned some money to Fall," and which caused Wahlberg to suggest to Archie Roosevelt that he resign from the Sinclair organization to protect his "name and reputation."

HELP FOR YOUNG WOMEN

Mrs. Holmberg Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Viking, Alta.—"From the time I was 16 years old I would get such sick feelings in the lower part of my abdomen, followed by cramps and vomiting. This kept me from my work (I help my parents on the farm) as I usually had to go to bed for the rest of the day. Or at times I would have to walk the floor. I suffered in this way until a friend induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have had very satisfactory results so far and am recommending the Vegetable Compound to my friends. I surely am glad I tried it for I feel like a different person now that I don't have these troubles." — ODELIA HOLMBERG, Box 93, Viking, Alberta.

Letters like this establish the merits of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They tell of the relief from such pains and ailments after taking it.

HEART WAS SO BAD HAD TO SIT UP IN BED

Mrs. O. E. Fitzgerald, 106 Ross St., St. Thomas, Ont., writes:—"In the Fall of 1921, I was taken ill with my heart, but I did not pay much attention to it. I kept on with my household duties, but seemed to become worse and worse, and finally had to call in a doctor. He said I was all run down and was a nervous wreck. I had a severe pain in my chest which would move over to my heart and it became so bad I could not lie down, as when I did I had such a smothering feeling I would have to sit up in bed till it passed away.

I tried several remedies, but with no good results. Finally, I was induced to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I took 7 boxes, and I am now as well as I was 30 years ago, and I am now 65 years old."

WORKING WOMEN, WEAK, RUN DOWN SOON RESTORED

Home Treatment to Create Red Blood, Body Tissue and Vital Nerve Force Costs But Little.

Countless thousands of women must work day after day in stores, offices, manufacturing establishments or in their own homes who are really unfit for their tasks. With bodies and nerves overstrained, they get through each day by will power alone. At night, worn and exhausted, life holds little of pleasure for such women.

They should not be content to drag on, making their sacrifice of health, beauty and happiness. They should, instead, undertake at once the upbuilding of their bodies; the creation of red blood and flesh tissue that fills out hollow cheeks and wasted forms; that restores nerve resistance and brings back the bloom of health, strength and vitality.

When weighed down by worry and weakness, such women should begin at once a simple, inexpensive home treatment of Wincarnis, the restorative. They can obtain a generous size bottle of Wincarnis from any leading druggist. Wincarnis is the ideal body and strength builder and is absolutely harmless. More than ten thousand physicians have recommended it.

The Wincarnis treatment costs only ten cents a day. In twelve days see the improvement Wincarnis brings.

Community Chest Was Advocated in Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Jan .28. —Federated charities and the community chest plan was advocated as a means of concentrating the citys' social service work by J. J. Gibson, of Toronto, in an address before representatives of local social service organizations at a luncheon here to-day. The city's welfare work is at present being carried on by a number of organizations with consequent lack of economy and overlapping.

Mr. Gibson said the experience of Toronto was that, in addition to increasing the contributions, the federated charities scheme resulted in a very great increase in the amount of interest taken by the community in social problems.

"If you form a federation in Ottawa start it on non-sectarian lines," urged Mr Gibson. He said that if sectarian institutions were included it was liable to result in dissatisfaction

STOMACH SOURCE OF SUFFERING

Dreco, by correcting its action is rapidly restoring Peterborough lady to joyful health. Aids liver and bowels as well and improves system generally.

"For the past few years I have been a constant sufferer from stomach trouble," says Mrs. R. M. Graham of 115 Robinson street, East City, Peterborough, Ont "Gas would form after eating that felt like a lump of lead My food soured, causing nausea and belching and I would get severe cramps. My appetite was very poor and my whole system suffered from lack of proper nourishment.

"My liver was sluggish, too, and I would get dizzy spells, and the least bit of work would exhaust me. I would get tired out from just walking up stairs.

"When I started taking Dreco I didn't have much faith in it for every other medicine I had tried had failed to do me any good. However, two bottles of Dreco convinced me that it is indeed different. It has proved its ability to do all that is claimed for it.

"My stomach is wonderfully improved and I have a splendid appetite. My food now digests perfectly without souring or causing the least distress and I hardly ever have a dizzy spell. Work, which was an effort before, is a pleasure once more and my bowels, which were chronically constipated, are regular as a clock."

Dreco brings health by putting the stomach and other vital digestive organs in proper working order. They purge the system of all impurities and absorb all the nourishing values of the food, thereby giving strength and vitality to the whole body. Dreco is made from herbs, roots, bark and leaves and contains no mercury, potash or habit-forming drugs.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterboro by Bond's Drug Store. Go there to-day and ask for Mr. Vaughan, the Dreco expert, and let him explain the merits of this great remedy. There is no charge, and he will tell you honestly if he believes Dreco will benefit you.

Dreco is also sold as follows:
Lakefield: E. H. Northey.
Campbellford: J. E. Birks.
And by a good druggist everywhere.

Literary Society

Several of the parents and friends of the Continuation School pupils were pleased to accept the invitation of the principal, Miss H. Todd, to attend an open meeting of the literary society which was held on Friday afternoon. Space being limited owing to the large number of scholars enrolled, the invitations were necessarily limited also; but there will be several such occasions during the winter the object in view being the purchase of tennis equipment for the coming season.

The folding-doors between class room and library were thrown open and the attractive decorations of ropes strung with tiny rainbow-colored parasols, the pupils' own work, stretched between the overhead lights, made a note of bright color against the background of white walls, blackboards and grey woodwork.

Miss Todd and Miss K. Sutton received the guests, and the chair was taken by the president, Ewart Tucker. Miss Gladys Tucker and Lola Carley were the efficient accompanists during the programme. After an opening chorus, "The Maple Leaf," the minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Jean Burnham, and on motion adopted. Other numbers were:

Chorus—"The Old Clock," by the school choir: Muriel Matchett, Jean Burnham, Gladys Tucker, Alex. Johnston, Marjorie Sayles, Gertie Gray, Vera Weeks, Loretta Barnard, Jean Blake, Margaret Lang, Edna Gervan, Elizabeth Russell, Ewart Tucker, Ernest Burnham, Jacy Byam, Walter Sayles, Lawrence and Nelles Rowland, Jim Larmer and Keith Barnard.

Reading—"The Charge of the Light Brigade," as given by a boy, a minister and a Jew, by Muriel Matchett.

Wand Drill—By Hazel Armstrong, Jean Blake, Alex. Johnston, Jean Burnham, Gladys Tucker, Marjorie Sayles, Edna Gervan, Muriel Matchett, Vera Weeks, Anna Hawthorne, Elizabeth Russell and Dorothy Hall.

Reading—"Casey at the Bat," by Vera Weeks.

Piano Solo by Ewart Tucker.

Reading—"He Was There, and So Was I," by Mildred Brown.

Reading of the School Paper, "Fortnightly Star," by G. Gray.

Chorus—"Jingle Bells," by the choir. (This was a very effective number with whistling accompaniment by the boys in the chorus, and with sleigh-bells chiming in as the words required).

Round—"Sweet is the New-Mown Hay," by the choir.

Piano Solo by Gwen Hutchison.

At the invitation of the president the visitors took advantage of the opportunity of going over the new new addition to the school building some of the pupils acting as escorts. Two large, well-lighted class-rooms, library, science room, pupils' and teachers' cloak rooms, the latter equipped with first aid supplies in case of need, are on the first and second floors. In the basement are two large recreation rooms, with protected windows and lights, for use in cold and stormy weather, boiler room, etc.

The first edition of the "Fortnightly Star" under its new management, Foster Russell, editor, was on sale in the hall and many were pleased to take a copy of this bright paper home with them. The cover piece has the recently chosen M.C.S. coat-of-arms with the school motto, "Age, Quod, Agis," "Do what thou doest," prominently displayed. Editorials, current events, "Facts and Comments," "Things we would like to know," "Ups and Downs," "Skimmerings," notices, sports news, items of interest re former pupils, "See the Point?" etc., comprise the contents.

One of the leaders in the republican movement which resulted in the revolution of 1910 and the dethronement of King Manuel, Dr. Braga was the first man to head the Portuguese Republican Government. He served as provisional president, from October 5, 1910, to August 4 of the next year and was also the second duly elected president, succeeding Dr. Mammoel De Arriaga in May, 1915.

NEWS OF BETHANY AND THE DISTRICT.

BETHANY, Jan. 28.—The sudden death of James Davis, of Bowmanville, was learned with regret by a host of friends and relatives. Mr. Davis was a former Bethany boy, his brothers, John, William and Jeff, and a sister, Mrs. Boggs, of Manvers, left immediately on receipt of the news on Friday.

The storm and severe weather of Saturday prevented the rural mail carrier from making the trip.

Mr. Edward Bray is spending a few days with relatives in Toronto.

Mr. Leslie Lang has received the wood contract from the village school, the price being $9.20 a cord.

If the waste paper now burned were collected and reworked 300,000 acres of forest land could be saved and this paper would be worth $50,000,000 a year to the paper mills.

After some discussion the report was received and referred to the city auditor.

In the absence of the chairman of the board and implementing his remarks in connection with the financial statement, the secretary said: "I feel sure every member of this board will feel regret that Mr. Richard Hall, the chairman, is still confined to his home and unable to take an active part in the affairs of the hospital work, which in the past he performed with so much fidelity and zeal. I can say, however, that Mr. Hall is by no means unfamiliar with what is going on in hospital matters and he follows with close interest all that pertains to its welfare. His wise counsel is always at our disposal.

"The hospital has accommodated about the same number of patients this past year as of the previous year, about 1,450 in all, and, in all departments of the hospital activities a commendable degree of efficiency has been apparent. Mrs. Leeson, our lady superintendent, and her assistant, Miss Walsh, have been most faithful in their duties and have built up a loyal spirit among the nursing staff, which is reflected in the many kind words of appreciation spoken by those who have been patients in the hospital.

"During the year a class of six graduated from our training school and have joined the very considerable number who have graduated from our school, many of whom occupy prominent positions and stand well regarded in the profession. In the training school we may well appreciate the work of the members of the medical staff who are ever ready to assist with lectures and otherwise aid in giving the nurses the necessary training to fit them for their life work.

"Since our hospital became standardized progress has been made to meet the requirements and this feature is now working smoothly. During the year practically a new passenger elevator was installed and this greatly adds to the efficient handling of the patients.

"At no distant date the board will require to give consideration to the much-needed increased accommodation for our nursing staff, the present nurses' home is inadequate, and much valuable room in the hospital used for nurses could be utilized to a more lucrative purpose.

"It is worthy of note that the hospital is being used to a greater extent every year. By use of the hospital the home and home life is less disturbed when the patient is treated at the hospital than in the home. The increased demand upon the hospital have been reasonably well met in the past, but the time is not far distant when larger facilities will be required so that various various branches of the work can be segregated and more efficiency obtained. The Nicholls Hospital has been of immense service to the citizens of Peterborough, at a minimum of cost, for many years."

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Clive Roberts Barton

AN AWFULLY CLEAN RIDDLE

Sing a song of wash-day.

The Riddle Lady had another brand-new riddle ready next day, and it was a good thing she had, for a lot of company had come to Riddle Town from Mother Goose Land to try their luck at guessing.

Nancy and Nick helped Humpty Dumpty to receive them and say how-do-you-do and all that!

This was the riddle the Riddle Lady asked:

"Sing a song of wash-day,
A basket full of clothes,
A line hung with damp things
In long flopping rows.

"But, oh, without us, wash-day
Would be a useless thing,
About as foolish as a crown
That hasn't any king.

"We're not known for beauty,
Plain as we can be.
Wooden-heads they call us—
We're dumd, too, don't you see.

"Now you know who we are,
Now you know our name.
Though we're far from beautiful,
We're needed just the same.

"I and all my brothers
Ride one slender horse.
Poor thing's so thin he can't stand up,
So needs a prop, of course!

"We love the sun quite dearly,
But oh, we hate the rain.
Umbrellas we can't hold at all,
For we've no arms, it's plain.

"We've nice straight legs—we need them too!
To ride our steed so high,
For it's our job to hold on tight,
And see that the clothes get dry."

"I knew it! I just knew it!" cried a voice indignantly when the Riddle Lady had finished.

Everybody turned in surprise and were still more suprised to discover that it was the Maid-in-the-Garden who was doing the scolding.

"Here I am on my vacation and the first thing I hear is clothes-pins! For that's the answer, I'm as sure as anything. It can't be anything else. The king and the queen they sez to me this morning, sez they, 'Hannah, this is such a nice day, 'n all, and your nose being better 'n everything, leave off your washing and go to Riddle Land with us in our golden coach. It'll do you good to get away from your work for a spell!'"

"And so I came and here I am and the first thing I hear is clothes-pins. Ugh!"

The Riddle Lady smiled. "Oh, but you've guessed the answer and you get the prize," she said. "It's a new dress with lovely trimmings. You can wear it to church Sundays."

"Well, that's different!" declared the Maid-in-the-Garden in high good humor. "I'm glad I came."

Annivesarires CANADIAN

Jan. 29, 1895: Sir George Etienne Cartier, noted Canadian statesman, whose memory was honored on this date at Ottawa by the unveiling of a statue in the capital to perpetuate his name and deeds, was one of the Fathers of Confederation, he having carried his native province, Quebec, into the federation (1867) in the face of great opposition. He and Sir John A. MacDonald were joint Prime Ministers of Canada from 1858 to 1862. He was Minister of Militia and Defence in Sir John A. MacDonald's first cabinet.

Cartier took part in the Canadian rebellion of 1837 and was forced for a time to fly the country, but later he became a loyal subject of the British Crown. In 1848 he was elected to the Canadian Parliament and in the course of an exceptionally busy and useful life he occupied a number of important positions in the Dominion Government.

Sir Georges Cartier was noted as an advocate of the construction of railroads. The eventual success of the Grand Trunk railway and the resolve to construct the Canadian Pacific Railway were largely due to his energy and optimism. He died in May, 1873.

CHARLES MAURRAS GETS SIX MONTHS IN PRISON

PARIS, Jan. 29. — (Canadian Press).—Charles Maurras, political director of L'Action Francaise, the Royalist organ, had the sentence of three months in prison imposed in the Police Court last summer raised to six months by the Appeal Court yesterday. The three months' imprisonment was inflicted upon Maurras when he took the responsibility for the attacks by the King's Camelots, an organization of Royalist demonstrators, upon the Socialist Deputies, Sangnier and Moutet and Maurice Viollette, former Minister of Subsistence, whom the Camelots dosed with a nauseous drug and ddench with ink.

The attitude of Maurras before the Appeal Court offended the judges, especially his claiming "congratulations and thanks," instead of condemnation for the attacks. Hence, the doubling of the sentence.

XLV.

Mary's "headache" had continued for two days, but Clavering came to her house by appointment that same afternoon at five o'clock. She kept him waiting fully ten minutes, and wandered back and forth in her room upstairs with none of her usual eagerness to welcome him after even a brief separation. The violence of her revulsion had passed, but she was filled with a vast depression, apathetic, tired, in no mood for love-making. Nor did she feel up to acting, and Clavering's intuitions were often very inconvenient. He would never suspect the black turmoil of these past two days, nor its cause, but it would be equally disconcerting if he attributed her low spirits to the arrival of Hohenhauer. What a fool she had been to have made more than a glancing reference to that last old love-affair, almost forgotten until that night of stark revelation. She must have enjoyed talking about herself more than she had realized, unable to resist the temptation to indulge in imposing details. Or self-justification? Perhaps. It didn't matter, and he must have "placed" Hohenhauer at once this morning, and would imagine that she was depressed at the thought of meeting him. There was no one on earth she wanted to meet less, although she felt a good deal of curiosity as to the object of his visit to Washington.

She heard the maid in the dressing-room and was visited by an inspiration. She called in the woman, gave her a key and told her to go down to the dining-room and bring her a glass of curacoa from the wine-cupboard.

The liquor sent a glow of warmth through her veins and raised her spirits. Then, reflecting that Clavering never rushed at her in the fashion of most lovers, nor even greeted her with a perfunctory kiss, but waited until the mood for love-making attacked him suddenly, she took a last look at her new tea-gown of corn-flower blue chiffon and went down stairs with a light step.

"Shocking to keep you waiting," she said as they shook hands, "but I came in late. You'll stay to dinner, of course. I had an engagement but broke it, as I'm still feeling a little out of sorts."

"Never saw you look better. Nor in blue before. You look like a lily in a blue vase, or a snow maiden rising from a blue mist. Not that I'm feeling poetic today, but you do look ripping. What gave you a headache? I thought you scorned the ills of the flesh?"

"So I do, but I had spent three hours in Judge Trent's office that morning, and you know what these American men are. They keep the heat on no matter what the temperature outside, and every window closed. On Tuesday the sun was blazing in besides, and Judge Trent and the two other men I was obliged to confer with smoked cigars incessantly. It gave me the first headache I'd had for twenty years. I felt as if I'd been poisoned."

She looked up at him, smilingly, from her deep chair as he stood above her on the hearthrug. He didn't believe a word of it; he was convinced she had been advised of Hohenhauer's coming, and that for some reason the news had upset her; but he had no intention of betraying himself. Moreover, he didn't care. He was too intent on his own plans.

"The rest has done you good," he said, smiling also. "But as you were looking rather fagged before you came down with that two-days' headache, I made up my mind that you needed a change and dropped Din a hint to open his camp in the Adirondacks and give you a fare-

"'You must come dear', Mary."

well house-party. He jumped at the idea and it's all arranged. You'll have eight days of outdoor life and some sport, as well as a good rest. He's got a big comfortable camp on a beautiful lake, where we can boat and fish——"

"But Lee——" She was almost gasping.

"No buts. Not only do you need a rest before that long journey but I want these last days with you in the mountains where I can have you almost to myself. It seems to me sometimes that I do not know you at all—nor you me. And to roam with you in the woods during the day and float about that lake at night—it came to me suddenly like a foretaste of heaven. I couldn't stand the thought of the separation otherwise. Besides, here you'd be given a farewell luncheon or dinner every day until you sailed. I'd see nothing of you. And you'd be worn out. You must come, Mary dear."

Mary felt dimly suspicious, but it was possible that he had read his morning papers hastily, or that in his mental turmoil that night she had told him her story he had paid little attention to details, or forgotten them later. He certainly had never alluded to the man since. And this sudden impetuous plan was so like him that he needed no foreign impulse.

But she answered with some hesitation: "I'd like it, of course. And Judge Trent has nothing more for me to sign until the last minute. But—a woman always has a thousand things to do before going on a journey——"

"Your maid can do all that. And pack your trunks. She goes with you, doesn't she? And you'll only need warm sweaters and skirts up there. We never dress. You'll not need a maid."

"Well—but—do you mean to tell me that the whole thing is settled?"

"To the last detail. There'll be twelve of us, including Din."

"Really, Lee, you are high-handed. You might have consulted me first."

"No time to waste on argument. We'll only have a little over a week there as it is. It takes a day to go and another to return, and you'll need one day here in New York before you sail. I made up my mind you should go if I had to take you by force. I will have those last days in the Adirondacks."

Her faint resentment vanished and she felt a languid sense of well-being in this enveloping atmosphere of the tactless imperious male, so foreign to her experience; of freedom from the necessity for independent action; and the prospect was certainly enchanting. Moreover, she would be able to avoid seeing Hohenhauer in surroundings where this strange love-affair of her, had obliterated the past (for the most part!) and she had found, for a time at least, happiness and peace. She would see him in Vienna, of course, and she had no wish to avoid him there; no doubt they would work together and as impersonally as they had sometimes done in the past; but to see him here, even in the drawing-room, which held no sacred memories, would be but another and uglier blot on her already dimming idyl; and a subtle infidelity to this man whose every thought seemed to be of her in spite of all he had to inflame and excite his ego.

And if she remained and Hohenhauer wished to see her she could hardly keep on making excuses for nearly a fortnight. So she merely smiled up at Clavering, who was gazing down at her intently, and said softly, "Of course I'll go. I always have sport things in my wardrobe and I think it a wonderful idea. Now tell me who is going. Miss Dwight, I suppose—and hope. And the De Witt Turners?" Madame Zattiany had no respect whatever for the Lucy Stone League, and invariably forgot the paternal names of the emancipated young wives of the men she found interesting.

"They can't get away. Gora, yes; and Rolly Todd, the Boltons, the Minors, Eva Darling, Babette Gold, Gerald Scores."

"Miss Darling is rather a nuisance. She flung her arms around me the other night at the Minors' and left a pink kiss on my neck. She was very tight. Still, she is amusing, and a favorite of Din's."

"I would have submitted the list to you in the first place, darling, but I know I should have to take what I could get on such short notice. The only two I really care about are Gora and Todd. But there wasn't a moment to lose. I wish to heaven I'd thought of it before, but that play had to be finished, and it looked as if the date of your sailing might be postponed, after all."

St. John's Vestry Meeting

The Annual meeting of St. John's was held last evening in the Parish House at 8 o'clock. After opening prayers and reading of the minutes the wardens' report was presented by Major S. T. Medd on behalf of himself as People's Warden and Mr. George Boucher as Vicar's Warden The financial statement, carefully prepared by Mr. G. A. Smith, vestry clerk, was very satisfactory and encouraging. All current obligations for the year were met, with a balance on the right side. Considerable repairs were done to the rectory during the year and additional insurance placed on the church property. The remaining debt upon church improvement was wiped out, and the mortgage against the rectory reduced by $800.00. All extra parochial obligations were fully met and a balance against this year's increased assessment for these objects. Reports that followed from the various organizations of the church beginning with the Sunday School showed them to be in a flourishing condition. The Rev. M. R. Kingsford was introduced and his appointment heartily welcomed and approved by the vestry.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH REIMBURSE LADIES

Definite Action Taken at the Annual Meeting of the Church.

In reference to an article that appeared in yesterday's paper regarding the two fur coats stolen from the choir-room of St. Paul's Church and the reimbursement of the ladies for their losses, it was definitely stated to-day by an official of the church that the matter was brought up at the annual meeting and on motion of Mr. James Dutton and Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, it was decided to reimburse the ladies who lost their coats. This motion carried unanimously. On the strength of this action one of the ladies has already purchased a new coat and the other has by no means declared that she will not accept it contrary to yesterday's report.

IF RHEUMATIC BEGIN ON SALTS

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure, Eat No Sweets

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat no sweets of any kind for a while, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of Jad Salts occasionally to help keep down uric and toxic acids.

Rheumatism is caused by poison toxins, called acids, which are generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this poison, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove body waste also to stimulate the kidneys, thus helping to rid the blood of these rheumatic poisons.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

In Oregon alone is found one-fifth of the standing timber in the United States.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor, Examiner.

Dear Sir,—About two weeks ago I was in St. Catharines, Ontario, to hear the musical programme provided by Mr. Allen, late organist of St. Paul's church here. The tenor soloist was Mr. Alfred Heather, who was for nine years principal tenor at Westminster Abbey, London, England. Mr. Heather is, without doubt, the finest tenor singer that I have heard on this continent, excepting John McCormack.

Mr. Hector Charlesworth, the dean of all Canadian musical critics, stated in the Toronto "Saturday Night," after hearing Mr. Heather sing, that no other tenor in America could have sung the parts equal to Mr. Heather.

Mr. Heather will appear in recital at the Peterborough Conservatory of Music, on Tuesday, February 5th. I have no financial interest in the recital, My only hope is that a large number of music lovers will tray and hear this artist, as his recital will be a musical feast for the music-lovers of the city.

Yours truly,
Walter Stocker.

Editor the Examiner:

Sir,—It is quite plain, from what is made public, that the prevalence of that dread disease, consumption is alarmingly on the increase. In the work of the Local Board of the Mother's Allowances Commision we come in contact with this scourge (in consultation with those of families in which it prevails) to an alarming extent. Four to five applications for possible assistance within the last four weeks.

While the Local Board is not to seek cases in which assistance on any or all grounds is needed, it seems quite proper that conditions under which assistance may be given should be brought to attention and especially with regard to this particular affliction. More often than not it attacks some man who has others depending on him, and more frequently it is the father rather than the mother, if there be children in the family. Possibly because the man, in the course of his occupation comes more directly in contact with those afflicted and while moving about and employed are of the class known as carries. Such shed infection unknowingly.

To a man so afflicted it is natural to suggest that he be sent to some place for treatment. Going there involves a serious expense, and the family very often cannot find the money. Private assistance may be sought, for except in a minor way, public assistance is not at hand, as yet, to cope with the relatively large number of cases. In the fiscal year of the Commission ((1921-22), the returns show that in cases of application made by widows, with children, that the cause of death of the husband (consumption) exceeded overwhemingly all other causes, aided by its twin brothers pneumonia and influenza.

The wife who wishes to make application for assistance under such circumstances as within the Act and rules must be the wife of a man who is permanently disabled and incapable of contributing to the support of his family. And have in her care and support one or more children. The minimum number of children as allowed by the Act and to entitle a widow to benefits is fixed at two. But in cases such as above referred to it is taken that the circumstances of a wife are more onerous with an incapacitated man on her hands that with another child. So one child must be in care

In some respects the basis of the allowance being granted by the State for assistance to widows with children applies. That when a widow with dependent children is forced into the labor market, parental supervision is withdrawn to a great extent from the children. The Mother's allowance is granted in order to get back this parental supervision by keeping her at home.

And this is to be considered in the case of a man incapacitated, and the father of one or more children, though unable to work for pay, is able to be about the house and assist in the home work that he may give the parental supervision while the mother becomes, if advsable, the wage earner. If the man is so wholly helpless as to be a charge on his wifes' time and strength to the extent of preventing her going out to work, she is considered as eligible for an allowance, subject, of course, to other provisions of the Act. But in cases, as noted above, of an incapacitated husband, from any of several causes, one child is considered as meeting the requirements of the Act. A helpless husband is ever the equivalent of a young child, so far as claim on the attention of the mother is concerned.

Such cases should be brought to the attention of the Local Board of the Mother's Allowances Commission, and may be laid before any member of the Board or handed to the Secretary. Immediate attention will be given to such intimations. There are cases where those concerned have a natural diffidence in making known circumstances, but some one other than those of the family may know, and take action.

The office of the secretary of the Local Board is now at the Y.M.C.A. building, with the secretary in attendance during afternoon. Or may be called up by phone.

Respectfully,
F. H. DOBBIN,
Secretary Local Board.

The following letter is from the Ottawa Citizen of January 26th:

THAT POLITICAL PROPAGANDA

Editor, Citizen: I have taken practically no part in politics since I contested West. Peterboro for the House of Commons in November, 1900. My business has taken me to almost every electoral district in Ontario during 1923, but I would not venture to break silence now if I were not convinced that a crude Conservative propaganda was in operation to deceive the public with the results in Halifax and Kent, N. B., as bases for the action. In the last federal campaign about 25 months ago, "Canada wants Meighen" was the rallying call. His party was marching to extinction, then as now, when all this noise was heard. Six of the nine provinces rejected every Conservative candidate and the policy of high protection. Out of 235 seats they carried less than 50. The next House, after re-distributione will have 245 members, and I seriously doubt if the Meighen Conservatives will be able to hold the 50 seats they now have. I find that it was the Independent Tories who banished Hearst in 1919, and the Progressive Liberals in Ontario who rejected Drury last June.

As regards by-elections. I find by the records that when Laurier came to office in 1896, he and his ministers were elected by acclamation, but soon after the Liberals lost many by-elections. These included East Simcoe, Ont., Champlain, Que., Sherbrooke, Que., the two former in 1897. Hon. James Sutherland succeeded when all the others had failed to induce Hon. William Harty to accept nomination in Kingston soon after the election in 1900. No other Liberal could have been elected then to succeed Mr. Brittain. In the 10th parliament which followed the Liberals did not contest the by-elections in Carleton, where Mr. R. L. Borden was provided with a seat, or in Toronto Center which became vacant by the death of Mr. E. F. Clark. The Liberals lost North Renfrew, London, Ont. (Hon. C. S. Hyman retired), Northumberland, Ont., North Essex Ont., Dufferin Ont., but the present prime minister, Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, was returned by acclamation in 1909 in North Waterloo. No national significance was attached to any of these by-elections. Laurier believed that the young men of Ontario and particularly the Mackenzie, Blake, Mowatt Liberals would welcome young

What happened when the Borden-Meighen administrations were in power from 1911 to 1921? Did they carry all the by-elections? Their series of defeats has no parallel. Commencing with South Renfrew in Feb. 1912 (Thos. Low made some bargain with Thos. W. McGarry and the seat was opened), and won by Hon. Geo. P. Graham. Then followed South Bruce; Glengarry and Stormont; Ontario North; Assiniboia, Sask.; East Elgin, Ont.; Temiskaming, Ont.; West Peterboro; Medicine Hat, Alberta., all were lost by the Conservative governments and many seats were vacant when, under threats of violence, with tar and feathers for the M.P.'s if they would not resign, dissolution was announced in December, 1921. When thus forced to surrender, the ministers and leaders made a stampede for the senate. Messrs. Kemp of Toronto, Reid of Prescott, Foster of Toronto, Calder of Saskatchewan, all with the permission of their masters, the Canadian Northern Railway, reached the senate. Are these the gentlemen that the taxpayers are longing to have again in power? Everywhere I find men complaining of taxes and the cost of government and high living. Can we wonder at it? The Meighen government took $3,000,000 out of the Treasury on an alleged claim of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co.; they also handed Sir Chas. Ross $2,000,000 on a spurious demand; the books in Sir Henry Thornton's office will prove that the old board of the Canadian National Railways, were only middlemen for big firms outside who were selling steel rails, coal, oil, freight and passenger cars, locomotives, and everything required by a great system. Was it any wonder the railway deficits climbed higher every year? The Conservation researchers in the fields, it was charged in the House, first reported all discoveries to promoters who took the projects to New York money managers, and were later recorded in the department of the interior or mines. Do we want these gentlemen back to finish their work? The Conservative party with such a record should have some sense of shame. I am no longer young, but I am anxious to see a policy introduced that will keep our people in Canada, keep the young people on the land; keep the factories running full time.—Jos. H. McClellan, Ottawa, Jan. 25, 1924.

VESTRY MEETING OF ALL SAINTS' CHURCH

Church Had a Very Successful Year—New Rector Expected Soon.

The annual vestry meeting of All Saints' Church was held last evening, with Mr. W. H. Buller in the chair, in the absence of a Rector. The reports read indicated that the year just closed has been one of progress for the church. In an address to the gathering, Mr. Buller intimated that it would not be long until a new rector was secured, succeeding Rev. R. B. Grobb, who left for a new field of labor early in the month. Mr. F. H. Dawson was re-elected auditor, and Mr. John Davidson was elected to a similar post. All the old officers were retained in their present offices until an adjourned meeting of the Vestry Board is called by the chairman and pending the appointment of a rector. The financial report was read by Mr. R. J. Bolton, the treasurer's and Sunday school superintendent's report were both read by Mr. James Price, the Women's Auxiliary by Mrs. Tucker, the Women's Guild by Mrs. Detcher, the Evening Branch by Mrs. Brown, and the Junior Branch by Miss Tucker, the special committee on missions by Mr. Boddy, the A.Y.P.A. by Mr. Hope, and the choir by Mr. George Chandler.

Still doing Great Work For Women

What Mrs. Vaillancourt Says of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

She had Suffered from Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gravel and Backache, and found relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

DILL SIDING, Ont., Jan 28. — (Special.) — One more tribute to the great work Dodd's Kidney Pills are doing for the women of Canada comes from Mrs. Frank Vaillancourt well known and highly respected here.

"I have suffered for 14 years from a complication of kidney troubles, and have never found any remedy that has done me as muc good as your Dodd's Kidney Pills have. There was a friend of mine who was feeling very poorly and I told her of the good Dodd's Kidney Pills did for me. She used three boxes and is feeling fine now."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are a kidney remedy. They relieve the work of the heart by putting the kidneys in shape to strain out all the impurities out of the blood. Pure blood carried to all parts of the body means new health all over the body.

STORMY TIMES AMONG MINERS

Delegates Howled Down When They Attempt to Speak — Help For Mrs. Mooney.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 29. —Progress was impeded by addition al controversy in the United Mine Workers convention yesterday over seating of delegates backed by the insurgents. However, delegates generally were restive, and late this afternoon howled down one insurgent who took the platform to speak for a shorter working day.

President John L. Lewis pounded for order without effect, after asking for cooperation, adding that the talk being delivered was "as hard on the chair as on the delegates." Six times the insurgent, John Watt, of Springfield, Ills., attempted to finish his speech and as many times howls—"Help! Help!" drowned out his voice. With the seventh attempt he gave up.

Insurgents scored one victory. They counted as such the seating of Nick Perkovich, of Dowell, Ills., over the credential committees adverse report. They were beaten in the second contest over Mr. John McGraw of Scammon, Kansas, who was a lieutenant for Alexander Howatt, in the fight on the Kansas industrial court law, whose seat was contested on the ground that he had worked during the national strike two years ago. He was unseated by a vote of 950 to 711.

Mrs. Tom Mooney appeared before the convention and secured $1,000 for the campaign to get pardons for her husabnd and Warren K. Billings, in prison in California, for their alleged connection with the bomb throwing in the San Francisco Preparedness Day parade, several years ago.

Among the resolutions adopted yesterday were the following:

Favoring removal of all troops from Germany; condemning William Z. Foster and his campaign as "a smoke screen for Communism;" annouincing determination to take "no reduction in wages;" refusing to ask that May 1 be declared a legal holiday; instructing international officers to aid the postal employees in their fight for re-classification; condemnation of labor injunctions and directing all locals to cooperate with the American Federation of Labor in advising all Congressmen of their demand for anti-injunction legislation; demanding amendment of work men's compensation laws to include relief for miners afflicted with "miners' asthma;" condemning activities of Thomas Myerscough, of Pittsburgh, Pa., member of "Progressive Miners' Committee;" referring request of North Dakota district for financial help from international headquarters, to International Executive Board, and refusing to go on record as in favor of denying issuance of further local charters.

A NEW CONSERVATIVE HEADQUARTERS OPENED

MONTRÉAL, Jan. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Speaking at a meeting at which the new Conservative headquarters were opened in this city last night, Hon. Rodolphe Monty stated that the Liberals had promised that the Canadian National Railways would be returned to private ownership. Instead of this, he declared that they began by dismissing the former board of commission of the railway and had appointed Sir Henry Thornton, a foreigner, at a salary of fifty thousand dollars a year, whose first undertaking was to acquire a private railway car at a cost of ninety-eight thousand dollars.

CANADA'S FLORIDA

So loud are California and Florida press agents in their praises of their native States that there are many Canadians who do not know that Victoria, B.C., almost rivals those States as a winter resort. Here, the temperature is even and fairly warm throughout the winter, and many pleasure craft may be seen darting in and out of the bay. This view shows the southern end of the harbour, with the C.P.R. docks on the left, and the wharves of the Grand Trunk Pacific on the right.

NEWBURG WOMAN WHO SUED TORONTO BROKER APPEARS IN A NEW ROLE

Was the Central Figure in a Cafe Brawl—Countess Von Motz Among Those Present.

ACCUSED OF VAMPING

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 29.—(Special.)— Countess Helen Von Motz, her sister, Mrs. John A. Sheehan woh before her marriage was Marg A. Keef, prominent in local society and the Countess 'suitor, Sarra Vacarro, are being held in the district court at Chelsea on serious charges growing out of the alleged cheek slashing of Miss Dorothy Newburg, of Lynn, plaintiff in a recent breach of promise action in which she was awarded $10,000 against Russell T. Scott, of Toronto.

The assault upon Miss Newburg, an exceedingly brutal one ,occurred at the Superior Winter Garden at Revere, Sunday evening.

Miss Newburg appeared in court swathed in bandages, her mouth and one eye only being visible. According to the testimony of physicians, the young woman was slashed three times with a razor, two of the cuts, unusually deep, extending from the bridge of the nose in a semi-circle to the right ear, the remaining one from the right eye to the shoulder. She also suffered a slight stab wound in the back, a knife failing to penetrate her corsets.

The Countess, a former Follies and Broadway star, was charged with assault with attempt to kill and carrying a dangerous weapon. Her sister pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault. Cacarro was charged with assault upon Mrs. Sheehan's husband, who was Miss Newburg's escort and with the carrying of a gun.

The fight, which called out the police reserves and ended with the arrest of the defendants after a sensational two and a half mile auto chase, followed an unexpected meeting in the Revere Cafe between the Countess' sister and the latter's husband.

Vaccarro, who was arrested in December and sentenced to one year's imprisonment for slashing the Countess across the face with a razor when she refused to marry him, brought the Countess and Mrs. Sheehan to the restaurant in an automobile.

The Countess and Mrs. Sheehan picked out one of the few vacant tables next door to the Crescent Garden ball-room and found themselves neighbors to Mr. John Sheehan, the husband in the case, and the pretty Newburg girl from Lynn.

"For pity sake," the Newburg girl is quoted by the Countess as saying, "I don't see why we should stay here."

Just what followed, witnesses were unable to agree, but razors and guns, it was admitted, flashed. According to the testimony, the Countess, stunned, replied to Miss Newburg.

"Well, young woman, you have your nerve sitting there with a married man, the husband of my sister here, whom you well know."

Miss Newburg, the Countess alleges, then threw a glass of water at her. Sheehan, pushing his wife aside, hit the Countess a severe blow in the jaw, while Vaccarro drew his gun.

Sheehan engaged Vaccarro while the three women struggled on the floor. As the police whistles blew the defendants hastily departed, leaving Sheehan with Miss Newburg, who was terribly slashed.

According to Miss Newburg, the two women assaulted her, the Countess with the razor, and Mrs. Sheehan with a dagger. Sheehan attempted to protect her, while Vaccarro with his gun, tried to separate the infuriated women. Disinterested spectators bear the young woman's statements out.

According to the Countess, who resides in a fashionable Parkway apartment, the Newburg girl attempted to win her fiance, Vaccarro, away from her, and nearly succeeded. Failing in this she turned to Sheehan, who because of trouble over her at home, left his wife.

Mrs. Sheehan declared in court to-day that the Newburg girl had broken up her home and won her husband away from her.

AN ORGAN RECITAL ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

Excellent Program Provided by the Organist and Choir.

An organ and choir recital was given in St. John's church on Sunday, January 27th, after the evening service. An excellent programme was given by the organist and choir master, Mr. Mann, in which he displayed wonderful technique, especially in the "Jubilate Deo" by "Silver" "Aria in F" by J. S. Bach and "Prelude in G Minor" by A. W. Bach, which gave him full scope as a master of the instrument. The "Anvil Chorus" from Il Trovatore and "Tannhauser's Evening Star" were handled with great skill. The 'Wilderness" by Goss being the number given by the choir was exceptionally good, the marks of expression being particularly noticeable through out. The Recitatives sung by Mr. Melton, Bass and Mr. Morphet, Tenor were well rendered in good voice, the trio consisting of Messrs. F. C. Roberts, Alto, W. Gray, Tenor, and D. Eldred Bass was sung in splendid voice is being a very difficult part to accomplish. The duett by Miss Quartermaine and Mr. T. Jackson, "The Crucifix" by Faure was executed fine, both singing in very clear enunciation and tone. The programme was as follows:

1. (a) Aria in F, J. S. Bach.
(b) Prelude in G. Minor, A. W. Bach.
2. Duett, "The Crucifix" Faure. Miss R. Quartermaine, Mr. T. Jackson.
3. (a) The Anvil Chorus (Il Trovatore), Verdi.

PAGEANT PLAY IS REPEATED WITH A GOOD ATTENDANCE

Under the Auspices of the B. Y. P. U. of the Park Street Baptist Church

The B.Y.P.U. of Park street Baptist church repeated their pageant, "The Light of the World," by special request, in Victoria Hall last evening. There was a fairly good crowd in attendance, and much applause greeted the presentation of the pretty pageant, which tells in delightful fashion the story of the spread of Christianity, "The Light of the World," by various means, throughout the world.

An interesting musical programme included two vocal quartettes by the Misses L. and M. Eastwood, Dr. S. J. Graham and Mr. Robert Graham, entitled "His Work of Love" and Hallelujah"; a duet by Miss L. Eastwood and Dr. Graham, "Day is Dying in the West"; a vocal solo by Miss L. Eastwood, "The Voice in the Wilderness," and a violin selection by Miss Kathie Taylor

The principal characters in the cast of the pageant are: G. Stobo as Isiah, B. Robinson and Geo. Nicholls as prophets, A. Thompson, M. Dunkley and H. Goodwin as the three Magi Kings, R. Jones, G. Inkpen and C. Bradley, as their three attendants, Mrs. A. Russell as the Madonna, D Goodwin, Mrs. N. Porter and E. Pilling as her three attendants ,R. Follis, A. Moore and H. PETERBORO BONSPIEL OFF TO A GOOD START WITH RECORD ENTRIES

Forty-Nine Rinks Take the Ice in Morrow Trophy Competition—Mayor Turner Opened the 'Spiel.

TODAY'S DRAWS

Mayor J. J. Turner figuratively pressed the button this morning that opened the Peterboro Bonspiel, the premier curling event in Central Ontario which is this year launched on the best session in its history.

Forty-nine rinks are entered in what promises to be a series of keen competitions, and given good ice there should be nothing lacking in providing a tournament that will long be remembered by the followers of the Scotch national game.

In his usual happy manner His Worship the Mayor welcomed the visiting curlers, and uregd the best team to go in and win.

George Morow is chairman of the Bonspiel Committee, and the Morrow cup and Matthews cup draws were made by Dr. J. N. Harvey.

President Walter J. Oke, of the local club, personallo welcomed the visitors, and gave them the freedom of the Peterboro quarters during their stay.

By 9:30 the first draws in the Morrow Cup competition had been completed and the curlers were off to a good start. Seven ices on Charlotte street and five at Brock street accommodated at one time 24 rinks of 96 players.

J. H. Renwick arranged the schedule, holding a strong position in the club room. He reported the following rinks entered: Peterboro, 13; Keene, 3; Lindsay, 6; Norwood 2; Lakefield, 5; Oshawa, 5; Bobcaygeon 3; Port Hope, 1; Campbellford, 2; Claremont, 2; Orillia, 2; Agincourt, 2; Locust Hill, 1; Toronto Oakwood 1; Unionville, 1.

O'Connor of Lindsay had the highest total of points, 20, and W. J. Oke and G. Lancaster were low with 4 each.

Only one extra end was reported, when R. F. Downey and P. J. Kelly were tied at the end of the twelfth, and the Campbellford skip drew ahead in the extra, topping the Peterboro representative by one point.

E. E. Hare of Oshawa, described by those who knew him best as an extraordinarily good man with a splendid rink, was beaten 10 to 7 by F. G. Smith of Campbellford.

J. E. Anderson of Lindsay, winner last year of the Morrow trophy, came out six points ahead of A. M. Germond, and a strong rink from Oshawa ending 14 to 8

One of the surprises of the forenoon, was the elimination of R. P. Best of Peterboro, by W. C. George, of Orillia.

LONDON, Jan. 28—Late to-night when there had appeared to be a hopeless deadlock in the railway strike situation, there came an announcement that a joint conference had begun at ten o'clock between the railway managers, the mediation committee of the Trades Union Congress, and J. Bromley, Secretary of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen and three members of the Executive Committee of the Associated Society.

At a late hour the conferees were still in sesesion and the hope was expressed that the deliberations would lead to a settlement of the controversy.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

A Concert Given by the Young People of the Methodist Church.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 29.—The concert given by the young people of the Methodist Church was well attended, and an excellent programme was given. After the opening hymns and prayer the business was taken up. The League received with regret word of the nervous breakdown of the missionary, Rev. R. McWilliams, of Japan, whom they help to support. It was decided to send a letter from the League to Mr. McWilliams, telling him of its sympathy and wishing him a return of his usual good health. Mr. McWilliams is at present at Grafton. The programme was as follows:

Opening chorus (two part) — Girls and Boys of the League.

Reading—'The Deacon's Verdict,' Miss Jessie Lisle.

Solo—"One Fleeting Hour," Mrs. C. W. Turner.

Reading—"How Old Mose Counted the Eggs," Mr. Thos. Craighead.

Solo—"If You Gambol in the Game of Love," Miss Ruth Taylor.

Address—"Conversations," Rev. W. Elliott.

"The human voice has a wonderful part to play in conversations," said Mr. Elliott. Some voices have a great variety of tone. In our conversations, we can do much to irritate or calm, etc.

Solo—"Daddy," Miss Nellie M. Hoover.

Reading—"It Takes a Man to Be Brave," Mr. Claude Duncalfe.

Solo—"Keep on Hopin'," Mrs. E. Bates

Mr. Arthur Collison and Mrs. Turner played the accompaniments on the piano.

The amount of the collection was eleven dollars.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Reynolds, of Toronto, are visiting Mrs. Reynold's mother, Mrs. Wm. Arnold, at Petherick's Corner.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

The supply of buildings and the expenses of the landlord are two factors entering into the determination of rents, which are affected by tax exempt securities and high taxes.

Why should a wealthy landlord invest his money in buildings with all the consequent worry and work, when he can buy tax exampt bonds with just as high a yield and nothing to worry about? Evidently tax exempt securities absorb money from rich men which might have gone into building, thus removing a factor which would have tended to increase the supply of buildings and lower rents.

About 35 per cent of the wealth of the country is in real estate. Yet real estate pays from 65 to 75 per cent of the total taxes. The outlook for a reduction in federal taxes is good, but state and local taxes are increasing rapidly. If the landlord pays more taxes, he will want more rent.

Of course taxes and rich builders are not the deciding factors in rents, but apparently, as far as they are concerned, rents will tend upwards.

The Pan-American oil issues were again heavily offered, breaking to around the low levels of the current reaction. But the domestic oils were sustained by further gasoline price advances by Standard Oil of New Jersey and Louisiana.

The rails displayed more uniform strength than the industrials, New York Central and Chesapeake and Ohio being in demand at the best levels of the current rise.

President Erskine of Studebaker Corporation sent a wire denying current rumours that price reductions were contemplated.

The motors started a brisk rally toward the close of the first hour under the leadership of Studebaker, which snapped back to 102 3-8 up 2 1-4 from Monday's low. CANADIAN HOCKEY TEAM CHAMONIX FAVOURITES Brilliant Work in the Overwhelming Defeat of Czecho-Slovakia Showed They Have Nothing to Fear From European Teams.

CHAMONIX, France, Jan. 28. — Canada rules favorite in the hockey division of Olympic Winter Sports as a result of the brilliant work of the Canadian team in winning its game to-day against Czecho-Slovakia. The score, 30 to 0, demonstrated that the Canadians have little to fear from the European teams as the Czech-Slovakians are rated among the best here.

It has been expected that Canada would meet only one dangerous contender for world's hockey honors—the United States. This team, while it won a game against Belgium to-day in impressive fashion, showed a weakness in team play that drew the censure of its manager and the expressed opinion that less individual effort and more combination would be required if the United States was to have a chance against the Canadian puck-chasers.

Belgium went down to defeat before the United States, 19 to 0. Canadians found considerable satisfaction in comparing this with the 30 to 0 defeat the Dominion imposed on Czecho-Slovakians. The latter are rated considerably above the Belgians

In the third game of the day Sweden defeated Switzerland, 9 to 0, after a mediocre exhibition game of hockey.

To-morrow the Canadains will face the Swiss. The United States will play its next game against France

Comparing Teams.

Observers following to-day's games were busy comparing the Canadian and United States' teams. Manager Haddock of the United Sttaes 'team was one of the first to comment in an unfavorable vein over the showing of the team. The Canadians, he said, showed smooth team play, whereas the efforts of the players from the United States were mostly devoted to individual dashes down the ice. His team, he said, must revert to the passing game if they want to defeat the Canadians.

The Canadian team got away to a flying start in to-day's encounter and at the end of the first period had their opponents on the short end of an 8-0. score

WILLS UNAWARE OF FIRPO BOUT

Says Reported Deal Is News to Him — Hand Badly Broken Will Keep Him Out For Several Months.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., January 29 (Canadian Press). — If Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, is matched to box Luis Angel Firpo, it is news to him. Wills said yesterday he had never heard of Lewis Raymond, representative of a New York syndicate, who is reported to have signed Firpo and Wills for a 15-round bout.

It will be out of the question for Wills to think of even lacing on a glove for the next two months, his physician stated.

Wills has a badly broken right hand, one of the large bones between the wrist and fingers being shattered.

Wills broke his hand last week in New York while training for his bout with Bartley Madden, scheduled for 5th February.

The bout was postponed until 25th February, but the condition of Wills' hand is such, said the physician, that either another postponement or cancellation will be necessary.

TWO HIGH SPOTS IN VARIED CAREER OF BILL DONOVAN, FAMOUS PITCHER

The tragic death of William E. ("Wild Bill") Donovan, former star major league pitcher, recalls the sensational fight the Detroit Tigers made for the American League pennant in the 1907 season.

Donovan was the star of the Tiger hurling staff that campaign. And it was due mainly to his great work on the mound that Detroit copped its initial gonfalon in the majors. Mullin, Killian and Siever rounded out the pitching corps. But the "Smiler" was the big noise.

That season Donovan hung up the second best record in the history of the junior circuit. He won 25 games and lost but four, an average of .862 Joe Wood's 34 victories and five defeats in 1912 for an .872 mark alone topping Donovan's remarkable performance that year.

When Detroit started on its final swing around the eastern section in September, 1907, it was running second to the Athletics. There appeared to be no chance hardly of beating the Mackmen to the flag. At least it was a remote chance to say the least. But the Tigers, however, were out to make the most of their opportunities.

Their first eastern stand happened to be at Philadelphia. The series loomed as a battle to the finish. A clean sweep would put the Tigers right on the Mackian heels. Defeat would practically mean elimination from the chase. Incidentally, there had been no love lost between the two factions for some time.

The first game of that hectic clash went to the Tigers, 5 to 4. Then came that never-to-be-forgotten 17-inning affair which ended 9 to 9. In that game the Detroit team overcame a six-run lead to knot the figures; then fell two behind, only to tie it up again in the ninth. In the eleventh Detroit shoved over a run and the fray looked safe but the foe evened up things again in its half when Davy Jones, playing left field, dropped an easy pop fly in the sun.

Donovan pitched the entire 17 innings that afternoon and was the big hero in a game which has been described as the most thrilling since the inception of the American League. And the Tigers' great uphill fight in that fracas started the team on a winning rampage in which 11 out of 13 tilts, all played on the road, were won. The sensational windup gave Detroit its first American League banner.

In 1908 and 1909 Detroit again won the pennant. And each time Donovan had a great deal to do in bringing the flag to the Automobile City. In 1908 it was Donovan who was sent in to grab the gonfalon for Detroit in the final game of the season with the White Sox. Victory for either team would gain the honors. Donovan was equal to the occasion, too, sending the foe to an 8 to 0 defeat.

UMPIRE HILDERBRAND'S UNIQUE EXPERIENCE

IN the minors when a player offends, it is the duty of the umpire to levy a fine. Such a thing is a rather common occurrence in the bushes as the players do not always agree with the umpire. In this connection, George Hilderbrand of the American League staff of umpires believes he holds the distinction if it can be sol classed, of being the only umpire ever fined by a brother official. Here is the way Hildebrand tells it.

"When I was working in the Pacific Coast League, prior to coming to the American, I was doubled up with umpire Finney in a series at Los Angeles. Finney was working the plate. He had an unusually close decision to give that went against the home team and the Los Angeles club crowded around him to protest.

"The kick was a particularly strenuous one and the game was being unnecessarily delayed. Believing that I might help Finney out of his trouble I walked to the plate, and in a rather rough voice shouted:

"Come one Finney, get the game started, this thing is beginning to look like a farce." Finney had been threatening to fine the players it seems and when I came through with my sarcastic comment, he was all set, and in a decidedly peeved voice replied.

"That will just cost you ten." Of course Finney had no idea he was fining me. The incident got a big laugh from the athletes, who immediately resumed play. An umpire fined by his partner broke up the indignation meeting.

"I don't think it is necessary to add that Finney remitted the fine in the dressing room after the game."

BOWLING

LADIES ROLL BIG SCORES IN LAMP COMPETITION

Yesterday at Solomon's Alleys, while rolling for the lamp prize, Miss M. Ross set up a record high single game for the city when she rolled the wonderfully high score of 240 for a single game.

Miss J. Moffatt when rolling yesterday run up a high single of 196, which is no mean score either.

Miss G. Coon also rolled the beautiful score of 193 for her single game.

The above scores are only the high ones that were rolled but many others not quite so good were set up by different ladies. Just glance over those three scores and weep. Why they are high enough to beat scores set up by some of the male bowlers. It will not be long before the ladies will be bowling big scores for three games and with five good bowlers could put up a team that would beat most any male team in the city.

CARL HAYES ROLLS NICE SCORE IN TEN PINS

Yesterday afternoon Carl Hayes while rolling ten pins, rolled a nice high single game of 289. Hayes counted nine in his first frame and then made eleven strikes in a row in that game and started off his next game with a strike. Had he got the strike he started off his second game with in his first game, he would have rolled the possible.

CITY TEN PIN LEAGUE

Last night at Solomon's Alleys there was turned in some of the highest scores ever rolled in the City Ten Pin League, when the High Rollers took three straight from the De Laval.

The High Rollers sure lived up to their name when they rolled 2696 for their three games. They were just short four pins of rolling 2700 They rolled a high single game of 996, just four pins short of 1,000. This smashes every known record for ten pins at Solomon's Alleys and sure is big league rolling. It is no easy feat for a team to roll just four pins shy of a thousand in ten pins, but that's what the High Rollers did.

Solomon had the high three games of the evening rolling a lovely score of 662. Four of the High Rollers were well over the five hundred mark, namely: Solomon 622, Roberts 569, Miller 522, Hayes 506. Murray of the De Laval was highest for the losers having 526. Roberts had the high single of 522. Following are the scores:

De Laval—

MERCANTILE LEAGUE

Last night at Solomons' Alleys in the Mercantile Five Pin League, the Lockworks surprised the Western Clock gang by taken two out of three from them. Some good scores were rolled, Page getting the high three games of the evening rolling 527. Thomas rolled 514 for his three and Yelland 507 for his. Thomas had the high single of 235. Following are the scores:

ANOTHER ARMY LAD TRAILS DEMPSEY

AD STONE, FISTIC PRODUCT OF WAR, HAS EARMARKS OF REAL STAR.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 29.—The next time one of those petulant pacifists tries to end a debate on the spoils of war by demanding to know, in his characteristic manner, just what in the heck America got out of the European rumpus, anyhow, shut him up this way:

"A couple of pretty fair prize fighters."

Now, maybe this isn't much to brag about and possibly it isn't exactly what the idealists had in mind when they set out to make the world safe for democracy, but it's something—especially in a country that has developed a million-dollar fight appetite.

We'll pass lightly over Bob Martin, Augie Ratner, Babe Asher and Sergeant Ray Smith, fistic products of the war, who shone with a sort of patriotic splendor right after the armistice, and then faded into obscurity.

Gene Tunney, too, needs no further introduction, though the light heavyweight champion of the A.E.F. and present holder of the same title among American professionals figures rather importantly in this yarn.

We come now to Stanley Adam Stone, young Philadelphian, who is currently making startling and significant gestures in the 175-pound division, having decisively conquered opposition of the calibre of Mike Burke and Billy Shade, not to mention others more or less formidable.

Has Dempsey's Style.

Ad Stone, as he is known to the ring, enlisted and went overseas with two other brothers, Enoch and William, both fighters. Enoch, as "Battling Ryan," made quite a creditable record as a middleweight in Pennsylvania. Enoch was badly wounded and forced to retire. William was more fortunate and now serves as Ad's sparring partner.

Stone was a mere youth when he maneuvered himself into the army. Today he is only 22 years old, the youngest light heavyweight in the game, excepting Stribling, the Georgia boy. He has been fighting professionally less than two years. He is remarkably well built and it will not be long before he is a full-fledged heavyweight.

Stone's next bout of consequence may be against Gene Tuney, the champion, and himself a product of the war camps. The spectacle of two scrapping stalwarts, trained and inspired by your Uncle Samuel, fighting for a national fistic championship, would at least be unique. Yes, you can thank the war for that

Needs More Experience

In build and ring style, Stone reminds you strikingly of Dempsey. He has Dempsey's major characteristic of banking on an eternally aggressive offense. Like the champion, Stone believes if you hit the other fellow first and often enough you won't have to worry much about getting hit yourself.

From this you may take it that Stone is not hard to hit. You are right. To an experienced fighter this is not a great handicap. It is not a great handicap to Dempsey, for instance. To Stone, however, it is, because he has not had much experience. For that reason he ought to proceed cautiously. Even Tunney, by no means a great fighter, probably knows too much for him at this writing.

Stone is being trained by Lou Segal, a veteran lightweight, and a close family friend. It is unnecessary to comment on Segal's capabilities other than to say that Stone has made more progress in a year's time than any youngster who has come to the sport in the past decade.

BOWMANVILLE LOST TO OSHAWA SEXTET

OSHAWA, Jan. 29. (Special.)—Ed Donald and his intermediate hockey clan journeyed to Bowmanville last night and beat Ginger Edger's team 6-5 in what was an important fixture as far as Oshawa was concerned.

A win would put them on even terms with Port Hope for Group No. 3 honors, while a defeat meant elimination.

During the evening everything that goes to make up a hockey game was exhibited, with a couple of one-minute rounds of the Dempsey-Firpo stuff thrown in, but Bobby Hewitson of Toronto who was handling the whistle worked like a four eyed wonder, getting both teams coming and going.

Oshawa was the first to bulge the nets, and after that were first in the total number of goals scored at the end of each period.

This game leaves Oshawa with two home games, both of which should be registered in the win column, and then on to Port Hope for the great struggle of the year in which the championship of group depends.

The teams were:

Bowmanville: Goal, Spry; defence, A. Piper and Densem; centre, I.Piper wings, Avery and Moise; subs.Hooper and Canning.

Oshawa: Goal, D. Smith; defence, Heffernan and W. Fair; centre, J. Smith; wings, Rowden and Lowe; subs, Houck and Williams.

Referee: Bobby Hewitson, Toronto.

BELLEVILLE CINCHED LOCAL GROUP HONORS

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 29, Canadian Press.—Beleville clinched the group here last night when they outstayed the Brockville team and won 3 to 2.

Brockville in the first period outscored the locals 2-20. Beleville went to work, and when the period was up they had a one goal margin.

The third period was a hard close-checking one with no score.

Kinghorn, the star left winger of the Brockville squad, had his shoulder broken in the second period, and until that time was easily the best man on the ice.

BOTTLE OF SCOTCH CARNIVAL WINNER

Selected As Best Comic Costume By Ministerial Judges at Lakefield — Many Original Features

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 29.—Although snow-blocked roads confined the attendance to residents of the village, last night's carnival at the Community rink was an exceptional success. Originality found full play in the many unusual costumes which in their variety, completeness and colour and in the novelty of the impersonations and the ideas represented, gave the judges a difficult task in selecting the winners in several classes. To the accompaniment of the Peterboro Rangers' Band the carnival crowd passed and repassed the judges stand in strangely contrasting couples and groups. The judges were: Rev. Walter Cox, Rev. J. Garvey, Rev. P. L. Jull, Rev. C. S. Reddick who performed their exacting duties to the general satisfaction and approval of the spectators, Mr. E. W. Bailey announcing the awards as follows: Lady's fancy costume, Mrs. Wm Millage "Maid of Orleans"; and in this class Miss Stella Lennox as Alladin deserves special mention.

Gentleman's fancy costume—H. R Wagar, "Clergyman." Although the subject may have suggested judicial partiality, when the decision was announced it was generally admitted that the choice was well merited. Mr Wagar's impersonation was reserved and in good taste.

Girls under fifteen, fancy, Merle Crawford "Roman Soldier", with special mention to Roleen Darcy as "French Maid."

Boy's fancy costume— Douglas Smith, "Fairy."

Lady's comic costume—Miss Iva Windsor "White Rabbit", with Mrs. W. J. Charlton as "Bride and Groom" a very close second.

Gentleman's comic—Roy Green as "Bottle of Scotch" even to the label and gold seal.

Girl's comic — Lillian Mason, "Witch"

Boy's comic—John Charlton as "Bell Hop."

Girl's Hockey Match.

The Lakefield girls play a league game in Campbellford on Thursday evening. This is the first game of the season in the local district of the Ontario League. Peterboro has dropped out this winter, and are very much missed. Some of the players have gone away and others are playing basketball.

The Rink company intend holding a moccasin dance in the near future, also a Leap Year night and probably another carnival.

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR LINDSAY GAME

Junior Game Tomorrow Night Will Be Scrappy Affair.

The Lindsay Juniors are runing a special train to Peterboro for the game to-morrow night with the Peterboro youngsters and are confident of a victory right in Brock street rink. They have a two-goal lead as a result of their win last Friday night and in view of the fact that they were able two weeks ago to hold the Petes to a scoreless tie th··· believe that they will still be two goals or more to the good when it is all over tomorrow night. The Petes on the other hand say that they are just beginning to hit their stride, and that Lindsay's lead will rapidly disappear. At all events it will be a really lively party with the excitement enhanced by the presence ·· a large and noisy squad of Lindsay rooters. The local youngsters will be at full strength and will have no excuses to offer if they are beaten.

PARKDALE TEAM HERE ON FRIDAY

Petes Arrange Another Exhibition Game With Toronto Seniors.

The Peterboro Intermediates have been lucky in securing the Parkdale Seniors as an attraction for Friday night at Brock Street Rink, and the game should be full of interest for the fans. Parkdale have a formidable team, which includes Jeffrey and Aggett of last year's Granites, who were unable to accompany their team-mates to the Olympic games; Scotty Campbell, who is much in demand by the pros.; Lount and other star performers. On paper at least the Paddlers are a much stronger team than the crew St. Mary's sent into action here the other night, and the Petes would be well advised in taking the game seriously from the start if they hope to pull out victorious over the Toronto gang. These exhibition games are being arranged by the Petes as a "prep" for the O. H. A. second round series, and it is possible that the Hamilton Tigers will be here early next week. In the meantime the announcement of the Parkdale game will give the fans something to look forward to this week.

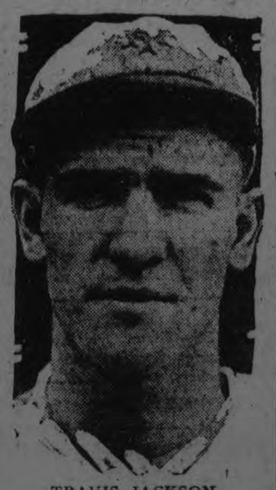
LANDS GLORY AND DOLLARS.



TRAVIS JACKSON

Manager McGraw of the Giants gave the biggest salary boost to a kid player this year, Travis Jackson, Arkansas collegian, who did spectacular relief work at short and third for the National League champions last summer.

And besides the raise McGraw admitted that the Giants owed their pennant success to Jackson. "He saved the year for us by his fine batting and fine fielding," said McGraw, "and I predict he will be one of the outstanding stars of baseball in two years."

Mr. Ray is not quite so arrogant or cocky as his remarks might lead hearers to suspect, but one thing he does not lack in any detail is confidence.

ARTHUR KING GOT SHORT JAIL TERM

Was Charged With Assaulting Gerald Dunsford.

Arthur King, a city man, was committed to jail for one month on his failure to pay a fine of $10 imposed upon him by Magistrate O. A. Langley in police court this morning. He was charged with assault.

King, it is said, waited on the Lake field road on Decemebr 7 for Gerald Dunsford, whom he suspected of tipping off the police to the existence of a still afterwards found on Herd's property at Young's Point. He assaulted Dunsford, who beat off the attack with his automobile crank. Dunsford denied tipping off the police.

The accused pleaded guilty.

KIWANIS REVUE IS BETTER THAN EVER

New First Act is a Splendid Addition.

The Kiwanis Revue, on Thursday and Friday evenings of this week, at the Grand Opera House, under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, is said by those who have seen it in rehearsal to be "better, bigger and brighter" than ever. The substitution of a Hawaiian extravaganaz for the original Southern minstrel show has strengthened considerably the whole performance. Those who remember the dainty, tuneful charm of "The Garden of the Sha," the second portion of the former revue, will be glad to hear "The Hermit of Hawaii," the newly includ ed first half of the production, surpasses in interest the colorful Persian offering. Romance and catchy music and pretty costuming form the atmosphere for the rhythmic love-story of the southern islands, where tall palm trees and sunn yskies form the background for the tales of love whispered to lovely maidens to the accompaniment of the always popular Hawaiian guitars.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO LEND FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS TO HUNGARIANS

LONDON, Jan. 29. — (Canadian Press).—The former Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank, W. P. G. Harding, is to be asked to act as a disinterested supervisor of Hungary's finances under the League of Nations, it was reported here to-day.

A $50,000,000 loan by the League to Hungary has been arranged, on condition that strict supervision of that country's finances be installed simultaneously.

The Reparations Commission will decide how much Hungary shall pay during the period of the loan.

The plan to have an American as general supervisor arose out of a desire to have some one not interested in the lending end of the deal.

SURE WAS EFFECTIVE

"I suppose, Henry," said the old gentleman to his new son-in-law, "that you are aware the check for $50,000 I put among your wedding presents was merely for effect."

"Oh, yes, sir," responded the cheerful Henry. "And the effect was excellent. The bank cashed it this morning without a word." — Vanity Fair.

WORLD AWAITS NEW PENTECOST

Re-discovery of the Value of Jesus' Need of Present Generation — Revival to Sweep Away Unrest, Says Millbrook Pastor.

MILLBROOK, January 29. — The first of the series of sermons on "The Re-discovery of Jesus, and His Place in Modern Civilisation," which Rev. S. T. Tucker is giving at the morning services in the Methodist Church, was delivered on Sunday morning, and proved most interesting, the result of careful reading and thoughtful study.

The text was taken from John 16, 13,14: "When he, the spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth; for he shall not speak of himself, but whatsoever he shall hear that shall he speak; and he will show you things to come. He shall glorify me, for he shall receive of mine, and shall show it unto you."

Beginning with the statement that we cannot reason ourselves into the truth, or into the kingdom, the speaker went on to show that every generation must discover for itself the value of Christ ,as must also the individual. As the subject was unfolded, it was shown how the discovery of some great truth like justification by faith by Martin Luther gathered to a head the thoughts which had been forming in many minds, and the longings of earnest souls, and the period of the Reformation followed. But justification by faith needed the complimentary truth of the witness of the spirit to originate that wonderful period of evangelism which set in when Wesley, after much travail of soul, came into the light, and knew, "the spirit itself beareth witness with our spirits that we are the children of God."

Narrow Doctrine.

The strong controversy between Calvinism and Arminianism was at its height when Wesley came to the fore, Whitfield being the champion of the former and so not able to follow Wesley in his evangelism. If only so many are foreordained to salvation, and if these will be saved anyway, why urge others to seek imperfection of this doctrine does not give a full-orbed idea of the kingdom. The truth of the witness of the spirit has been the key to all progress in the Christian Church ever since Wesley's day. Apparently to-day the world awaits the re-discovery of Jesus by some new revelation of the truth to a second Luther—or Wesley, who, through fasting, prayer, and intense soul-hunger, has been counted worthy to receive from God the message which He would have broadcasted to unburdened humanity. Then will begin that great revival, sweeping away the unrest and revolution against the established order which breaks out on every hand, and bringing the peace to countless souls for which they are groping, scarce knowing what is their desire. All humanity eagerly awaits this new Pentecostal day.

"The Chosen Prince."

The third film in the series of motion pictures, under the auspices of the Ministerial Association, will be given in the Town Hall on Wednesday, 30th January, at 8 p.m.

Owing to unfavourable weather, the attendance at the first two entertainments was much smaller than the merits of the pictures deserved. It is hoped that the public will patronise this week's film, "The Chosen Prince," as largely as possible to prevent a deficit at the conclusion of the series.

The Association will not benefit financially in any way from the pictures, as any balance on hand after all obligations are discharged will be given to some worthy benevolent cause.

GAVE BIRTH CHILD ON A RAILWAY TRAIN

OTTAWA, Jan. 29. — (Canadian Press).—While travelling from the west on a Continental Limited of the Canadian National Railways to this city, Mrs. E. Skehan, a passenger, gave birth to a baby girl on Sunday, it became known to-day. Mrs. Skehan, in company with her husband, was coming to the capital to visit her parents. When the baby arrived there was no doctor in the train, but a French lady volunteered to act as nurse. The mother and baby were conveyed to hospital on reaching here, and are doing well.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

"SWEET LAVENDER."

Seldom have Peterboro play-goers had an opportunity of seeing such a well-balanced or capable company as that headed by Mr. Anthony Gordon, which presented at the Grand last night a memorable performance of Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's classic, "Sweet Lavender." Unfortunately, only a few discriminating theatre-goers availed themselves of the chance, and they are to be congratulated, while those who stayed away have another opportunity to-night, which they should not miss of seeing this most wholesome and entertaining of British plays sparkingly presented by a company of English artists, each of whom has been especially selected for his or her respective part.

It is difficult to find words to do justice to the merit of this production. Mr. Gordon's company give a performance that for all-round worth, realism and effect has rarely been equalled on the stage of the Grand. There is no weakness anywhere — even the minor parts are gems, and the whole company creates an impression that will linger long in the memory of those fortunate enough to have seen "Sweet Lavender."

As for the play itself, it is of course well-known to veteran patrons of the theatre, although it has not been done here for many years. It is one of the classics of the English stage, and as fragrant and fresh as the day it was written. The spirit of romance breathes through it, and one goes away from the theatre better for having seen it. Old-fashioned it may be, but yet after all love and romance are never old-fashioned, and so "Sweet Lavender" carries just as much appeal now as it did when first produced thirty-three years ago. The story of Dick Phenyl, loveable old toper, who is involved in the affairs of three pairs of lovers, all of which are satisfactorily ironed out at the end, is too well-known to be given in detail here.

Mr. Gordon played Phenyl, and how convincing was his picture of the convivial barrister! It is a part that calls for deft handling, or it would be a mere burlesque, and Mr. Gordon's artistry succeeded in showing the pathos as well as the humon of Phenyl's condition in life. The associated company supplied wonderful support. Miss Dorothy Fletcher, in the title role, was as pleasing as the flower from which her stage name is derived, and Miss Alice Moffatt, who was the 'Minnie' of the production, made that part a memorable one. H. Tyrell Davis, who incidentally is a British film star of wide fame, was most successful in his delinceations of the part of Clement Hall. That accomplished old actor, Ambrose Manning, made the role of Dr. Delaney, not a big part, stand out even in that splendid production. Miss Viva Burkett, as Ruth, was always true to type and effective, and Joseph Bell made a lot out of the role of Horace Bream, the breezy young American. Leslie Stiles scored as Geoffrey Wedderburn, and Edgar Payne, a veteran of the original Terry production, was of much strength to the production as Mr. Naw. So too was Miss Wynne, whose Mrs. Gilfillian was one of the high lights of the performance.

The second performance of 'Sweet Lavender' to-night should be greeted by a capacity audience. No finer acting will be seen here this season than is offered by this company.

Mr. Gordon, who is making his first visit to Canada, will be better known to the Canadian public under his private name, Major Gordon Watney. A great many Canadians will remember his work in the war. Twice, during that four years of strife, he received the thanks of the Canadian Government for his work for Canada. Firstly, in 1915, at the request of the late General Carson, Acting Minister of War for Canada in England at that time, he undertook the almost impossible task, as it seemed to the British Government at that time, of salving and rebuilding the whole of their damaged transport of their first expeditionary forces when stationed at Salisbury plain, although the British Government advised General Carson to scrap the whole of this transport as useless, notwithstanding the fact that to replace the same was, at that moment, almost impossible. Major Watney salved the whole for less than $100 per vehicle, saving the Canadian Government many millions of money, and these vehicles did splendid work in France for the Canadian armies. At the termination of the war, Major Watney again received the thanks of the Canadian Government through the High Commissioner of Canada, stationed in London, for his hospitality and kindness to the wounded Canadian soldiers.

Major Watney's work for the last three years of the war in the manufacture and repair of fighting engines for the air forces of the British armies is well-known history in England, endless thousands of fighting engines passing through his hands and sent back to the front in the shortest possible time.

His company is composed of the finest English artists in the profession—an all-star cast. The company has just concluded a season at the Selwyn Theatre, Boston, and are looking forward with no small confidence to the kind support of Canada for a tour.

AT THE ROYAL.

EXTRAORDINARY GOOD VAUDEVILLE AND PICTURES AT THE ROYAL.

The Royal management is certainly sparing no expense to bring the best of vaudeville to Peterboro. We do not know what they are paying De Leach and Corbin and their Jazzmatic Syncopators, but we know it will run into the hundreds of dollars. There are seven people in the act, with special silk drape scenery, and each one is an artist. Singing, dancing and jazz music, and last night's audience did not want them to leave the stage at all. The other two acts are right up to the mark. Bob Mills, with five fingers and a good voice, and very pleasing personality, puts over some new songs and instrumental numbers. He was forced to do extra numbers. Bond Morse, 'The Lounge Lizard,' in tramp make-up, does a little of everything. His talk is clever and witty. He also registered a hit. This performance should not be missed by anyone in search of real entertainment. "Wandering Daughters," the photoplay feature, is also intensely interesting, and treats a phase of our modern age with a breadth of understanding from many new angles.

AT THE CAPITOL.

The temperamental Pola Negri is the star in the feature picture now showing at the Capitol Theatre, "The Spanish Dancer." The black-haired actress gives an outstanding characterization as the gypsy girl, Maritana, who loves Don Caesar de Bazan, possessed of the healdic right of retaining his head covering in the presence of the king, and a discredited, adventurous noble. Anyone who saw "Rosita," the latest vehicle of Mary Pickford, will recognize at once the resemblance between the two stories, but the Polish actress makes a much lievlier and more convincing Spanish danseuse than the milder Mary. As in the story of "Rosita," the dancer captures the fancy of a philandering monarch, King Philip of Spain, but the atmosphere has a more realistic tinge, and little of the extravaganza element that character ized the Pickford picture. The Spanish background of recent times is carried out in detail, in a manner that adds much to the beauty of the picture. The gowns worn by the ladies of the cast are beautiful examples of feminine apparel of a bygone, glittering age.

The music of "The Spanish Cavalier" filters in an orchestral background through the pictured story, that tells the love tale of the vibrant gypsy girl, dancing her gypsy steps and making her way through the mad carnival of the feast day. Ruffling gallants, masked figures, swift duelling encounters, come and go in flickering succession as the faithless king plots to gain possession of the gypsy girl who has fired his fancy, and the crafty Don Sallusts spins a web of intrigue that involves a king and an queen in its creation. A strong cast includes Kathlyn Williams as the Queen of Spain, Wallace Beery,as the pig-faced King Philip, Gareth Hughes as Lazarillo, an armourer's assistant, and Antonio Moreno, playing oposite the star in the role of the gallant Don Caesar de Bazan.

Accompanying the picture presentation is the appearance of Miss Kathleen Cooney, a young local performer, doing Spanish dances in costume. Miss Cooney's numbers were greeted with applause on her first appearance last evening.

AT THE REGENT.

"THE KINGDOM WITHIN" AT THE REGENT

Victor Schertzinger, the director producer of "The Kingdom Within," which comes to the Regent Theatre to-day, deserves a great deal of praise for his excellent achievement in presenting this film drama for public approbation. It is a picture which the public has been waiting to see for a long time, and is one that will be thoroughly enjoyed by the whole family. The story is by Kenneth B. Clarke, and takes place in the little western town of Alden, in the shadow of the giant redwoods. The sturdy old oak, Caleb Deming ,is terribly disapopinted in his son, Amos, who was born a cripple. How Amos overcomes his handicap and rises from a puny weakling to a man among men, makes a screen drama that will grip you from start to finish. Gaston Glass, who played in "Humoresque," takes the role of Amos. Other members of the cast are Russell Simpson, G. Walt Covington, Pauline Starke, Hallam Cooley, Ernest Torrence and cute little Marion Feducha.

SPIRITED DISPUTE OVER METHODS OF SCORING

CHAMONIX, Jan. 29. Canadian Press. — A spirited dispute has developed over the method of scoring points in the Olympic winter sports.

Canada is not directly affected by this disagreement as the Dominion had only one representative in the skating events, Charles Gorman, of St. John, N.B.

Before leaving Chamonix last night Wiliam Taylor, manager of the United States speed skating team, told the French Olympic committee that he was lodging a protest with the international committe against scoring system.

TROPHY DONATED TO N.H.L. ASSOCIATION

OTTAWA, Jan. 29.— (Canadian Press.)— According to the Journal sports story, Dr. David A. Hart, of Montreal, has donated a trophy for the hockey player in the N.H.L. who, in the judgment of the board of judges to be appointed from Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa is the most valuable player to his team. Under deed of gift the trophy must be won three times, not necessarily in succession, before becoming absolutely the property of any player. An individual trophy to the holder of the Hart cup each year has also been accepted by the National Hockey Association. The board of judges who will make the awards each season will be announced in a few days.

DOCKERS DEMAND RAISE IN WAGES

Many Branches Passed Strong Resolutions in Favor of a Strike.

LONDON, January 29. United Press. — The National Delegates to the conference of dock workers have assembled to discuss the deadlock which has now been reached.

The employers have flatly refused to grant the man an increase of two shillings daily, making the daily wage 11 shillings in the smaller ports and 12 shillings in the larger ones.

Many of the local branches recently passed strong resolutions in favor of a strike, while others urge that the negotiations with the employers be prolonged.

England's next big industrial trouble is likely to be raised by the dockers.

Port authorities say that two shillings increase would involve a total of almost two million pounds yearly.

Society

An interesting programme of Scottish music, accompanied by a paper on a Scottish writer, was given in the studio at the Conservatory of Music on Saturday afternoon, by the Women's Art Association. The programme was arranged by Mrs. Geo. H. King, who rendered several beautiful numbers, including "Angus Macdonald," and Dr. Drummond's "Leetle Bateese." in excellent voice. Mrs. King was accompanied on the piano by Mrs C. E. Cragg.

Miss Marion B. Adams played some very acceptable pianoforte selections: Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 6," with an encore in the "Juba Dance," from the suite "In the Bottoms," by N. Dett. and "Ragamuffin," a descriptive rendition of a London street urchin's varying moods.

An interesting section of the programme was the paper on Robert Louis Stevenson, read by Miss A. M .Lancaster, who reviewed in delightful fashion the great writer's life and work, and gave several short excerpts from his volumes, in the Scottish dialect.

At the conclusion of the programme, afternoon tea was served from a tea table prettily decorated with daffodils

Hostesses were Mrs. A. Mowat and Mrs. A. Stevenson. Assistants were Mrs. A. Moir, Mrs. C. E. Jamieson, Mrs. K. Wightman, and Miss Mary Harstone

The president of the society, Mrs. F. C. Neal, announced the next musicale to be held on 9th February, and arranged by Mrs. W. R. Widdess. A paper on her "Travels in Egypt," will be given by Miss E. RECITAL

Mr. Alfred Heather, the famous English tenor, who is giving a recital in the Conservatory Hall, on Tuesday evening, Feb. 5th., is a singer of wide experience.

He was principal tenor soloist of Westminster Abbey for twelve years, also a prominent member of the renowned Covent Garden Opera Company.

He created the role of "Filch" in "The Beggar's Opera" which had a phenomenal run in London, England

The following press notices give some idea of his great prestige as a singing artiste:—

"Mr. Alfred Heather, in the principal tenor role of Hoffmann, gave a superb performance, vocally and dramatically. His acting throughout was perfect and his rich dulcet voice again and yet again thrilled the house." Western Mercury, Plymouth.

"The ardous role of the "Narrator" was entrusted to Mr. Alfred Heather, who sang the music with an ease and sympathy to which a less accomplished singer could never hope to attain." The Globe, London.

Bach's "Passion" (St. Matthew) Nothing more exacting in the way of straight legato recitative has ever been written than the tenor role of the "Narrator". In truth to pitch, quality, intonation and elegance of phrasing Alfred Heather's interpretation was extraordinarily fine. I know of no tenor on this continent who could have accomplished the [illegible] Hector Charlesworth in "Toronto Saturday Night."

TO REOPEN THE GARNEAU MURDER

New Evidence Will Be Presented If Conservatives Have Their Way.

MONTREAL, Jan. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Declaring that reopening of Blanche Garneau murder trial at Quebec is inevitable because true murderer is known, Hon. L. G. Belley, K.C., of Quebec, known as "mystery counsel when he refused to divulge names of clients he represented before Royal Commission that probed murder in December 1922 stated today that three elements of proof have been unearthed in private investigations.

Hon. Mr. Belley intimated that the Conservatives in Legislature will not allow session to close without forcing from the Government either a promise that the murder enquiry shall be reopened or some public explanation that will offset the information lately gathered.

Three elements of proof as stated by Mr. Belley are:

1 Person who sent to lawyers interested in the case a bloodstained camisole said to have belonged to the murdered girl is known and has interesting testimony to offer.

2 Witnesses have been found who can establish that entries in the Guard House register of Quebec citadel, which formed an important exhibit connected with original statement of soldier Henri Duval, alias Casabon, alias Tinoir, that he witnessed the crime, were falsified.

3 Other witnesses are available who can link the murder to an accomplice of one individual already prominent in the Garneau affair.

EXAMINER LADIES HAD A NIGHT OUT

That is Why Many of Them Came to Work Late This Morning,

The Girls' Club and the Hockey Club of The Examiner office held a jolly outing last evening, which took the form of a sleigh drive to Lakefield, with a supper and dancing later, followed by a drive home in the early morning hours. About twenty-five of the members of both societies attended the affair, which went off with zip and vigor, from the moment that Harry Dugan commenced his famous "circus barker" monologue on the way out, to the last instant of the return journey.

Lakefield's masquerade carnival of last evening was augmented by the appearance of The Examiner bunch on the ice, and the visitors' style and ease in skating was probably quite a treat to the residents of the northern village, at least, it should have been.

Fears were entertained over the ability of Harry Clark, who outshone himself in his attendance on the ladies of the party in the skating interval, to partake of the refreshments that awaited the group at R.H. Alford's warm little restaurant, but these fears were groundless, Harry proving a close second to Harry Dugan, at the head of the table. The chaperones were compelled to keep a vigilant eye on Harold Dewhirst, who turned out to be the 'sheik' of the party, but Dugan acted as a vigilant caretaker of the ladies during the return trip. 'Shorty' White was the object of much solicitude on the part of a lady guest, who felt compelled to fuss him up considerably before supper was over. Speculations on the amount of brilliantine that Bobby Baker used to doll up his coiffure for the occasion placed the quantity conservatively at about half a pint. Several of the young ladies in the party proved the up-to-dateness of everything and everybody in The Examiner offices by appearing in knickers.

SUPREME COURT JURY FOUND DRY LEADER GUILTY

Wm. H. Anderson, New York State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, Convicted of Forgery in Splitting the Commissions.

FIVE INDICTMENTS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, was convicted last night by a Supreme Court jury on both counts of an indictment charging him with third degree forgery in connection with the "splitting" of commissions with a former League fund solicitor.

The charge of forgery, one of five indictments lodged against the dry leaguer, arose out of the transfer of $4,400 in the books of the league from the salary account of O. Bertsall Phillips, money-getter for the organization, to the collector's hotel and expense account. Phillips alleged that the money was Anderson's "split" under a "fifty-fifty" arrangement on all commissions in excess of $10,000 a year.

Claimed His Own

Since the trial began a week ago, Anderson has admitted ordering the transfer but set up as a defense his assertion the league owed him $24,700. spent in confidential publicity work and that he was merely taking back his own when he took his percentage from Phillips. The money, Anderson explained, was the gift of a warm-hearted, perfect stranger, named "John T. King," and it was spent by three "mystery men" namely, "Henry Mann" and "Green" and "Johnson."

No word has been received from John T. King or any of the other nebulous characters Anderson has introduced into the case in explaining where he got the $24,700 he said he expended for league publicity in 1913 and 1914.

Some practical joker has had King paged in every one of the big New York hotels, but nobody answered the summons.

Will Likely Appeal

It is understood that the defense, will appeal, contending that Anderson's testimony concerning the $27,400 publicity fund has no bearing on the main issue, as presented in the forgery charge, and further that court decisions are to the effect that entries in books cannot be construed as fraudulent if the owners of the books have not been defrauded.

CONSPIRACY IN SQUIRES CASE

Belief of Law Partner of Newfoundland's Ex-Premier in Evidence Before Royal Commission.

ST. JOHN'S Nfld., Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Witnesses for the prosecution had the floor floor throughout yesterday's session of the Royal Commission, hearing charges against Sir Richard Squires, former Prime Minister of Newfoundland. Proceedings opened with the resumption of cross-examination of L. R. Curtis law partner of Sir Richard by Hon. W. R. Warren, attorney-general and Premier. This continued all morning and through part of the afternoon, and evidence brought out was to the effect that close relations existed between Mr. Curtis and J. J. Miller, former accountant for the British Empire Steel Co. at Bell Island, even after charges had been laid against Sir Richard Squires and Miller and his sister, Mrs. L. G. Harsant, former accountant and secretary to the ex-Premier had been supoenaed by the Crown to give their evidence.

Mr. Curtis told in detail of his revision of the statement Miller was to give in evdence at the hearing and asserted that he had obtained in this connection certain information from Sir Richard Squires. He declared that he believed J. J. Miller and J. T. Meaney were partners in a conspiracy against Sir Richard.

Later in the afternoon Mrs. Harcart was recalled and under examination by the Attorney General stated that the amount of forty dollars per month she received from Sir Richard Squires after leaving his office was for the maintenance and not in respect to her Isurance activities as had been previously stated in evidence.

CANADA NEEDS CAPITAL MOST

Emigration An Economic Problem—Migration Follows Capital and Market For Labor--Social Service Meeting.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Jan. 29.—Social science must supply the remedy for the menace to society through increase of the unfit, and there was no remedy except compulsory sterilization of the unfit, declared Rev. Dr. W. F. Patterson, principal of Acadia University, Wolfville, Nova Scotia, addressing the convention of the Dominion Social Service Council here to-day.

Rev. Canon Vernon presented the report of the standing committee on immigration and colonization in the absence of Mrs. Plumtre, the convenor.

The problem of immigration Rev. Mr. Vernon said he considered in terms of human beings whatever their needs or difficulties.

Immigration was one of the great national problems, he declared. In Canada some people thought of immigration as a solution of the national debt and railway problems. Canon Vernon said he held the problem in Canada must be considered from three viewpoints, Imperial, National and Christian, and two words summed up the method: "Selection" in the old lands and "Settlement" in this land. The settlement would involve the spending of money and effort to see that no such tragedies as sometimes happened were permitted to occur. The churches should take a keener interest in the immigrants and homes should be thrown open to welcome the newcomers, he said.

The immigration and colonization committee recommended the linking up of child welfare and childrens' aid society work in Canada to help in supervision of the immigrant children. The recommendation was adopted.

Aid Newcomers.

The section of the report dealing with the follow-up work of voluntary organizations was next considered .Canon Vernon urged coo-peration of ministers, social workers and all persons in extending a welcome and aid to the newcomer.

Emigration to the United States was the great problem of to-day, Canon Vernon said. The United States doors were wide open to Canadians.

Rev. W. H. Adcock of Regina, said Canadians were returning from the United States, and yet there was a greater stream of British immigration to the United States than to Canada and there should be greater inducements to British stock to come to Canada .

Dr. W. H. Morris, Toronto, said rural and national migration followed capital and a market for labor must be supplied Capital was the country's greatest need. Moral conditions were such as to warrant the investment, capital would be supplied. Integrity was the basis of national greatness.

Faith in Canada.

Canon Vernon said surely it was right to expect the Government to lead in solving the problem, but that a greater faith in Canadians was needed.

In closing discussion of the report, Canon Vernon spoke of the cradle as the best gateway of population ,emphasizing the need of preserving of child life and the obligation to God and country of child birth in wedlock .

Rev. A. J. Russell, of Nova Scotia said that province could not accommodate all of the people who had migrated from there in twenty years. If Nova Scotians furnished the brains to run Boston, that was God's plan. Nova Scotia could not support more industry.

FRENCH DEBATE BECAME ATTACK ON GOVERNMENT

Poincare's Cabinet Subjected to Vigorous Offensive Behind Charges of Swindling in Rebuilding Devastated Regions — Deputies Demand An Explanation.

RESUMED TO-DAY.

PARIS, Jan. 30. — (Canadian Press).—The debate on the Government's demand for new taxes and economies amounting to six billion francs developed in Chamber of Deputies Tuesday afteroon in a vigorous assault upon the Poincare Cabinet. The Socialists, who have been prolonging the discussion by multiplying the side issues and drawing out their speeches, took the offensive on the question of war damages and brought direct accusations of negligence against M. Reibel, Minister of Liberated Regions.

Documents supporting the charges of swindling on a big scale in connection with war damages in the devastated region, which were presented the Chamber, and the Deputies almost unanimously demanded a full explanation after the chairman of the sub-committee on speculation in the liberated regions had declared that M. Reibel refused to collaborate with the committee.

Had Co-Operated.

The Minister explained that there was only a difference of opinion as to competence between him and the committee, while M. Verlot, Chairman of the investigating committee, relieved the pressure by declaring that M Reibel had always fully co-operated in searching out frauds.

The discussion turned on the amendment to the proposed laws providing for a revision of all war damages above 500,000 francs. M. Poincare said he was in record on this amendment, but the Socialists persisted in their attacks on M. Reibel.

The question finally went over until today when the debate was to be resumed on authorization of the Government to issue decrees as amended by the provision for a revision of war damages. M. Tardieu and Herriot were expected to attack the Government today or Thursday.

No official word of his arrival has reached Ottawa, and none is expected. The date for the execution is Friday, February 1.

The two Eskimos were sentenced to death for the murder of Corporal Doak of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and Otto Binder, a Hudson's Bay Company factor.

GREEK MINISTER AT WASHINGTON

Diplomatic Relations Between Two Countries Resumed After Breach Following Constantine's Return in 1920.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Diplomatic relations between the United States and Greece were resumed yesterday when Secretary of State Hughes received M. Tsamados, Greek representative in Washington, as Charge D'Affaires, and instructed Ray Atherton, who has been unofficially in charge of United States in Athens, to act as Charge D'Affaires ad interim to the Greek Government.

It is expected that the accrediting of a minister will await decision by Greece of the constitutional question under consideration in Athens.

Relations were severed in 1920 after the death of King Alexander and the return to Athens of Constantine. The regime which followed the latter was regarded as based frankly upon military power with its position unconfirmed by elections. Recent elections now, however, have resulted in the establishment of a government in such a way as to enable the United States to extend formal recognition.

ENGLISH WOMAN ON LABOR BOARD

Margaret Bondfield Appointed to International Labor Bureau, Broadening Woman's Field.

GENEVA, Jan. 30.—The British Labor Government made its official appearance in Geneva yesterday when Miss Margaret Bondfield, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Labor, inaugurated new activities for womanhood at a meeting of the Governing Board of the International Labor Bureau. This board, which corresponds to the Council of the League of Nations, will arrange the agenda for the International Labor Conference in 1925

Miss Bondfield said that her appointment was a case of natural evolution; it signified the open door, which would permit greater utilization of women's capacities for public administration and the burying of prejudices in various countries against the employment of women in positions of responsibility.

"The new British Government," she added, "will manifest a special interest in all the activities of the League and the Labor Bureau."

WHY CANADA HAS SUCH LARGE DEBT

Hon. Arthur Meighen Explains to Quebec Meeting.

QUEBEC, Jan. 30. Canadian Press. —Speaking in the drill hall here last night Right Hon. Arthur Meighen said he had been asked to explain why he loaded the country with a terrific burden of debt. He had never disputed that debt was high, but he would direct attention to the words of a Quebec member of the Federal Government, who said that Canada had played a tremendous and effective part in the greatest war the world had ever known—so great that had the forces of Canada been withdrawn, it would have meant defeat for the Empire.

"Now," said the speaker, "it may be legitimately asked were your affairs so conducted as to have cost more than their value?"

He added that Hon. E. Lapointe. Quebec representative in the Liberal government, had stated that no other Dominion in the Empire had performed their work as cheaply as Canada.

FIRE TRAPS ARE MANY PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS

Dominion Fire Commissioner's Assertion After Inspection of Seventy-Three Institutional Buildings—Inmates In Hand of Providence If Fire Occurred.

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press).—In many of the public institutions of the country, the conditions of fire hazard are so appalling, and the authorities so impossible of conviction, that it is a public duty to call attention to the situation, was the assertion of J. Grove Smith, Dominion Fire Commissioner yesterday, at the meeting of the Dominion Fire Prevention Association held here. Mr. Smith made this statement in the course of a survey of the fire dangers in institutional buildings and while making some suggestions for the safeguarding of human life in them.

"If fire protection measures are warranted in factories, warehouses and stores where dollars are at stake, how much more necessary is every possible safeguard in buildings where helpless lives are perpetually in jeopardy," Mr. Smith insisted.

Depend on Providence.

He stated that during the year he had visited seventy-three institutions housing in the aggregate over 14,000 persons, and including hospitals, asylums, sanitariums, orphanages, convents, homes for the aged and infirm, refuges and reformatories, and after a careful inspection had come to the conclusion that in the event of a serious fire in any one of the institutions visited numberless lives would be sacrificed unless providence interfered.

Mr. Smith described the crux of the problem in the fact that the majority of institutions were of highly combustible wood-joisted construction, and more than one-half buildings of old design revamped for modern use by means of cheap expedients.

Garage Dangers.

The report of G. F. Lewis of the fire marshals department of Ontario pointed out the danger that arose with regard to the handling and storage of gasoline. Many of the regulations were broken by owners of small garages, who had influence with local councils, and enabled them to avoid the regulations, and it would be better, he said, if the enforcement and inspection of such places as under the Dominion authorities.

Tom Moore, president of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress said he thought there was a revulsion of feeling against anything in the way of bureaucracy these days and was of the opinion that more might be accomplished by education than by inspection.

The gathering continues today when the report of the committee on the use of nitro-cellulose motion picture films will be presented as well as that of the committee on publicity and education.

Western Farmers Are Saving Money

EDMONTON, Jan. 30—(Canadian Press).—Twenty thousand dollars a day has been coming in all through January for provincial savings certificates, and treasury officers are doing a record business. The figures for the month will run to more than half a million.

Deputy Treasurer Newson's theory about this mid-Winter inflow of money is that the good effects of the crop are just making themselves felt and that the people are investing their profits in ths form of security to a much greater extent than formerly.

The total amount on deposit to the credit of sundry investors at the end of 1923 was $4,631,713. Purchases for the year totalled $2,555,170 and there were withdrawals of $2,274,278.

CIVIL SERVANTS AFLUTTER OVER REDUCTION TALK

At Same Time Are Wondering Whether Superannuation Scheme Will Be Established — Has Been Approved By Committee.

CONFERENCE FRIDAY.

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.— What will be done with superannuation in the Civil Service? The call to Deputy Ministers and the Civil Service Commission to meet the Government on Friday to discuss Civil Service economics has sent a flutter of excitement through all the Government offices with questioning as to what is likely to be the outcome. Will there be drastic cuts in the Civil Service? The question is asked on all hands, but coupled with it is the further query as to what are the intentions of the Government in regard to the institution of a proper scheme of superannuation.

In the views of a number of Civil Servants it is here that one way out of present difficulties may be found. A proper superannuation scheme and no further additions to existing staffs for a definite period, would, it is claimed in some quarters, form a remedy for much of the over-staffing which at present exists.

Scheme Recommended.

A special committee of the House of Commons which investigated the Civil Service last year recommended a superannuation scheme, as removing "one of the greatest deterrents to efficiency and curtailment of staffs in many of the departments of the public service.' 'But the report came late in the session. Legislation based on its findings could not be introduced. But the Prime Minister announced that at the opening of the coming session the Government would have a superannuation bill along the lines of the committee's recommendations.

Terms of Scheme.

The superannuation which most found favour with the Civil Service Commission was based on these principles :

1. Employers and employees both contribute to the scheme, the entire cost being borne approximately equally by both.

2. Benefits include allowances on retirement after attainment of a stipulated age with allowances to widow and minor children in the event of the death of the employee during service or after retirement, the widow's allowance being usually one-half of the employee's allowance.

3. Allowances to the employee on retirement from disability regardless of age.

4. Provision for the return of the employee's contributions without interest in the event of his voluntary retirement after a minimum period of service has been rendered.

Apart from superannuation schemes there are suggestions of the possible merging of some departments with a view to economy in staffs. Whatever the outcome of Friday's conference, the call has given rise to considerable anxiety in public departments.

TO OPPOSE MOVE.

Opposition of civil service organizations in Canada to any drastic downward revision of salaries in government offices, will be presented to the government and the Civil Service Commission by representatives of organizations during their meetings here on February 9 and 10 next. The principal demand of the organized civil servants, it is understood, will be for a superannuation measure, which will provide greater compensation for civil servants over 65 years old, and permit of the withdrawal of the greater number who have passed that age.

ORANGE LODGE WANTS ACTION

Criticizes Treatment in the Bulpitt Case--Resolution Forwarded.

Criticizing severely the treatment meted out to the boy Bulpitt who recently hanged himself at Goderich, L.O.L. 1175 passed a resolution at its regular meeting calling for action by the Provincial officials. The welfare of children generally was also discussed, and the members agreed that strong representations should be made in an effort to better conditions. "The place for a boy of 15," they said, "is in school—not doing a family washing."

The resolution which will be forwarded to the Attorney-General prays that in view of the verdict of the coroner's jury that the boy took his own life to escape further punishment, the Attorney-General to take criminal proceedings against the persons responsible.

L.O.L. 1175 will examine fully the question of the treatment of children.

A BETTER SERVICE FOR THE NORTHLAND

Telephone Officials Propose to Build Copper Circuit Out of Lindsay.

LINDSAY, January 30. — Mr. Francis Dagger, telephone representative of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, Mr. W. P. Harris, special agent, Bell Telephone Company, Toronto, Mr. J. W. Fiegehen, district traffic superintendent, Bell Telephone Company, Toronto, and Mr. J. M. McHardy district manager, Peterborough, passed through Lindsay yesterday on their way to attend the annual meetings of the Minden Telephone Company, The Stanhope Telephone Company, Maple Lake, and the Dysart Telephone Co., Haliburton.

A movement is on foot to build a copper metallic circuit right through from Haliburton to Fenelon Falls and to connect at this point with the Bell Telephone Company's long distance system, so that any person or any of these systems will be able to talk to any other party having telpehone connection anywhere in Canada or the United States.

This will be a boon, not only to the people of Haliburton County, but to the business men of Lindsay.

PETERBOROUGH BRANCH U.F.Y.P.O., MEETING

The regular meeting of the Peterboro branch of the U.F.Y.P.O., was held last evening in the Simcoe St. rooms, opening with the UF.Y.P.O. song.

The minutes of the last meeting were then read and adopted, after which the club joined in community singing for about 15 minutes.

A motion was then made and seconded that the Club form an Athletic Association, and a committee was appointed to promote this scheme and to report at the next meeting.

After the business for the evening was dispensed with, a reading by Miss Estella Houston was enjoyed, and all participated in a contest.

Refreshments were then served and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

TO RECOGNISE RUSSIA.

PREMIER EXTENDS THE OLIVE BRANCH

Seeks to Patch Up Relations Between French and British.

LONDON, Jan. 30. — (Canadian Press).—Prime Minister MacDonald recently sent a personal letter to Premier Poincare in which he expressed desire for settlement of difficulties between Great Britain and France and for a complete Anglo-French understanding, and M. Poincare replied sympathetically, according to statements printed this morning by the Daily Telegraph and Daily Express. By this action the new head of the British Government picked up the thread of Franco-British relations at a point where it was broken off after an interview between Mr. Baldwin and Premier Poincare in Paris last autumn, says the Telegraph.

The Daily Herald says this morning that no hitch whatsoever has developed in the Government's preparations to recognize Soviet Russia. That matter has already been decided and that reports to the contrary deliberately misrepresent the Ministry's intention.

VESTRY MEETING OF ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH

The annual vestry meeting of St. George's Church took place on Monday, Jan. 28. The meeting was well attended, enthusiastic, and because of progress of the past year hopeful for the future.

After the opening prayer the rector read a report outlining the work of the church, showing the number of services held, sacraments administered and pastoral visits made. Allusion was also made to the splendid work of the Sunday School, and the parochial organizations which have rendered very valuable assistance to the church during the past year.

Mesdames Brownlee and Andrews, Mr. A. Simms, Miss Irene Howarth and Rev. W. R. Courage in the absence of Miss Elsie Parks, read reports of a very interesting nature from the Ladies' Guild, Sunday School, Men's Club, A.Y.P.A. and Junior Auxiliary, respectively.

The reports were received with applause, especially that of the little Girls' Auxiliary, as they had achieved such success. It was interesting to note the organisations and Sunday School all had a comfortable balance on the right side.

Mr. Arthur Simms, people's warden, read the church financial report, showing receipts to be 957.55, expenditures $941.46, leaving a balance of $16.09 to the credit of the church.

Messrs. W. T. Howden and A. J. Arnott were elected lay delegates to the Diocesan Synod.

Messrs. Butler and A. J. Arnott were appointed people's and rector's wardens respectively for the ensuing year.

Messrs. S. Jay and W. Dummitt were elected sidesmen.

The following were elected to form an Advisory Board: Messrs. A. Breadman, J. Brownlee, B. Moore, H. Lowden, A. Cuffe. A. Simms, W. R. Andrews and L. Fields.

Miss I. Howarth was elected vestry clerk.

Messrs. Butler, Arnott, Jay, and Dummitt were elected as Finance Committee, following a report on the duplex envelope system read by Mr. H. Sowden.

A well-deserved tribute was paid to the organist and choir for their faithful and efficient services.

Votes of thanks were tendered by the chairman to the retiring wardens, the Guild, and the choir for their valuable services to the church.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. W. R. Courage invited the choir, A.Y.P.A., and Sunday School officers and teachers to the rectory for a social evening on Thursday, 7th February.

The warden read the church financial report. The receipts from all sources were $1,874.63, and expenditures were $1,822.82.

CENTRAL ONTARIO FAIR BOARD MEET

Effort Made to Raise Admission Price to All Fall Fairs in This District.

(By a Staff Reporter).

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 30. — James Armstrong, secretary-treasurer of the Warkworth Agricultural Society, who represented his board of directors at the annual meeting of the Central Ontario Fairs Association, held at Belleville on Tuesday afternoon, made an attempt to induce all the societies in the association to raise the admission fee from 35 to 50 cents, this charge to be uniform throughout the district. Mr. Armstrong thought that the association should at least go on record on this question.

The delegate from Warkworth received little support, and no definite action was taken, the matter not coming to a vote. Clayton Tucker, ex-president of the Stirling Fair, objected to an increase on the ground that it would really mean a reduction in the receipts by cutting down the attendance. Mr. Armstrong, however, was of the opinion that the public would not hesitate over a boost of 15 cents, and that the aggregate from this source would mean considerable to the societies.

Fairs Well Represented.

There was a good attendance of delegates at the meeting, nearly every Fair in the district being represented. C. W. Varcoe was the delegate from Roseneath, Dr. M. W. Sine, ex-President Clayton Tucker and President H. W. Heath represented Stirling, President John Locke and C. E. Bonnycastle were there from Campbellford, and James Armstrong from Warkworth. The other Fairs sent two or more delegates. Dr. G. A. Hay, of Campbellford, secretary-treasurer of the association, was also in attendance.

Address By Official.

The speaker of the day was A. R. G. Smith, of New Hamburg, first vice-president of the Ontario Fairs Association, who spoke on the standardization of all exhibits at Fairs, especially the farm produce. The standard set for each article should be uniform, and if the exhibits fall below this no prizes should be awarded. Mr. Smith said that Denmark is now Canada's strongest competitor in the British market. In that country all farm produce is standardized, and if Canadians wish to hold their own in the Old Land they must do as Denmark does.

Welcomed to Belleville.

W. C. Mikel, K.C., Mayor of Belleville, welcomed the delegates to the city, and told them that as long as they chose they could have the use of the Council Chamber, in which the meeting was held. There was a heartiness and ring of sincerity in the Mayor's welcome. If the delegates wanted anything, he said, all they had to do was to call for it. If they desired the key of the city it would be provided, and if they needed a map to enable them to find their way around, that, too, would be furnished.

Belleville, said Mayor Mikel, is to establish a Fair of its own with new grounds, and he promised that the institution will be a credit to the district because Belleville never does anything by halfs. A Winter Fair may be held and he has no doubt this could be made a success and would bring the people of the entire district to the city.

Mayor Mikel reminded the delegates of the celebration to be held in Bellville on June 16th and 17th next to mark the hundred and fortieth anniversary of the coming to Upper Canada of the United Empire Loyalists. An elaborate programme is being prepared. There will be a military parade on the opening day, to be followed by a procession of fraternal societies on the second. Everybody is invited to the celebration, the object of which is to honor the memory of the pioneers who gave up their homes in the Unted States to endure hardships in a new country in order that they might continue to live under the British flag. The celebration will also cultivate the patriotism and fire the pride of the rising generation in their native land.

Ex-Mayor Millar added a few brief words of welcome to those spoke by his successor in office.

Dates For Fall Fairs.

The chief item of business to be disposed of by the meeting was setting the dates of the various fall fairs. There was no controversy to speak of. Colborne wanted September 23 and 24, and Stirling, which had September 17 and 18 last year asked to be given dates one week later. This would conflict with the Colborne dates, but Delegate Tucker, after consulting with his fellow delegates, agreed to take September 16 and 17.

Tweed's request was for October 2 and 3, and Warkworth asked for the same dates. Although the two places are far apart it was contended by the delegate from each society that holding the fair on the same date would injure both. It was decided to leave the settlement of this dispute to the societies themselves. This is the schedule, as finally adopted, the list being subject to revision of Tweed and Warkworth reach an agreement.

Campbellford, Sept. 25-26.
Bancroft, Sept 24-25.
Belleville, Sept. 10, 11, 12.
Castleton, Sept. 16-17.
Colborne, Sept. 23-24.
Frankford, Sept. 18-19.
Madoc, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1.
Marmora, Sept. 29-30.
Napanee, Sept. 8-9-10-11.
Picton, Sept. 16-20.
Roblin's Mills, Sept. 4.
Roseneath, Oct. 9-10.
Stirling, Sept. 16-17.
Shannonville, Sept. 27.
Tweed, Oct. 2-3.
Wooler, Sept. 4 and 5.
Warkworth, Oct. 2-3.

It was decided to hold the annual meeting next year in the Council Chamberr, Belleville, on the third Tuesday in January.

Officers Elected.

B. R. Leavens of Picton, was advanced from the first vice-presidency to the presidency, suucceeding Angus Nicholson of Madoc; Clayton Tucker of Stirling, second vice-president, was moved up a step, and B. F. Brintnell of Colborne was made second vice-president. Dr. Hay was unanimously re-elected secretary-treasurer. President Leavens will go as a delegate to the meeting of the Ontario Fair Association.

Former Schoolmaster Met.

Charles Ferguson, delegate from Roblin's' Mills, and Dr. M. W. Sine of Stirling, met at the convention yesterday for the first time in 53 years. They attended public school together in the Sine settlement, near Stirling, but over half a century ago the Ferguson boy went with his parents to the vicinity of Picton. As soon as Mr. Ferguson heard the name of the other mentioned he made inquiries and ascertained that he was the schoolmaster from whom he had been so long parted. The two spent a pleasant time together talking over incidents in their boyhood days.

BROKE WORLD'S RECORD.

NEW YORK, January 30 (Canadian Press). — Mercerberg Academy shattered its own world's record for the mile relay to defeat Hamilton Collegiate Institute in the international feature at Madison Square Gardens last night.

The time of 3m. 33 4-5s. was 1 4-5s. faster than the previous record.

Rosa Grosse, Toronto, defeated Marcen McCartie, holder of the U. S. title in the 50 yard dash, in 6 3-5 seconds.

HOUSEWIVES' COLUMN

In food matters you can't do better than to follow the example of food experts. Where they buy you may be sure that quality and price are both highly satisfactory.

The 300 Dominion Store managers are experts on foods and food prices. You will be interested in knowing their real, deep-down, honest-to-goodness opinion of the groceries they sell. The best proof of this is—Where do their close relatives and friends buy their groceries?

I can tell you the real facts. Every single one of these Dominion Store managers believes so thoroughly in his own stock of goods that he recommends them to his own circle of friends and relatives. Of course he uses them himself, but he trusts Dominion quality and price so completely that he urges those whose opinion he values most to buy at the red front Dominion Stores..

You, too, want to make steady savings on your food bill, without sacrificing quality to price. The best way to do this is to follow the man who knows most about this important question—the Dominion Store manager in your neighborhood.

If you keep a record of your food costs, and all of us ought to, you will soon prove to yourself that the surest way to feed your family for less is to buy regularly at your Dominion Store. When you save money on every article you buy you soon see surprising savings.

HAROLD GODDARD BELIEVED TO BE WOMAN'S SLAYER

A Mute Citizen Related to Police Yesterday That He Had Seen Goddard Leave the House Last Friday Morning.

HAD BLOODY HANDS

TORONTO, Jan. 30.— (Canadian Press.)—Developments of a sensational nature yesterday afternoon resulted in Harold Godard being identified as the slayer of Mrs. Martha Crooks in her home, on Jameson avenue, last Friday. Godard will now be tried on a murder charge. At present he is being held in jail on remand, charged with the attempted murder of Mrs. M. Duncan in her apartment, Ridout street, on January 18.

Yesterday afternoon a citizen, who is a mute, called at the detective headquarters and related the story of having seen Godard, his head hidden in his overcoat collar, and his hands covered with blood, leave Jameson avenue house around 10 o'clock Friday morning.

Informant, through an interpreter, told the police that he was delivering hand bills on Jameson avenue. As he approached the door of Mrs. Crook's house, he continued, he met Godard coming out, and proffered him a hand bill, wihch the latter refused to accept.

PETERBORO GETS A HIGH MARK IN CHEESE EXHIBIT

Mr. A. R. Mallory of the Selwyn Cheese Factory Carried Off the Silver Trophy for the Best Cheese.

Regarding the cheese exhibit held in the city of Kingston January 10 to 11, 1924, it may be explained that this exhibition is held in connection with the annual convention of the Dairymen Association of Eastern Ontario.

The exhibition is open to all cheese factories in Eastern Ontario, comprising something over 700, divided into 30 groups or syndicates, with an instructor over each group.

Peterborough syndicate, of which Mr. R. W. Ward, 476 Downie street, is instructor, in a strong competition of about 100 entries succeeded in winning the largest number of prizes, namely, 2 firsts, 2 seconds, 2 fourths, 1 fifth, 2 sevenths, 2 eighths, also some 13 special prizes and the silver trophy (value $100) awarded to the maker having the highest scoring cheese.

The trophy was won by Mr. A. R. Mallory, maker and owner of Selwyn Cheese Factory.

There was no exhibition of cheese held in Belleville at the convention in January, 1923, but the above was a repeat of what Peterborough syndicate did at Ottawa in January, 1922.

Mr. Mallory has now won the trophy the second time. If he succeeds in winning it again before it is captured by someone else it becomes his property.

He is the first maker who has won it the second time.

HOSPITAL UNDER THE GOVERNMENT

Change in Administration of Ste. Anne De Bellevue Effected In Interest of Economy.

OTTAWA, Jan. 30. — Premier King and Hon. H. S. Beland, Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, received a delegation of medical men yesterday afternoon in regard to recent changes in the administration of the Ste. Anne de Bellevue Hospital. The administration of the hospital which was formerly carried on by the medical superintendent is now under the control of Captain G. H. Boyd, Montreal Unit Director of Adminstration of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment. The change, it is said, was made in the interest of economy ,and a substantial saving is expected to result from it.

The importance of the medical side of hospital administration was emphasized by the delegation, which deprecated any change designed to remove the hospital from medical control. The Minister of Soldiers Civil Re-establishment explained, however, that the change would mean an important saving to the country. Following the conference he expressed the view that the delegation was favorably impressed with his view of the matter. Captain Boyd will continue to administer the hospital.

FASHIONABLE PARISIAN LIKE LINK OF SAUSAGE

BY HEDDA HOYT

PARIS, France, Jan. 30.—(United Press).—To look like a link of sausage is the whim of the Parisian at present. One can hardly call this tube-like silhouette the ruling one, however, as there are really three distinct silhouettes in Paris at the present writing.

But for morning and street wear the unbelted, sausage-shaped frocks and tube-like coats rule supreme. Afternoon sees the more feminine silhouette with frocks shirred, tiered, flounced or draped, and made of luxuriously beaded belts and tinsel embroidered crepes. For evening we have still another silhouette, or rather, we have two distinct silhouettes; the short, full-skirted dance frock, made of flimsy materials such as tulle, net, or chiffon, and the sophisticated formal gown, which uses brocade, velvet and beaded crepe in sinuous, slender lines.

Morning Silhouette

The little morning silhouette is by far the most amusing one of the moment. We see girls in double-breasted suits of mannish materials with pockets and lapels exactly like brother's.

A slight hint of the feminine is left to the blouse which is open at the throat with turned back collar.

Again there may be a brilliant flower in one's buttonhole, to relieve the too-mannish effect. Often the blouse worn with such a suit has a tucked shirt front like that of a man's dress shirt. Skirts of these boyish suits are always rather short and scant.

Afternoon Silhouette

If Milady wishes to look like Peck's bad boy in the morning, she must show her chameleon qualities by appearing like a former Russian Princess, a seven-veiled sylph, or a Chinese Manchu lady in the afternoon.

Gowns of Russian tendencies are made of gold-embroidered velvets or lovely brocades with long basques, wind-about sashes, full-flaring tunics, which extend just below the knee, and narrow underskirts.

I saw a lovely gown of this sort at the Cafe de Paris one afternoon at tea time. The blouse and tunic was of brown velvet embroidered in gold in peasant design. A six-inch band of Kolinsky bordered the tunic. A wide sash of velvet, more heavily embroidered than the rest of the gown was wrapped carelessly about the hips. The sleeves joined the gown just above the elbow and were of finely pleated brown chiffon, gathered in at the wrists. The underskirt was unembroidered and scant as to line. A stunning Russian turban of Kolinsky completed the Russian effect.

The more youthful frocks for afternoon, use soft silk crepes and chiffons with flounces, tiers or circular hems. Often these are made over a foundation of gold or silver-cloth. Sleeves are usually short and necklines rounding.

Chinese Frocks.

Chinese embroidered frocks, with brilliant colorings, Mandarin sleeves and necklines, are extremely chic on the dark Parisian. One of these is made with a veritable blue coolie jacket embroidered in gold dragons with a skirt of plain blue satin, made with straight side-panels, to resemble trousers. For teatime, in one's own home, this frock would be lovely, although I should not care for so eccentric a style in a public rendezvouz. However, the little Mah Jong gowns are the latest hit in Paris.

Many of the smartest velvet afternoon frocks have three-quarter or hip-length coats to match. Jenny is particularly partial to these. Sometimes she uses sleeves of contrasting color to the coat, as in one case of a brown coat with burnt-orange sleeves encrusted with bronze embroidery. Again her sleeves are cut wide and banded in narrow rows of fur. Sleeves, it would seem, play the most important role of the frock. Nearly all coats are fur trimmed these days, the fur being used on collars, sleeves and as a border to the coat bottom. Many of the more dressy suits vary the tube effect by showing a slightly fitted, low waistline and slight fullness at the hips. Frocks worn with coats of this line use a slight flare at the hem to carry out the lines of the coat.

HER CHILDREN HAD WHOOPING COUGH

This is one of the most dangerous diseases of children. It starts with fever and cough. The cough is at first short and sharp, but gradually increases in severity and occurs in sudden spasms, vomiting follows, and sometimes there is nose bleed; the child turns livid in the face, the eyes appear as if they would burst from their sockets, and suffocation seems emminent till relief is brought on by the "whoop."

Dr Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will clear the bronchial tubes of the collected mucous and phelgm and in this way ease the racking cough, and in a short time make is disappear.

Mrs. L. Ambrose, Sarnia, Ont., writes:—"My little ones were both sick with whooping cough. I read where Dr. Wood 's Norway Pine Syrup was good, and I only used two bottles and they were better. I had chronic bronchitis for three years and tried everything until, finally, I got 'Dr Wood's'. I would not be without this remedy."

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

THE REFEREE

TAXES.

In all this cyclone of talk about reducing taxes, let's remember that national taxes are not the only ones. A government bulletin reveals these surprising figures:

In 1923 the national government collected 3204 million dollars of taxes. No 1923 figures are completely available as yet for states, counties, cities, towns and rural districts. But in 1922 these combined collected 4228 millions dollars in taxes, or nearly a third more than national taxes.

BILLIONS.

The tax burden of the American people is somewhere around seven and a half billion dollars a year—including all taxes, national, state, county, municipal, and so on.

This is about $70 a year for every man, woman and child. For a family of five, it averages $350 a year.

The actual burden is much greater, for in passing taxes on to consumers there is usually an additional levy to play safe.

DEBT.

While nearly seven and a half billion dollars of taxes are collected in a year from the American people, government spending is much larger. The deficit is taken care of by bond issues. So the fuutre is increasingly mortgaged and the burden of debt, on which interest must be paid, grows steadily. An eventual day of reckoning is enevitable.

The national debt in decreasing. But the total debts of states, counties and municipalities is increasing. Put the brakes on Uncle Sam, fine! But put them also on Sams' 48 children, the states, and their many family relatives.

THEATER.

The new Cherry Lane Playhouse is heralded as New York City's smallest theater. It's another link in the chain of Little Theatres over the country, which have done so much to promote better theatricals and inject life and originality into the legitimate stage. One of these, a converted stable, produced the famous Provincetown Players and brought Eugene O'Neill from dark obscurity to his present position as greatest American playwright.

The movies need a Little Theater movement. Mechanical cost is a bar. But it will come.

CHANCE.

When an unknown writer sends a movie scenario to the producers, there's only one chance in 10,000 of its being accepted.

The Authors' League makes this interesting discovery in the law of chance. It found that only four scenarios were accepted, out of 42,020 sent to producers.

Maybe it's all for a heal, after all. Out of 10,000, we doubt is more than 50 would be worth producing.

Writers' chief problem is overproduction. As George Ade put it, too much competition with dead men.

A COMPROMISE PLAN.

The local Board of Health is to decide whether or not the cutting of ice from the Otonabee River is to be prohibited.

It is a question that has been before the board at different times without any definite action being taken, but the matter having been put squarely up to it by the Provincial authorities, the board will now have to come to a decision.

The prohibition of the use of ice from the Otonabee or from Little Lake for cooling beverages in restaurants and hotels might be considered as an alternative to an absolute prohibition of ice-cutting.

If there is a risk in employing this ice for beverage purposes then the public has the right to be protected against such a risk, and all places serving the public with drinks and foods should be restrained from using the ice for any other than refrigeration purposes.

This could be done very easily by having the ice chambers locked, the keys to be carried by representatives of the ice company.

Private citizens could be warned of the danger and advised to use the ice only in their refrigerators and to keep it out of their food and drink.

Such a plan might remove the element of danger from the use of Otonabee River ice, and at the same time not interfere too much with the firms and individuals who have for years been allowed to harvest the ice from river or lake.

IT ALL DEPENDS.

Some comment is being heard because of the fact that the salary of the new Auditor General of Canada, Mr. Gonthier of Montreal, is to be nine thousand dollars in excess of that paid his predecessor, or $15,000 a year to be exact.

It is urged that just now when the Canadian people are demanding economy is no time to be providing increased salaries for officials.

That all depends.

If Mr. Gonthier has the right qualities, and in Montreal he is noted for both ability and moral courage, he will many times over earn his salary each year and his appointment will be amptly justified.

The annual expenditure of Canada is around $400,000,000— a huge sum—and the manner in which it is expended must in the interest of the public be carefully scrutinized and audited.

The right kind of auditor, who is not afraid to check extravagance or irregularities in any of the departments, is worth much more than the salary complained of.

It is no position for a weakling, tor an inefficient or a cowardly official—such a man would be of no value whatever to this country—but the right man in the position could by vigilance in one transaction alone save the amount of his salary many times over.

There will be little crtiicism of the increased salary if the newly-appointed Auditor General measures up to his responsibilities.

ON THE RIGHT PATH.

From Ottawa comes an assurance that Canadians of all shades of politics have been looking for, an announcement of a definite step towards reducing the overhead and thus bringing about a chance for lower taxation.

Premier King has summoned all the Deputy Ministers or permanent heads of departments to be prepared to meet the Cabinet Friday and to show cause why certain reductions in their departmental expenditures, especially under the head of "civil government," should not be made. The Civil Service Commission will also attend the conference, which has all the appearances of being a "showdown."

The heads of departments will be asked to "indicate wherein economies may be effected or services may be dispensed with."

That sounds like business—the kind of business that the people of this country have been looking for, and there will be a general wish that the conference may be followed by definite action in the direction of economy.

Naturally there will be objection from the Civil Service, which cannot be expected to sit still and calmly watch itself cut down.

Opposition, too, will be forthcoming from many private members who, although they preach economy on every possible occasion so long as it does not hurt their own interests, are inclined to draw back when they find that the reforms decided upon involve the dismissal of a personal friend or two in their own constituency.

The Government should perservere in its plans in spite of all opposition; the people demand retrenchment and are determined to have a specific answer to their demand.

The orgy of expenditure must be checked, and no matter whose corns may be trodden upon the Government should be firm in its attitude towards this question.

MORE CO-OPERATION NEEDED.

The statement made by Dr. McCulloch, Provincial Health Officer, to a Peterborough deputation which waited upon him yesterday objecting to a recent order in regard to the harvesting of ice from the Otonabee River that the regulation of ice-catting rights is a matter entirely in the hands of the Peterborough Board of Health, indicates that there is not as much teamwork in health matters as is desirable.

A few days ago an order was issued by the Provincial Board of Health forbidding the cutting of ice from the Otonabee between the waterworks dam and Hale's Bridge.

This order was confirmed to the Examiner by Dr. N. H. Sutton, District Medical Health Officer.

Now the chief health office for the Province declares that the local Board of Health has the full power to decide what action shall be taken.

There is evidently room for a better understanding among the different bodies, and officials entrusted with the care of the health of the people of this Province and a more clear definition of the powers and duties of each.

Every community has its own health officer, and, in addition, there are eleven District Medical Health Officers whose salaries and expenses run into a formidable figure each year.

Apparently there is confusion as to the respective powers of the different officials, and in the general interest there should be more co-operation if proper results are to be secured.

THE AUSTRALIAN EXPERIMENT.

We may speculate with some assurance as to the probable course of the Labor Party in Great Britain, assuming that it may come into possession of the reins of government, by reviewing the history of events in Australia; for Australia has moved in that regard twenty years ahead of Great Britain. It was in 1904 that the Australian Labor Party, four years after the erection of the Commonwealth, came into administrative control. Since that time it has been in and out many times; but that has been more a matter of label than of fact. It has during the past two decades been the dominant force in the political life of Australia; yet the actual balance of power has been held by a fairly large group of men and women who might be classified as Independents. That group has alternately swung the fate of governments, at times frankly bearing the name of organized labor, and at other times bearing other names.

What, then, of Labor in Australia? In the first place, we may readily discern a measure of paternalism unknown under our own system. The governments of nearly all the Australian states, as well as the federal government, have gone extensively into business. They have factories and shops for the production and sale of a wide variety of commodities. Among the various ventures are meat shops, slaughter houses, sugar mills, shipyards, storage plants and so on, all publicly owned and operated. The railways and other utilities had been wholly under state control prior to the coming into power of the Labor Party. In a great many ways the broad principle of public ownership has been given demonstration, and the financial results have shown that losses are about balanced by profits. On the whole, over the period embraced within the last four years in particular, there has been a adverse balance.

Perhaps the salient aspect of Australian legislation during th epast twenty years has had reference to wages and the general conditions of work. For both men and women there has been fixed a basic or minimum wage, which might be said to average $21 per week. This must be measured against Canada's rates, however, in the light of the fact that the cost of living at the Antipodes is considerably lower than here. Householders, for example, are not confronted by the necessity for buying anthracite coal for six months in the year at $17 per ton. The problem of clothing is simpler and does not take in many woollens and furs except as luxuries. Winter in Australia is at its worst a wet and chilly season. The hours of labor vary in the different states, and run from forty-five and a half to forty-seven and a half; but there are a great many special features in the governing laws in that regard.

The criticism which has been most frequent and forcefully directed against the policies of the Australian Labor Party is that they have tended to insulate the Commonwealth and shut it in on itself. Although only 31 per cent. of the population lives outside of towns and cities, that small proportion produces 94 per cent. of the nation's exports. Yet what is called the "new protection" imposes an exceedingly high tariff on imports, for the avowed purpose of stimulating wages. This is held by opponents to be a purely artificial process, which makes even woollen goods higher than in any other country, although Australia is the chief source of the raw material. The same thing is true of boots and shoes and a wide range of commodities. It should build up local industries; but has not had that effect, because of the high cost of labor.

An analogy with the history of the British Labor Party in Great Britain is found in the earlier attitude of the Australian Labor Party. When it merely held the balance of power between the Liberals and Conservatives, it refused to take sides on the question of trade policy. It simply said to the party in office: "Give us what we want and do what you like as to free trade and protection, or we turn you out." In later years, as has been said, it has been held in check by a body of Independents, who, while nominally ranking as Laborites, care very little about the fate of any of the parties.—Ottawa Journal.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, January 30 (Canadian Press). — Corn, wheat, and oats all scored upturns in price yesterday, largely as a result of assertions that farm stocks of grain are decidedly smaller than has been generally supposed, or else that farmers have developed an unsuspected ability to hold on to their supplies.

Corn closed unsettled at a shade to 3-8c to 1-2c net advance, May 80 1-4c to 80 3-8c, with wheat firm, 14c to 3-4c up, May $1.09 7-8 to $1.10.

Oats unchanged to 38c higher.

One of the leading crop experts gave the weight of his authority to a decidedly bullish view as to the smallness of farm stocks of grain and regarding the alternative that growers were successfully carrying out a policy of holding grain back for better prices. He pointed out that the corn market had advanced more than 6 cents a bushel since 1st January, but that nevertheless this was the first January in many years showing no substantial accumulation at the chief distributing centres. Similar comment was made as to wheat and oats.

No Provincial Grant For Immigrant Boys.

REGINA, Jan. 30. — (Canadian Press).—Premier Dunning interviewed regarding a report that the Saskatchewan Governmet had not promised any financial support to the Salvatio Army scheme for bringing out young English boys to Canada, said it was true the Saskatchewan Government could not see its way to assume any responsibility in this matter. For years it has been the consistent policy of successive Saskatchewans Governments not to assume financial responsibility for any general immgration so long as the atural resources in the province are controlled by the Dominion authorities.

LOCAL ENGINEERS AT A CONVENTION

Five Hundred Engineers Present From All Parts of the Dominion.

The 37th annual meeting of the Engineering Institute of Canada, held at the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa on Wednesday and Thursday of last week, proved to be a successful convention, with nearly five hundred engineers from all over Canada present. At this meeting Walter J. Francis of Montreal was re-elected President. Mr. Francis was for some years resident in Peterborough when he was one of the engineers in charge of the construction work on the Lift Locks. Ross Dobbin, a delegate from Peterborough, was elected a member of the Engineering Council. Other local delegates were P. P. Westbye and A. L. Killaly of the city and E. H. Miles, County Engineer of Lindsay, who is also a member of the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute.

The convention, which was marked by many social events, that included a ball in the Chateau ball room, a banquet and luncheon, a bridge and tea and a theatre party for the ladies, and a smoker for the men, besides a visit to the British-America Nickel Corporation plant at Deschenes, Quebec, was marked by interesting and instructive addresses. An especially good lecture was given by D. W. McLachlan, M.E.I.C., of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, on the "St. Lawrence Deep Waterway Problem." Other addresses were those of Sir W. Sefton Brancker, K.C.B., Director of Civil Aviation of Great Britain Air Ministry, London, on "The Progress of Civil Aviation," a paper by Dr. Chas. Camsell, M.E.I.C., Deputy-Minister of Mines, Canada, on "The Fuel Problem," and an address by Hamp t P. Hill on "Colonel By and the Rideau Canal."

The address by D. W. McLachlan who outlined the official scheme for the development of power by the solution of the St. Lawrence deep waterway problem, was described by the President, W. J. Francis, as the most important contribution ever made to the most important engineering problem that faces Canada. Mr. McLachlan's address went very fully into one of the most important phases of the problem, that of taking care of the frazil ice which forms a determining factor in navigation and the development of power on the St. Lawrence. An international joint commission composed of representatives of the United States and the Canadian Governments, after over a year of careful study, have come to an agreement on all matters that pertain to this question, with the exception of the regulation of the flow out of Lake Ontario and the general effect of ice conditions.

Mr. McLachlan outlined very fully the official scheme which entails the storing of the two billion cubic feet of frazil ice formed each year in such a way that the head water and the consequent power is unimpeded. This plan is on the basis of a one-stage development, whereas the plan suggested by the engineers of the Ontario Hydro-electric Commission calls for a two-stage development.

During the debate which followed Mr. McLachlan's paper, lively exchanges took place between him and Messrs. F. A. Gaby and H. G. Acres, hydraulic engineers of the Ontario Hydro, speaking in defence of their plan.

Mr. McLachlan described the single stage plan as a proposal to let an ice cover form over a large part of what is now open water, and to reduce the amount of frazil ice formed, approximately five billion cubic feet yearly, to about two million cubic feet, which will be stowed away under the ice cover not at Cornwall, but in the upper end of the pool to be created above the Long Sault Rapids.

H. G. Acres, one of the Hydro engineers, maintained that Mr. McLachlan had over-estimated the trouble likely to be caused by frazil ice. The scheme suggested by the Ontario Hydro, calling for an open channel, from Prescott to Ogdensburg throughout the winter, would obviate much of this trouble, he said. A solid ice surface could first be obtained, then a narrow channel maintained throughout the winter months.

Mr. McLachlan said that this scheme sounded physically possible, but was practically absurd, as he considered such arguments based on a fallacy, the Hydro engineers taking it for granted that they could narrow the channel of open water by the methods suggested. Such methods, he declared, would make a broader channel and consequently an increased danger of frazil ice. The opponents took different views of the cause of frazil ice, Mr. McLachlan saying that the danger of frazil was proportionate to the superficial area of water exposed, and had little to do with the turbulence of the surface, whereas Mr. Acres seemed to be of the opinion that, were an open channel maintained there would be less disturbance of the surface and a consequent lessening of the formation of frazil.

F. A. Gaby, chief engineer of the Ontario Hydro, agreed with Mr. McLachlan that the quantity of frazil depended largely on the superficial area of water exposed, but thought that a solid ice surface could first be obtained and then a narrow channel maintained throughout the winter months, which would do away with the danger of frazil. The elimination of rapids and the maintenance of the open channel, were, he was certain, the most important points in the solution of the problem.

Data For Farmers

Information Available In Dominion Bureau If Method Of Circulating It Were Developed.

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Perss).—Means by which Canadian farmers may be brought into direct touch with the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and tap its information regarding markets and crop production were discussed here yesterday in a conference between Federal authorities and a delegation comprising representatives of all departments of agriculture in Canada, the Board of Grain Commissioners and the Northwest Grain Dealers Association. The delegation last night met the Prime Minister in informal conference.

An effort will be made to supply to farmers data concerning crop conditions, marketing, and other matters affecting them, to ensure profitable operation of farms and marketing of farm produce.

WINTER DISEASES, LIKE FLU, LARGELY DUE TO FOOD HABITS.

Everyone remembers the dread flu following the war. Few recall the absence of flu and most diseases during the war, nor after the war, were flu, pneumonia, etc., prevalent among races not following civilization's food habits. Why was this?

Blood must be kept alkaline by eating alkaline foods, yet civilized races refine out of their most important foods—the grains—the alkaline salts, just to make flour white, cereals dainty. The result is acid blood. Acids leave the blood by the skin, linings of nose, throat, lungs, etc., irritating these surfaces and lowering body vitality, enabling disease germs to attack the body.

During the war acid forming white flour, refined cereals, meats, sweets were controlled. Alkaline whole grains, milk, nuts, beans, vegetables and fruits were increased. There was no flu. After the war people glutted themselves upon acid-forming white flour, refined cereals, fats, etc., resulting in millions of deaths through flu. Flu will continue its ravages while stupid food habits prevail.

Roman Meal is richly alkaline, 400 parts of each 1,000 "Excess Alkali." It corrects the acids of white flour, other cereals, meats, fats and sweets, keeping the blood alkaline, Nature's own immunizer against diseases, which protects the savage who lives sofe way every day. It relieves constipation, prevents indigestion, alkalinizes the blood, keeps you well. It was designed by a physician-dietitian, aware of the "Deficiencies" of modern refined foods, for this very purpose. Delicious, easily prepared, economical. Roman Meal is an unmixed blessing to the modern child fed so largely upon deficient white flour and refined cereals.

Owen Sound Merchants Resort to Blacklist.

OWEN SOUND, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press).—The local fraternity of deadbeats are likely to have a difficulty in future. The retail bureau of the Board of Trade, which is an organization in which is included all leading merchants of the city, has appointed a committee to look into ways and means of giving the merchants some protection against this class of people which fortunately are not very numerous here. In short the local merchants will deadbeat the deadbeats at their own game. A black list, of people who buy goods on credit and never intend to pay for them, will be issued to all local merchants.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHES REPORT YEAR'S ACTIVITIES

GRACE CHURCH, MILLBROOK.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 30.—The annual meeting of Grace Presbyterian Church was well attended and reports of the various organizations were most encouraging. Miss Anna Hawthorne, Secretary-Treasurer of the Sunday School, in reviewing the year's work showed an increasing attendance and interest, with satisfactory financial standing. L. C. Russell is Superintendent.

The Canadian-Girls-in-Training group (Miss Anna Russell, Mentor) reported the most successful year in its history. The proceeds from the bazaar held in December, for which Mrs. H. R. Armstrong kindly gave the use of her home, had enabled the girls to purchase their basket ball, and regular practices of their favorite sport were now possible. The four-fold programme is being followed with excellent results, not only by the girls' group, but by the Tuxis Square and the Trail Rangers as well. The pastor, Rev. C. S. Gervan, is leader of the older boys' organization, and Jim Larmer of the younger group.

Women's Auxiliary.

Mrs. R. J. Doak, Treasurer of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary, reported a total of nearly one hundred and forty dollars raised during the year. The membership roll shows forty-three annual members and one life member. Nine regular meetings were held and three special gatherings. Over eighty delegates attended the annual Presbyterial meeting which convened in Millbrook in September, much inspiration being received from the addresses and the opportunity of mingling with other workers from the district. A new venture, but one which will probably be made an annual occurrence, was the "at home" held by the auxiliary officers in the church parlors in November to which all the women of the congregation were invited and the annual thank-offering was taken up. A liberal response increased the budget for the year. In September the bale, containing a complete outfit for the boy whom the auxiliary clothes, was sent to File Hills' Boarding School in Alberta, and warm quilts, etc., were also included with a generous quantity of hospital supplies.

Two members each month are responsible for the programme for the meeting, and in response to the request from headquarters that one missionary be chosen by each auxiliary as te subject of special prayer, Miss Cardwell of Korea, a sister of Mr. H. Cardwell of Wallace's Point, Otonabee Rivsr, was alloted to the Grace Church workers.

Ladies' Aid Report.

The Ladies' Aid report was given by Mrs. J. R. Eakins, the statement that this organization has raised eleven hundred dollars during the year bringing congratulatory comment. All the women of the congregation are considered members of the aid and all unite most harmoniously and indefatigably in working for the needs of the church. The garden party in June at Mr. J. H. Paul's, 8th line, Cavan, the dinner served at the agricultural dining hall on Fair day, the bazaar in the Armouries in November and a generous amount of assistance at the fowl supper in December, were among the special activities of the aid during the year, all of which yielded satisfactory financial results. In 1923 the ladies gave the managers three hundred dollars toward current expenses, and at the annual meeting Mrs. Eakins, on behalf of the aid, presented the church Treasurer, H. W. Johnston, with a cheque for a similar amount for 1924. Last year the aid paid one hundred dollars on the mortgage on the manse, and this year they have paid off twice that sum.

The new covered shed built last year at an estimated cost of twelve hundred dollars, of which fully six hundred dollars was given in material and volunteer labor, has proved a decided advantage to the church, and a community convenience as well.

The debt on the shed still to be discharged is less than four hundred dollars and no personal canvass of the circuit for this purpose has yet been made. These facts, and others equally satisfactory, were included in the annual statement of the financial secretary, W. E. Ball and the treasurer, H. W. Johnston. Approximately seven thousand dollars was raised on the circuit (Grace church, Millbrook, and St. Enoch's, Garden Hill) in 1922, and this probably constituted a record unless for the year when the new church was built. But the returns for 1923 were only a comparatively small amount below those of the previous year and gave conclusive evidence of a sound financial condition.

Messrs. H. W. Johnston, W. E. Ball, C. Thorndyke and H. R. Armstrong were re-appointed to the board of managers, and Messrs. J. H. Paul, J. R. Eakins and E. Armstrong are newly-elected members.

Secretary 21 Years.

Dr. A. Jemison has been congregational secretary for twenty-one consecutive years. St. Enoch's church, Garden Hill, has a record of faithful service which exceeds this, Thomas Little having held the position of congregational secretary for fifty years, while Mr. A. Allison recently removed from the district, was the efficient superintendent of the Sunday school for over twenty years. The latter has been succeeded by Mr. Stanley Gray. Mrs. S. Gray is the leader of the C.G.I.T. group and her girls, now reo-rganized as an adult Bible class, last year gave fifty dollars to the church, twenty-five to missions, re-decorated the Sunday school hall and are now financing the building of a receptacle where the choir gowns may be hung.

At the conclusion of the annual meeting adjournment was made to the basement where a bountiful tea was served b the ladies and an enjoyable social evening was spent.

Omemee Church Report.

OMEMEE, Jan. 29.—The annual meeting of the Presbterian congregation, Omemee, was held on Wednesday evening, January 23rd, with a good attendance present, considering the condition of the weather.

The choir was occupied by the pastor, Rev. J. A. Black, while Mr. H. Lamb acted as secretary.

The session reported a membership of 86, the same as last year, 13 names had been added but there were 13 removals. There were 3 baptisms and two deaths.

The Women's Missionary Society reported a revenue of $79.00, while $65 was given to the general funds and goods valued at $10 donated. It was reported that a Guild was organized at the close of the year under favorable auspices.

The Sunday school report showed an income of $104 with a contribution of $24 to the budget. Three prizes were given for perfect attendance during the year.

Revenue of $1,300.

The treasurer reoprted a revenue of $1,300 with an expenditure of about the same amount, $34, of which went to the Budget.

Messrs. T. Magee and R. Boyd were elected as managers for three years. The hearty thanks of the meeting, was tendered to the treasurer, Mr. Thomas Magee for his services.

It was agreed that Messrs. S. T. Wilson, F. G. Sandy, D. H. Dick, S. Best, and H. Lamb act as trustees of the congregtaion.

The meeting adjourned with the Benediction.

Mount Pleasant Reoprt.

Mount Pleasant Presbyterian church held its annual meeting on January 24th, with Rev. J. A. Black in the chair. Mr. H. Bland acted as secretary. The treasurer showed a balance on the right side.

Managers and trustees were elected.

The Sunday school had been well attended and kept open during the year.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. T. Jamieson, who had acted as treasurer and organist respectively.

The meeting closed with the Benediction.

CITIZEN OF WORLD NOW READY RETIRE

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt Appostle of World-wide Women's Suffrage Won Her Fight.

By DON E. P. DROHAN.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 30.—Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, apostle of world-wide women's suffrage, announces she's ready to retire.

She has won her fight. Nearly twoscore countries have accepted her creed. She has earned the title, "citizen of the world."

This former girl superintendent of schools and wife of a weekly newspaper editor in a little Iowa town has carried her gospel to practically every corner of the universe.

On three oceans and in North and South America, Europe, Asia—even Africa—she has preached the doctrine of equal rights for all women.

Thirty-six nations with full suffrage and three more with partial suffrage for her sisters remain as enduring monuments to Mrs. Catt's devotion to the cause she loves.

Of course, a few barriers remain. But these merely are legal technicalities in man-made constitutions, Mrs. Catt points out. They will be obliterated in a few years, she believes.

Mrs. Catt actually left the front lines two years ago, when she resigned the presidency of the International Woman's Suffrage Alliance, which she held 20 years.

But she didn't leave the public eye. Since her return from a European trip she has been "stumping" for peace, pleading with men and women to outlaw all war forever.

She believes she has helped sway public sentiment in that direction, too.

"I have made my last peace talk," she declares.

DOUBTS REPORT DOUKES LEAVING

No Official Information About Winnipeg Story of 3,000 Doukobors Intending to Return to Russia.

OTTAWA, Jan. 29.—The Federal Immigration Department has no official information that a colony of 3,000 Doukobors located at Kansack, Sask., intend to remove to Russia.

A Winnipeg despatch announces that the Doukobors are arranging to sell their land and implemets to an American syndicate and it quotes one of the prospective trekkers as complaining that they were exploited by Canadians and were not properly protected by the Government.

"Things must not be so very unfavorable out there," said a Federal Immigration official, "or the American syndicate would not be so readily interested."

The same official thought if the Doukobors were going to Russia they had been encouraged to do so by the Russian Government which was anxious to attract western farmers with experience of up-to-date agricultural methods so that the farmers of Russia might profit by their example.

Request to Russia.

BUCHANN, Sask., Jan. 29.—At a recent meeting of the Doukobors of the community held here it was decided to take no immediate steps toward sending the recently elected delegation to Russia. The reason for this is that the Doukobors have not yet received a favorable answer from the Soviet Government to ther request that upon their return to Russia, they be granted exemption from military service. Unless this is granted it is likely that the Doukobors will remain in Canada.

COW HAD KNOWN PATH OF GLORY

"May Echo Sylvia," Peerless Holstein Milker, Had Outlived Years of Usefulness—Killed By Veterinary Surgeon.

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Queen of dairy cows and holder of the world's record for milk production from one day to 120 days, "May Echo Sylvia," pride of the Canadian pure bred Holstein Friesian industry, was yesterday afternoon destroyed by Dr. T. G. Waghorn, veterinary surgeon attached to the staff of Avondale Farm, as she was considered to have outlived her days of usefulness. The animal was 15 years of age and some years ago brought renown to Canadian dairying by creating records for milk production that have never been beaten. She produced 1,005.8 pounds milk in seven days and 3,767.3 pounds milk in 30 days. One of her sons "Carnation King Sylvia" was sold by auction at Milwaukee at the age of six months for the sum of $106,000 and such was the store placed upon her progeny because of the record that she created that her blood is infused in herd scattered the continent over as well as in distant lands. She was owned by Hon. Senator A. C. Hardy.

BLAME SELF-DELUSION FOR CHARGE OF WOMAN AGAINST REV. C. D. CASE

Named As Co-respondent In Action For Divorce — Wife Declares He Was Model of Virtue and Very Circumspect.

"PURELY IMAGINARY"

MRS. CHARLOTTE LELAND (ABOVE) WHO IS BEING SUED FOR DIVORCE ON CHARGES INVOLVING AN OAK PARK MINISTER, AND REV. CARL D. CASE, THE ACCUSED PASTOR, WHO DECLARES HER CHARGES ARE "SELF-DELUSION."

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.— Only a clergyman's wife knows how eagerly certain people wait to pounce upon the reputation of a minister of the gospel.

She knows from whence blows the hot breath of scandal, leaving behind the charred remains of a good name.

She knows the "church buzzards" who wait for every scrap of gossip.

And how she must be constantly guarding her husband against these forces, is a most interesting sidelight to the ugly charges and intimations surrounding Rev. Carl D. Case, of the fashionable Oak Park Baptist Church.

Dr. Case has been named corespondent in a divorce action filed by Albert H. Leland against Charlotte Leland. Mrs. Leland has signed a certain "confession" of alleged affectionate relations.

That is one story. But Mrs. Case's statement of how just such situations are combated is another.

"My husband would not visit a woman on a parish call—particularly at night—without taking me along. There are many foolish and impressionable women in the world.

"Also my husband would not receive a woman in his study unless the door was left open. There are so many who jump at conclusions."

And now that the hint of scandal has come upon Dr. Case in spite of protective barriers, it is to the mental scientist that Dr. Case goes for his defense. Mrs. Leland is branded a neurotic, given to self-delusion. And such will be the evidence the defense will present in court.

The entire charge, according to the defense theory, is based in imagination.

In the days of the early church the woman would have been classed as possessed of a perverse spirit which bred hallucinations, this theory contends.

Instead of mumbling an incantation, however, the pastor today is fighting in court to clear his name. His defense, although unusual, has ample support from psychopathic experts.

"We have such cases as systematized delusions every day," says Dr. William J. Hickson, superintendent of the psychopathic hospital.

"There was a notable instance here a few years ago, which seared the life of a man who had a wife and grown children and had won the title of "general."

"In another case several years ago, a man was bringing suits against other high officials. He believed implicitly in the charges he had made. But they were, nevertheless, purely imaginary.

Mr. Leland's family, however, repudiates the hallucination theory without qualification.

"Charlotte is not crazy or mentally deranged," says her mother. "That fact is absolute. She is not crazy."

BLAME THE UNFIT DRIVER FOR TOLL.

Fifteen Thousand Persons Were Killed in Auto Accidents in the Year 1923.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Drive the "Motor Moron"—from the streets!

This is the remedy Fred. M. Rossland, chief of the National Safety Council's public safety division would apply toward making the highways safe. It supplements the National Safety Council's estimate, just announced, that 15,000 persons were killed in auto accidents in 1923—1,000 more than were killed in 1922.

"Enforcement of traffic laws already on the books is more important than writing new ones," says Rossland. Here are some ideas, though, which might help in a new code:

"Most important of all, eliminate unfit drivers. Delaware requires a test of all prospective drivers, to determine mechanical skill, and coordination of hand, eye and nerve. Drivers without certificates of fitness are arrested.

"Make 10 miles an hour maximum speed for cars turning street corners. Make 15 miles the limit in downtown sections and 20 miles the absolute maximum in a city.

"On busy corners where traffic police are required, compel pedestrians to observe the same signals as motorists and cross only with motor traffic.

"Create wider highways and more of them, correcting blind corners, before it is necessary to prohibit motor vehicles from certain streets in many cities."

The "fool woman driver" and children are far more careful than are men, according to the Safety Council accident survey. During ten months' study of Los Angeles, women drivers figured in only 4 per cent. of the accidents, while the number of children killed decreased.

"Safety instruction in the schools of 300 cities has cut down playing in the streets—and the 1924 jaywalkers are mainly grown persons," declares William H. Cameron, managing director of the National Safety Council. "If the parents took the same care children now do, there would be a far greater curbing of the accident rate."

SHOOTS WOMAN DEAD ON TORONTO STREET

Man Then Turns Gun on Himself and May Die as a Result.

TORONTO, Jan. 29. Canadian Press. — Emma Gordon, aged about 25, was shot through the head last night by an automatic in the hand of Benjamin Gottlieb, alias Gordon, aged 30.

The woman died instantly.

Gottlieb then turned the weapon on himself, and sent a bullet into his skull. He was removed to the general hospital, where the bullet was extracted. His recovery is doubtful.

The body of the woman was removed to the morg e, where an inquest will be opened to-day.

Little is known about Gottlieb. He and the woman had been living together for some time on Gerrard St. Last summer they were to have been married but the match was broken off and the two went their separate ways, the woman to some friends in the north, the man to his parents in Rochester, N.Y.

Gottlieb returned to the city recently after a short stay in Rochester. While walking along University avenue last night, he met the woman. There was an altercation, probably over the separation of last year, during which Gottlieb drew an automatic from his pocket and shot the woman. The bullet entered the left temple. She fell dead on the street, and a moment later Gottlieb turned the weapon on himself, and fell beside her.

The police believe that the true name of the dead woman is Emma Foubert, and that her home had been in Smok Hill, Ont. A letter was found on her body addressed to Miss E. Foubert, Smoky Holl, Ont.

New C. N. R. Rolling Stock

The C. N. R. management have improved the service on the Belleville- Peterborough branch which passes through Campbellford and have added materially to the comfort of the travelling public using that line. A new coach, built of steel throughout, one of the most modern passenger cars built, is now attached to the train which leaves here for Peterborough early in the morning and returns shortly after noon. The only wood used in the construction of this coach are the interior fixtures. The floor is of cement and the seats are finely upholstered. The car is lighted by electricity and the switch is so arranged that any number of lights can be turned on as required. This coach cannot be telescoped in case of a collision. It weighs 76½ tons as compared to 50 tons, the weight of wooden cars.

A new baggage car, built on a steel foundation has also been added to this train. With a burglar proof compartment at either end for bonded and valuable goods. Charles Hansford is conductor and H. B. Lockwood is trainman on this train, both favorably known by the patrons of the line. The roadbed is being improved and a number of new bridges have been put in during the summer.

THE TEMPERANCE FORCES GETTING BACK WORK AGAIN

Peterboro Represented at the Meeting Held in Toronto Yesterday.

A. B. Cunningham, chairman of the local Prohibition committee, represented this district yesterday at a meeting of leaders of the 'dry' forces of the province, held in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto. About one hundred men and women, representatives of prohibition sentiment, members of the old Referendum committee, the Committee of One Hundred and the Dominion Alliance, joined for the purpose of consolidating the temperance forces of the province into one solid organization. Mr. George A. Warburton, of Toronto, acted as secretary for the gathering, and R. J. Fleming, of Toronto, was chairman. The meeting was addressed by Hon. E. C. Drury, Hon. Mr. Raney, J. D. Flavelle of Lindsay, Chancellor Whidden of McMaster University, and also by a number of the leading business men of Toronto and towns and cities of the province. Mrs. W. Pugsley, of Toronto, represented the W.C.T.U.

The meeting manifested a more generally unanimous spirit in the temperance cause than has been noticeable in any gathering of the sort that has been held within a number of years. They resolved to unite all the temperance forces of the province into one organization, in which all the old prohibition societies will be merged, and a special committee was appointed at yesterday's meeting to arrange details for a convention which will be held in February or March, to perfect the new organization, which will be officially named at the same time. A provisional name in use will be the Ontario Prohibition Federation.

To this convention will be invited representatives of all churches and societies, irrespective of creed or sect, who manifest sympathy with the aims and objects of the Ontario Temperance Act and the Prohibition movement generally, and all individuals in accord with the motives of the organization will be welcome, and may take part in the same way as an accredited delegate. The meeting will be made as free and open as possible.

Yesterday, the temperance situation in the Province was discussed. A referendum will not be invited by the dry forces, but they will be ready to meet it if it comes.

The new organization wll make an earnest effort to combat the false propaganda which they claim is being circulated to discredit the O.T.A. It was declared yesterday that from fifty to seventy-five per cent. of the so-called violations of the Act which are published abroad have no foundation in fact. Steps will be taken to counteract this agitation.

Expressions of commendation were voiced for the foundation work done by Hon. Mr. Drury and Hon. Mr. Raney in the enforcement of the O.T.A. and satisfaction was expressed with the steps taken by the present Attorney General, Hon. W. F. Nickle, in his enforcement of prohibition legislation, and for the efforts made by the Domnion Government in curtailing boot-legging operations in Detroit. Hopes were expressed that the Federal Government would co-operate to a greater extent with the Ontario Prohibition forces ,as it was felt that the Dominion Government was morally responsible for such enforcement.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Edtior of The Examiner:

Sir,—Mr. F. H. Dobbin's letter on the increase of consumption ought to catch the attention of our people. Statistics show that the condition of people's health in this province is considerably worse in many respects than it was before Prohibition. Alcohol is the greatest solvent known and their can be no doubt of it in the minds of reasonable people who know from experience, that good whiskey has prolonged the lives of many consumptive people who would have died but for it. Why is it used in all our hospitals if it isn't a good thing? Then some time ago I wrote to the New York Cancer Hospital and asked them if whiskey was bad for cancer cases, and the whole staff said "No," but as to whether it was a help against that dread disease or not they could not positively state. In old times few people died of cancer, and I have always noticed that few people who took whiskey in reasonable quantities ever died of cancer.

You will remember that the fanactics in the United States raised a great cry against tobacco, and proposed a whirlwind propaganda against it, but when the celebrated Pasteur Institute of Paris stated that after prolonged experiment they had found tobacco absolutely fatal to the germ of cholera, meningitis and diptheria, the fanatics shut up for a little while anyhow.

Alcohol and tobacco, if used in reason are nature's own remedies for many of the diseases now gaining such headway under Prohibition.

NEW NOMINATIONS FOR MARMORA POST

School Trusteeship and Hydro Commission Vacancy to Be Filled.

Second nominations were held on Monday January 28, one for school trustee, on account of the removal of Mr. James Reid, two for Hydro commissioner.

Mr. J. D. Norrie and Mr. Jesse Wright were nominated for the office of school trustee.

Messrs. Sanderson, Bell and Pearce were nominated for the office of Hydro Commissioner.

The first Council meeting of the new council for 1924 was held on Monday, January 28.

Library Board

The Board of the Marmora Public Library met in the town hall on Monday evening. The first item of business was the election of chairman, secretary and treasurer.

Mr. D. E. Bell, who so ably filled the position of chairman in 1923, was re-elected for 1924. Miss Margaret Clare was appointed librarian and secretary. Mr. M. E. Grant remains in his former position as treasurer.

A new list of books were chosen to be ordered. Already some seventy books for the small children have been ordered so that the taste for good reading may be cultivated in the very youngest of the school pupils.

A good list of the newest and best fiction is already in the Library or on order. The membership fee this year is a little higher than formerly but by obtaining the newest books the Board of Management hope to keep up the circulation to what it has been.

During 1923 the Libtary has obtained 316 volumes, either by donation or purchase.

The Board has begun the new year by deciding to place in the Library such magazines as the "Literary Digest," "The Geographical Magazine," and the "Popular Mechanics Magazine." These are only a few of those which have been donated or subscribed for.

THE CONTRACTORS GOT BIG FORTUNE

Milked the Taxpayers of France to the Extent of Millions.

PARIS, Jan. 30.—(United Press) As a result of a dramatic exposure of alleged frauds in connection with war damages claims in the devastated areas, the Commission of Finances will start Wednesday to draw up a bill for revising all war damage claims of more than half a million francs.

Socialist members of the Chamber of Deputies created a tumult in the Chamber, Tuesday by demanding reforms in the operation of the ministry of the liberated regions and firing a broadside of attacks on overcharges for war damages.

"Architects and contractors in the devastated regions made scandalous fortunes," one deputy declared. Socialists insisted that the claims be revised and Premier Poincare yielded to their demand. It is expected that cutting the claims will mean a saving to the Government of between two and three billion francs. The bill will provide means for forcing persons and companies that milked the state to disgorge and is aimed largely at big industrialist who admitted they turned in excessive claims which were winked at because officials believed that Germany would foot the bills. Deputy Inghels who launched the attack declared that billions of francs had been stolen from the state and cited the case of one big tannery which had claimed large damage for finished leather stocks that had been destroyed in the war.

It was ascertained, he said that the leather had actually been in an unfinished condition and that the tannery made a profit of millions of francs in the sum allowed them by the Government.

LOWER RATE FOR GARBAGE IN CITY

Six Tenths of a Mill for Garbage Collections This Year Instead of Seven Tenths.

When applications for the installing of sanitary conveniences were received from several citizens, the Property Committee of the City Council, at a meeting last night, decided to refer all applications to City Solicitor Wearing for investigation as to the owners' ability to pay for the conveniences.

The committee decided to have a by-law prepared fixing the rate of 6-10th of a mill for garbage collections, which is one-tenth of a mill less than last year.

Frank White, 380 Water Street, asked permission to make changes to a shed at the rear of his premises. The changes do not conform to the city building by-laws, and after considering Mr. White's application the committee decided that they could not grant his request.

Alderman Crowe approved of a request of the Board of Health that the City Council provide a rest room in the central part of the city, having in view conveniences for women. Several phases of this programme were considered, and finally Mayor Turner suggested the use of the vacant land at the rear of the Customs House, facing Charlotte Street. He thought that by approaching the Government this land would be obtainable.

Rentals for the use of dwellings and buildings on Riverside Park property having fallen in arrears, the City Solicitor will be given instructions to collect the outstanding amounts.

Some changes, one of them being better accommodation for taxpayers at the collector's office, are deemed necessary at the City Buildings, and a committee will investigate and report to the Council.

Mayor Turner proposed that the City Engineer be asked to give a report on the cost of laying concrete, 7 feet wide, along the inside of the sidewalks at the Market Square. This will supply drainage and will make the market much more sanitary.

SOCIETY WHIRL IS TOO MUCH FOR HER

Boston Banker's Daughter Ends Life With Bullet.

BOSTON, Jan. 30. — (United Press). — "My dear Father: You don't know how I am suffering. Please forgive me for what I have done. I cannot stand it any longer. Good-bye. Love. Margaret."

Such was the note left for William P. G. Harding, head of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, by his youngest daughter because she shot herself with his pistol Saturday, despondent over failing health.

Associate Medical Examiner Brickley entered on the death certificate "hemorrhage to be investigated," but Harding revealed that his daughter, who was 23 years old, had committed suicide.

Stanley Hawkes, prominent Washington official, who recently announced his engagement after a close friendship with Margaret, called at the Harding home Monday, but did not attend the funeral.

Hawkes, it was understood, arrived in Boston, but efforts to find him proved futile. Mr. Harding had talked with him earlier in the day.

Governor Harding said he told Hawkes to return to Washington as there was nothing he could do here.

Engagement Expected.

According to word received here from Washington, society there expected the engagement of Miss Harding to Hawkes. This, however, did not come about and recently it was announced he would marry Miss Margaret Baldwin, daughter of Arthur Bliss Lane, diplomatic secretary in the State Department.

Harding learned of the death of his daughter when he called Dr. G. A. Waterman from the New York home of Mrs. Eugene V. R. Thayer, another daughter, Saturday afternoon.

With tears streaming down his face, Governor Harding related how his "little girl" grew into womanhood, only to be robbed of her health by her constant attendance at parties, dance and other social affairs.

"I was happy after her presentation to society," he said, "to learn from her own lips that she was enjoying herself. I saw later where it was telling on her and asked her, soon after I came to Boston, to give it up and preside over our home here."

Agress to Settle Down.

It was after considerable pleading, he said, that she finally agreed to give a greater part of her time to her father's home, but she was to have one more trip to Washington and then come back here and settle down.

In Washington a week ago she suffered two hemorrhages and a doctor advised her to go home and enter a sanitarium. She promised to do this, but for some reason did not tell Dr. Waterman here what had happened in Washington.

"When I met her at the station when she returned Thursday she told me she was too tired to talk, and that she was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. I went to New York that night and on Saturday learned that one of the maids here tried to get me on the telephone. The maid referred me to Dr. Waterman, and from him I learned that Margaret had shot herself."

Miss Harding, it was learned, closeted herself in her room Saturday, and a few minutes later had a maid serve lunch. When the maid returned to collect the dishes she found them in the hallway together with several letters. The doors to Miss Harding's room were locked. The maid called Dr. Waterman, who later summoned the medical examiner. One of the doors was forced open, and Miss Harding found in bed, a bullet wound in her breast and and her father's pistol at her side.

He had no intention of letting her suspect that the wonderful plan was just eight hours old.

"I understand," she said. "When do we start?"

"Tomorrow morning. Eight-thirty. Grand Central."

"Tomorrow morning!" She looked almost as dismayed as Mr. Dinwiddie had done, then laughed and it can be done—but——"

"Anything can be done," he said darkly. And then, having got his way, he suddenly felt happy and irresponsible, and made one of his abrupt wild dives at her.

XLVI.

The "camp," a large log house, with a living room, a small room for guns and fishing tackle, two bedrooms, besides the servants' wing, downstairs, and eight bedrooms above, stood in a clearing on the western shore of a lake nearly two miles long, and about three-quarters of a mile wide in the center of its fine oval sweep. The lake itself was in a cup of the mountains, whose slopes in the distance looked as if covered with fur, so dense were the woods. Only one high peak, burnt bare by fire, was still covered with snow.

The camp was in a grove of pines, but the trees that crowded one another almost out into the lake among the lily pads were spruce and balsam and maple.

The party arrived at half past nine in the evening, and crossed the lake in a motor launch. It was very dark and the forest surrounding the calm expanse of water looked like an impenetrable wall, an unscalable rampart. There was not a sound but the faint chugging of the motor. The members of the party, tired after their long trip on the train and two hours' drive up the rough road from the station to the lake, surrendered to the high mountain stillness, and even Rollo Todd, who had been in his best spirits all day, fell silent and forgot that he was a jolly good fellow, remembered only that he was a poet. Eva Darling, who had flirted shamelessly with Mr. Dinwiddie from New York to Huntersville, forgot to hold his hand, and he forgot her altogether.

Mary had a sudden and complete sense of isolation. Memory had played her a trick. These were the mountains of her girlhood, and she was Mary Ogden once more. Even the future that had been so hard to outline in her practical mind, that unescapable future just beyond a brief interval in an Austrial mountain solitude, seemed to sink beyond a horizon infinitely remote. Europe was as unreal as New York. She vowed, if it were necessary to vow, that she would give neither a thought while she was here in the wilderness. And as she was a thoroughgoing person she knew she would succeed.

She took her first step when Mr. Dinwiddie was showing them to their rooms. She took Gora into her own room and shut the door.

"I want you to do me a favor—if you will, dear Miss Dwight," she said.

"Of course." Gora wondered what was coming.

"I want you to ask the others to abandon their subtle game while we are up here and ignore the subjects of Lee's play, his future, his genius, which will wither outside of New York, and cease to attempt to strike terror into my soul. You may tell them that we are to be married in a month or two from now—in Austria—but that I shall do nothing to interfere with his career; nor protest against his passing a part of each year in the United States. Ask them kindly to refrain from congratulations, or any illusion to the subject whatever. We have only eight days here, and I should like it ot be as nearly perfect as possible."

Gora had had the grace to blush. "They have been worried, and I'm afraid they hatched a rather naughty plot. But they'll be delighted to have their apprehensions banished—and of course they'll ignore the entire matter. They won't say a word to Clavey, either."

"They've not made the slightest impression on him, so it really doesn't matter whether they do for not. But—when it dawned on me what they were up to, and the sound reasoning beneath it, I will confess that I had some bad half hours. Of course, Lee has a right to his own life. I had hoped he would help me in my own field, but he could not if he would. I have come to see that plainly. I do not mean to say that these amiable machinations of your friends caused me for a moment to consider giving him up. I have survived worse——" She shuddered as she recalled that hideous hour with Agnes Trevor, but promptly whipped the memory back to cover. "But it made me very uncomfortable and I realized there was nothing to do but compromise. We must take what we can get in this world, my dear Miss Dwight, and be thankful for a candle when we cannot have the sun."

And Gora, feeling unaccountably saddened, summoned the others to her room and told them of Madame Zattiany's announcement and request. Some gasped with astonishment and delight, others were darkly suspicious, but all gave their word unhseitatingly to "forget it" while they were in camp. Those that regarded Madame Zattiany as the most fascinating woman they had ever known, but also as an intrigante of dark and winding ways, made a mental reservation to "say a few things to Clavey" before he had time to buy his ticket for the Dolomites.

Mary, having accomplished her her mind and looked about ner room with pleasure. The walls were ceiled with a wood that gleamed like gold in the candlelight, and gave out a faint scent of the forest. On the bare floor were two or three small rugs, there were pretty blue counterpanes on the beds, and blue curtains on the small windows. It looked like a young girl's room and was indescribably sweet and fresh. Her own room at her father's camp, on another lake many miles away, had been not unlike it. Moreover, it was pleasantly warm, for the caretaker had made a fire in the furnace the day before. A window was open, and she could hear the soft lap of the water among the lily pads, but there was no moon and she could see nothing but a dim black wall on the opposite shore. And the silence! It might not have been broken since the glacial era, when mighty masses of ice ground these mountains into permanent form, and the air was filled with the roaring horrors of desolation. But they had gone, and left infinite peace behind them. That peace had endured for many thousands of years and it was unimaginable that any but the puny sounds of man would disturb that vast repose for thousands of years to come. The peaks of those old Adirondacks, their quiet lakes, their massive forests, looked as deathless as time itself. "The Great North Woods" could not have been more remote from, more scornful of the swarming cities called civilization, if they had been on another star.

Luxury in camp did not extend to hot water in the bedrooms, particularly as Mr. Dinwiddie had had no time to assemble a corps of servants, and as Mary washed her face and hands in what felt like melted ice, the shock made her tingle and she would have liked to sing.

A deep bell sounded. Doors flew open up and down the corridor, which was immediately filled with an eager chatter. Rollo Todd stamped down the stair singing "Oh, Hunger, Sweet Hunger!" The others took it up in various keys, and when Mary went down a moment later they were all swarming about the dining table at the end of the living room.

This room, which was fully fifty feet long and half as wide, was lit by lamps suspended from the ceiling and heated by an immense fireplace in which logs, that looked like half-sections of trees, were blazing in a pile as high as a small bonfire. The walls were ceiled and decorated with antlered, deer-heads, woven bright Indian blankets, snapshots of Mr. Dinwiddie's guests many, and old Indian weapons. In one corner, above a divan covered with gay cushions, were book-shelves filled with old novels. A shelf had been built along one side of the room for fine specimens of Indian pottery and basket weaving. The comfortable chairs were innumerable, and there was another divan, and a victrola. The guide had filled the vases with balsam, whose pungent odor blended with the resinous fumes of the burning logs; and through the open door came the scents of the forest.

"Ideal place for everything but spooning," cried Todd. "The woods and the lake are all right in fine weather, but what do you expect us to do if it rains, mine host? D'you mean to say you haven't any little retiring rooms?"

"Not a thing unless you retire to the gun room, but who comes up to the woods to spoon in the house?"

"Rolly never spoons, anyhow," announced Eva Darling, whose blue eyes, however, were languishing toward the table. "But it makes him unhappy to think he can't burst in on somebody——"

"Hold your tongue, Evy. You don't know what you're talking about. Because I'm quite insensible to your charms, don't fool yourself that I'm an anchorite. I merely prefer brunettes."

WOMEN'S GARB FAVORS GRIPPE

Paris Physicians Blame Dress For Two-Thirds of Colds Suffered By Fair Sex.

(By JEAN HENRY)

NEW YORK, Jan. .30—In Paris the doctors blame the styles for the fact that women represent almost two-thirds of the cases of the grippe in the hospitals this last week. They blame silk stockings, low shoes, sleeveless frocks and low necks for the sorry state of affairs.

Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, Commissioner of Health of New York City, in discussing New York's freedom from grippe, says that, although women's styles are not so beautiful as they were in the old days when women had waist lines and more naturally curly figures, the styles are more sanitary. He remarks:

"Why, I can remember when a lady's trailing skirts would sweep a clean path along the street and up to her very door. Those were the days when disease germs were spread efficiently—very efficiently. Of course, that was a bad point for the dresses of those days, but they were better looking than the flour sacks that women hang from their shoulders today and call dresses.

Warm Clothes Needed

"To avoid colds, you ought to wear enough to keep warm. This sudden change in weather must be met by common sense in dress. The clothes that were comfortable last week are totally inadequate today."

Dr. Mary Halton, who has had not only wide experience with feminine health, but with feminine ideals, declares that hospital records do not indicate health conditions, for the simple reason that when a man is sick the women of his family devote all their services to caring for the invalid, but when a woman is sick there is no one to give her tender care at home, so she has to go to the hospital. Dr. Halton's eyes flash and she declares:

"Woman's dress is most sensible and adaptable. It is a symptom of her intelligence and her ability to adapt herself to the ways of civilization. She wears thin things indoors where the rooms are heated and then puts on heavy outer things when she goes into the cold. She can throw a scarf around her shoulders when the temperature of the room goes down a few degrees.

Men's Dress "Stupid"

"It is different with the dress of a man. His clothes have not changed since the benighted eighties. He wears stupid woolen jackets in superheated offices and houses. He wears stiff collars that fit tightly into his neck and interfere with the flow of blood to the brain. The overcoat he puts on when he goes outdoors is not a very great contrast to his indoor things.

"And, as for this grippe scare, look at this statement in Dr. Osler's book covering the study of pneumonia at Johns Hopkins; it says quite definitely that women stand a greater chance of recovery from pneumonia than men.

"This is due not only to their superior physical heritage, but also to their greater intelligence in dress."

HEALTH AND VITALITY FOR WOMEN

Health and Vitality can be yours without narcotics or drugs. Keeping well is largely a matter of keeping at bay those dread ailments peculiar to women as evidenced by headaches, nervousness, dragging-down pains, backache and irritability. For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been overcoming such conditions and restoring sick and ailing women to health. It surely pays every suffering woman to try it.

NEW EQUIPMENT LAKEFIELD LINE.

Important Railway Conference May Have the Desired Results.

LINDSAY Jan. 29.—An important conference bearing on improved transportation facilities on the Belleville Division of the C.N.R. has been held in Lindsay during the past two days with the following officials in attendance: C. E. Horning, General Passenger Agent; J. A. Melville, Assistant Passenger Agent; F. A. Rutherford, Superintendent Transportation, and J. D. McMillan Superintendent Belleville Division.

One of the important matters discussed was the question of electrification of some of the lines in this division with a view to giving the public improved service. Among the branch lines mentioned was the Peterboro-Lakefield and while nothing official was given out it is believed that it will only be a matter of time before a gasoline-electric service such as has been installed on certain C.N.R. lines will be introduced on this and other branches.

Another matter discussed was the installation of an early passenger train leaving Lindsay, Bancroft, Hastings County and thence to Trenton via Anson Junction.

An important annoucement relative to improved service is expected at an early date.

A SQUEALY RIDDLE

And one went into the barber's chair

"This riddle," said the Riddle Lady with a smile, "is about a most peculiar creature. I'm just about certain that nobody will guess it. Not even Nancy and Nick."

"What is it?" shouted everybody.

"I'll begin at once," said the Riddle Lady, "but if anybody has worn his dunce-cap in mistake for his thinking-cap, he'd better go home and change it. But there! This is the riddle:

"They have saucy snouts and curly tails,
And bodies as round as milking pails,
And they like to grunt and they love to squeal,
And simply adore a good square meal.

"They eat sweet apples and corn and clover,
And roll in the mud till they're plastered over,
And root and dig with moisty nose,
To find where the juiciest turnip grows.

"The story says that one day they went
To town, these brothers, on pleasure bent,
One went to market, one bought roast beef,
And one got lost and came to grief.

"And one went to the grocery store, 'tis said,
And bought him a slice of butter and bread,
And one went into the barber's shop
And bought him a wig to wear on top.

"And one was stolen by the Piper's son
Who picked him up and then did run.
And one, they say, called Hickory Dare,
Got a flying machine and flew up in the air.

"And one built a house of straw and hay,
The better to keep the wolf away.
And one built a house of boughs and sticks,
And one made a house of good, hard bricks.

"But the wisest one of all these brothers,
Who had more sense than all the others,
Was the wise little fellow who stayed at home,
And said he was satisfied not to roam.

"Now what is the name of these lusty scouts,
With the curly tail and saucy snouts,
Who roll in mud, and buy them wigs,
And come home again, home again dancing jigs?

"I do think that is a delicate thing to talk about in the present company," said Tom Piper, blushing very red.

"Oh, it's not delicate!" laughed the Riddle Lady. "It's quite fat and healthy. They all are! Has anybody guessed?"

"It's pigs!" called out every Riddle Lander and every Mother Goose Lander and Nancy and Nick and Humpty Dumpty and Daddy Gander all at once.

"Well, I declare!" said the Riddle Lady. "I do believe there isn't a single dunce-cap here today. Isn't that fine! Well, everybody gets a photograph of the Five Little Pigs taken on their last trip to town. That's the prize today."

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

CLEANSING THE FACE

A clean face is a health factor of no small importance. Just how the face governs health conditions is a question of great importance to both men and women.

The stimulation and free circulation in the skin of the face should always be considered. Without a freely moving supply of blood in the small arteries and capillaries, the face will become thin, sallow and decorated with blotches and pimples. To avoid this condition, and always present the best appearance we possibly can, is the health factor desired.

Keep the face clean as possible at all times. Never go all day without carefully cleansing the face at least twice. Oftener is better. If dust, dirt and germs have had a good chance to get acquainted with your features, remove them as quickly as you can. Cold water is the best face wash. It has the tonal properties which not only give strength and flexibility to the elastic fibers of the skin but it will also keep back and delay longer than any other fancy preparation, the appearance of wrinkles.

Of course, warm water and soap must be used to cleanse at times, but the warm face bath is not to be classed with the cold as a skin tonic.

The face is a health mirror. The physician can often tell your real condition by a glance at your face. If any outbreak or eruption occurs on the skin of your face be careful that you do not come in contact with other members of the family through towel contact, bed clothes or touching face or hands. Poisonous effects that are far-reaching have been communicated through facial contamination.

LEST WE FORGET

It is well known among physicians and psychologists that certain mental characteristics are closely traceable to hereditary sources. Moral traits ar also known to posses heritable qualities.

But what is true of one class of traits, holds good of the other or immoral side also. Criminality, pauperism, lying, superstition and secretiveness, also vanity and quickness to anger are marked up against the inheritable traits.

The question for you to determine is what traits are desirable for you in your life-keeping to pass on to the coming generation. The individual should consider and carefully weigh all the fundamental facts which enter into the perpetuation of the race. Eugenists mean to show that the cells that pass the stream of life on to those of the future are for a time in your keeping. Yours is a holy and sacred mission, the guardianship of life esxtension for the coming race.

When one considers the mental and physical condition of hundreds of thousands of young men who were carefully examined by the army during the great war, we blush for shame. A moral degenerate has no right to marry and continue the strain in others who may come after him. He who has wilfully defiled his life stream has betrayed a sacred trust.

Lest you forget what life in its fullest and greatest sense means to yourself and those who follow you, I ask you to live a clean, hygienic life. Build for the coming generations more suitable body homes in order that they may have a life stream pure and undefiled.

Floating Specks Before The Eyes Means Liver Trouble

When specks start to float before the eyes, when everything seems to turn black for a few seconds and you feel as if you were going to faint, you can rest assured that your liver is not working properly.

The essential thing to do in all cases where the liver is slow, lazy or torpid, is to stir it up by the use of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and clear away the accumulated mass of waste and poisonous matter from the system.

Mr .Chas. Ayland, Frankville, Ont., writes:—"I used to be awfully bothered with floating specks before my eyes, headaches and sickness to my stomach. I took just half a vial of your Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and ever since I have felt as well as I ever did. Now I always keep them on hand."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
